COMMUNISTS ARE SOWING SEEDS AMONG UNEMPLOYED

In Demonstration At City Hall In Philadelphia Seventeen Persons Were Arrested On Charges of Inciting a Riot—Score of Marchers Were Knocked Down and Several Policemen Received Rough Treatment—Circulars Disclose That the Communist Party Has Called For Unemployment Demonstrations In Every City In the Country On Wednesday, Feb.26.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—(AP)— A crowd of about 200 men and women marched on city hall today and were halted in a skirmish with police on the north plaza of the building as several of them endeavored to force their way upstairs to the office of Mayor Harry A. Mackey.

In the clash a score of marchers, including several girls, were knocked down; several policemen were tripped, some lost buttons from their uniforms, one marcher was hurt, and seventeen persons, including three women, were arrested on charges of inciting to riot.

Police said they had advance warning of the march. Patrolmen were assembled outside and inside of city hall when the demonstrators began marching about five squares away. They arrived at the north plaza of the municipal building carrying placards protesting against unemployment and industrial conditions. As they marched they threw out circulars.

These read: "The communist party of the U. S. has called for unemployment demonstrations in every city in the country on Wednesday, February 26 Have all the unemployed join councils of the Trade Union Unity league and join this demonstration at factory gates and civic centers."

At the north plaza of city hall police guarded a stairway leading to the mayor's office. A man in the group of marchers, police said, shouted, "Rush them," apparently meaning the defending policemen. The patrolmen drew their clubs and in the skirmish that followed several heads were struck.

The demonstration lasted less than fifteen minutes. The police arrested those who would not leave the scene and those who engaged in arguments or physical resistance. A large crowd of shoppers and office workers were attracted by the disturbance.

Lieut. Jacob Gomborrow, in charge of the detective bureau's "radical squad," reported to Superintendent of Police Mills that the demonstration was timed for the return of Mayor Mackey today from his two weeks' West Indian cruise and original plans called for a committee of women and children to file into his office and protest against unemployment, while the men staged a demonstration on the plaza beneath the mayor's office windows. The arrangements, he reported, were made at a meeting last night.

One man was treated at a hospital and later arrested and held for a hearing with others tomorrow. Among those arrested was a man giving the name Edward Bender, 24, of Philadelphia. Police said he took part in a demonstration on Feb. 1 before the Mexican embassy in Washington.

Others arrested gave these names: Tess Ryder, 18; Abe Kashoff, 28, William Thomas, 19; Joseph Carvin 18; Fred Rentz, 22; Kalman Jaffe, 50; Max Sendoff, 17; Milton Welch 26; John M. Haczkowsky, 26; Leonard Tolson, 38; June Croll, 28; Rose Sockolov, 21; Edward Solvay, 27; Samuel Miller, 76; Sidney Kravitz 22; Joseph Chandler, 22, all of Philadelphia.

WOMAN CANCER PATIENT IN AIR FLIGHT TO CLINIC

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14—(AP)—Death raced today against an airplane bringing Mrs. Irving Edwins, wife of an orchardist of Chelan county, Wash., from Wenatchee to join the numerous cancer victims flocking to the clinic established in the Southern Pacific hospital here by Dr. Walter B. Coffey and Dr. John D. Humber.

Told that his wife, who underwent an operation last August for cancer of the stomach, could not survive the train journey to San Francisco to receive the adrenal treatment, Drs. Coffey and Humber are testing, in line with their previous laboratory experiments, Edwins chartered a special plane which left Wenatchee this morning and was due here late today.

The plane's cabin was re-fitted as an aerial ambulance, chairs being removed to accommodate Mrs. Edwins' cot. Her husband accompanied her. Pilot Charles A. Rector was at the controls.

President Paul Shoup of the Southern Pacific company announced that the company would underwrite the research workers further experiments.

"The Southern Pacific will bear all the necessary expenses in connection with Dr. Coffey's cancer work," he said. "It is very gratifying to us that a development of such importance has come out of the Southern Pacific hospital to which Dr. Coffey has been attached almost all of his professional life. We want Dr. Coffey to do his research work where he began it. The work shall not suffer for lack of funds or any facilities that may be required. There are no restrictions."

HONEYMOON PRESCRIBED FOR AN ELDERLY COUPLE

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—(AP)—A honeymoon was prescribed by Judge Joseph Sabath today as the salve to mend the happiness of an elderly couple broken after 40 years of marriage.

Mrs. Amalia Enslin, 66, told Judge Sabath her husband had become "tired of her" and sent her to an infirmary three years ago. She escaped, she said, by obtaining a pass to see her dentist. The court tried reconciliation and asked whether Enslin could take his wife to Florida.

"He has between $50,000 and $60,000 saved up that we were going to take our honeymoon on," Mrs. Enslin said.

Enslin preferred California so they compromised on Hot Springs, Arkansas. They will leave Monday, stay a month and report in court April 7. "I'm going to be in Hot Springs myself in a few days," said Judge Sabath. "I'll look you up."

WOMAN PLUNGED TO DEATH FROM TENTH FLOOR WINDOW

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14—(AP)—Miss Gertrude Hoffner, 44, of Drexel Hill, a suburb, plunged to death from a window on the tenth floor of an office building, at Fifteenth and Market streets, today. She landed on the roof of a two-story adjoining building. The woman was dead when a policeman, who heard her scream as she fell, reached her side.

Miss Hoffner was a bookkeeper employed at a printing establishment several blocks from the scene.

WOMAN CONDUCTED BERLIN PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA

BERLIN, Feb 14.—(AP)—Antonia Brico, of Berkeley, Calif., made her debut tonight as the first American woman ever to conduct the Berlin philharmonic orchestra. The program included renditions of Haendel, Schumann and Dvorak.

A capacity audience applauded her generously, apparently surprised to see a woman interpret a score so well. Many Berlin conductors were present.

HELD FOR EMBEZZLEMENT AND MISAPPLICATION OF $244,000

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14—(AP)—Herbert E. Anthony, former vice president of the Bank of Italy branch at San Diego was indicted by the federal grand jury today for the alleged embezzlement and misapplication of $244,000 of the bank's funds.

LETTER OF REGRET READ TO WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—William Howard Taft had read to him today a letter from his friends on the supreme court bench expressing regret that illness had compelled his resignation as chief justice.

The afflicted jurist was able to sign a reply, which said his pleasant relations with the associate justices had been reluctantly severed only because his health no longer permitted him to go on. This was the first time that he had been able to give attention to such a matter since his return from Asheville, N. C., 10 days ago.

Dr. Francis R. Hagner, the attending physician, said Mr. Taft had regained sufficient strength to sit in his bedroom half of each day. While some improvement has been reported daily, and is gratifying to his family and doctors, they do not consider him as having passed from danger or to have made any material progress toward permanent recovery.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, the distinguished associate justice who will celebrate his eighty-ninth birthday in March, prepared the note read today to the former chief justice. It expressed the affection in which Mr. Taft is held by his fellow jurists.

The correspondence will be made public when the court resumes its sessions on Feb. 24, and Chief Justice Hughes takes his place on the bench.

DIBATTISTA'S PLEA FOR COMMUTATION DENIED

HARTFORD, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Frank A. DiBattista, 25 years old, convicted Hartford slayer, lost what was apparently his last chance for clemency late this afternoon, when the board of pardons rejected his plea for commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment. Unless something interferes with the natural course of things he will be hanged at the state prison in Wethersfield soon after midnight next Friday morning for the murder of Samuel Kamaroff, Hartford storekeeper, on the night of April 1, 1929.

RELEASE 31 HAITIANS WHO CLASHED WITH U. S. MARINES

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Thirty-one Haitians arrested by the Nacional garde, Feb. 12, at a mass meeting in memory of Haitians killed in a clash with marines last December were released today.

Eleven of them were fined $2.60 each by the court, but the fines were remitted by the commissaire du gouvernment. The commissaire also released three of the leaders and 11 others outright.

TO HUNT FOR BODY OF MISSING 4-YEAR-OLD BOY

WOOSTER, Ohio, Feb. 14.—(AP)—The entire official forces of Wayne county will be concentrated tomorrow in the hunt for the body of Melvin Horst, 4, "Little Boy Blue," of Orrville, Ohio, missing since December 27, 1928, if two men now held here for questioning fail to reveal the location of the body, Special Prosecutor Walter J. Mougey said tonight.

WOULD PLACE AIR MAIL CONTRACTS ON MILEAGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Reorganization of air mail contracts, placing them on a mileage instead of the present poundage basis, and allowing the postmaster general to enter them without preliminary advertisement for bids, was proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator McNary, republican, Oregon.

MOTHER ADDS TRIPLETS TO FAMILY OF SIX CHILDREN

BELVIDERE, N. J., Feb. 14.—(AP)—In her mountain home near Lommason's Glen, Mrs. Harry Emery, 29, added triplets to her family of six children yesterday. Mother and her two new girls and one boy are doing fine, reported Dr. G. W. Cummins, after a trip into the hills today.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON Feb. 14.—(AP) — Evelyn Colyer, British tennis player, and Hamish Munro a tea planter of Assam, India, were married at Christ church, Streatham.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—(AP)— The five power naval disarmament conference expects to wind up in another month, March 15, being mentioned tentatively as the closing date at which the delegates are now aiming.

Packing company officials who imported men here from Los Angeles to do the work reported that 170 cars of lettuce, nearly an average number, were shipped last night. Officials and strike leaders both reiterated their refusal to meet the other's demands.

The workers complain that the failure of the lettuce crop to grow rapidly this year has reduced their earnings and that an increase in wages is necessary to equal the earnings of previous years.

Bingham And Norris Clash In The Senate

Prior to Confirmation [illegible] Walter As U. S. Marshal For District of Connecticut.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 14—Jacob A. Walter was confirmed late today by the senate, but not until Senator Norris of Nebraska had again burst forth into a tirade and an attempt to start a row. Norris aimed to injure Senator Bingham rather than Walter, by reading to the congressional record an article from a Connecticut newspaper written by its correspondent in Washington to the effect that Senator Bingham had once stated that the hearing on the fitness of Walter recently held by a subcommittee was aimed at him (Bingham) rather than at Walter.

It developed that the writer of the article circulated it among the radical element of the senate, who had been largely instrumental in bringing about the rebuke to Bingham in regard to the employment of Eyanson. As a result Norris took the opportunity today to take another shot at Bingham but after having raised the rumpus, simmered down and said he had no objection to the confirmation of Walter, which then went through without a hitch.

The attack on Bingham by Norris met with a hot retort from Bingham who defended himself with considerable force and apparently felt the use Norris was making of the newspaper clipping was abundment proof of the truth of his statement.

WORKING TO HARMONIZE FRENCH NAVAL PROPOSALS

LONDON, Feb. 14—(AP)—The naval conference today began the work of harmonizing the French fleet demands of 724,479 tons with the general plan of the London conference for disarmament.

To that end, Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, Premier Tardieu of France and Secretary Stimson of the United States, conferred for two and a half hours in St. James' palace. Senator Robinson and Ambassador Morrow sat with Mr. Stimson.

The talk was of such a general preliminary character there was not even a suggestion in conference circles that any progress had been made toward persuading France to slice nearly 200,000 tons from her demands—a hope viewed as one way to solve the problem the French figures present to other delegations.

Col. Stimson, representing the United States, issued the first figures February 6th, Mr. MacDonald followed the next day and France and Japan made their statements yesterday. Italy's declaration at the opening plenary session, announcing her willingness to reduce her fleet to the lowest possible figure, was considered to state her case.

Premier Tardieu led the regular week-end migration from London today. When asked as to the probable duration of the conference, he replied: "Don't be impatient. Let us wait and see."

He will return Monday or Tuesday to continue discussions with Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Stimson.

W. A. Butler Out For A Senatorial Berth

Announcement Made By the Former Chairman of Rep. National Committee.

BOSTON, Feb. 15—(AP)—William M. Butler, former chairman of the national republican committee and United States senator, today announced his candidacy for the republican senatorial nomination in the primaries next September. He aspires to the seat now occupied by Senator Frederick H. Gillett, who has made known his intention to retire.

Butler, who managed Calvin Coolidge's campaign for the presidency in 1924, said that he believed he should be returned to the senate to build up and protect the business of the state from the competition of the south and west. He also said he was making his plans known at this time, "partly to clarify the political situation."

Referring to prohibition as "another of the great issues of the hour," Butler said he would meet that issue squarely in another statement, and within a month."

Briefly summarizing his record in the Massachusetts legislature, as a representative and senator, and in congress, Butler said, "I have always been a republican. I should go to the senate as such, to co-operate with the party there-in. I have, for years, sat in its councils, state and national. I have had a hand in shaping its policies and campaigns.

"Massachusetts is preeminently a business and industrial state. Strangely, of the last twenty senators from Massachusetts but three, beside himself, have been businessmen, I should go to the senate, among other purposes to build up and protect its business and industrial prosperity from a competing south and west. The facts should be faced."

He was cited for bravery and received wounds that have kept him in the hospital most of the time since. He wears an eight-inch iron band about his stomach, and must have drugs to live.

He was sent, not to the workhouse on Welfare Island, but to the naval base hospital in Brooklyn.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—Notice that a drive would be started tomorrow by the democrats to lower the existing aluminium tariffs was served in the senate today by Senator Walsh of Montana, acting minority leader.

The announcement came at the end of a session devoted only incidentally to the tariff, which was returned to its preferred status today after several days of debate on the Hughes' nomination to be chief justice. Walsh said he would propose an amendment at the outset tomorrow to reduce the present duties of nine cents a pound on sheet, bar and coil aluminum and five cents a pound on the crude product to three and a half and two cents, respectively. The latter were the rates in the Underwood act of 1913.

TIRADES ON SUPREME COURT BY MALCONTENTS IN SENATE

Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, Condemned the Supreme Court For Its Decisions In Rate Valuation of Utilities—Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, Advocated a Constitutional Amendment Restricting the Supreme Court From Authority to Set Aside Acts of Congress—Norris Joined In the Criticism.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP)—One of the most outspoken and bitter debates over the supreme court in recent history, swept the senate today after a warning by Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, to the court to change its attitude on economic issues.

The word "revolution" contributed to the tenseness but Senator Dill denied that he had advocated revolution except at the ballot box. Senator Vandenberg, republican, Michigan, defended the judiciary branch of the government—and before long the emphatic expressions of differences brought back into action the leading actors in the fight over confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice.

The Washington democrat opened the debate by condemning the supreme court for its decisions in rate valuation of utilities and for "building up a judicial system of law which is fast bringing economic slavery to the masses of people."

He put on notice the majority of the court, naming Chief Justice Hughes, Justices Sutherland, Van Devanter, Butler, Sanford, and McReynolds, that it is up to them "to say whether the supreme court in the future is going to be in politics."

Replying with vehemence, Vandenberg declared Dill's attack to be "another effort to force the judgment of the legislative branch of our government upon the judiciary."

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, joined in the debate to advocate a constitutional amendment restricting the supreme court from authority to set aside acts of congress. He also advocated the popular election of judges.

Senator Walsh democrat, Montana, denied a contention of Senator Vandenberg that the supreme court had protected the south from military rule after the Civil war.

SCULPTOR AWARDED $5,850 FROM HOLLAND DAMES

NEW YORK, Feb 14.—(AP)—It was Robert Aitken's opinion, as a sculptor designing a memorial statue, that the Hollanders who settled Nieuw Amsterdam (now New York), were of a hardy peasant stock and a jury in the state supreme court agreed with him today, to the extent of $5,850

The Society of Daughters of Holland Dames commissioned Aitken in 1928 to make a memorial statue to stand in Battery Park. He fashioned a clay model of a family group, father, mother, and two children, in coarse peasant clothing The Daughters of Holland Dames were horrified.

So Aitken dressed his Dutch peasants in their Sunday clothes, but the Daughters still disapproved. Their ancestors, they affirmed, were not peasants but patroons.

Aitken sued for $5,000 and the jury gave him $4,800, but the appellate division of the supreme court reversed the verdict because of a technical error in the charge to the jury.

So he sued again. This time the jury, after deliberating two hours, awarded the full amount—plus interest.

OFFICERS TO BE STATIONED AT SCHOOL CROSSINGS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 14.—The matter of providing police protection to school children that has been a bone of contention for several months, is now believed to be settled with the announcement today of an arrangement made by Mayor Walter R. King and the police committee, Aldermen Eugene E. Lewis, John P. Carlsen and Herbert I. Sanderson.

The plan calls for the assignment of police officers at three of the most dangerous sections where main thoroughfares are crossed by pupils of the Windham street Natchaug, St. Mary's and St. Joseph's parochial schools. The officers will be on duty when schools are dismissed at noon and at the close of the afternoon session.

The schedule of assignment of these officers follows: Officer No. 1, Windham street school, corner of Main and Windham streets, 11:30 a. m. to 12:10 p. m. and 3:15 to 4:05 p. m. Officer No. 2, St. Joseph's and St. Mary's parochial schools, corner Jackson and Valley streets, 11:30 a. m. to 12:05 p. m. and 3:15 to 4:05 p. m. Officer No. 3, Natchaug grammar school, Jackson street, in front of school at so-called Busy corner, 11:30 a. m. to 12:05 p. m. and 3:15 to 3:35 p. m.

As further protection Mayor King and the police committee will cause the installation of large warning signs at the approaches to the schools throughout the town, admonishing drivers to go slow. A set of rules is to be prepared for the children regarding traffic and they will be instructed by the teachers as to the degree of care they must exercise in crossing streets. The assignment of the officers for this work will be made after a conference on the matter between Mayor King, the committee and Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady.

Incidentally, Mayor King, who is also a member of the town school committee, was a member of a special committee to appear before the common council under the last administration to recommend that police protection be provided the children. By this action the school board not only brought to the front a matter deserving full consideration but automatically relieved itself of responsibility in the event of an accident due to lack of protection.

Protection along definite lines was not provided last year, but the addition of several regular police officers to the department this year, with an increase in day assignments, has made possible the plan of the present administration.

When he left Nome he weighed 118 pounds but he now weighs 182 and appears in splendid health. He left with $350 in cash, has earned $750 and has spent about $1,000. Upon returning to Nome he not only expects to be presented with the $15,000 wager but to also receive $5,000 representing the total of his pensions as a disabled war veteran, accrued during the past five years.

Stafford Springs

TOWN MEETING OF OVER 700 PROTESTS REVALUATIONS

At the special town meeting in Warren Memorial hall Thursday evening it took just 16 minutes to pass a resolution voicing the unanimous disapproval of the work which it took the assessors, or revaluation board 15 months to do. Never has the town been so worked up and never has there been so large an attendance at a town meeting in Stafford, fully 700. Borough Policeman George Kealey was on duty in front of the building. The meeting was called to order by Judge William H. Heald, chosen as moderator by the board of selectmen. Town Clerk J. Carl Converse read the call for the meeting after which the moderator briefly explained its purpose. He stated that he was pleased to learn that Stafford people had suddenly become interested in town affairs and hoped that their interest would continue. John J. Quinn, formerly warden of the borough presented a resolution which stated in substance that the values placed on property were too high and in many cases far in excess of the actual market value of the property and that it was the sense of the meeting that the board of relief actually give relief, by reducing valuations to the figures as given in the completed list of 1928. Town Counsel William H. Reed read the law concerning the revaluation of property by the assessors every 10 years and explained briefly the limitations of the power of the board of relief. C. P. Bradway, of West Stafford, painted a doleful picture of the hard times through which, he said, the town is now passing. George J. Greendonner, a designer at the Rhode Island worsted mill thought it unfair to raise the valuation of textile plants when the textile industry is lagging and wanted to know how the assessors arrived at the values given in the list. After a question or two by William Slater, answered by the moderator and which related to the powers of the board of relief the resolution as offered by Mr. Quinn was passed without a dissenting vote. The members of the board of relief are Francis L. Upham, Herbert Glazier and Victor J. Bissonette and they have already undertaken their task with a determination which is expected to show results.

DAYVILLE YOUTH DIES OF SPINAL MENINGITIS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 14—A death at the Day Kimball hospital today was that of Frederic Harvey Barrowclough, [illegible] years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron F. Barrowclough, resident near Dayville Four Corners. Spinal meningitis was the cause of death. The child was taken ill on Thursday afternoon and his condition became serious so rapidly that he was removed to the hospital. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker A. F. Wood. The child was born in this town Dec. 2, [illegible].

Fifty-nine persons, including members of the Social club and their guests, gathered about a bountifully laden banquet board in the Girls' club rooms last evening for a turkey dinner. Following the feast, during which a radio concert was enjoyed, there was a period for whist. The Social club meets regularly through the fall and winter seasons.

It is regarded as possible here that agitation now going on for the restoration of passenger train service on the local branch of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. company, may possibly be the means of securing better mail facilities, though it fails of its main purpose. In any event, the matter is being watched here with interest.

George Ford, alias George Beecher, whose eyes were injured by tear gas while he was resisting arrest by state police of the Danielson barracks, is now a patient at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic. He remains under arrest, and in due time will be presented in court to answer to a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

There are many prisoners at the Windham county jail at Brooklyn this week end, the count being 87 this afternoon. This figure approaches the winter figures of a decade or more ago and is illustrative of the fallacy so generally held ten years ago that the jail would be empty and closed as long as five years ago.

King George Jacques of East Killingly, who is nearing four score years of age without showing great evidence of it, is looking toward the future. From that section of the town comes the announcement that he has purchased 75 acres of woodland in what is known as the Old Kentuck region of the town near the Eadie Pray reservoir, and close by where King George, who is confident of living 100 years, was born.

The number of those arrested in liquor raids in this section of the county last Monday night and committed to jail in Brooklyn in default of heavy bail is dwindling. Those of the group originally committed that have managed to raise the necessary bond and obtain their release are Victor Perreault of Thompson, Mrs. Wilfred LaPalme of Franklin street and Peter Lefevre of Quebec square and Mrs. Minnie Stevens of the Almyville section of the town of Plainfield. Several others caught in the raids remain confined at Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stockton, who were married here a week ago, are to make their home in North Woodstock. Mr. Stockton has been living at Elmville, but working in Woodstock.

Ice houses of A. A. Chase & Sons at the Hygeia reservoir near the Valley district of the town have been filled with a fine quantity of ice. This concern also stores ice this winter at Alexander's lake, assuring, with other cuttings made for distribution here, that Danielson will experience no ice shortage this year.

During the course of this day five aeroplanes were flown over Danielson, two of them apparently Hartford-bound, going over here within five minutes of each other at the noon hour. This recalled to some here that Danielson has talked for several years past of developing an airport, but nothing has ever come of the matter.

Promise of valuable aid has been obtained in interesting land owners along Blackwell's brook in the towns of Pomfret, Brooklyn and Plainfield in the project of having it a state-leased brook. The fact that the stocking would be done in time for the coming fishing season is one factor that may be an aid to making the plan a success. All restrictions now applying to state-leased brooks in Connecticut would apply to Blackwell's under the proposed plan, these restrictions, among other things, confining the operations of fishermen to within a few feet of the borders of the brook.

Roy F. Bergengren, executive secretary of the Credit Union Extension bureau of Boston, was the speaker at last evening's meeting of the Danielson Rotary club, his theme having to do with the purpose, value and growth of the union credit plan.

There are no more scheduled meetings of the Killingly board of relief after Friday of next week. The members will be concerned after Feb. 21 in completing their reports. With adjustments made in the grand list after this, it will be possible to estimate the amount of tax needed for the current financial year. The tax rate will be fixed at the adjourned annual town meeting in March.

Peter Breuillard was presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court today on an intoxication charge and was fined $5 and costs. This case provided the only business of the day for the court.

The most novel plan to give Dollar day buyers here on Saturday the sum of $25 yet devised in Danielson is creating very general interest. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that some one buyer is going to get that much money, as an outright gift. Two members of the chamber of commerce, a store and an hour will be drawn by lot to determine when and where the money will be given away. The whole thing will be worked out without a particle of favoritism. When the names of the men are drawn, the store and hour drawn the men will proceed to the store and observe the trade. The first person making a purchase will get the money, a nice little week-end remembrance.

Mrs. Harry E. Back is chairman of the Better Films committee of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R. Films carrying what are called flag trailers are approved by the D. A. R. One of these is particularly for use on Washington's birthday, and will be shown here on Feb. 20, two days ahead of the anniversary.

Attorney E. L. Darbie, grand master of the Masonic Grand lodge of Connecticut, has named Rev. Leonard R. Richards of Christ church, Pomfret, as grand chaplain. Rev. Mr. Richards was for several years rector of St. Alban's church in Danielson.

For the third year employes of Powdrell & Alexander are preparing to stage a big musical comedy show here. There is a very considerable amount of good talent among the upwards of 1,800 employes of this concern, and this year it is planned to have the show on a more elaborate scale than in the past.

The presentation of The Queen of Kingdom Corners by the Junior class in the auditorium at Killingly high school this evening afforded pleasing entertainment to the many attending. The play's setting is in a small village in northern New York.

A Colonial tea has been arranged by the members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., for Thursday afternoon of next week in the Congregational Parish house. The tea will follow the regular meeting. Each member may bring a guest and the hope is that many will appear in Colonial costume.

There was a flood of missives from friends to friends through the mails in Danielson this St. Valentine's day.

Several women from Danielson assisted today in making the St. Valentine's entertainment for the benefit of the Day Kimball hospital a success at the Odd Fellows hall in Putnam, and the attendance from Danielson, especially for the dancing this evening, was considerable.

Chief A. P. Woodward was in Providence last evening to attend a meeting and banquet of the Rhode Island Fire Chiefs' club, at one of the hotels.

A play is to be presented and there will be musical numbers and speaking when Killingly grange meets next Monday evening. Miss Theda Ray of the high school faculty has charge of the program. Members will be privileged to bring a friend.

Frank H. Cordier, formerly of Putnam and Danielson, is now publisher of a weekly paper at Hialeah, in the greater Miami district of Florida.

The birthday of Thomas Wylie was observed here this evening by members of the Odd Fellows and Rebekah organizations. There was a short entertainment and refreshments were served.

PLAINFIELD

MISS ANNA P. SMITH DIES IN ANCESTRAL HOME

Saturday, February 8th, marked the passing of Miss Anna P. Smith, second child of the late John Staples Smith and Frances C. Smith. She died in the house where she was born over seventy years ago and which was built by her ancestors more than a century ago. Her education commenced in the public schools of Plainfield, including the old Plainfield academy. Later she was graduated in the early classes of Worcester Normal school, afterwards studying at Oberlin and Cornell.

She taught in the Worcester public schools in which she was a principal for several years. Later she was a member of the faculty of Worcester Normal school from which she retired at the age of sixty and since then has lived at the ancestral home on Black Hill, which has sheltered five generations.

As a teacher for 40 years she exerted a helpful influence on the minds of thousands of students, and in her work in the Normal school helped in the training of thousands of teachers, service which will be an enduring monument to her memory.

She greatly enjoyed the beautiful in nature, in its changing seasons, varying landscapes, and its interesting pictures of trees, birds and flowers. She had devoted much time and thought to the study of our native birds, many kinds of which had been induced to come to her yard for years, tempted by regular feeding of grain in the winter season.

She also spent many hours in her attractive garden of old fashioned flowers, in which she emulated the example of her mother and grandmother, whom she had watched as a child while they tended the same gardens.

She was a studious reader of horticultural books and magazines and took a keen delight in discussing floral pets with many interested friends. In addition to this, she was a wide reader and deeply interested in the many problems of modern life, and was interested in all that makes for better living, and happier homes, and richer and fuller lives. She leaves a sister, Mrs. Everett E. Brown and a brother, Dr. Arthur Munro Smith, who is at the head of the San Juan hospital, Farmington, New Mexico. Another brother, William Cornell Smith died the past year in Walla Walla, Washington.

To comparatively few is given the privilege of living to the full period of three score and ten years and could she speak, she would doubtless say, as did the Shunamite mother, "It is well."

Funeral services were held Wednesday, the 12th, at her home. Rev H. E. Small of Canterbury officiated, assisted by Rev. Frank A. Fuller of Putnam, a schoolmate. Burial was in the family cemetery on the farm. The bearers were Ralph and Stanley Brown, Ralph and Harold Hopkins.

E. E. B.

Miss Margaret Sullivan has been caring for her brother, Daniel Sullivan, 51, of Flat Rock, whose death occurred Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Sullivan was formerly of Worcester, but for the past year has been a resident of Flat Rock. He was born in Plainfield and spent his childhood here. Later he went to Worcester where he was employed until the beginning of his illness, a year ago, with rheumatic fever. He had not been well since. He is survived by two brothers, James and Simon Sullivan and by a sister, Miss Margaret Sullivan, a teacher at the Plainfield grammar school. The people of this community have expressed much sympathy for the bereaved relatives.

The Jolly Eight was entertained by Mrs. Elmer Greene of Ekonk, Wednesday evening. Whist was played. Prizes were won by Mrs. Henry Fontaine, Mrs. John Kingsley and Mrs. Harold Knox. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Valentines were the favors.

PUTNAM

F. M. PRINCE FILES COUNTER SUIT AGAINST WIFE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 14—The most recent development in the divorce case instituted late in January against her husband by Mrs. Dorothy Lilley Prince of Milford, Mass., formerly of Putnam, is the counter suit filed yesterday in superior court in this city by Frederick M. Prince who denies the allegations set forth against him by his wife in her petition. Prince in his cross petition alleges unfaithfulness on the part of his wife. The cross petition names Mrs. Prince as defendant. Prince, who is defendant in his wife's action, claims a divorce and custody of a minor child, Florence L. Prince, who is now in the care of her mother, residing in Milford, Mass. An answer, is attached to the petition and reads as follows: "Now comes the defendant in above entitled clause and denies the allegations as set forth in paragraphs 3 and 4 of the plaintiff's (Mrs. Dorothy L. Prince) declaration."

In his action, Prince is in the role of plaintiff. He states that he was married to Dorothy L. Prince on September 2?, 1917, and has lived in this state continuously for three years. He alleges that on divers days between June 1928 and the date his writ was filed, that the defendant committed adultery at Putnam and at various other places. He failed to name any one person as correspondent, stating that his wife's relations were with a person or persons unknown to him. He also alleges acts of intolerable cruelty having been committed by his wife at various times between June 1, 1928 and the date of the filing of the writ.

Mr. Prince's cross petition and answer to Mrs. Prince's allegations were filed with the clerk of superior court here yesterday by Attorney James E. Breslin of Hartford in his capacity of commissioner of the superior court. Attorney Breslin answered for C. Bird Keach of the firm of Rosenfeld and Hagen, Providence lawyers who have been retained by Mr. Prince in his action.

Lieut. Everett F. Davis, U. S. A. A. S. arrived home this afternoon from Langley Field, Va. Lieut. Davis is piloting a Curtis-Falcon bombing plane and landed at Mantup field. He will spend the week end with his parents Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Davis of this city.

Anniversary week is now being observed throughout the nation by the Boy Scouts of America. Five troops of Scouts of St. Mary's parish fittingly observed the occasion this morning with exercises in various parts of the city. Flag raising services were held at Putnam high school and at other places in the city, with assembly being blown by a bugler. The Scout slogan, "Do a Good Turn Daily," was in many ways exemplified today by the boys enrolled in the five troops of St. Mary's. At 8:15 o'clock this evening the Scouts massed under their colors in St. Mary's hall where they went through a period of drilling and other Scout exhibitions of preparedness to adequately face the unexpected. John Sellman, Scout executive of the Norwich council inspected the troops. Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church addressed the boys on Scouting and its purposes. Rev. Joseph D. Casey, commissioner of Boy Scouts here directed the activities of his troops, being ably assisted by scoutmasters and assistants.

The Woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital was host to a large number of patrons who attended the Valentine bazaar, held today at the Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street. The charity event appeared to be a huge success, socially and financially. A delightful luncheon was served at 11:30, occuping the spot in the programme until 2 o'clock when an afternoon of bridge began. Prizes and favors were awarded the winners at each table. About the hall were booths, prettily decorated, from which articles useful and novel were sold. The evening was devoted to dancing, music for the occasion being furnished by Thumm's orchestra of Norwich.

The Valentine bazaar was somewhat of a change from the Valentine day event of former years which has come to be known throughout the county as the Valentine tea. It is given annually by the Women's board to raise funds for the hospital. The feast of St. Valentine, February 14, incidentally happens to be the birthday of Day Kimball founder of the hospital. The response to the appeal of the Woman's board is by no means confined to Putnam, for the able assistance rendered by people interested in the hospital, from all corners of the county added lustre to the affair today.

George Beecher, Springfield man, whose attack upon a party of raiding officers of the state police barracks at Danielson, committed Tuesday evening during a raid at the home of Howard Bullard on Killingly avenue was foiled by the discharge of a gas shell by Sergt. George L. Gardner, was today removed to St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic. Beecher is suffering from the effects of the gas fumes, received at close range when he unleased his attack on Sergt. Gardner. Following his recovery, he will be arraigned in city court in this city facing charges of assault, breach of peace and carrying concealed weapons.

The attention of the police and probation officers of city court of late has been called to a number of juvenile cases which have developed here within the past week. Captain A. J. Dubreuil after investigations has been able to make favorable impressions upon the mischievous youngsters and get them to change their courses to follow paths of righteousness. In the majority of cases the petty offenses which often times are the undoing of boys in later life, are committed by youths found to be living in an environment, where little or no interest is focused in their activities. Captain Dubreuil is satisfied that all complaints were adjusted to the satisfaction of court officials who discharged matters without committing the youthful violators to state institutions.

The condition of Mayor Charles A. Richard, who is ill with pneumonia at his home on Main street continues to improve. The mayor passed a comfortable night Thursday and rested quietly today.

A benefit movie performance was given today at the Bradley theater by the Putnam Teacher's club, of which all teachers in the schools of the city are members.

In the city court this morning an out-of-town man was before Judge M. H. Geissler on a charge of breach of peace and intoxication. Upon entering pleas of guilty to the offenses, the defendant was allowed to go by paying a fine.

JEWETT CITY

THOUGHT FROZEN TO DEATH, TORCHIE WHITFORD REVIVED

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 14—First Selectman Daniel F. Finn, received a telephone call at 6 o'clock Friday morning, from William Miner, who lives on the Voluntown state road, near the Pachaug fair grounds, asking that Mr. Finn come over to his place as quickly as possible, as he had found a man out behind his barn, frozen to death. Hurriedly calling Dr. Jennings, the two men drove to Mr. Miner's at top speed.

"Torchie" Whitford, had been cutting ice at Dorville all the week, and after being paid off by Mr. Shea, had started for home Thursday night in the pouring rain. After becoming thoroughly drenched he had evidently become ill, and not being able to go any further had dropped behind the barn for a nap. Along towards morning the weather cleared, and the mercury fell from around 40 to below freezing. When the doctor and the town official arrived, sure enough, there was Torchie frozen solid into his clothes, like a pickerel in a cake of ice. Taken into Mr. Miner's house, he was chopped and thawed free of his frozen garments, and given a few drops of "something to take." Mr. Finn drove back two miles to the borough, and at Arremony's store purchased a new outfit. Returning, Torchie was fitted out in his dry rig, and will doubtless come along all right. Everybody locally likes Torchie, for he is a smart and able worker. He told some of his friends Friday afternoon, that one never could tell what the weather was going to do around these parts.

WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

When Secretary Davis of the department of labor talks over the radio regarding the employment situation he doesn't claim that there isn't unemployment still, but he points to the fact that the situation has been improving throughout the country since the first of the year and expressed the hope that "we are on our way to a speedy recovery."

In connection with this situation, Secretary Davis attaches due weight to the efforts that were made by President Hoover to overcome unemployment. He declares that his action, taken promptly, saved the country from disaster beyond all doubt and he puts forth the reminders that "we can thank President Hoover for calling the conference of business men and labor leaders. We can thank him for getting employers and workers to agree that there shall be no reduction in wages during this time."

Only those with short memories, or who refuse for certain reasons to exercise them, can put forth the claim that the president did nothing, or that the unemployment was the result of administration policies. The fact is that uncertainty has been created by the attitude which has been displayed by the opposition to the administration efforts. Happily that opposition has been able to exert no direct influence upon those efforts that were put forth by the president to overcome unemployment, the conference of employers and workers, the appeals for the beginning or resumption of construction projects, or else there might have been a worse unemployment situation than prevailed. That opposition has done its utmost to create uncertainty through the manner in which it has battled every administration move that came within striking distance and its activities are not at an end, although the constructive influence exerted by the president upon those conditions which were vital to employment and the backing he has received throughout the country have been of enormous benefit.

Turning such a tide as was faced is no small accomplishment, and Secretary Davis had the best of reasons for declaring his gratification over the number who kept their promise to the president and the respect that was displayed therein to the chief executive.

PACK AND FORESTRY

Because it has showed that it is interested and is equipped to meet the problem, recognition is given to the University of Michigan. It will not go down in history as the greatest gift that has been made to the institution but $200,000 is nevertheless a substantial gift for the purpose of furthering forestry, and when given by Charles Lathrop Pack it is evidence enough that it comes from the heart of one of the country's greatest forestry advocates.

Mr. Pack has an interest in that part of the country. It was in that state that his father was engaged in the early days of the white pine industry of Michigan, so that he knows something about conditions in that commonwealth as well as having a deep concern in broadening forestry work. He has picked that university not solely for those reasons, however, for he declares it was made the recipient of his gift because of "its prestige, its facilities for teaching the broad principles of all phases of practical forestry and its experienced staff." That indicates that he has been giving some careful study to the university's activity in forestry.

Through this fund it is the desire of the donor to develop promising methods in the field, to harmonize practical problems of tree growth on a sustaining yield basis with the marketing of the products of the forest, and to determine ways and means of developing a forest property on a profitable basis.

If the institution is not as extensively engaged in forestry work as the fund requires there is nothing that will serve to spur it along to that point more quickly than the course that has been adopted by Mr. Pack. He is much concerned in the solution of forestry problems everywhere. Michigan is not the only state that is getting the benefit of its interest and wealth, but fortunate indeed is any cause which has so wholehearted an advocate and supporter as Charles Lathrop Pack has shown himself to be. He represents a type of leadership that not only goes about its task with a determination to get desired results but actually gets them.

UNSETTLED HAITI

Before he commission that has been selected by President Hoover to ascertain the conditions in Haiti has had an opportunity to leave for its duties another outbreak has occurred among the islanders. It was a flareback from what previously happened, for with a memorial service being held for those killed more than two months ago disorders developed which caused marines to make many arrests.

It is thus made apparent that the situation in Haiti is not smoothed out. It indicates the problem that must be dealt with in the island and is of course simply a reflection of the conditions which prevailed there when it was considered necessary by this government to send marines to take charge.

During all the time that this country has maintained a hand in the affairs there improvements have taken place, but Haiti is ready to drop back to those old conditions the minute it is given the chance. It has indicated its inclination even under such influences as we have exerted.

Although there should have been no such delay as has taken place in providing for the commission which the president asked for, there is no probability that any reformation will have taken place, before the commission gets to work. It will have an opportunity to see what the situation is, to study the shortcomings and handicaps and to reach a conclusion as to what needs to be done.

However much it is desired that the marines be recalled and Haiti be permitted to direct its own affairs, there seems to be no possibility that it will occur soon. Furthermore, it is indicated that it would be most inadvisable. To recall the marines before Haiti is better able to deal with its own problems would simply mean that they would sooner or later have to go back and the havoc that would have been caused in the meantime would be a needless waste.

It is for the best interests of Haiti that it has experienced restraining influences. It is most unfortunate that it has not shown greater progress toward the time when it can take care of itself.

NAVAL CONSTRUCTION

In connection with the naval conference the question has been raised by onlookers as to whether any positive result will be accomplished in the limitation of construction during short term periods.

At present there seems to be a general willingness to extend the Washington agreement until 1936. That would mean that there would be no construction of capital ships in that time. There might be claims made by certain of the nations for tonnage in excess of what they have but under the agreement they would not take advantage of it. Further than that, there might also be some concessions regarding the auxiliary ships. But would there be a real advantage gained, or would it simply mean a temporary let-up with a resumption of warship construction on a larger scale after the agreement expired and if war clouds developed?

What the future holds is difficult to fathom. The best indication of what could be expected seems to be furnished by what has happened during the life of the Washington naval agreement. During that time battleship construction has been at a standstill. The desire is to keep it that way, if we can judge by the sentiment expressed at London. In addition, there has been an undeniable growth of sentiment for universal peace and efforts to promote and maintain it. With such sentiments multiplying during any extension period it would seem probable that 1936 would find the same demands intensified, and the experience of the intervening years lending its influence not only for an additional continuance but for additional limitation.

What the situation would be with a war menace faced is open to question, but the need is to see that such a menace doesn't develop, or if it does show its head it should be dealt with in such a manner that it would be adjusted peacefully. The thoughts of war are abhorrent. The thoughts that another will be allowed to occur are equally so.

CONNIE MACK WINS

Probably Connie Mack was as much surprised as anyone when the announcement was made that he had been declared the winner of the award of $10,000 from the Edward W. Bok fund for having rendered a service "calculated to advance the best and largest interests of Philadelphia," during the previous year.

If the thought had not been entertained that any such contributions as the head of a baseball team might make would be regarded as fitting competition for the much coveted prize, it does not in any way reflect upon the esteem in which the great ball leader is held in the Quaker City or the services he has rendered for the advancement of the best interests of that city. Somehow there's a familiar sound to "Connie Mack wins."

Connie Mack is one of the outstanding figures of that city, to which he has brought much attention by the prize-winning baseball teams which he has produced and by the character of baseball for which he has stood. By the latest decision, recognition has been given to him, even though there were times when it might have been done before with equally good reasons, but it is characteristic of the man that when informed of the award that he should have declared that the credit for it belongs to his players.

Throughout fandom there will be quick recognition of the merits of the decision and the fact that the possibilities of winning the prize have been extended into unexpected fields may result in far greater benefits for the city of Brotherly Love than had been considered likely.

EDITORIAL NOTES

February is a short month but it is long on important birthdays.

Are you lending your interest and influence to the Boy Scouts' campaign?

The man on the corner says: Did the valentine meet requirements in all respects?

Another month and the income tax puzzle will be out of the way for another year. Or have you solved it already?

That is an impressive membership list put out by the Taxpayers' association, and it should be able to serve as a valuable guide in matters relating to taxation.

The superintendent of police in Boston declares the statements before the congressional commission in Washington about that city are exaggerated. That's one way of trying to duck responsibility.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The question is often asked, "What is the underlying attraction that brings human beings together in groups?" which is of course the basic principle of human society. Is it not the hunger of the human spirit for fellowship? This is the basis on which the family relation stands. Take social fellowship out of the home and there would be absolutely nothing left worth having. What is the main distinction between the father of a joyous, healthy, loving home and the other man who lives all by himself in some old shack in the outskirts of the town? Both may have enough to eat, enough clothing to keep them warm, both may have physical health, and yet are we not justified in calling the one heaven and the other hell? The reason is that while the one is cultivating the innate desire for fellowship, the other is smiting it between the eyes. Crashing any noble attribute between the eyes must sooner or later end in disaster.

It is right here where we find the intrinsic value of social relationships. It answers the craving of the human soul for its counterpart. Otherwise how can we explain the societies that exist today whose name is legion? There are almost as many societies as there are human ideas. These ideas bring people together for discussion ostensibly, but in reality it is the craving of spirit to touch other spirits, and enjoy the reaction. You belong to a county club. That club meets on a certain day. The subject discussed depends on the object of the club. It may be "How to Get Rid of the Japanese Beetle," or, "How to Save the Heathen." But in either case the underlying idea is to come into touch with the people you know and respect who come from all parts of the country. The books tell you all about beetles and heathens, but the books cannot supply that touch of personality that we all hunger for.

Now this is just the reason that all normal beings find it perfectly natural to attend church. It is to come into contact with that mysterious something that we call personality. It is something that we can give to others and receive the same from them. A big crowd listening closely unconsciously imparts power and the crowd feels it. Call in magnetism, will power, mental alertness, or what you will, it is something that binds the audience into a spiritual unity. It is all sheer nonsense to say that one in his own home reading the same material can have the same mental experience. This is particularly true of a church service. A sermon coming from a man literally on fire with his thought (and this ought to be the experience of every preacher) can never be reproduced by cold type, and the reason is that in the latter case there is no contact with a living personality. As long as man is on earth there will be these vital contacts.

With the advancement of civilization, which has been amazing during the last quarter century, particularly along scientific lines, still no additional light has been thrown upon many of the old moral problems of the ages. Take for instance the ancient question of God's providential care of his people. Does any devout follower of the Master have any immunity from disease and accident that a notorious sinner does not have in so far as it is not brought on from disregard of natural law? For instance, if there is a railroad wreck will not all within the area of the accident be equally exposed? Is any line likely to be drawn between the saints and the sinners? Is there anything in the working of natural law that is likely to make a distinction between those who profess to be Christians and those who do not?

At the same time we are finding ourselves asking the question, "Why were such and such persons taken who seemed to be needed so much, while others apparently useless to themselves and everybody else are left? There is no sense whatever in asking such a question but still we do it. We have all been shocked and pained at the fatal accident that came to young Conklin who was killed on his way to Syracuse university last week. He represented that splendid vigor of young manhood that has ever been the glory of our American life. A position had been secured whereby he could at least partly defray the expenses of a liberal education. That is one of the types of young manhood that America has applauded. But why that untimely death? Was it an accident that might have been avoided? Was it simply due to natural causes? Every death has an adequate cause.

Is there not a great deal of sound sense in the following words taken in the so-called "Sermon on the Mount?" "Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire." There is much practical wisdom in these words, and they apply not only to Jews living in a far distant land and nearly 2000 years ago but also to peoples living in lands far distant in time and space from them. The tree or shrub that fails to justify its existence after the greatest possible time and attention had been given to it to make it fruitful is fit only for the axe and kitchen stove. Brother man, are you carrying around a lot of deadwood that does not seem to get you anywhere? Why not lop it off and give the remainder some chance of redemption! Have you a lot of rubbish stored up in the attic that somebody will make a bonfire of?

A great deal of bunk has been told on the platform and in the press about "Honest Abe!" Much will come from good men who think they are telling the truth but much more from bad men who know they are lying. One of the penalties of being great is that myths gather around the names of the illustrious that oftentimes make them appear ridiculous. This is something that little men escape. These myths do not usually begin to circulate until the poor victim has been dead long enough to insure the perpetrator that he will be safe from personal violence. Let us devoutly hope that much of this tommy rot does not get inside of the pearly gates. Poor Washington has to go sailing down the stream of time with that cherry tree hatchet dangling around his neck. And "Honest Abe" is burdened with rail-splitting episodes that fit into comic opera rather than sober history.

Has any antiquarian taken the trouble to investigate that supreme bit of nonsense about the groundhog? What about that historic shadow, and just how far did it effect his future planning? We can understand why a hatchet should be put into young Washington's hands and a cherry tree created for the purpose of temptation, but why try to make a fool out of an otherwise respectable and fairly intelligent groundhog? Now science tells us when the groundhog comes out in February he is after grub and not shadows. He knows perfectly well that he himself is nothing but a shadow and hence if he is foolish enough to leave his comfortable bed in winter it is for the purpose of driving the shadow away that begins to haunt him. About the most sensible thing ever said about the day of this animal's supposed appearance is this bit of inspired poetry:

"Candlemas Day! Candlemas Day!
One half of your wood, and one half of your hay."

LINCOLN, AT WAUREGAN HOUSE IN 1860, KICKED OFF BOOTS AND YARNED TILL DAYLIGHT

Back files of The Bulletin are replete with stories of Abraham Lincoln, the 121st anniversary of whose birth was celebrated this week. The issue of Feb. 17, 1908, describes a Lincoln Sunday observed at the Y. M. C. A. by an attendance that included members of Sedgwick Post No. 1, G. A. R., and Sedgwick Women's Relief corps No. 16, who had received special invitations. Says the Bulletin report:

"Personal Reminiscences of Lincoln" was the subject admirably treated by Rev. Dr. Lewellyn Pratt, pastor emeritus of Broadway Congregational church, and Frank J. Leavens, president of the Dime Savings bank.

Quoting the expressions of some ambassadors from the South American republics who stated that it was because of Abraham Lincoln that their countries lived today, and also reading a poem expressing the undying influence of the martyr president, Dr. Pratt spoke of two occasions upon which he saw Lincoln.

The first was 47 years ago this week in Philadelphia, when Lincoln was on his way to Washington to be inaugurated. The expression of extreme sadness in his face was such as could not fail of notice; his thoughts seemed afar off, not to himself; he seemed to be in another sphere.

The next occasion was when the president's body lay in state in Independence hall, Philadelphia. It was the memorable moment of his life, said Dr. Pratt, relating how through the influence of a friend in the Philadelphia city council he was permitted to view the body between 10 and 11 o'clock on the night before it lay in state in public. Their entrance to Independence hall was made at the extreme end of one wing and they passed, in absolute silence and single file, through a double file of soldiers, who stood with drawn swords. The body lay with hands toward the old Liberty bell, tall tapers at its foot, the room banked with flowers and from above was heard the music of the dirges played throughout the night by bands of music. Dr. Pratt secured the privilege of a like visit for Mrs. Pratt and a friend, who declared it the priceless memory of a lifetime.

As a Public Speaker

Dr. Pratt's remarks were followed by the reminiscences of Mr. Leavens, who spoke more particularly upon Lincoln as a public speaker. Lincoln had that compelling, convincing and fascinating force that few ever have had, said Mr. Leavens, and he told of four incidents in seeing him. The first was 48 years ago, in the Five Points mission school, when a stranger wandered into the school, and when asked to address it did so with such interest that a hundred hands went up with the request, "Please go on," when he stopped. The stranger was Lincoln.

Heard Lincoln Speak Here

The second occasion was when Mr. Leavens was a student at the Academy, and heard Lincoln speak at the town hall here. With George W. Huntington and others, he went in a spirit of boyish fun to hear "a western stump speech," but for two hours was enthralled by the power of the speaker. Mr. Leavens told how the late Colonel Osgood went to Hartford and got Lincoln to come here, and also of how he sat up at the Wauregan house until three o'clock in the morning swapping stories with Colonel John Trumbull of Stonington, although his train left at six in the morning.

The third occasion was at Gettysburg, when Lincoln delivered his memorable speech, of which Edward Everett said: "Had I come as near in two hours as you did in two minutes to the center of the matter at issue, I should have considered I had done something worthy of remark."

The final occasion mentioned by Mr. Leavens was at Washington in 1864, during the Wilderness campaign. Lincoln's face then had such a haggard, worn, yet pathetic look, so changed from the four years before. The true nobility of the man is best expressed in what a cousin of Lincoln's has said in a recent magazine article, "He could not do a mean thing."

Recollections by Former Bulletin Editor

The anecdote of Lincoln yarning at the Wauregan house all night was told in greater detail in The Bulletin of March 13, 1890. The narrator was E. J. Edwards, editor of The Norwich Bulletin in 1874; of the Hartford Sunday Globe in 1876 and of the New York Evening Sun in 1887. On July 10, 1893, The Bulletin reported him to be the best paid news correspondent in the world, his compensation, received from the Philadelphia Press, being $150 a week. This compares with the pay received by Arthur Brisbane today, which is set at $260,000 a year.

Mr. Edwards's report of Lincoln's visit to Norwich is as follows:

On his trip to Massachusetts in 1860 Mr. Lincoln made three or four stump speeches. One was in Hartford, where a club arrayed in waterproof capes and caps and bearing torches escorted him to the hall. This was a new form of the torchlight parade which has long been an important feature of political campaigns.

He also spoke in Norwich, Conn., and after the speech he entertained in his inimitable way a little company in his room at the hotel. Rumors of his fun-loving propensity had reached the ears of the politicians there, and they decided to send for a local wit of great repute to come and swap stories with Abe Lincoln. This was Judge Trumbull, of Stonington, Conn., an educated man, but bubbling over with fun and possessing a vast store of anecdotes, which he told with the charm of a consummate actor.

Swapped Stories Till Dawn

In his room Mr. Lincoln kicked off his boots, rested his feet in a chair and began to tell a yarn, to which Judge Trumbull replied with another. Lincoln was delighted, and he matched the judge with stories until dawn. He was to take a train in the morning for Worcester, but he declared that Judge Trumbull had given him more rest than a night's sleep would do.

But when he was aboard the train and met the Rev. Dr. Gulliver, now a professor in Andover seminary, who had arisen specially to take the ride to Worcester with him, there was no sign of the night's pleasure. Dr. Gulliver was impressed with the sadness and earnestness with which Lincoln talked of the black cloud that was beginning to lower over the country.

When Dr. Gulliver learned afterwards that Lincoln had spent the night with the local wits he could hardly believe it, for it seemed impossible to him that a man who talked with the solemnity and earnestness that Lincoln did to him could have just come from a night's yarning with the story tellers.

That was a phase of his nature that was afterward revealed to many and seems almost inexplicable.

A year or two later when in the throes of the Civil war, and at a time when Lincoln was especially downcast, he suddenly remembered Judge Trumbull. He at once sent, begging the judge to come to Washington and tell him some more stories. Judge Trumbull went and Lincoln received him, with delight. They spent the greater part of the night yarning to each other, and when Judge Trumbull went away the president declared that the visit had raised a ton of depression from his heart.

Therein is probably to be found the secret of Lincoln's proneness for humorous anecdote. He turned to it that he might ease the strain which he perpetually bore.

The Meeting With Gov. Buckingham

In its issue of Jan. 30, 1909, the Bulletin published still another article by Mr. Edwards as follows:

At the Norwich meeting Lincoln and Governor Buckingham met for the first time. They were to meet many times during Lincoln's presidency, and were to establish intimate relations, for Buckingham was known as one of the great war governors. At the first instant of the meeting between Lincoln and Governor Buckingham the governor could not escape some sense of disappointment, wondering if it were true that this was the man who had overthrown "The Little Giant" in the terrific verbal combat in Illinois, the man who had delivered the widely famed "House Divided Against Itself" speech and the man who had gained the amazing triumph on the Cooper Union platform.

Lincoln greeted the governor in a whimsical, homespun way, so that the governor was momentarily distressed, but later, when listening to Lincoln, Governor Buckingham found himself thinking: "What manner of man is this who speaks? Is this the man whom I saw this afternoon? It is he, yet another and a wonderful man, such as I have never before seen or heard." That was what Governor Buckingham said some years later was impressed upon him as he listened to Lincoln. And so profound was the impression made by Lincoln upon the audience that when he closed and turned to quit the platform no man moved, none cheered, nor was there any applause by hand-clapping or stamping of the feet. It was the perfect tribute of silence. The recognition of intellectual supremacy and moral sublimity is best acknowledged in that way. But when applause did begin it was overwhelming.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 — Who would expect a speech delivered in the house to show a longevity of 18 years?

If they manage to attract attention over a period of 18 hours, house members who put em out usually plume themselves on having done something.

Yet along comes the Hon. John Charles Linthicum of Baltimore, Field Marshal John Charles Linthicum of the house wet bloc, as he now is, and redelivers to the house in 1930 in part at least, a speech he first let loose there in 1912 when he was a house freshman serving his first term.

Of course, in view of its original date of delivery, it was not an anti-prohibition speech. There was no such animal as the 18th amendment or the Volstead act in those days. Instead, the Baltimorean as a one year man was putting up a battle to have the Star Spangled Banner designated by law as the national anthem.

Help Wanted

Naturally, Baltimore as the scene of the bomb-bursting, rocket-glaring and other episodes described in that stirring but high pitched appeal to patriotism has a special interest in it, hence Linthicum's activities.

What inspired him to delve back into this early masterpiece of his career in national politics was the fact that a committee hearing had been granted at last for his measure to adopt The Star Spangled Banner as the national anthem.

He invited all his colleagues to come and help convince the committee that was the thing to do.

He did not invite 'em to come and sing it, or attempt to. That, no doubt, is just as well from the committee's viewpoint. What sort of a noise would be produced if all house songbirds attempted to go vocally sky-rocketing up that "la-la and of the free-e-e e-e" grade in unison the Bystander shudders to imagine.

Briefer, Now

Mr. Linthicum said he would only read "just a few stanzas" from that speech of 18 years ago.

"This speech contains 40 pages," he added, and members looked at each other in alarm.

"It was written at a time when I seem to have had more leisure than at present," the wet generalissimo added, and the house chuckled.

"But you will find therein the entire history of the war of 1812 and the history of the writing of this national anthem," the Baltimorean went on.

And if you stop to think of it, that was some job for even young Linthicum of two decades ago to have undertaken. No wonder middle-aged Linthicum, with graying hair and mustache, still takes pride in it.

YOUR HEALTH

A Much Neglected Dietetic Error

By Augustin V. Wendel, M. D., Newark

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

There has never been a time when the pleasures of the table have been so universally and easily indulged in as at present. But this tendency has had its penalties. We are constantly warned against excessive consumption of sweets as being a cause of the increasing incidence of diabetes; of the harmful effects of an excess of animal food; of obesity as a curtailment of life. But in the writer's experience, very little stress has been laid on a form of rebellious dyspepsia which is an early sign of a common type of suicide.

Persons who have this are usually about forty years of age, complain of dyspeptic symptoms which are relieved by alkalies, but do not get well. They are nervous, depressed, dizzy at times, experience vague abdominal distresses, sweat easily, often have palpitation and lack ambition although they know that they must carry on. A careful examination fails to reveal any organic lesion in the abdominal contents. Neither stethoscope nor electrocardiograph shows anything abnormal. But the x-ray shows an increase of from one to two centimetres in the transverse measurement of the heart. Then careful inquiry brings to light a daily intake for a long time of 3000 or more calories, which at once shows up the trouble. For what does that excess of food mean? Eating is invariably followed by a temporary increase of pulse rate, blood pressure and heart action in amount proportional to the quantity and kind of food. The specific weight of the blood is increased in accordance with the amount of solids, and the blood volume by the amount of liquid, consumed with the meal. Thus the heart is obliged to react to a chemical and mechanical stimulation which increases in proportion to the amount of food ingested. When this is persistently excessive the heart gradually enlarges, and eventually also dilates.

Long life depends on the prevention and recognition of the earliest beginnings of disease and overeating belongs in the category of insidious major causes of the curtailment of life. All persons who are in doubt about the amount they eat, or know that they are overeating, should go to their physician, tell him what they eat, have a thorough health examination made, and submit to the medical adviser's instructions. Those who are fortunate enough to go before enlargement of the heart has occurred may rest assured that then they will live as long as is allowed them by their heredity and environment. And those who have already advanced to the stage of organic damage will be able to stop eating themselves to death.

THE GARDEN

By REX REES

Your Rose Garden

Emerson says: "The eye is the best of artists. By the mutual action of its structure and the laws of light perspective is produced which integrates every mass of objects, of what character soever, into a well colored and shaded globe, so that where the particular objects are mean and unaffecting, the landscape which they compose is round and symmetrical, as the eye is the best composer, so light is the first of painters, there is no object so foul that intense light will not make beautiful. Beauty in its largest and profoundest sense is one expression for the universe."

Near my old home and covering many acres was a wild rose swamp which had been created by those wonderful nature engineers the beavers. The engineers had departed many years before my birth but their work lived after them in the wonderful swamp. Here on the advent of spring came a multitude of quackle and redwing black birds, with many cardinal birds, catbirds, and scores of other varieties, frogs, crawfish, muskrates, raccoons and snakes. Despite the snakes the swamp was beautiful. Here in late May and early June, the great wild rose plants were in full bloom and the air was like a mid summer night's dream, and swarms of butterflies constantly in motion left an impression on a susceptible mind, never to be forgotten. Where the cultivated field came down to the swamp many small shrubs were growing and on these the finest roses were to be found.

Always on the return of spring one thinks of roses, and more roses. They will grow almost anywhere from the Arctic circle down. As to native roses we have none worth considering. If you will consult the diagram prepared by the federal department of agriculture for the American Rose society, you will find where tea, hybrid tea, and hybrid perpetual roses thrive best in our country. Almost every variety of rose grown any where in the world sprang from the dog rose. The tea roses crossed the Himalayas into India and were early brought into England by the trading captains of that country and greatly improved by the English and French gardeners. The hybrid tea and hybrid perpetual resulted from many crossings following out the Mendelian law of progression and reversion in color, form and fragrance.

Now this paper is not to be a dissertation on the origin, the habit color and fragrance of the rose, but to call your attention to what you really want to do and mean to do about your rose garden this year. Of course you will want to grow the very best roses possible. Now to do this you will need first of all a place to grow them. If you are a reader of rose catalogues you will find many requirements as to soil, environment, such as the presence of trees and shrubs and wall sunshine and shade. All these are very essential, but roses often do superbly in the most uncongenial surroundings. One condition they can not endure, namely wet feet, so beware of that condition, dig deep and drain your ground filling with broken bricks or stones.

The next essential is to buy good stock of the variety you desire. It is well to emphasize the good stock, for right here is where success and failure often begins. There is all the difference in the world between plants and plants of the same variety. Roses are propagated in two ways,—grown from their own roots or budded on more vigorous root stocks. If you know anything about grafting you know that a bud is cut from a tree, and placed in an incision made in the tree or rose plant, and being bound closely both above and below, the bird is left to grow on as if it were of the real wood of tree or plant; when a good growth has been made the parent stock is cut away above the bud and you have the strong vigorous root stock chosen and the result is a more vigorous plant and finer flowers.

Commercially budded roses are sold the third year after their planting and the second year after budding. Budded roses are grown out of doors from the beginning. Own root roses are often grown under glass and hardened off for sale, of course there are exceptions. The hardy climbers do best grown on their own roots. Experience has taught me that it is always best to buy roses from reputable growers. Often times bargain sale orders of rose plants are found to be practically useless, the plants having done their whole duty in a greenhouse range. When plants have been grown in a greenhouse and hardened off for a few weeks before being offered for sale, they are not fit to be planted out of doors and are never worth the price asked for them no matter how cheap. Pure wisdom: Buy of a reputable rose man, pay his price and he will stand back of the plants he sells. You can't afford to take chances with your rose garden and you don't need to pay extravagant prices to high powered agents or salesmen. Another thing: it is well to fight shy of that "wonderful collection" which the jobber advertises so lavishly, and stresses so strongly every merit and fails utterly to mention a single demerit.

Now that you have determined to have a rose garden remember that you will require for a dozen rose plants a space eight feet long by three feet wide. Another thing it is well to know: Roses like three things, a clay soil cow manure and protection from the wind. But roses will grow in almost any soil and produce flowers under almost any circumstances. Roses are companionable and love company. Beds of two to three feet wide are best when perfect flowers are desired.

When your plants arrive from the grower if your beds are not ready unpack them and place them in your cellar taking care to damper the roots and keep them so until you are ready to plant. Dig your trench about 15 inches deep and place in the bottom at least six inches of cow manure cover lightly and place your plant with the roots well spread out and place the rich earth next the roots and firm down the soil until it is level with the earth about it. If you have any peat moss it will be well to mulch the newly set plants with it, and leave it around them indefinitely, as round planted in the early spring is apt to be loose and settle away from the roots; a mulch protects from many of the ills of spring planting. Plant as early as possible because late planted stock will give you no return in blooms. If you ask your grower to prune your plants, they will be glad to do so, and you will have the benefit of their wisdom and experience.

As to the kinds of roses to plant in this section, the following have been found to be very satisfactory: Radiance, Red Radiance, Mrs. Henry Morse, Etoile de Holland, La Tasca, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Madam Butterfly, Tailsman, Mrs. A. R. Barraclough, Duchess of Wellington, Souvenir Claudius Pernet, Briar Cliff, Double White Killarney Premier Supreme. These hybrid teas are not exceded by any of the multitude of their race.

As for hybrid perpetuals, you can not go wrong to buy Frau Karl Druschel, General Jacqueminot, Magna Charta, Madam Albert Barbier, Paul Neyron and Ulrich Brunner.

For hardy climbing roses nothing beats Tausendschon Paul's Scarlet Climber, American Pillar, Crimson Rambler, American Beauty and Dr. Vanfleet. Space forbids to mention the Polyantha, tea and shrub roses. Outdoor roses should be as carefully sprayed as those of the greenhouse. And prune? yes, by all means prune and feed for exhibition blooms.

Sunday Morning Talk

Making Sour Things of Life Sweet

A tourist in search of health was one day on the deck of an Indian river steamer in Florida. The banks on either side were beautiful with the luxuriance of tropical vegetation, but the weary traveler was pining for his northern home. Alone among strangers, the sense of desolation was keen. Near him sat three gentlemen. Listlessly glancing their way, he was irresistibly attracted by the back of one who was the center of the group. The benignant face and the atmosphere that surrounded the man were both suggestive of helpfulness. Just then the breeze bore to his ears these words from the strangers lips:

"I like to come down here among the wild orange groves," he was saying. "I have studied budding trees for some time, and when I am down here at my son's I go out every day and bud wild orange trees. I like to find a fine sour orange tree and leave it a sweet one. My son's neighbors do not understand the business, and during my winter visits they get me to bud for them. They offer to pay me, but I never charge them anything. The fact is, I just love to do it, to go into a sour orange grove and make it sweet."

At this point the breeze changed and no more was heard. But the traveler had been given a vision of what every Christian's life should be. That is to make sweet the lives of every community they come in touch with.

"Human hearts untouched by divine grace are like the sour orange trees," he mused. "They need the ingrafted word of which the Bible tells us. But the budding must be done by human agency. God makes the sweet buds to grow, but He has committed the grafting to human hands."

The thought was an inspiration. A new motive had come into his life. It was well worth while to live if such work was given him to accomplish. What a privilege life becomes when lived in this spirit. What a blessing to all. Such a life is what the sun is to this world. May we like our master ever seek to bring sunshine and joy into other lives.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Bay Company, Bridgeport.

The Bay company was organized in 1918 by Chas. U. Bay, now president and general manager of the company. It was then known as the Atlantic Surgical Cotton company, starting with a capital of less than $10,000 beginning in a small way, the manufacture of gauze bandages and a few items of surgical dressings. Up until the early part of 1925, when the company moved to Bridgeport, purchasing the beautiful plant of the Walling Manufacturing company, containing 60,000 square feet of floor space, the company had occupied much smaller quarters in New York city.

The volume of business of the company has increased at the rate of from 25 to 60 per cent every year but the greatest growth has been enjoyed since moving to Connecticut. Today the company manufactures a complete line of surgical dressings packaged and prepared to meet the exacting requirements of the surgical and medical profession.

Within the past year the company has expanded by acquisition of other lines so that today The Bay company, together with its consolidations and affiliated companies occupies about 300,000 square feet of floor space and employs about 700. In addition to the Bridgeport plant, the company now has a bleachery and absorbent cotton plant at Versailles, a plant in Philadelphia, manufacturing a complete line of surgical instruments and is affiliated with a cotton mill in Camden, S. C. The entire annual output of 35,000,000 yards of gauze is made for use by The Bay company.

The present officers are: Charles U. Bay, president; J. S. Britton, vice president; R. T. Yale, secretary and treasurer.

The New York police commissioner has stated that the money required to keep one boy in jail is sufficient to provide games and sports for sixty-seven boys.

LEBANON

There was a good attendance at the First Congregational church Sunday morning. The subject of the sermon was "Immortality." The Sunday school attendance has kept up well in spite of the severe weather. Many of the children have two and three miles to come but are regular in attendance. Just now there is a contest on between the boys and girls for attendance, each side working hard to be the winning side.

At the evening service a full house listened with pleasure to a stirring address by Rev. R. A. Parkes, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, on the subject, "New Wine Skins for New Wine." Mr. Parkes illustrated from the old and new testament the irresistableness of God's revelation of Himself and the truth, which, when old channels become obstructed by formalism and conservation, made new channels. If the churches today fail to reveal true Christianity God will raise up other agencies. That the people who profess Christ should be different from other people they should be like Christ.

Rev. George H. Strouse of Bozrah was present and took part in the service. Friends from Norwich, Hanover, Bozrah, Yantic, Franklin, Goshen and the Baptist society were in the congregation. A quartet by the Lebanon Baptist young people was very acceptably rendered. Congregational singing of familiar hymns was most hearty, Mrs. F. N. Taylor accompanied at the organ and Miss Beatrice Littlefield at the piano.

Recently a party was given the children in the church parlors by the Missionary society. There were twenty children and twelve adults present. Games were played under the supervision of Miss Katherine Andrews and Mrs. Woodworth Pitcher. Sandwiches, cakes and cocoa were served. The children brought in their sunshine bags in which they had been putting pennies on sunshiny days. Over seven dollars was raised for missionary work.

The Ladies' Aid society had an all-day meeting in the church parlors Tuesday, Feb. 4th.

The Woman's Missionary society met with Mrs. F. W. Taylor Thursday, Feb. 6th. A very interesting meeting was held in charge of Mrs. Madley.

Miss Florence Campbell who went to New London Monday to enroll as a student nurse at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, will be missed in the church and Sunday school. For the last year she has taken entire charge of the kindergarten work. Her friends wish her all success.

A very interesting meeting was held at the Centre school Tuesday, Feb. 4th. School Supervisor Robertson spoke on the benefits of a Parent-Teacher association to a community. A committee Mrs. Lathrop, chairman, was appointed to get word to all interested that the next meeting would be held Tuesday, Feb. 18th, in the high school auditorium for the purpose of organizing a P.-T. A.

OBITUARY

A. Thatcher Otis

A. Thatcher Otis, prominent for many years in the grocery business in this city, died suddenly at 1 o'clock this (Saturday) morning at his home, No. 34 Hobart avenue.

Mr. Otis was a native of this city, where he was born Aug. 25, 1863, the son of the late Amos T. and Mary Cowan Otis. Attending the public schools until he was 17 years old he became a clerk with the grocery firm of Allen, Blanchard and Latimer, wholesalers. He was with this concern for 10 years, during the latter part of this time acting as a traveling salesman.

In 1891 Mr. Otis left their employ and went with his father in the retail grocery business, becoming a partner in 1900, when their store was on Main street, where it continued until 1915. At that time the store was removed to its present location on Franklin street in The Bulletin building, where the business has been continued with success as one of the best known retail grocery stores in the city.

On Oct. 15, 1889, Mr. Otis was united in marriage with Joseph Peters, a native of Colchester. She survives him with their daughter, Helene, wife of Oliver F. Hoelck of Hartford. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Benjamin H. Palmer and Mrs. George A. Ashbey, and one brother, Robert W. Otis, all of this city.

In politics Mr. Otis was a republican, but never occupied public office and he was a member of the Central Baptist church, of which for many years he was a trustee.

UTILITIES BOARD DEFINES TAXICAB, MOTOR LIVERY

Definition of and distinctions between taxicabs and motor vehicles in livery service are set forth in a basic decision by the state public utilities commission, made public this week. The decision is important in that it contains a rule for the guidance of persons wishing to operate taxicabs and auto liveries, enabling them to determine what form of license must be obtained.

A taxicab is defined by the commission as any motor vehicle occupying a public stand or other parking place in or adjacent to a highway and used for the transportation of passengers for hire; for the transportation of passengers indiscriminately for hire in local short haul trips. The owner of a motor vehicle (except a jitney) is a common carrier engaged in a taxicab service who operates on call or by demand, soliciting or accepting, by advertisement, telephone or others, passengers indiscriminately for hire at rates not exceeding the prevailing maximum local taxicab rates as on file with the commission.

A motor vehicle operated from a garage or livery station and let from such station at the discretion of its owner, with or without driver, for funerals, weddings or other specific trip or trips at rates materially higher than the local taxicab rates for each separate service is being operated in livery service. A motor vehicle hired for a trip of 10 miles or more, one way, at a rate agreed upon by the owner, and the person hiring the vehicle, may be construed as operating in livery service.

NORTH GROSVENORDALE YOUTH KILLED IN CRASH AT NEWENT ROAD UNDERPASS

A North Grosvenordale youth was instantly killed, five people were sent to the hospital, and at least two others received minor injuries in an automobile collision Friday night about 9 o'clock at the narrow underpass on the Newent road in the town of Lisbon.

The colliding machines, which met almost head-on, were the truck of the Over the Top bakery of North Grosvenordale, owned by P. L. Faucher, and the Cadillac sedan, 43-390, owned by John B. Paradis of Taftville, a garage proprietor.

Raymond Bernard 16, who was riding on the extreme right of the front seat of the bakery truck, was thrown across the seat to the left and killed when his skull was punctured by a piece of the broken framework of the machine. Navo Faucher, son of the bakery proprietor, and Alfred Durand, 16, also of North Grosvenordale, who were also in the front seat of the truck, which young Faucher was driving, sustained only minor injuries.

The Taftville sedan which was driven by Leo Labby of that place, was proceeding towards Jewett City and had gone through the narrow pass to a point about 30 feet beyond when it met the bakery truck coming in the opposite direction. The left forward ends of the two machines crashed together, demolishing the left front wheels, crushing in the sides of the cars, smashing the tops, and breaking springs and steering gear. The bakery truck had a full load of bakery supplies which were to be delivered in Taftville and the sides of both machines were plastered with the white filling from the different bakery products in the load on the truck.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chase of Jewett City, a nurse, was one of the first to arrive after the accident, and she at once sent five of the people from the Taftville car to the Backus hospital. They were taken there in a private automobile, being on their way before the Backus hospital ambulance could get to the scene of the accident. Those who went to the hospital were Labby, the driver, Loretta Kelly of 161 Franklin street, Howard Karkutt and William Kelly, both of Fourteenth street, this city, and Florence Ouillett, also of this city.

The last three named were dismissed after having their minor injuries attended to, but Labby, who had a small scalp wound, and Miss Kelly, who had a scalp wound and other cuts, remained at the hospital as patients. A man named Roberts was also said to have been in the Taftville sedan.

Young Faucher and Durand were taken back to North Grosvenordale by Faucher's father and the body of Bernard was taken in charge by Dougherty Bros., who removed it to their undertaking rooms in Plainfield.

State Policemen Connelly and Strahn from the Danielson barracks and Dygert from the Groton barracks made investigation and measurements at the scene of the crash and Constable Potter of Lisbon was on hand to direct traffic after he had been notified by Capt. Thomas Murphy from Norwich police headquarters of the crash.

Dr. George Thompson, of Taftville, medical examiner for the town of Lisbon, viewed the body of young Bernard where it lay on a bank by the side of the road, and Coroner Edward G. McKay took some preliminary statements from the state policemen and also saw the patients at the hospital.

The place where the crash occurred is one of the danger spots on the Newent road as the underpass under the railroad tracks is wide enough for only one car to go through at a time and the bends in the road on both sides of the underpass make it impossible for drivers to see what is approaching from the other side.

DE LUXE TRAIN PATRONAGE SUGGESTS NO HARD TIMES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14.—The New Haven railroad's finest train, the Merchants' Limited continues to be liberally patronized, for each train passing through New London between 7 and 8 o'clock, one bound east and the other bound west, is carrying two dining cars and with a train composed of between 10 and 13 cars. With the fare for transportation on this train amounting to close to $12 and with the added expense of dining car meals, it costs well to ride in this de luxe train.

Called For Chimney Fire

At 7:30 o'clock Friday evening the fire department was called out for a chimney fire in the house at No. 32 Central avenue, owned by John and Elizabeth Sullivan. The blaze was in the part of the building occupied by James Sullivan and was put out with three gallons of chemical. Engine No. 2, Chief Henry R. Taft and Deputy Chief Dennis Brennan responded.

VALENTINE SOCIAL WITH CLEVERLY GIVEN PLAYLET

The Woman's League of the Central Baptist church held a delightful valentine social Friday evening at Bushnell chapel. There was an attendance of 200 or more at the social which followed a brief business session of the league. Mrs. Henry Jatkowske, president of the league, presided at the business meeting.

At the close of the meeting adjournment was taken to the social rooms and the program opened with two vocal solos by Mrs. Helena M. T. Church, accompanied by Mrs. W. H. Stebbins, pianist. Young people of the church, under the direction of Miss Signe Seaberg, the pastor's assistant, gave a playlet, Not Such a Goose. The cast follows:

Mrs. Bell, a happy mother, Frances Bushnell; Albert Bell, her 17-year-old son, Eldred Coles; Sylvia Bell, her daughter, Elizabeth Noyes; Philip Flick, Sylvia's sweetheart, Lloyd Potter; Helen Anderson, Sylvia's friend, Helen Bellows.

Mrs. Church again entertained with vocal solos, accompanied by Mrs. Stebbins, after which there was a social hour. Valentines were distributed to each one present from a unique post office. There were a number of special delivery valentines for prominent men of the church, guests of the evening, who read aloud, by popular demand, the humorous verses on their valentines. Dudley and Betty Lathrop, in white costumes trimmed with red crepe paper hearts were in charge of the post office and were assisted by younger children of the church.

Refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served under the direction of Mrs. Henrietta Tefft and her committee. Mrs. C. Edward Smith was chairman of the program committee, and was assisted by Mrs. Herbert Richardson and Mrs. C. Boyden Taylor.

GAVE TELEGRAPHY LESSON AT BOY SCOUT MEETING

Jean Keifer of Uncas-on-Thames, troop committeeman, was the speaker at the meeting Friday evening of Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts, of the United Congregational church. Following the opening exercises and the business part of the meeting, he was introduced and in addition to his talk gave a demonstration in telegraphy. Mr. Keifer warned the scouts never to send an S. O. S. message unless really necessary, for some person may pick up the message and report it, thus causing a lot of needless trouble.

Next Friday evening the troop will celebrate its 10th birthday with a banquet and a theatre party at the Palace.

Junior Assistant Cecil Wetherbee and William Finlayson led in the game period, during which "Capture the Hat" and "Indian Fight" were played.

NORWICH POETS READ FOR LITERARY ROUND TABLE

With a large attendance, despite the stormy weather, the second of the literary Norwich round table meetings, a department of the Woman's City club, was held Thursday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel. A varied programme was conducted by Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, who read a paper on New Poetry. Mrs. Amanda Hall Brownwell, a native of Norwich, novelist and poet, read several of her poems, and song poems by Miss Alif Stephens were sung by Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, accompanied by Mrs. Charles M. Olson, pianist. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Davis read a poem, Norwich Woods, by Mrs. Fannie Treadway Whittemore. Mrs. John P. Huntington read several of her short poems and Miss Mazie Caruthers added much to the pleasure of the afternoon by reading some of the poems she has written.

Miss Lochnivar Comes East

By
LUCILLE VAN SLYKE

JEANNIE DID NOT INTEND TO LOSE THE MAN SHE LOVED JUST BECAUSE FATE SEEMED TO BE LEADING HIM THE OTHER WAY

HER father made motortrucks and scads of money. Jeannie adored him, fought for him and spent all she could of that money. She prided herself on being level-headed and knowing how to look out for herself. So he was rather startled on the day that she said:

"Do you mind if I'm engaged to Freddy Kemp?"

He minded horribly, but he was wise enough not to say so. Kemp seemed to him everything that Jeannie's husband should not be.

"A little too old and a little too rich and a whole lot too darned sure of himself," he thought pessimistically. But he kept his thoughts to himself. His own marriage hadn't started out that way. He had been a little too young and a little too poor and not at all sure of himself. He sighed as he remembered that dim and joyous time, and thought of Jeannie's courageous little mother saying passionately:

"What if I am going? It's been worth it!"

Jeannie's engagement ring, a blazing emerald with many diamonds, had probably cost a hundred times what her mother's had cost, yet Jeannie's comment about it had been merely a casual:

"Better get us some more burglar insurance, eh?"

Her father found himself remembering a sleepy colt and the shabby black buggy, in which he had wooed her mother. Not much like Freddy Kemp's new car, which was a thing of much cream-colored paint, red morocco cushions and too much shining metal.

Jeannie interrupted his mournful soliloquy with a butterfly kiss. Her bronze curly hair was by no means hidden by her impudent green sports hat. Her artfully pleated skirt was a large and brilliant plaid. The only sober thing about her was a little black suede coat, and that had silver buttons.

"Arn't I Scotch enough for you today?" she teased her dad.

"You Scotch?" he growled. "nly your clothes and your name. The rest of you has been hard boiled in the melting pot"

Freddy Kemp honked his horn impatiently.

"Why don't he come to the door for you?" her father exclaimed peevishly. He seemed to see the colt nibbling the front lawn while he hurried up the steps to greet the girl who was going to be Jeannie's mother.

Jeannie caught up her coat.

"Brrr-rrr! What a grouch! I do believe you're jealous of Freddy!"

FREDDY was cross, too. The car wasn't behaving well. It ran along all right on the pavements in town, did fairly on the stretch of state road, but it wheezed up the long hill to the country club with apologetic coughs, and no amount of gear-shifting could keep it from dying about a quarter of a mile from the top. Freddy's treatment of the innocent starter was vicious and Jeannie said so.

"Goes very well going downhill, doesn't it?" she taunted him as they rolled along into the valley.

"Must be carbon," he said gloomily.

"Carbon nothing!" Her retort was spirited. "I told you before you bought it that this boat was no good. It's all looks and no innards! I tell you you're stung, Flip!"

"I wish you wouldn't call me Flip!" They were laboring up another hill.

"I wish you wouldn't be so flip. You think you know about everything! You're so darned sure about everything!" Her insouciant little giggle as the car went slower and slower was simply maddening. "If you get this back to our house," she added with suspicious sweetness, "I tell you what I'll do. I'll run you over to the club in daddy's old blunderbus."

"Nineteen-sixteen model!" he scoffed. "With the original paint!"

"But purring like a kitten ever since they ran her out of the paint shop!"

Freddy's car, as though for sheer spite, stopped dead.

"You only have to walk about half a mile back to that gas station in the hollow," she remarked cheerfully.

"I'll have no roadside fool monkeying with this engine." He crawled stiffly out, unfastened the bonnet and peered solemnly within. "I—er—perhaps it may be the carburetor—" his faintly muffled tones rumbled out to her.

"No such luck!" she cooed. "It never did have much pep, but if you want to know what is ailing it today, why, I'll tell you. It's the doohickeys on the tops of the valves—that's what was clicking—"

"Yes?" he asked sarcastically

"You don't need to be nasty!" Her temper was rising. "I mayn't know the technical names for things, but daddy says I have a natural aptitude for machinery. If even one of those little doohickeys is loose—"

"Will you be good enough to step on the starter?" he interrupted her.

"You sound like we'd been married eighty-two years the way you order me around, Flip," she grumbled. But she slid obediently to the driver's seat, let her green leather toe reach out toward the starter button and jerked her foot back, sputtering: "Fool! Leave a car in gear and then telling me to start it!" She yanked a lever back, pulled up the emergency brake and issued her ultimatum. "I'm going to save you time and money by backing this car down the hill to that garage. The last time you tried tinkering with it, it took them two days to repair the damage you did. Come around and get in."

"I asked you if you would step on that starter," he began frigidly. "I think I have adjusted—hi, there! Don't back down that hill!"

She was already several yards down it. Paying no heed to him whatever, but hanging on to the wheel as though for dear life, with her small face twisted into a delicious grimace as she watched the road in a scrap of mirror that was over the windshield. She turned the car rather neatly around the short curve by the gasoline pump, pulled up the brake and drew a long breath.

THAT was a fool thing to do with a car of that size," said a quiet voice. "Don't I know it!" she murmured. But she laughed softly as she jumped out, 5 feet 2 of pure impudence. "This car," she apologized, "is a perfect lemon. Its proud owner thinks it's carbon, but I know that the doohickeys on the—"

"The what?" demanded the quiet voice.

He towered above her, dark eyed and entirely serious. Very good-looking in spite of his grease-covered khaki.

Suddenly she found her lips trembling. She was blushing.

"The little things on top of the valves," she faltered. "It's silly of me to forget their names."

He disappeared into the cavernous depths of his shop, came out with a huge piece of unbleached cotton, which he tucked over the red morocco cushions. While he was stepping into the driver's seat she scurried around to the other side of the car, like a youngster who is afraid she isn't going to get to the picnic.

The starter whizzed, the engine choked, he shifted the gears and they were off, limping up the hill. He bent his head sidewise, listening.

Halfway up the hill they met the owner, plodding angrily down.

"Hi!" he yelled imperiously.

"I guess you'd better stop," said Jeannie demurely. "After all, it is his car!"

The mechanic didn't look around at her, but she could feel his scorn.

He stopped long enough for the owner to clamber on the running-board. With this added burden the suffering motor could scarcely make the grade. When the top of the hill was reached, the khaki-clad one said quietly:

"Valves are leaking. Sounds like a cracked gasket."

"Told you all the time it was a doohickey!" Jeannie's voice rose triumphantly. "You wouldn't believe me, Flip. Thought I didn't know anything about machinery. But I knew all the time that it was a doohickey!"

Neither man commented upon her mechanical acumen, but a faint smile was twisting the corners of the grave young garageman's firm lips.

"Well," said the owner insolently, "think you know enough to fix it?"

"It's not especially difficult to do." The mechanic was quite evidently forcing himself to be respectful. "Only thing is, my repairman is gone today. I would have to do it myself, and I may be interrupted—the gas pump—"

"I'll pump the gas!" Jeannie's brown eyes were shining with adventure. "I've always wanted to pump gas! How much shall I charge a gallon?"

"Jeannie!" thundered her fiance.

The mechanic, too, eyed her sternly. But again his lips twitched. He reached for his cotton waste.

"I'll walk down," he said. "You can coast the car down."

"Er—I'll stick on the running-board," said the owner.

"Thanks, I'll walk," said the mechanic.

The owner took the wheel, the car careened like a crazy thing, jerking sidewise into a ditch, lunging out of it and finally came to a stop with its rear bumper banged against the gasoline pump.

The owner walked up and down smoking furiously while the mechanic worked. But Jeannie, curiosity shining in her dark eyes, lingered as close to the car as she dared. Twice she handed the worker a tool when he needed it. He did not speak but nodded his thanks.

At a rolltop desk near the window a quiet-looking woman in a dark frock was making out bills. She watched Jeannie and sighed. A car clattered up, she saw the bright figure of the girl rush toward it.

"How many gallons?" her insouciant voice rang out.

The mechanic's hand was on the gasoline wheel before Jeannie's tanned fingers could touch it.

"Two ten," he said tersely when the tank was filled. He handed a $5 bill through the window.

"Isn't she pretty?" said the woman's voice softly.

"Mom, she's a young terror!" he murmured. "Somebody ought to spank her and take away her tobacco. She's just deviling that poor chap!"

He finished the repair job with no more interruptions, but he was terribly conscious of the pretty little person who hovered so closely, watching every move he made.

Twice the car owner called to the girl:

"You'll get grease on you!"

"He's a perfect wiz of a mechanic!" she retorted. "Come over here and you'll learn something!"

The second time the owner was more tactful.

"Don't you think you'd better phone Sarah? We're going to be a couple of hours late—"

"You do it." Her dazzling smile disarmed him. "I'd make her furious. She'll forgive us if you talk to her, Flip."

The quiet woman at the desk rose so he could use the telephone.

OUTSIDE in the brilliant autumnal sunlight the small person in the gaudy sport clothes murmured confidentially:

"What do you think of that engine?"

"Good enough." The mechanic was tightening the stud nuts.

"My dad says it's no good."

He made no comment.

"He has a Harlan," she boasted sweetly, "nineteen-sixteen."

This time he looked up.

"Peach of a job that was!" His eyes were shining. "How's she running?"

"Coos like a pigeon. I can get seventy out of her."

"Now, if you'll start it," the mechanic spoke to the owner, "I think you'll find it all right."

"Seems to go," the owner admitted grudgingly. "Hop in, Jeannie. How much?"

The mechanic glanced at a battered alarm clock in the window.

"Fifty minutes' time charge. Two-twenty for materials. That makes it three-seventy."

The owner counted out four $1 bills.

"You can keep the change," he said magnanimously.

But the mechanic, diving into his pocket, pulled out a quarter and a nickel and reached it toward the car.

She hid the coins in her small pink palm.

"Good-by, thanks a lot," she called sweetly.

Three days later, in a drizzling rain, an old Harlan slowed down beside the gasoline pump, a cumbersome old roadster, guiltless of any top. The small person driving it wore a yellow slicker and a fisherman's oilskin cap.

The mechanic came out of his dingy cave and stared at her.

Her bronze curls were shining with moisture, her cheeks were pink from the rain and her retrousse nose, guiltless of any powder, showed a faint spatter of freckles.

"I—er—boasted too soon about this old bus." She couldn't look at him while she said it. "It's not going very well. Acts like the gas line was clogged."

"Wait till I back my fliv out and you can run under cover," he answered.

There was a surly old Cairn curled on a rug by the door. He watched the girl suspiciously and growled when she stooped to pat him.

The mechanic, his head already under the bonnet, murmured:

"He won't bite if you don't touch him."

She walked about the dingy place humming softly. Her pulse was racing madly and her color was high.

His hand, reaching out for a pair of pliers, touched her wet fingers.

"Would you mind waiting in the office?" he asked, his voice trembling.

She walked cockily away, looked over her shoulder at him. The murky place was electric with her half-smothered laughter.

The office was horribly neat and stuffy. The woman at the desk was still making out bills, her "good morning" was doleful-sounding.

Jeannie wandered about, still humming, looking over motor-oil advertisements sometimes, but mostly watching the dark head of the mechanic. Suddenly she made a discovery.

"Why are you crying?" she asked the woman.

"I probably need glasses—the light here—"

"You were crying!" Jeannie's own voice was crisply sure.

"He's tried so hard!" the older woman's pent-up feelings gave way in a rush of words. "He has worked so hard. But he simply can't contract to sell a hundred cars and fifty trucks. And he can't keep the agency unless he takes the trucks. He can sell the cars, but not the trucks. He'd just be left with them on his hands. Repair work and gas sales alone won't pay expenses for us. I suppose we were silly to try—with only the insurance money."

Jeannie didn't seem to listen. She had made another discovery.

"Why, you're his mother!" she cried triumphantly. "Your eyes are exactly like his!"

"Yes, I'm his mother," the older woman said proudly.

Silently they exulted together. Not a word said the girl. But her eyes cried:

"Isn't he wonderful?"

Not a word said the woman. But hers answered:

"Oh, he is!"

She went back to her bills. The girl walked about restlessly.

Presently her small voice exploded.

"Perfectly fiendish of them. Their silly little one-ton trucks are no good anyhow. Nobody can sell them!"

The mechanic appeared in the doorway.

"The car is all right now," he said coldly. "Somebody must have been tampering with that feed wire—"

"How much do I owe you?" she cooed, stepping back into the shop.

"Perfectly all right—" he stammered. "I mean—nothing."

Her hand slipped into her slicker pocket, again she was blushing.

"Silly of me. I came off without a cent. Will you trust me—just till tomorrow?"

She was very close to him, so close that the faint fragrance of her hair made him suddenly close his eyes. Her pert little face was lifted toward him, her lips parted. Quite suddenly, without knowing he was going to do it, he bent and kissed her.

"Hi, you!" roared an indignant truckman. "Isn't there anybody selling gas here?"

She fled. With cheerful defiance of the speed laws and the slippery roads, she raced over the hill.

She drove all the way into town, bantering gayly with every traffic officer the length of her journey. Oilskins dripping and bronze curls quite wet, she stood in the doorway of her father's office while an indignant doorboy, two stenographers and an outraged private secretary assured her he couldn't be disturbed. The firm's most important client retired gracefully when she murmured:

"It won't take me two minutes, but it simply won't wait."

SHE began abruptly, almost before the door was closed.

"Daddy, do you know what that Radnor outfit does? They make their agents take fifty of their rickety little trucks or they won't let them sell their cars. And—and—nobody could sell fifty of those rotten little things, could they?"

"Well, what of it?" stammered her astounded father.

"How often do you have a chance to get a man who not only understands sales but also can do anything in the world with motors? He's exactly the person for a good state agency."

"We aren't making any changes this fall," he told her, a trifle testily. "Very commendable of Fred, of course, but if he can hook up with Radnor—"

A blazing emerald, set with many diamonds, was slipped across his desk blotter.

"As though Freddy had enough sense to run an agency," she sniffed. "Or anything else. I—that was one of the things I came in about. I wanted to tell you to give that to Flip the first time you saw him. He—I—I don't like the way he treats machinery."

She was gone before he could question her.

But he made her attend to the matter of the ring herself. Shamed her into it by calling her a coward. The cocksure Freddy Kemp appeared the next evening after dinner, sauntering cheerfully into the room that her father would persist in calling the parlor.

She was wearing a little blond lace frock and a twist of blue ribbon around her hair. The ring was in a brown velvet box. She held it out to him bravely.

"Flip, I'm terribly sorry. But I should think you could credit it I—I only wore it three times, really—"

"Like the sapphire one better myself," he agreed good-humoredly. "We'll take a run in town tomorrow and change it."

She wasn't thinking about Freddy at all. She was ghastly pale, with smudgy shadows under her dark eyes. At 5 that afternoon she had let the dear old blunderbus whirl over the hills to the gasoline station that bore a curt sign informing all and sundry: This Place Under New Management

And the new management only knew that "He'd got himself a job somewhere out of town" when she asked what had become of the former owner.

Freddy didn't take his dismissal kindly.

"What's the use of bluffing? You've lost your head about a greasy young mechanic. Let me tip you off to something I picked up at the club this afternoon. Know Caddy Slocum? The fat, fair and forty fairy? Married old Winship first and got a house and eighty thousand instead of alimony. Then she married good old Tom Slocum and got all he had and went over and bought herself a nice Paris divorce this spring. Told sis that she earned the right to marry for love the next time. She's been buying gas and oil from your greasy young friend for weeks past. Had two or three cars down there being taken apart and put together just for an excuse to hang around there. He moved up to her house yesterday and he and Caddy are starting on a long western trip tomorrow!"

"I'm not a bit interested in Caddy Slocum!" Jeannie's voice was shrilly sweet. Her little foot stamped. "There's your ring, and I've told you I'm sorry, because daddy said I had to say so. My manners are perfectly shocking and you're well rid of me and—and—"

"Didn't mean to rag you, Jeannie," his tone was conciliatory. "It wasn't really your fault that that chap ogled you. I only wanted you to understand that he's a sort of village lady-killer—"

He was talking to nobody at all. Quite suddenly she dodged through a long French window back of him, dashed across the veranda past her startled father and disappeared through the mess of rhododendrons that screened the drive.

The oilskins hung in the old barn; it wasn't exactly raining, but the night was misty and threatening. She pulled the fisherman's hat down over her curls, she jerked the coat over her thin frock. A moment later the old Harlan roared out of the yard.

DADDY SLOCUM'S house was in Greenwich—fifteen miles the speedometer registered—and however Jennie escaped being arrested for speeding was a mystery. It was only a little after 9 when the Harlan stopped under the maples before Caddy's house.

A butler came to the door.

"Do you know if Mrs. Slocum was married this afternoon?" Jeannie shot her wild question at him.

"I could inquire, miss," he answered stiffly, "if you would wait."

She would not wait. She followed him through the wide hallway into the charming chintz-hung drawing room. Caddy was standing by a fern-filled fireplace, her new coiffure making her overblond head look much too small for her plump shoulders.

Immaculate in blue serge, with a soft hat in his hands, stood Jeannie's mechanic.

"Tomorrow morning, then," said Caddy softly.

"Oh, come quickly," panted Jeannie, thrusting her hand through his arm. She fairly dragged him away. "I left the engine running. Hurry!"

She motioned to the driver's seat.

"Please drive, I'm much too nervous!"

"Drive where?" he demanded, his hand on the wheel.

"Back to Scarsdale! I—oh—don't talk! Drive!"

He drovve with a nicer regard for village traffic laws than she had shown, but with greater speed on the back roads.

She was limp with emotion when she showed him the entrance to her father's drive. When he had stopped the car she had no voice left at all. But she gave him a little push, propelling him gently through the doorway of the room where her father sat.

"Daddy!" Her voice was huskily sweet. "You're a man and you can talk to him without sounding like a jealous cat! Make him understand everything in the world about machinery. He's had a year at Boston Tech and he has worked on all kinds of motors, but you can see for yourself that he doesn't know a thing about women! She is years and years older than he! She has ruined two perfectly good husbands! And—and I know she wouldn't appreciate a good mechanic the way you would!"

Her father stared at her.

"Jeannie," he reminded her gently, "I've not the remotest idea whom you're talking about or who this chap is—"

"About that silly Caddy Slocum! Wheedling him into marrying—"

"Marrying!" gasped the young man. "Why, she—I—she offered me a hundred and twenty-five a month to drive for her. With all my expenses paid. I thought that would take care of mother until I could stir up something better. I—the fact is, sir, I sank about seven thousand in a Radnor agency. I could sell their cars all right, but I couldn't budge their trucks. T—he coughed miserably—"they cleaned me out—left me without a cent. Their trucks are—"

"A bad lot," Jeannie's father finished for him.

A little person in oilskins fled to the shelter of her fathers' arms. The fisherman's hat fell to the floor, tumbled bronze curls and the rosy nape of her neck were all that the wretched young man could see. But her smothered laughter floated back to him.

"No mother to guide her!" she giggled. "Oh, daddy! Apologize for me!"

Her father let one arm tighten about her, with the other he beckoned to the young man.

"Hardly her fault!" he chuckled. "For the matter of the first ten years of her life I'd nothing much to bring her up on except oatmeal and Sir Walter Scott. She—er—" (he was shaking hands fervently with the young man) "knows the whole poem—she could recite it before she was 6. Speak your piece, Jeannie." He turned her around so she had to face the young man. " 'Oh, Miss Lochinvar has come out of the West,' " he chuckled again.

He backed discreetly out of the room, his laughter died. Up and down the veranda he paced, autumnal winds blowing a thousand memories to him. There was a worn, old seal ring on the little finger of his left hand. Inside it was engraved:

"To Jamie from Jean."

He put his lips to it softly.

"And your lassie is no laggart in luv, my darlin'!" he whispered exultantly.

KNIGHT CHILDREN'S BONES TAKEN FROM BURNED HOME

Friday afternoon, a number of Westerly people visited the ruins of the home of Desmond Knight, which the previous day was burned to the ground, incinerating the bodies of two children and leaving not a particle of combustible wood about the house. Before taking up their home in North Stonington, near the old Lantern Hill turnout of the Norwich & Westerly electric road, Mr. and Mrs. Knight resided near the schoolhouse in Lower Pawcatuck, which property was sold before they purchased the Lantern Hill property. At 3:30 p. m., Friday, the charred bones of Annie Elizabeth Knight, born in North Stonington July 18, 1928, and George Everett Knight, born in Lower Pawcatuck Jan. 30, 1929, were taken from the ruins of the house and brought to the Gavitt funeral home, Westerly.

THURSDAY NIGHT LIGHTNING BREAKS WINTER'S BACKBONE

The heavy rains of Thursday and Thursday night which were accompanied in and about Westerly by flashes of lightning have caused the upper reaches of the Pawcatuck river and tributary brooks to be greatly swollen and in places high on the banks. The frozen ground contributed to the high water by not allowing the rain to soak in. The ponds and other bodies of water which were covered with ice and which had furnished good skating over the first of the week had this spoiled by the quantities of water flooding the ice surface.

A harbinger of spring, one warm day the past week, a High street grocer displayed on a sidewalk stand in front of his store a large rack filled with packets of vegetable and flower seeds. To many, the lightning of Thursday night indicated the breaking of the backbone of winter.

New York Driver Fined

Trial Calendar—Frederick Johnson, Jr., 101 West 55th street, New York, represented by Attorney C. E. Roche, changed former plea of not guilty to nolo. Jan. 31 at 8:45 the accused was driving with Dorothy Siglow and her mother from New York to Boston, where Miss Siglow was scheduled to have a stage rehearsal. While on the Nooseneck Hill road going into Hope Valley the car, being driven at 35 miles per hour, skidded and went off the road and one of the occupants was injured. Judge Williams fined the driver $50 and costs.

Charles Demming was before the court on a complaint brought by Cyril W. Riley, deputy bird commissioner, charging him with having a high-powered rifle, which carried more than 1,400 feet per second. Demming pleaded not guilty. The case was continued.

Norman Church, through his attorney, John Gallagher, pleaded nolo to a complaint brought by Edwin R. Lewis, charging him with operating and superintending a device for catching fish, without a license. Deputy Commissioner Lewis said that he found the defendant operating three tilts on Watchaug Pond Feb. 8. Defendant told him he had no license. Judge Williams said that he felt the offense was a purely technical one and the defendant's error was in not acknowledging the law. The case was dismissed.

JOHN QUINN, PHILADELPHIA, BUYS POTTER HILL MILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 14.—Firth B. Rollinson of Wakefield, R. I., treasurer and general manager, Friday morning announced a confirmation of the sale of the Potter Hill Woolen company plant at Potter Hill, known as the Pawcatuck Woolen mill. The purchaser is John Quinn of Philadelphia. The mill property has been on the market since early in January, following a decision of the company to retire from business in Potter Hill. The announcement that the mill would be sold followed a short time after the death of the president of the company, Henry Lewis, in New York. The new owner of the mill will take possession March 10 and it is expected that the mill will be in operation under the new management by the end of the month. The mill, when operated full capacity, employs about 175 men. For several months the mill has been on reduced schedule and has been giving employment to only about 80 men. The sale to Mr. Quinn includes the mill property but not the mill houses occupied by workers. These will be sold separately to individual buyers, according to Mr. Rollinson.

The Potter Hill mill was taken over by the present company about four years ago. It was operated successfully for a number of years under the ownership of W. E. Battey of Watch Hill and New Rochelle, N. Y., the superintendent being Thomas Hope, former member of Westerly school committee.

They were examined by the board of review; J. H. Webster, Dr. E. P. Fitch, Robert P. Anderson, Eugene MacDonald, H. H. Park and Frank Schoonmaker. They were examined in scout work, signals, first aid bandaging, compass, woodcraft, use of knife and axe and other scout activities. Scoutmaster Walter Palmer and Assistant Scoutmaster Robert Whittaker were in charge of the troop. Scoutmaster Moon of New London represented the New London council of scouts. Another court of honor is planned to be held in two months time at which time two boys will be advanced to first class scouts. There are several boys preparing to pass the tenderfoot test. Much interest is being taken in this troop by the American Legion and it is said this troop of Boy Scouts have accomplished more than any other troop ever organized in the village.

EVEN A $980 RADIO SET MAY PART A MAN AND WIFE

A Noank radio bug who has an eight-tube electric set and claims he has got every place that comes over the air, is Robert Wolf. He sure loves his radio and many scraps he has with his wife over that radio, for not going to bed on time.

As the night was dark, but getting a little light, meaning that the break of day was around the corner, about 5 o'clock, a voice came over the air but was hard to understand. "Gee!" Robert said. "What is that? A bull fight?" Listening again to make out the words the voice seemed as though it was in the cellar, and seemed far away from the United States. But, at last the man came out plain—it was Africa. Gee! Thousands of miles, where there are palm trees, and bats to live in! The man with the sawmill voice said it was so hot there that there were 49 overcome by heat. The sun burned a hole in a workman's undershirt. It was so hot one could fry an egg on the sidewalk, the radio bug claimed. We were freezing here and with sheepskin coats on; and for 30 minutes the talk was good. But a call came from the northwest room: "Bob! Come to bed before the sun gets up and shines over the church steeple! Hear that hen singing a golden egg tune for your breakfast!"

So the radio bug had to shut off the wonder set and hit the hay before the cows were milked. His wife told him, as all good husbands are told, "If you don't quit those all-night stations I will take an axe to the set and you won't get China!" "Say, if anything happens to that $980 set! I think as much of that radio as of my left arm! For it is the best set in town and has got more stations across the ocean than a fish has scales! I get Spain like turning over a beefsteak! So far a record of six different countries that are not on the map of the good U. S. A.! But they are Uncle Sam's friends and will give a hand if needed, at a minute's notice. If an axe is put on that radio, Mrs. Wolf, your meal ticket is leaving for somewhere in America!" The battle lasted until 6:30, then it was time to get up. So, turning on the wonder set to listen in as the toast was being browned so he could soak it in his coffee, a voice came, a lady singing. "Gee! How good! Clear as a lake, and sweet! California, here I come!" It was from the west coast. Later that morning, several more good numbers were heard, while the young couple were eating. Mrs. Wolf said, "If you turn a half number on the dial you might get Prospect Hill!" So the radio bug had to hurry and make the bus for work. Never has he been on time since that radio landed in the house! That man sure loves his high-priced set. Has a record of all the stations he has ever got—over 200 of them so far, not counting them twice. Also he has got Italy. That is his hardest station; puffing away on a 25-cent cigar all evening and half the night, trying to get Italy, but the radio bug, Robert, got it one night. He was listening to the set and got excited over an orchestra playing. When the orchestra played, "Good Night, Ladies," Robert went to bed, removed his clothes, put on his sleeping suit of Japan yellow, forgot to take off his shoes but hopped into bed. O boy! what a war it was when his wife rolled over and felt them violin cases! "Gee! Robert! Where are your senses; coming to bed with shoes on! Next, you will be wearing roller skates! Oh, if you would not tune in some night and come to bed early! See, it is 3:15 o'clock now! My hair will be gray from worrying over you and that radio!"

Robert raised his right hand high above his head and said, "Honey, I will let the radio alone. You are right; just sit in the parlor while you darn them machine shop holes in my socks! I can tell you about my trip on an oil barge to China without an engine to help us along, only the wind to send us to Hong Kong. Believe me, I never saw so much water in my life! Waves right and left of us! Getting there, after 46 days on the salt water, when I went ashore I could not stand, after being so much on the water. I was dizzy—like being drunk for the first time. A Chinaman bluecoat cop was going to arrest me. I let a yard of their language go at the cop. He had a great laugh. 'American sailor too much salt water! A long swim to America, too,' the cop said. Gee, how happy I was not to land in jail and live on rice with two sticks.

"One night ashore was plenty for me. So getting the oil unloaded we started back to God's country—full sail ahead; reached New York in 40 days, for luck was with us. I will never forget my trip to China."

The Wolfs had a good evening together. The radio bug was telling his fellow workmen about the stations across the pond that he got and "What have you?" They sure gave him the works over it; thought it was a big joke. So Radio Wolf told them to come down any night and he could prove what he said. So the machine shop gang came down to see the wonderful set that could get anything from Shore avenue to Spain or Africa. The dial was set and around 12 o'clock nothing could be heard of those stations. Mrs. Wolf was busy with a clam chowder, the table was set all ready for Branch avenue clam chowder. No cracking came over. In the wee hours of the morning when the far-off station came, the man could not be heard. The guests were mad, not to understand. Soon a real guy got on the air. "This is station OPED, Spain. The correct time is 10 o'clock and it is 3 o'clock, United States time. A bull fight will take place now; 150,000 people are here to see Bull Champion Pat Oldring throw the monster bull of our country." Then what cheering! In 21 minutes the bull's shoulders were pinned to the ground and Oldring got a pot of gold and the champion bell for throwing the bull.

Wolf's fellow workmen were surprised and well pleased to hear a radio set that could get Spain or any far-off station. "Well," Sam Glass said, "We got to take off our hats to Radio Robert, for he sure has got a real set!"

It was 4:30 a. m., as they left for their home after a nice Branch avenue clam chowder and hearing a radio set that speaks for itself. So, saying good morning instead of good night, they all beat it home and the radio was shut off after a real evening of fun with the bull fight.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago the members of the William M. Williams Steam Fire Engine Co. held a delightful social at their headquarters, Warner's string orchestra furnishing the music. The ladies sewing society of St. Patrick's church also held an entertainment for the benefit of the poor of the parish. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of February, 1880, are as follows:

Monday, February 9, 1880—The William M. Williams Steam Fire Engine Co., held a social in the parlors of their house on Friday evening. Warner's string band furnished the music and David Gillan was prompter. Some fifty couples attended and an order of twenty-two dances was enjoyed. It was one of the best socials given this winter.

Mr. Harry H. Leavitt, formerly of this place, but now of Santa Barbara, Cal., has decided not to return east at present. In his open air tours for his health he has become an expert naturalist and taxidermist; and he has recently been made a good offer by French agents to make natural history collections for a Paris museum.

John F. Slater, Esq., and Lorenzo Blackstone were engaged Friday in hearing testimony in the case of J. P. Collins & Co. vs. the Smithville Manufacturing Co. The action was brought to recover a balance due for the construction and placing of a water wheel at the defendant's mill. The defendants claimed that the plaintiffs agreed to construct a wheel of sufficient capacity to run their mills and that they have failed to perform their contract. The amount involved is about three thousand dollars.

Tuesday, February 10, 1880—Mr. Roswell A. Breed of this city has gone to Chicago to enter the establishment of Markley, Alling & Co., as a bookkeeper. He is a young man of refinement and culture and is a desirable acquisition to any place. The best wishes of hosts of friends follow him.

Independence Hose Co., No. 6, held their annual ball in Steiner's hall last evening. The hall was tastily trimmed. Miller's orchestra furnished the music and D. Gillon was prompter. Fifty-two couples took part in the grand march. The party was first-class and the entertainment, as a whole, one of the best given in the city, this season.

The ice men were cutting ice three inches thick Monday.

Another frigid wave reached the city, yesterday.

Wednesday, February 11, 1880—The spacious vestry of St. Patrick's church on Broadway was brilliantly lighted, and filled with a happy throng of people last evening, the occasion being an entertainment given by the ladies' sewing society of the church for the benefit of the poor of the parish.

Next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the public are invited to attend the annual fair and entertainment of the ladies of the Universalist society at Breed hall. Great care has been exercised to have this fair fully equal if not superior to any heretofore given. A stage entertainment will be presented each evening.

Thursday, February 12, 1880—Not less than two thousand persons attended the services at St. Patrick's church, Broadway, last evening. The Rev. Father Flannigan, a new assistant priest, delivered his first discourse.

City water pipes are being laid to the new coal pockets on the railroad wharf. The bins are constructed to store nearly fourteen thousand tons of the fuel.

The Norwich orchestral union received from Boston, yesterday, two kettle drums for use in that organization. The society is reported to be in a very flourishing condition.

Friday, February 13, 1880—The Messers. J. F. Slater and Lorenzo Blackstone, the committee to whom was referred the case of J. P. Collins & Co., vs. the Smithville Manufacturing Co., have rendered a decision, requiring the defendants to pay the balance due under the contract, with interest, and to deliver to the plaintiffs certain old material remaining in their hands.

There is quite a saxophone fever among the musicians of Greeneville. Four are already getting into practice with the instruments.

E. M. Frazier & Co., succeeded in housing some 1,500 tons of thin ice Tuesday and Wednesday.

Saturday, February 14, 1880—The new uniforms for the train men of the passenger trains on the Norwich & Worcester division of the New England road arrived yesterday and the men will adopt the regulation suit on Monday.

It is a fact that without resorting to chance games or gift enterprises at the Central M. E. fair, three or four hundred dollars worth of articles donated, varying from a bar of soap to a Richmond stove, were auctioned off at good prices by the managers. Their success is not blurred by chance sales.

Norwich Hose Co., No. 4, held a select social at their house last evening. Notwithstanding the stormy weather there was a good attendance and a full programme of dances was enjoyed.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Snow Babies

Doubting Nature doesn't do;
You'll find she knows a thing or two.
—Sammy Jay.

Of course, Sammy Jay couldn't keep the secret of Hooty the Owl's nest to himself very long. When Blacky the Crow heard who were the owners of the egg Sammy Jay had found, Blacky promptly forgot that he had ever boasted that he would go get that egg. The one thing that Blacky wanted most in all the Great World was to keep as far as possible from Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty. He was afraid of them and said so, and he didn't care who knew it.

Sammy Jay, however, couldn't keep away from that part of the Green Forest where the two big Owls were now making their home. Day after day Sammy went as near as he dared to go. From a safe distance he watched that tree where the nest was. Day after day he saw Mrs. Hooty sitting on the eggs and he never got over the wonder that there could be eggs in such cold weather. The very branches around the nest were covered with snow. He wondered how many eggs there were. When he had looked into the nest there had been but one, but he knew well enough that by this time Mrs. Hooty had more. How many more there was no way for Sammy to know.

"I don't see what those babies are going to do when they hatch out in such weather as this," said Sammy to Mrs. Sammy, who had gone over there with him one day.

"They'll freeze," declared Mrs. Sammy. "Yes, sir, they'll freeze to death. I don't know how long it takes for an Owl's egg to hatch, but I'm certain that it will still be cold weather when those babies break their way through the shell. Those Owls are crazy to be nesting at this time of year. I never heard of such a thing!"

"I've noticed," said Sammy, "that sometimes we find Mr. Hooty on the nest and sometimes Mrs. Hooty on the nest."

"Of course," replied Mrs. Sammy. "It wouldn't do to leave those eggs uncovered in such weather as this, so they take turns and while one goes hunting the other sits on the eggs. But you mark my words, Sammy Jay, those babies will freeze to death."

It was just about four weeks from the time Sammy had discovered that first egg when he discovered great activity around that tree in which was the old nest of Blacky the Crow. Sammy stopped at some distance, for he had discovered at once that both Mr. and Mrs. Hooty were off the nest. Just as he came in sight of the nest he saw Hooty fly away into the Green Forest. Then when he reached a place where he could see that nest clearly, he discovered that Mrs. Hooty was not in it. She was nowhere to be seen. What could that mean? Sammy fairly ached to fly over and look down into that nest. He was just about to try it when Mrs. Hooty suddenly appeared alighting on the edge of the nest. My, how big and fierce she looked! She had something in her bill. Sammy couldn't be sure, but he thought it was a Mouse. Whatever it was, it disappeared in the nest. Then Mrs. Hooty settled herself on the nest.

Now, being a bird himself, Sammy understood what all this meant. "As I live," said Sammy to himself, "those eggs have hatched! Yes, sir, those eggs have hatched! There are babies in that nest! Well, if they don't freeze to death it will be a wonder."

One morning a week later Sammy Jay awoke to find that it was snowing. About the middle of the forenoon it stopped snowing. Sammy hurried over to Farmer Brown's to get something to eat. Having eaten a late breakfast, he thought of those babies of Hooty the Owl. He started for the Green Forest. He expected to find Mrs. Hooty or Mr. Hooty sitting on that nest to protect those babies. Instead, when he got there he discovered two little heads stretched up as Hooty the Owl arrived with something in his bill. The tree was white with snow. The nest itself was white with snow. On all sides everything was white with snow. Yet there were those two babies seeming not to mind it at all. "They are regular snow babies!" muttered Sammy.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

TO ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Out of the mist of dimming years,
Free from clamor of friend and foe,
Hovering over forgotten dead
Who rest in peace, row after row,

The voices of him who loved all men
Still echoes through each passing day
To challenge hate and greed and lust,
Till love shall have untrammeled away:—

That not in vain our fathers died,
And not in vain our brothers bled,
That every man his neighbor love
So peace may bless the poppies red.

LINCOLN

If I should reach the rainbow's end
And find the golden till,
I do not think that I would buy
A mansion on a hill—
A lordly house, with portly doors,
That seems to sit and brood,
And if it might would wear a frown
If you should dare intrude.

O, I would own a little house
Upon a little road,
The kind you pass and say, "I wish
That house was my abode"—
A little house, a little yard
With gates that stand ajar
As if to say, "Come in and bide
Where friendly fellows are."
For little houses are not proud
And never, never grave,
They have a very humble mein
And yet are very brave.
And out of little wayside homes
Have journeyed now and then,
The hero souls who dared to be
The friends of friendless men.

One Day At a Time

One day at a time, with its failures and fears,
With its hurts and mistakes, with its weakness and tears,
With its portion of pain and its burden of care,
One day at a time we must meet and must bear.

One day at a time to be patient and strong,
To be calm under trial and sweet under wrong;
Then its toiling shall pass and its sorrow shall cease;
It shall darken and die, and the night shall bring peace.

One day at a time—but the day is so long,
And the heart is not brave and the soul is not strong.
O Thou pitiful Christ, be Thou near all the way;
Give courage and patience and strength for the day.

Swift cometh His answer, so clear and so sweet;
"Yes, I will be with thee, thy troubles to meet;
I will not forget thee, nor fail thee, nor grieve;
I will not forsake thee; I never will leave."
Not yesterday's load we are called on to bear,
Nor the morrow's uncertain and shadowy care;
Why should we look forward or back with dismay?
Our needs, as our mercies, are but for the day.

One day at a time, and the day is His day;
He hath numbered its hours, though they haste or delay.
His grace is sufficient; we walk not alone;
As the day, so the strength that He giveth His own.

A Little Dutch Garden

I passed by a garden, a little Dutch garden,
Where useful and pretty things grew
Heart's ease and tomatoes, and pinks and potatoes,
And lilies and onions and rue.

I saw in the garden, that little Dutch garden,
A chubby Dutch man with a spade
And a rosy Dutch frau with a shoe like a scow,
And flaxen-haired little Dutch maid.

There grew in that garden, that little Dutch garden,
Blue flag flowers, lovely and tall,
And early blush roses, and little pink posies,
But Gretchen was fairer than all.

My heart's 'n that garden, that little Dutch garden
It tumbled right in as I passed,
Mid wildering mazes of spinach and daisies
And Gretchen is holding it fast.

"Abraham Lincoln"

He went about his work, such work as few
Ever had laid on head and heart and hand—
As one who knows where there's a task to do,
Man's honest will must heaven's good grace command.

Who trusts his strength, will with the burden grow;
That God makes instruments to work His will,
If but that will we can arrive to know
Nor tamper with the weights of good or ill.

So he went forth to battle on the side
That he felt clear was Liberty's and Right's,
As in his pleasant boyhood he had plied
His warfare with rude Nature's thwarting might.

The uncleared forests, the unbroken soil,
The iron-bark that turns the lumbermen's ax,
The raid that o'er bears the coatman's toil,
The prairie hiding the mazed wanderer's tracks,
The ambushed Indian, and the prowling bear,
Such were the needs that helped his youth to train;
Rough culture—but such trees large fruit bear,
If but their stocks be of right girth and grain.

So he grew up destined work to do,
And lived to do it; four long suffering years,
Ill-fated, ill-feeling, ill report, lived through
And then he heard the hisses change to cheers.
The taunts to tribute, the abuse to praise,
And took both with the same unwavering mood;
Till, as he came on light, from darkling days,
And seemed to touch the goal from where he stood.
A felon hand, between the goal and him,
Reached from behind his back, a trigger prest—
And those perplexed and patient eyes were dim,
Those gaunt, long-laboring limbs were laid to rest.

The words of mercy were upon his lips,
Forgiveness in his heart and on his pen,
When the vile murderer brought swift eclipse
To thoughts of peace on earth, good will to men.

—London Punch, at the time of Lincoln's assassination.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

Feb. 18—Club No. 6 meets in Mechanic's hall, Broad street, Westerly.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

MERRY HOLLY: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

LIFE IS A BOOK

Dear Corner Sisters: The new year is well on its way now. I wonder how many of us have kept our resolutions thus far. This is the short month and soon March will be here, then spring will come with all its beauty and freshness.

I want to thank the Social Corner member for the lovely calendar. How kind and thoughtful for one to remember so many and how nice to be remembered.

Bumble Bee: Was sorry to hear of your accident.

B. Natural: Trust your health is much improved. Sister used to often speak of you.

Eveline Burr: I always enjoy reading your letters.

Jennie: Do you attend the Social Corner meetings? Would like to meet you.

During the past year many of the sisters have passed on to their eternal home. Every one is missed not only in the Corner but in the home and community in which they lived.

Our life's a book, each day a leaf.
A blank leaf pure and white,
Presented us at dawn of day
When we begin to write.
When new years come with promise bright
Of future good in store
'Tis well to take our record up
And look its pages o'er.

And think if in the present year
We should feel satisfied
To have the master close our book
And lay our pen aside.

We do not know what the year 1930 has in store for us but trust it will not bring as much sorrow as the old year brought to many of us.

Best wishes to the Corner and sympathy to all in trouble. NAOMI.

ENJOYED MEETING

Dear Social Corner Members: After many months I have again spent the day with the members of Club 3 at the Buckingham and I enjoyed every minute visiting old acquaintances and meeting many new ones. I also missed several I had hoped to see.

Aunty No. 1: Hope the rubbers fit.

Meadow Lark: Shall watch the papers to see if you are ill. I hope not. Ha! Ha!

Catnip: Did you get the hatchet home safe?

Now just to remind you all that Club 6 has a meeting next Tuesday the 18th with a good hostess. So come all who can, so that all the workers will feel paid for their trouble. Remember to bring your dishes and something good for the dinner.

Interested Reader: Glad to see you back in the Corner and hope you won't stay in your own Corner so long again, as we need you in ours. I want to thank the editor for the nice surprise I had in receiving the prize.

I wonder if any one has the words of a song, "I'm Serving the Lord in My Weak Feeble Way," or something like that. I got a bit of it over the radio but did not get the station or the program it came from. If any one has it will they please send it into the Corner.

American Girl: Haven't heard about the "bureau." I know it means a good laugh when I do.

Red Rose: I think that hatchet and cherry idea was great.

Bumble Bee: Was glad to hear that you were getting on so well.

Isadore: I have my dictionary right here. E. L. M.

NICE TIME AT PICNIC

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I think all who attended Social Corner picnic, Club 4, Feb. 4th, will say that they had a fine time. The day was intensely cold, but it was so warm and cozy in the hall, it did not take long to get thawed out and comfortable.

About forty-five were present, coming from Norwich, Groton, Plainfield, Moosup, Dayville, Brooklyn, Putnam and East Killingly.

The dinner was served about 1 o'clock. There were three long tables that were simply loaded with good things to eat and it seemed to me that every one had put their best into the food that they brought. In the afternoon came the roll call and a good many responded to their pen names. Capricorn recited a long poem, 1926 whistled and Skinny sang a solo with Bug at the piano. Try Again gave her radio piece by request and Soma gave us some cake guesses.

Turquoise: I was glad to see you.

Anne D.: Why didn't you come down last Thursday? I do not see in P. very often.

Best regards to you all.

DAISY DEAN (Club 4.)

OVENS AND CRADLES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I was much interested in Iola's letter. I remember about the elevated ovens. At my childhood home we had two, one in the kitchen, another in the dining room. After I was old enough to attend to the baking, I used them, and one thing, you did not have to bend, as at the present style of stoves, and the old red cradle. Many times in my early childhood I used to be a croupy one. My dear mother would put me in the red cradle and keep me warm. My sainted mother, gone from me into a heavenly home twenty years ago. No one can fill the place of a mother. I have many kind friends. One who gives me untiring care, as I am a shut-in. I was in my bed for more than a year, and I am grateful for her constant care of me, but Nel., as you write about her, I do not know her personally, but my heart goes out to her with her limb in a cast. I feel my limb did not require a cast. I see many have had calendars. When I was in Florida seven years ago, I had one sent me, and have received some since, but not this year.

Thank all Corner sisters who care to write me, my address is 728 Hancock street, North Abington, Mass.

With wishes for all and prosperity through the year and coming years. Iola's letter wrote about quiltings. I remember when my mother used to go to them as neighbors were invited and remained until the quilt was taken from the frames. The hostess, little girl, my own age, would get under the quilt and bob our heads when they would tell us to stop. This girl and I always remained dear friends until her death at 52 years of age

I am as ever same.

TROTTIE (Club No. 3).

WHO CAN HELP EVELINE BURR?

Dear social Cornerites: I should not be writing again so soon but I promised a friend that I would try to secure through the Corner, which I look upon as an excellent bureau of information, those popular lines entitled, "How to Cook a Husband." I think they appeared on our page some time ago but I can not find them now. Will some one kindly send them in?

Also can one of you give me the address of Poetry, a Magazine of Verse? Also the name of the author of an article about the American Indian containing these lines: "Here, too, they worshipped and from many a dark bosom went up a pure prayer to the Great Spirit. He had not written His laws for them on tables of stone but He had traced them on the tables of their hearts."

Our friend, Mr. Shaw, quoted a little from this article in one of his letters some months ago. I remember it was in one of my school readers and the language used is very fine.

I attended the Social Corner gathering at the B. M. Tuesday. There was a big crowd, a fine dinner and a general good time. It was good to be there. We missed Bumble Bee who has been so faithful. I extend a cordial welcome to all our new members and hope they will not let their pens get rusty. I extend sympathy to the shut-ins and to all in trouble of any sort.

EVELINE BURR

A VALENTINE PARTY

Dear Corner Members: Time, tide and a freight train wait for no one. With most of the new year resolutions broken we see the year grow old very swiftly. Is the world moving faster? No indeed, but folks are trying to take in the many fine amusements offered now. If gramma attended a wedding anniversary and a few house warmings she had quite a busy time. Bridget said on suddenly awakening late Monday morning, "My, my, today Monday, next day Tuesday then Wednesday and the washing not done yet."

February seems to crowd the party lovers mind with many ideas. Two splendid occasions for patriotic parties and much could be said for these occasions. But it seems St. Valentine's has something to its advantage over the other two, maybe because it is thought of as a sweetheart party.

Wouldn't you all just love to be at a party where the hostess has fussed a bit, trimming and doing things a little different, so when you enter her home everything is cheerful in its Valentine array? Of course, trimmings can be elaborate as one wishes, but if one is handy with crepe paper, paste and a little wire there isn't much expense.

The living room may be effectively decorated if bright red hearts predominate. Light fixtures, windows and mantel can be trimmed in many a riking ways. Moss and small hearts hung on natural branches form an artistic decoration. A small tree or branch set in a pot and trimmed with paper moss and red hearts with holes pierced in center so you can put your Christmas tree lights through them, makes a nice trimming for the hall.

Oh how pretty our table looks with a center piece made in this manner. A very large heart cut from cardboard with a paper frill around the edge. The lace frill is obtained from paper doilies. Cut a fold of crepe paper eight inches long, keeping the paper folded cut into fold about seven inches running with the grain, make panels five-eighth inches wide, holding each panel separate in them, with thumbs give a twist with a down motion, making a flower effect top. When bouquet is rather large tie at bottom, set up in middle of heart and pack, cut white one in various lengths so when pushed into bouquet they will droop quite a bit with little red hearts attached to the ends. Crepe paper ribbon run from center piece to little nut cups trimmed with a cupid or heart shaped handle makes a very pretty table.

Now the menu depends on the hostess; considerable amusement may be added when the foodstuffs are prepared, heart shaped cakes and sandwiches with cream cheese and pineapple with a little red coloring is attractive or any other shaped sandwich with a small heart cut in top slice and a little jelly chopped in. This all may sound like a lot of fuss, but is very simple to prepare.

Now step up closer and I'll tell you how to enjoy the evening, go with a smile on your face and be ready to participate in the games or programme arranged for, if friend husband or wife looks to be enjoying theirself more than you are don't give them a look that speaks like this, "I'll fix you when I get you home for neither of you will enjoy your evening. Learn to keep the sunny side up. By the way Sunny Side Up is a good picture, don't miss it.

Hope you'll all enjoy your next party. FIDELIS

TOO LATE WRITES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I will try and do my duty for this new year as I see every one is trying to do their bit.

Alfara, Taxi, Riverview: Where are your letters? Get busy!

Cenzi: I tried your Abraham Lincoln and Martha Washington cakes and they were certainly good and so easy to make. My children like them very much.

Bay State: I also tried your corn cake and like that also.

Hoping all the shut-ins are getting better. I will sign off for today.

TOO LATE (Club 1).

GREETINGS FROM ARBUTUS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I am sending in a poem to be printed at the Editor's convenience.

Yellow Daisy: I received your letter and was very pleased to hear from you. Was glad to hear the good news that your mother is much better. Remember me to her.

My sincere sympathy to all the sick ones and to those in trouble.

ARBUTUS.

CLUB 6 ON FEB. 18TH

Dear Social Corner Members: Just a few words to say. I'm to be hostess for Club 6, on February 18, and shall be glad to see visitors from the other clubs. Ravena has charge of the program and will have a few words to say to you. Be sure and read her letter. Don't forget your dishes as we have none and bring something for the dinner.

You can easily find us, Mechanic's hall, Broad street, Westerly, opposite the memorial and library. O. D.

RESOLUTIONS

Dear S. C. Friends and Editor: This is a most beautiful, sunny Sunday morning and I am going to tell you we had corn oysters for breakfast. I sent the recipe in to the Corner page about two years ago. I am wondering if any of the good cooks ever tried it. The corn was raised by a grand old man "way up in the nineties" as Cheerio says and was donated by his daughter who lives with her father a few miles from here. They have a pleasant, sunny home and always have a good garden, have rural delivery and read the Norwich Bulletin every day, a great enjoyment to them, together with their mail which comes to them daily.

I am sending "Some Original Resolutions" which were sent to me over a thousand miles last week.

I will not be provoking if I know it. I will not be provoked if I can help it, or, if I am, I will not speak till I think it over. I will not be petty. I will pass over small annoyances without fuss or comment. I will not insist on my own way because it is my way. I will say what I think, then drop the subject, especially if it seems a case of getting hot. Argument doesn't convince after that. I will accept advise (even if I haven't asked for it.) think it over and act upon it if it is good. I will let the other fellow have the last word (the biggest half) and all the credit if he wants it. I will keep my nerves steady by regular exercise in the open air, getting to bed early and avoiding anger, hurry and over work.

Three things have taught me courage,
Three things I've seen today;
A spider unweaving her webb,
Which thrice had been swept away;
A child refusing to weep,
In spite of a cruel pain;
A robin singing a charming song
In the midst of a chilling rain.

Who are the two largest ladies in the United States?

LEARNING BY RADIO

To Editor and Members of Social Corner: Those of you who have a radio probably have noticed how carefully some speakers deliver an address. It is a privilege to listen to the sermons from noted ministers. Sometimes the pronounciation of a word seems unusual.

It is a good plan to have a pad and pencil at hand and write down these words and refer to the dictionary. It is surprising how many words can be learned in this way.

Amos 'n Andy seem to be very popular. Andy says it is all because of Amos and Amos says it is all in the way Andy says it. Both are white men. Amos was born in Richmond, Va. He taught the Negro dialect to Andy who is a western man.

The letters about different ways of living are interesting, also about trundle beds. I slept in them many times and thought it was a great improvement over sleeping in the foot of the bed with the grown people. Sometimes they stretched their feet down and crowded us against the footboard or rails in an uncomfortable way. When sons and daughters came home to visit their parents and brought several children it was a problem where to place them to sleep and it was interesting to watch arrangements. Settees, trundle beds and cribs of various styles, some with a hood, were brought out to make extra beds for the night. Sister and I had a trundle bed made of black walnut that was very nice. The trees grew on father's farm, were cut down and made into tables, bed, and our little bed by a skillful carpenter. At one time we lived in a very large house. The living room was long with very high ceiling. At the back end of this room was a "bed sink," as it was called. This was a room just large enough for a full sized bed. There was no room to walk around to make the bed and no windows. The front was entirely open and a wire was stretched across from side to side near the ceiling. A curtain hung from the wire to the floor during the day, at night it was tied back at each side and our trundle bed drawn out from under the large bed. It was nice not to be sent to bed in a dark room upstairs.

Irva Lynn: Suppose you tell us about your experience riding in a taxi in the south. I say thank you for the pretty calendar. Best wishes to all. NEMA.

PAINTING CHAIRS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I have a new bottle of ink so will write the letter I've been intending to for the last three weeks. It's 9:30 p. m. and have just finished the ironing. I washed this morning for it was a lovely day, and took a little walk after my daughter came from school. I feel fine and think its because I've been going out every day for a walk which lasted from 20 minutes to 1 1-2 hours for two weeks and I enjoyed the snow storm this afternoon as much as the children did.

Last week I started to paint kitchen chairs and table a French gray to match my gray stove and would like to decorate with another color but don't care for blue; the woodwork in kitchen is varnished and wallpaper resembles marble and there are different shades of brown and another color which looks like gray. I've also been busy making apple jelly and have very good luck with it. The apples were so red, I cooked mine till its quite thick and does not run after it gets cold if the glass is tipped.

I wish to thank the Social Corner sister who answered my letter in regards to duck fat. I was away for a few days and when I came back my better half had thrown it away so didn't have a chance to use it.

Have been very much interested in trundle beds as they were before my time at least. I had never heard of them until reading about them in the Corner page.

Aunt Susie: I cannot tell you how happy I was to see your name in the Corner page once again. I always looked at the bottom of all letters first to see if there was one from you. Yes, I received a lovely letter from you about the time I was busy getting ready for some friends from New York and just kept putting it off and when I did get to it I didn't see any letters in the Corner page with your name and wondered if you were still with us. From the last of August till the last of November, I made eight tatted handkerchiefs. I made some in black thread which looked pretty nice. Had a hard time finding black thread that was strong enough and finely got a spool of Ken's lustre twist (A), it's very strong and I also use it to sew buttons on coats, 15c a spool, 300 yards. Two weeks ago tonight I finished a tatted doily which I started about a year and a half ago. It was supposed to be a eight-pointed star, but as directions didn't say how large to have the linen for center, I used a piece I had and I got 11 points instead of eight. Now I've got started on a tatted portiere which is much easier.

I always like to finish something on Monday and have noticed that when I finish something on Monday I finish something at least three days that week. A middle aged lady where I used to work about 11 years ago, told me that, also, if you see the new moon over your right shoulder and bow seven times you will receive a present sometime before the next new moon which has proven true every time I tried it.

Am sending in an article on safety to auto drivers the editor can print if he thinks it will interest any of the readers. It was printed in a Fitchburg, Mass. paper quite a few years ago as follows:

"Few persons can afford or desire to employ men to drive their cars. Every man who sits behind the wheel of an automobile should realize, as a professional chauffeur always does, that the safety of the people in the car is his responsibility. While he sits with his hand on the wheel and his foot on the brake he should realize that his principal business is driving that automobile as it should be driven.

"In driving to work or on second business trips no man's time is so valuable that he can not waste 30 seconds in the interests of safety. In a tour of 100 miles it is much better to start half an hour earlier or be half an hour behind schedule than to take a chance on each of half a dozen railroad crossing."

Will close now as its nearly time for hubby's mid-night lunch.

Wishing all the sick a speedy recovery and sympathy to those in sorrow. LADY SLIPPER.

TRIP TO VERMONT

Dear Friends One and All: I thought I would give you a little surprise this week. It has been a long time since I have written so I guess you can call me a slacker for fair, but owing to different things have just kept putting it off but will try to do a little better in the future. I have been away from home quite a lot and other ways have been very busy. I want to thank the one that sent me the pretty calendar. I have it in my room where I can see it every day.

I took a trip up to Vermont last summer and saw the most hills I ever saw in my life. I thought there were hills in Connecticut but they can't compare with the hills in Vermont. I visited at a friend's house situated right between the hills. You couldn't see the sun rise or set. The people where I went were in Florida the same year I was. Very nice people and well to do. Vermont is all right for a trip but give me old Connecticut to live in.

I think a good many people don't know what beautiful scenery there is right in our own state. You can travel for miles and see some of the most wonderful views.

I love to go out in the woods in the spring and sit down by some little stream and listen to the birds and the rustle of the leaves. It makes you think that it is good to be alive. If I haven't written to the Corner much I have been a very interested reader of it and wish it much success, so I hope when others that haven't written in a long time read this they too, will feel like sitting right down and write a few lines. It doesn't take much time to write but its just getting at it.

I have laid out two bedquilts this winter, that is the blocks for two and got it most pieced so you see I am very busy most of the time.

I haven't been able to attend a picnic this winter but perhaps I can when the good old summer time comes once more which I am looking forward to.

A lot of people are having some trouble with dumplings, what I mean is the steamed ones. They come out soggy sometimes so I will give a recipe for never failing ones.

Dumplings: 4 cups flour sifted with 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and cold water to mix. You can drop from a spoon or cut out like biscuits and steam just 20 minutes and you will have some light ones, no shortening. Hope some one will try this and report. With best of luck to all. RURAL AUNTY (Club 4).

THE OLD SCHOOL

Dear Editor and Sisters: I think we will leave the trundle bed now and go to school. I felt interested in Quid Nunc's letters telling of school houses of old. When I visited my native town last summer they were talking of selling the old school house where I went when I first started in school and I had to walk a mile and a half night and morning. I can hear my dear mother say to me "Now you must study hard and learn all you can for you have to walk so far."

My sister-in-law had a neighbor come in and she spoke about selling that school house and said she should like to see some one that went to that school and sat in those seats and I said, well you can look at me, for I went there from the age of five till I was thirteen when I went to high school but if a young person has a desire for an education it really does not make much difference about the school house or the seat and I do not think today the children are so advanced for their age as when I went to the old-fashioned school house. Club 4 had a fine gathering, fine dinner and a social time long to be remembered at Danielson G. A. R. hall last Thursday.

CAPRICON (Club 4)

PLEASANT TIME AT DANIELSON

Dear Social Corner Editor: We had such a pleasant day at Club No. 4 meeting in Danielson G. A. R. hall today, thought perhaps other readers might like to read about it. The day was bright with sunshine, crisp with frost, and the smiling faces of the ladies greeted us everywhere. Representatives from other clubs came from Norwich, Groton, Jewett City, Putnam, Killingly and other places. About 50 were present and after the usual grace everyone enjoyed a bountiful repast. As Feb. 6th was Twice-Twenty's birthday, she was extended congratulations and all stood to drink her health with the beverage coffee. A birthday cake was cut and each person received a small piece of it. After dinner came a social hour; then a programme of songs, recitations, jokes and readings. "1926" whistled two solos, accompanied by "Bug" on piano; "Amly" read an original poem, (an account of our last meeting at South Killingly); "Capricon" recited "Fair Binzen on the Rhine," "Skinny" sang a solo "Home." Many jokes and witty sayings were heartily enjoyed and applauded. All went home feeling that it was good to have been there.

"ARIES."

O. D. TO BE HOSTESS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: This is just to remind you that Club 6 holds their next meeting in Mechanics hall, Feb. 18 with O. D. as hostess. So come all who can

Each person is requested to bring a Valentine to exchange. I think one with a funny verse would be cute.

As American Girl's mother is sick, I have been asked to take charge of the program. So will try and do my part.

Will have to sign off as my pen has gone on a strike.

Meadow Lark and Lowthorpe: Hope to see you at our meeting.

RAVENA (Club 6).

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: Having attended several meetings of the Social Corner I would like to become a member of the Corner and of Club No. 4. Will take for pen name.

—MERRY HOLLY

A THANK YOU LETTER

Dear Corner Members and Friends: I wish to thank all those members especially Tafts and O. H. O., who have so kindly sent in selections of poetry about a trundle bed. While they were all beautiful am very sorry to say neither one is the particular one to which I have reference.

If I ever do find the song I will surely send it to the Social Corner page as I know others would like the same selection. Now, as I have my pen in hand, I will try to relate how many ladies from far and near, on February sixth, came to Danielson, Conn., to G. A. R. hall, where a large yellow bow waved a welcome. Members and friends knew there was a long stairway to climb, but were sure that at the top they would find a warm welcome. The hostesses gave each a sincere greeting and friend greeted friend each with hearty good cheer. Soon we stood by our chairs, row after row and sang "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," then sat down to a well laden table. I don't think any one rose feeling hollow. Perhaps they could chew but I'm sure I couldn't swallow. One member had made her birthday cake, so brought it along to celebrate. It was passed around so each had a nice slice. As usual the social hour provided singing and reading, good jokes or a pun; also whistling like the notes of a bird from a member with that talent. Each one was asked to speak if they could and nearly all responded with something good. Hope all will be at our next meeting in March. AMLY

A GOOD TOPIC TO DISCUSS.

Dear Social Corner: The letters and poetry have been so interesting lately and I am so glad to see the page full. One sister spoke of sauerkraut making. Want to thank her for that letter. Once heard an old doctor say, "If more people would live on sauerkraut there wouldn't be so much crime and folks would live longer." One has to learn to like it. That was a good suggestion of another sister to tell the writers when a letter especially appeals to us and why. I like all of the letters but sometimes some suggestion or thought will especially please.

Another writer remembers of hearing the public entertainer sing the song Pisces sent in, "As Young As I Used to Be." I heard it when about ten years of age and how my uncle used to step about and sing it. I used to think it the best song ever.

Another writer, B. E. Susie, gives us a topic to discuss, "What is the cause of the present condition we face, as a nation, in the employment question?" Can't some of our wise folks give us some ideas on this subject? Our schools and colleges are turning out professional men and women by the thousands and no positions open for them. We have no industries now because foreign-made goods swamp our country. No wonder there are crimes and yet more crimes. Think of the loss of life in trying to stop crime and the liquor traffic. It is a war all the time. No wonder some of us older ones wish for the good old quiet days, when people were God fearing. Oh, well; "The earth do move," someone has said, and I would add, "to its destruction."

Now, Pisces, give us another letter on inconsistencies and let's get busy with our flower garden planting. Just a word in closing. I notice our sister, Begonia, Mrs. W. M. Burnham, has passed to heaven. Our sympathy to her bereaved ones who are sorrowing. SPHINX.

CLEANING FEED BAGS

Dear Editor and Sisters: — As I have had several inquiries about the cleaning of feed bags I will write a bit more about them. First, I want to say that I meant the bags containing the scratch feed and not the ones that "Lay or Bust" or laying mash comes in. The letters on the mash bags must be printed with a different preparation, for, while the red coloring will come out the letters seem to be permanent. I have some dish towels made of them that have been to the laundry times without number but the letters are still there. I sent 26 bags of both kinds, to the laundry on Chase street. I didn't send them with my regular wash but in a bag by themselves. They must have all been put through the same process but the scratch feed bags came back perfectly clean, while the mash bags still had letters. One woman said she could wash them by rubbing on the wash-board with frequent applications of laundry soap, then boil in a strong soap and kerosene solution. Another said she boiled them in the solution but this seems to me more than the material is worth, and the strong soap leaves the hands in such terrible condition. The 26 I sent cost me less than a dollar and I certainly couldn't have washed them by hand for that. Of course if one has an electric washer it would be different. I have sent for a handbook on "Ways of using bags" and perhaps that will have other methods. Anyone wishing the address I will be glad to send it.

About the stencil set, I don't know where it came from as one of the youngsters got it for Christmas a year ago and after he used it a few times he got tired of it so I rescued it and put it away. There are two patterns, a duck and a boat, and I worked the design in black outline on Kitty Lou's dresses before I read about the crayon stencil. I should think you could get them in any store where art goods are kept or artists supplies. I am planning now to use material of a contrasting color instead of crayons in the cut outs and applique them with buttonhole stitch. I make sheets, pillow slips, underwear and night dress for both the children and myself from the bag material and the children don't object to a chicken or some letters left on. I hope others who have been using the chicken feed bags will write in about them.

Mrs. F. of Oak street: I hope your attempt was successful and Mrs. Tanner: Try again sending them by themselves.

Lucille Drew: Thanks for compliment but I think you over-estimate my ability. My hoeing and spraying brought results this year, I think, as the children have had very few colds.

O. D.: Received your letter all O. K.

Interested Reader: Was glad to see a letter from you. Where have you been keeping yourself. E. L. M.: Did you see me tearing down the road like mad that Saturday afternoon? You just missed seeing them bring Dan in on horseback with a broken ankle. We thought mother was down street but she got home just in time, thanks be. Sona's Son: Yes, it's Friday the 14th, but I'm afraid we won't be able to make it this time but hope to, soon. Am sorry I didn't know Mr. C. was a farm bureau man. Come again some pleasant night.

I was sorry to hear of Savilla's death. She used to come to Club No. 6's meetings often.

Just-a-nut: I am glad you tried out the lamp suggestion. There are all kinds of possibilities in the linings, I think. But I had to laugh about the dream.

Beets and Pyrethrum: Now you could both write wonderful letters about bulbs and toes and annuals and perennials and all the rest of the funny things they call plants and flowers.

We hope to see you all at the Mechanics' hall on Broad street, Feb. 18 and we also hope to see a pleasant day. SUMAC, (No. 6.)

SINGLE CROCHETING EASIER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Now I have begun to write it doesn't seem as though I would stop but as a sister asked me to help her with her crocheting, I will write again.

Now, instead of (slip-stitching) I think (single crocheting) is much easier so with the last loop on your needle turn and insert hook in the last treble you made, take up thread and draw through work and stitch on needle at the same time do this also with the next two trebles. Chain five for your next space, this leaves one space off at this end. When you get to the other end leave off the last space. I hope I have explained this so you can understand it. Please write and let me know.

I have been looking over the design and notice it has spaces on the end instead of blocks; most of designs have blocks on the end, so sister in-

FIRST ACADEMY BASEBALL PRACTICE TO BE HELD IN ABOUT TWO WEEKS

It's getting around to baseball time at the Academy and the battery candidates are preparing themselves for the first indoor call, which will be sounded by Coach Brigham in about two weeks.

After a dull sports winter, Wildcat fans are hoping for a successful campaign on the diamond, the first game of which schedule comes in just seven weeks, Saturday, April 5 against the Richmond Radiators of the Industrial league. This opens a stiff 22-game schedule.

When Coach Brigham summons his pitchers and catchers he will have four lettermen in the squad, Butsy Weingraber, pitcher and Bud Fontaine, Les Crowell and Hack Pepin, catchers. Battery prospects are the brightest in many years.

Boots Greene, Pop Richards, Johnnie Caron, Cotter, a southpaw, and Mike Abugie are among the other leading hurlers while Johnny McKenna and Billy McGuinniss are expected to be other candidates for a catching berth. Cotter, Abugie and McGuinniss were members of the 1929 squad and all of the others have earned quite a reputation on local diamonds. Greene is a brother of Johnny of the Jarvis-Greenes.

The entire squad is expected to be called out about March 15, which would leave approximately three weeks in which to get ready for the opener.

ENGLISH YOUTHS PLAY BRILLIANTLY AT RACQUETS

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Rising to brilliant heights, two hard driving youths from England today gave Great Britain an even break in the first of the International racquets matches with the United States.

The British winners were Duncan Cambridge and P. W. Kemp-Welch, who swept through the American combination of Hewitt Morgan and Charles J. Coulter in three out of five sets. The scores was 11-15, 15-7, 15-7, 12-15, 15-7.

Preceding the sensational victory of the English pair, the veteran American team of Clarence C. Pell and Stanley Mortimer had put to rout the more highly favored English pair of Lord Aberdare and Dr. H. W. Leatham. Pell and Mortimer won in three out of four sets, 15-3, 12-15, 16-14, 15-12.

Although the first game between the two veteran combinations was full of difficult corner shots, hard drives and well placed serves it was the youthful duo of Cambridge and Kemp-Welch that brought the large gallery to its feet with shots that left the Americans flat-footed.

With Coulter putting all his energy into his drives the Americans won the first game but dropped the next two when the British racquet stars forced their opponents into errors with an exhibition of fine driving, and execution of corner shots. Morgan's famed change of pace shots put the American team back in the running in the fourth set but Cambridge and Kemp-Welch retaliated in the deciding game with another brilliant attack to clinch the set.

VANGUARD OF GIANTS OFF FOR SAN ANTONIO

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—The New York Giants sponsored the first baseball movement of the season today, when a small expedition started for San Antonio, Tex. Pitchers and catchers with a few infielders and outfielders will start spring training Monday morning.

Only three players, all catchers, were in the group leaving New York today.

The Giants announced today that "Memphis Bill" Terry, slugging first baseman, had signed his contract. He will report with the regulars March 1.

The first week of training will find 15 players working under the direction of John J. McGraw, veteran manager of the Giants, and his three assistants, Dave Bancroft, Irish Meusel, and Tom Clark.

The Yankees will follow the National leaguers within a week, going to Florida. At the same time Brooklyn's first squad will assemble, also in Florida.

MINNESOTA DECIDES TO FALL BEHIND NEW COACHES

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 14—(AP)—The tumult and the shouting over selection of a head football coach at the University of Minnesota had died to a comparative whisper tonight with acceptance of appointments of Herbert O. "Fritz" Crisler and Elton E. "Tad" Wieman.

Named head coach and assistant, respectively, a week ago by the board of regents, Crisler and Wieman withheld their decision for nearly a week as a storm of criticism swirled about the Gopher school, growing so bitter in one instance as to bring the resignations of two members of the university's sports governing body, the senate committee on intercollegiate athletics.

But with acceptance of the appointments today, the faculty, the student body generally and alumni members prepared to throw their full support behind the new head coach, who succeeds Dr. Clarence W. Spears, director of the Gopher gridiron destinies for five years, who is leaving to coach at the University of Oregon.

Although most of the criticism was leveled at the manner in which university authorities had conducted negotiations for a successor to Dr. Spears, some of the alumni felt that a more experienced coach should have been chosen. Crisler has been assistant coach at the University of Chicago since 1922, but the Minnesota post is his first as head gridiron mentor.

EASTERN CONN. SOCCER LEAGUE GAME AT J. B. MARTIN FIELD

J. B. Martin's soccer team have a tough assignment for Sunday afternoon when they meet the fast traveling Plainfield team on the J. B. Martin grounds in a league game as this team has yet to be defeated this season. The locals are still smarting under a beating they received in Plainfield a few weeks ago and mean to get revenge as there is bitter rivalry between the two tams. The J. B.'s will depend on the lineup that beat New London last Sunday and which follows: F. Orcutt, A. Headon, E. Eccleston, H. Erickson, F. Thompson, (Capt.) H. Seidel, J. Houston, H. Decelles, F. Hargreaves, L. Archibald, B. Labenski.

The kick-off will be at 2:30 p. m. the referee, R. Pilling. There will be a practice session this afternoon when all the players are expected to be on hand.

McLARNIN-MANDELL BOUT IS SCHEDULED FOR MAR. 1

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—(AP)—After threatening a revolt, the Chicago Stadium corporation today submitted to the dictum of the Illinois state athletic commission by changing the date of the Mandell-McLarnin match from February 24 to March 1.

After the commission refused to sanction the February 24 date on the grounds it was too close to Promoter Jack Dempsey's show at the Coliseum three days before, stadium officials called a directors' meeting to consider getting out an injunction against the ring body and defying its demand that it be held February 28.

The directors, however, capitulated, moving it back still a day later than the commission requested.

Tennis Meeting Today

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 14—(AP)—With the exception of one or two committee meetings to make final decision on moot points, all preliminary details have been settled for the holding tomorrow afternoon of the 49th annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE ?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years.)

On Sunday, Sept. 26, 1920, Connie Mack's Athletics came to Norwich for an exhibition with the Knights of Columbus team, one of the best semi-pro nines in New England, and the big leaguers won by 4 to 1. Perhaps the most important event of the day, however, was the presentation of a $250 purse to Danny Murphy, the old Norwich star. The purse was made up by Danny's many admirers in the city and the presentation was made by James P. Hayes, when Danny took a turn at bat in the first inning.

The Kacey pitcher on that day was Joel Sherman, the present Westerly high baseball coach, while several other of the names will be very familiar to local fans. Chick Galloway, who played shortstop, intends to stage a comeback during the coming season with Connie's world champions.

Connie's team finished a bad last in the American league in 1920 but nevertheless proved a big attraction at the Fairgrounds and 3,500 turned out for the game.

ROSENBLOOM WALLOPS ACE HUDKINS

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, collided with the cuffing paws of Maxey Rosenbloom in Madison Square Garden tonight and wound up at the end of ten rounds like a red-raggled but very tame tabby cat.

Slapsey Maxie, just as wild as the cat and as unorthodox as a ring full of southpaws, slammed and mauled at Hudkins, clouted him from every angle, and brought roars of delight from a packed house of 17,000 that saw as rough a shindig as ever was staged in the big Battle pen. There was not a murmur of disapproval at the unanimous decision of the judges and referee in Rosenbloom's favor.

The Harlem Harlequin, taking Hudkins as his final step for a light heavyweight title battle, with Jimmy Slattery and in his own naive fashion training for the struggle on a shave and a haircut made the ferocious appear ridiculous at times. He riled Hudkins with left jabs, led with right hand punches that rarely missed, pulled, tugged and hauled the Ace dizzy, and at the close was bouncing around like a circus clown.

Hudkins, making his eight heavyweight debut in New York fresh from a knockout victory over Arthur Flynn in Boston, strove mightily to slug the issue out at close quarters but Maxey clamped him into submission. The Ace swung, hooked, jabbed and tried everything in the fistic book, but Rosenbloom refused to stay where the Wild Cat aimed and insisted on slugging back from the most outlandish positions.

The Ace, fresh and confident, managed to win the first round by chasing Rosenbloom all over the ring and slugging whatever part of Maxey's anatomy was available. He won the second by a shade with the same tactics but Rosenbloom, warmed to his task, turned in the third with his bewildering attack and Hudkins' period of dominance was over.

With the exception of the seventh round, when Rosenbloom, infuriated by low blows, turned and tried to slug with the Wildcat only to lose the round, Hudkins could not win another session. The fans cheered the rough fellow from Nebraska.

He tried everything he had, but as Maxey continued to slap him about the ring, Hudkins wilted. At the end his bed-raggeled expression plus the water that dripped from his blonde hair, left him bristling still like a wildcat, but rather like one that had just been tossed into a river.

Several times during the struggle, Hudkins, in his wild tantrums, landed several low blows. Instead of complaining to the referee, Maxey put on a burst of speed with each low blow and smashed out his venom on Hudkins' blond head. There was a great deal of rough work and both were inclined to keep right on punching after the final bells for the rounds. There were no knockdowns and neither was cut or badly bruised at the close.

Many times the frantic Hudkins urged Rosey to come in and fight. Each request resulted in Maxie turning on steam and cuffing Hudkins all over the ring. The general result was a highly exasperated Wildcat and in the end a completely beaten but game gladiator.

Discovered; A Yankee who has more Scotch characteristics than a native of Edinburgh.

What, you don't believe that possible? Well, I'll just leave it to your own judgment.

It seems that in a neighboring city there is a certain man with a good old New England name, who is tall and good looking but slightly corpulent.

In fact he is so robust that he gives the impression of being quite an epicure. The other day he went into a restaurant and sat himself down at the table.

The waiter bustled up with a glass of ice-water for him and stood waiting for his order. The waiter expected that a man of the appearance of this one would give a very sizable order.

The man drank the water and then looked up, "Oh, yes, Waiter," he said, "will you please bring me a plate, knife, fork and spoon. And, Waiter, please hurry." The waiter looked at him in an inquiring way but the man pulled out a paper and started to read.

The plate, knife, fork and spoon were duely brought and arranged. The waiter hesitated a minute and the man looked up and said, "That will be all, Walter." There was an audible gasp as the waiter turned away.

The man nonchalantly dragged an orange from his pocket, peeled the orange and carefully arranged it on his plate. Then he reached over and plentifully sprinkled it with sugar from the restaurant's sugar bowl.

With evident satisfaction he devoured the orange, wiped his hands on the restaurant napkin and beckoned for the waiter. "Will you please get me another glass of water?" he asked.

The waiter brought the water and the man drank it, rose and said to the waiter. "My good man I thank you for your courtesy, I shall remember to speak about it to the proprietor." And he went out.

Did he out-Scotch the Scotch? And on top of that the orange was given him by a fruit dealer on the street. We have heard of no murders being committed in Westerly since the incident, although hope springs eternal.

And speaking about Scotch, stop me if you've heard this one. There was a certain Scotchman who drove his flivver of ancient vintage to town and being unable to find a parking place he went to one of those 25-cents-a-day garages and parked the machine. Then after his shopping was done he walked home and walked back again at night for his car so he would get his money's worth of parking.

ARMY-NAVY TEAM TO HAVE STRONG LINEUP

The Shyma basketball tossers will clash with the strong Army and Navy team in the first of a three-game series for the championship of the village in a banner attraction on next Tuesday evening at the Parish hall, Taftville, in what should be a game worth-while seeing.

Manager Murphy of the Army and Navy team said last night that with such men as Lester Pingree, Enos Eccleston, Ray Yerrington and Tom Lynch, Tommy Coleman and Eddie Murphy should give the Shymas something to talk about, while on the other hand the manager of the Shyma team will use his regular lineup. As both teams are evenly matched it will be one of the best games ever witnessed in Taftville.

BOUTS AT TAFTVILLE PROVIDE PLENTY OF ACTION FOR CAPACITY HOUSE

Nearly a thousand fans fought their way into Parish hall last night to witness the best boxing card ever seen in Eastern Connecticut and with the exception of the final bout each and every one was worth the price of admission. From the first bout until the last the audience was kept on its toes by the torrid fighting that was going on under the glare of the lights over the ring.

Three knockouts featured the show. Al Koziol, the Norwich Murderer, flattening Joe Machado in the fourth round; Young Guoin gaining a knockout victory in the fourth round of the opener, and Lou Brouillard of Danielson sending Jimmy Rossi down in the final bout for the count in the second round. The only bouts that went the limit were the Peloquin-Dubois preliminary in which Peloquin battered out a decision in six rounds and the Sheik Leonard-Joe Russo bout in which Russo won a hairline decision over the former state welterweight champion.

Rossi Makes Disgraceful Showing

The most disappointing bout on the entire card was the final bout which saw Jimmy Rossi of Westerly take what looked like a pure and simple "dive" in the second round of a scheduled eight round bout. Brouillard seemed to put the fear of a knockout into the heart of Rossi and the Westerly Italian just made a sorry showing against the Danielson boy. Brouillard gave away two and a half pounds and then went in and plastered Rossi until the Westerly boy quit cold in the second round. In the first round Brouillard hit Rossi with everything he had without a comeback from Rossi. Opening the second round Brouillard tore into Rossi and floored him for a count of six with Rossi debating with himself whether to continue or not. Rossi decided to get up and continue the battle but a left to the chin sent Rossi down again and this time he decided discretion was the better part of valor and he stayed down. Rossi showed that he was afraid of Brouillard when he stepped into the ring and his showing against the Danielson boy would not have done credit to a novice. In the opinion of the majority of fans Rossi took the well known "dive," spoiling what was as nice a card as had ever been put on in the state. Rossi's little act should bar him from further boxing activities in Connecticut.

Koziol Knocks Out Machado

Al Koziol of Norwich fought one of the best fights of his career last night when he knocked out Joe Machado of Fall River in the fourth round of a scheduled eight round star bout. How Machado ever gained two decisions over the local boy is a mystery to those who saw the bout last night. Koziol looked like a champion as he boxed the Fall River lad for one round and then went out and literally tore Machado to ribbons. Machado, a tough and rough-looking boy, started his jab-and-run tactics with the local crasher and Koziol would have none of it. The local boy took everything Machado had and then handed out one of the most decisive beatings ever given in Norwich. The wonder of the whole bout was that Machado stayed as long as he did. If Machado had not been a game fighter he would have gone out in the second round, for Koziol had him groggy after the first round.

After two minutes of the first round Koziol sent Machado to the canvas for a count of one. Machado was groggy but lasted the round out. Opening the second round Koziol started to work on Machado and although the Fall River boy made a nice attempt to stave off certain defeat he was not equal to the task. Toward the end of the round Koziol clipped Machado on the point of the chin and Machado dropped to the canvas. He was up at the count of seven but was groggy and dazed. Using every bit of ring craft that he knew Machado lasted out the round but went to his corner reeling.

The end of the bout was expected in the third but by super-human powers Machado managed to stay on his feet until it was over. Twice during this session Koziol lifted Machado off his feet and set him down on the canvas the Fall River boy taking a count of eight each time. Machado was bleeding profusely from the nose and mouth and the fans had started to call for the bout to be stopped. There was no doubt as to the outcome of the bout, the surprising thing was that Machado could answer the bell for the fourth round.

With a dazed look in his eyes Machado came out to give what little battle there was left in him to Koziol. But it wasn't much. After a few seconds of sparring Koziol opened up and Machado hit the resin. A count of eight found Machado on his feet again but he didn't know what it was all about. Then Koziol, cool and collected, just measured the Fall River boy and it was all over, a left hook to the jaw sent Machado down for the full count.

It was one of the greatest bouts ever seen in eastern Connecticut and made Al Koziol one of the greatest little boxers that ever stepped into a ring from Norwich.

Leonard Loses Close Verdict to Russo

In the first eight-rounder of the show Joe Russo of Westerly won a hairline decision over Johnny "Sheik" Leonard of Norwich. The decision was so close that a draw, if permitted by the state, would have been all right. Leonard, hitting the comeback trail after a three-year layoff, gave the hard-hitting Russo a great battle, and surprised even his most devoted followers. Leonard knew a good deal more about the boxing game than the Westerly lad but a furious last round carried the verdict to Russo, by only a shade. Leonard looked mighty good although he lacked the stamina that Russo had. The verdict, however, did not meet with the unanimous approval of the fans.

Leonard fought a heady fight from the start, saving himself as much as possible, but at the same time opening a cut over Russo's eye and cutting his lip.

Leonard came through the bout without hardly a mark although he absorbed considerable body punishment. With more conditioning Leonard would be able to regain a good part of his fighting qualities that carried him to a state title several years ago.

Peloquin Outpoints Dubois

In a fast six round preliminary Rene Peloquin of Danielson outpunched Romeo Dubois of New Haven to a decision. Peloquin was up against a clever boxer but a boy who lacked steam in his punches. It was Peloquin's aggressiveness that carried him through to the victory. The Danielson lad hit the cleaner punches and with more telling force. Although Dubois had a bothersome left jab with which he scored heavily Peloquin countered with stinging right and left counters to the head and body that hurt the New Haven boxer. It was a clean-cut decision for the Danielson boy.

Guoin Kayoes Westphal

Young Guoin of Taftville fighting his first professional fight covered himself with glory when he knocked out Young Westphal of New London in the final round of the four round opener. Guoin completely smothered the New London lad with sweeping swings to the head and body and but for Westphal being a game kid the fight would not have gone to the fourth round. Early in the fight Guoin drew blood from Westphal's nose and kept shooting his attack at this point. There was plenty of action in all the rounds but Guoin proved much stronger toward the latter part and in the first ten seconds of the fourth round he connected and Westphal went down to stay.

The card as a whole was one of the best ever seen in eastern Connecticut, and the audience was well satisfied. The crowd was so large that many had to be turned away as the hall was packed to its capacity. Jack McAuliffe was the referee and made a mighty good job of it, keeping the boxers in action at all times.

The next card to be put on by the Shyma club will be on March 7th.

That the Academy will have no tea party can be seen from the list of entries for their event, which includes the freshmen squads of Harvard, Yale, Holy Cross, Princeton, Syracuse, Boston College, Wesleyan, Manhattan, Springfield, Northeastern and Dartmouth.

Mrs. Jones defeated Mrs. Phillip R. Gardiner, of Bernardsville, N. J., 6 and 5, in the semi-final round today. In the men's tournament semi-finals, Emmet defeated J. H. Beavis, of England, 1 up.

CARNERA SLAPS DOWN SIGMAN IN FIRST

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 14—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian giant, knocked out Big Boy Sigman, of South America, in the first round of their eight round bout here tonight.

The fight was as one-sided as have been all of Carnera's previous matches in this country. Sigman went down and out in 1:35 of the first round after taking eight or nine heavy rights and lefts to the body and face. He landed only two blows, neither of sufficient force to hurt the mammoth Italian.

JOHNNY EVERS' SON OUT FOR GEORGETOWN NINE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—Johnny Evers, Jr., son of the pivot member of the famous Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance combination of the old Chicago Cubs, is the leading candidate for the second base job on the Georgetown university baseball team.

Young Evers, described as a smooth, fast-thinking fielder, is a sophomore and this will be his first chance at the varsity. Last season he guarded the keystone sack for the freshmen. He is a good batter.

Evers, 18, is taking a pre-legal course.

AGGIES MEET R. I. STATE IN OBJECTIVE CLASHES

STORRS, Feb. 14—(AP)—Three basketball teams from Connecticut Agricultural college, will go to Kingston, R. I., tomorrow to meet Rhode Island State university teams. The co-ed quintet will battle in the afternoon. In the evening the freshman teams will meet in a preliminary to the varsity tussle.

Wesleyan Tops Tufts Five

MIDDLETOWN, Feb. 14—(AP)—Trailing until the last quarter of the game, the Wesleyan quintet tonight forged ahead to a 36 to 32 win over Tufts basketball team.

In the first half, Tufts ran rings around the local collegians, leaving the score at the period end, 20 to 15. Wesleyan, however, tied the game at 24-all and then kept the lead till the finish.

Nye, former substitute center, but who has played in the last four Wesleyan games as first string regular, starred with 14 points tonight, Cochran, of Tufts, accounted for 13 points and Tom Howard, Wesleyan, for 11.

WALKER TAKES DECISIVE VICTORY

OLYMPIA STADIUM, Detroit, Feb. 14—(AP)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world made a successful invasion of the light heavyweight ranks tonight by decisively defeating Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen, Wash., assassin in a 10 round bout in the Olympia arena.

Walker appeared to have the edge in the first two rounds on his aggressiveness and sharp punching. He backed Lomski into the ropes in the first under a hard right to the head and left hooks to the head and body. Lomski missed often with Walker carrying the fight to him, and scoring frequently with lefts to the body and head.

Walker, setting the pace in the eighth round, had Lomski in distress in the ninth when he battered him all over the ring under a blistering attack to the head and body. Lomski evidently was tired and could offer no defense for Mickey's right hand blasts that shook him to the heels.

Walker, conceding 9 3-4 pounds, gave the western contender a one-sided lacing, easily winning seven of the ten rounds by a wide margin. Lomski could offer no defense for Walker's right hand blasts to the chin and vicious left hooks to the head and body. He was in apparent distress in the ninth and tenth rounds and continually wrapped his arms around Walker's body in an effort to stop his assault.

QUINN WINS THREE BOUTS AT PROVIDENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 14.—Jimmy Quinn of Norwich, Conn., had a big night here this evening. He met three opponents on the resined ring, put one away by the knockout route and gained the decision in the other two bouts. James Delaney of Taunton, Mass., fought with Jimmy in the first bout, but did not stay very long. He caught one of Quinn's swings that sent him down for the count in the second.

In the next affair Quinn had a tough opponent, Al Desicia of Revere, Mass., who met and defeated the New England featherweight champion in the last local fight. The Revere fighter, in spite of his record, did not put a scare into Quinn and he went at him like the rest of the many men who have lost to him. Quinn received the decision in three rounds, as he did in his tussle with Joe Johnson of Providence.

Winsted Here Tonight

Tonight the Y Seniors return home to engage Winsted Y five in a state league game and one that promises some of the stiffest competition of the season. The Seniors, after dropping their last two state league clashes are doubly anxious to get back on the winning side again and vow that they are going to be better situated in the championship race at the conclusion of Saturday night's game than they are now, being as they are in fourth place.

Coach Demarest expects to present his strongest front against the visitors. Although the Seniors gained the decision over the team from the other end of the state in their home tair early in the season, this is discounted as any advantage in tonight's game after last Saturday's happenings when Greenwich, which had been trimmed on its own floor, came here and completely tamed the locals.

The preliminary game tonight is also a stellar attraction in itself for it brings together the crack Norwich Girls five against the Tourtellotte high girls in the local team's sixth start of the year. The Norwichites will wear their brand new suits for the first time tonight.

The prelim starts at 8 o'clock and the main game about 9 p. m.

MEAN NEW LONDON THIEF, FEEHAN, MAY BE CHAP DETAINED AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14.—A man is under arrest in Willimantic tonight as a suspect of being the crook who robbed L. G. Bruce, 106 Howard street, of $300, at the home of the latter last Sunday night. The man, who is held on a technical charge of intoxication, is being held pending his identification and Bruce will go to the Thread City tonight for that purpose. Bruce harbored Jack Feehan, about 55, of Hartford, five feet, nine inches in height, and weighing about 160 pounds. He is wearing a blue overcoat and dark suit with a pencil stripe, which personal description and that of his attire tallies with that of Feehan, even to a prominent nose, excepting as regards the age. The man under arrest said that he is 59, but Bruce tonight said that Feehan appeared much older than his correct age. Feehan went to Bruce's home and being in poor circumstances, Bruce permitted Feehan to occupy a couch for the night. When Bruce went to sleep, Feehan rifled his trousers, taking close to $300, also stole a child's bank containing a small amount of money, also pinched a small sum belonging to Mrs. Bruce. Feehan's home is in Hartford and the man under arrest has admitted belonging in that city and to have been employed in markets there. However, he declares that he was in Boston when Bruce claims to have been robbed.

COUNCIL RETRENCHING— NO SALARY ADVANCES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14.—The employes of the municipal building, there are about 78 of them, will get no increase in salary this year. At a meeting of the council last night, sitting as a committee, that body reduced the tentative budget about $105,000, and absolutely refused to grant an increase to any of the employes, except Miss Rose Hirsch, clerk in the office of Tax Collector Manwaring, who has not had an increase and who now is only given a nominal advance in salary. Heretofore every year the other employes in the building have been given increases, but in view of the fact that there is a general disapproval of the operating expenses of the city, which is nearly three-quarters of a million dollars in excess of the expenses for that purpose during the war, it was decided that no increases in salary should be granted. Not even members of the supernumerary police force, who have been performing regular duty for two years, were given an increase, and had these officers been given an advance in salary to that of regular members of the department, there undoubtedly would not have been any objection, in view of the fact that one officer performing the same line of duty should be paid equally as well as any other patrolman. It is probable that the budget as now fixed will be submitted to the council Monday night next for approval. As it now stands the budget is about $5,000 in excess of that of a year ago.

The police of Springfield, Mass., tonight requested the New London police to be on the lookout for a Hudson brougham stolen from the former city tonight. The car carries Massachusetts registration 814948.

Patrolman Braxton Hill last night discovered both the front and rear entrances of the John Winthrop club, Brainard street, unlocked. The officer secured both entrances. Patrolman William Riordan found a window open in the store of Modern Homes, Inc., 153 Bank street.

During the early morning hours today all street lights on Bank street failed to illumine, for they were extinguished because of disabled machinery at the station of the Connecticut Power company, Water street.

George ("Cowboy") Sheehan, former preliminary fighter and laborer, was in the police court this morning for the 18th time, either for intoxication or breach of the peace. Judge Daniel M. Cronin revoked a former suspension of a sentence of 30 days in jail and ordered the sentence effective.

The Hartford police today requested the New London police to be on the lookout for an automobile carrying New York registration, the exact markers of which were not determined. The Hartford police said that the car contained a large quantity of furs and requested that the occupants be questioned in the event that the auto was found, so it could be determined whether the garments had been stolen.

A certificate of incorporation was filed for record today at the office of the city clerk by Reagan Brothers, Inc., State street drygoods merchants. BARBER'S AUTO MORGUE COMPLAINED OF BY COP

Sergeant Samuel Hick reported at police headquarters this afternoon that Fred Barber was making use of a portion of the highway of Sixteenth street as a storage for unserviceable and dilapidated automobiles. The officer reported that there were four such cars stored in the highway and another automobile owned by a United States coast guard sailor, was also stored in the road. Barber could not be found, although he formerly lived in that vicinity.

HERMAN JOHL DIES FRIDAY FROM CEREBRAL HEMORRHAGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14.—Herman Johl, 67, died suddenly from a cerebral hemorrhage shortly after noon today at his residence at Trail's corner, Groton. His death caused profound sorrow to his many acquaintances in Groton and New London. He is survived by two sons, Max G. Johl, Scarsdale, N. Y., and William W. Johl of Groton. The former is manager of the New York offices of the Max Pollack company, thread manufacturers, and the latter manager of the Groton factory, of which concern Mr. Johl was president.

Mr. Johl apparently was in good health today, but about 12:30 he collapsed in one of the living rooms and lapsed into unconsciousness. A physician was summoned, but Mr. Johl had expired before medical aid could be secured.

Mr. Johl was born in Germany, June 9, 1862. He came to the United States when a young man and entered the employ of Max Pollack, who, at that time, was at the head of the manufactory. Mr. Pollack was Mr. Johl's father-in-law, and after his death Mr. Johl succeeded him as head of the thread-making industry. When the main factory of the company was moved to Groton, Mr. Johl took up his residence there, a modern building being erected on Poquonoc road, to handle the business which was transferred from Conantville, Conn., near Willimantic. Mr. Johl, besides being the progressive head of the thread manufacturing business, was a director of Groton chamber of commerce, vice-president of Home Memorial hospital, this city; vice-president of the Park avenue synagogue, New York; of the New London council of Boy Scouts, besides holding membership in New London lodge of Elks. He was a man of excellent character and high ideals, public spirited, a benefactor of the needy. He frequently made contributions toward the support of deserving families, but whenever possible the source of such assistance was never made known. He displayed much interest in the growth and development of New London and Groton and predicted that this port in time would become one of the commerce points of the country.

COAST GUARD CHARGES FILED AGAINST THE GANDER

Officials of the United States coast guard, State pier, today filed formal charges against the launch Gander, owned by Capt. Arthur Rowland, Bridgeport, which boat, it is claimed, was a rum-runner in Long Island sound on the morning of Feb. 7, when it is claimed the crew of a patrol boat, searching for rum-laden craft, fired on the Gander after her master had refused to stop at a signal to do so. The nature of the charges would not be revealed by either the customs house officials nor Commander L. T. Chalker, United States coast guard. However, it is understood the charges are operating a vessel at night without lights, refusing to stop when ordered to do so by an authorized representative of the United States government, also faulty equipment. The exact charges will not be revealed until the case of Captain Rowland, master of the Gander, is given a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran Tuesday next. An inspection of the Gander was made yesterday by officials of the coast guard, who declared that the boat showed evidence of machine gun fire in her hull, for some of the leaden missiles were found in the wood.

The executive committee of New London council of Boy Scouts of America met this noon at the Hotel Mohican when President C. Hadlai Hull appointed chairmen of the several committees, as follows: Finance, Ezekiel Spitz; troop organization, William Z. White; civic service, Sidney H. SPECULATORS REGAINED CONTROL OF MARKET AFTER PERIOD OF DEPRESSION

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—The stock market continued to make uneven progress today. Several leading industrials and rails were bid up 3 to 12 points to new high levels for the recovery, but the market was filled with cross currents, and a wide sprinkling of shares closed lower. There was little change in the pace of trading, total sales exceeding 3,500,000 shares.

An unexpected firming of call money in the early afternoon encouraged the bear element, and the market sold off substantially for a time, but speculators for the rise regained control of the movement before the close. Week-end tightening of accounts was in evidence during much of the day, probably augmented by a precautionary tone in many brokerage house advices, which indicated some uneasiness over the market's technical position.

The weekly mercantile and industrial reviews, however, were more cheerful than for some weeks past. Both Dun's and Bradstreet's stated that trade and industry has shown steady improvement of late. Activity still holds substantially below the levels of a year ago, and improvement is not uniform, but the recovery appears to be broadening. It was particularly gratifying to Wall street that the mercantile reports indicated slightly better wholesale and retail trade, after several weeks of marked sluggishness.

An advance in the call loan rate from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent was caused by withdrawals estimated at about $60,000,000. Demand for funds to meet mid-month disbursements was undoubtedly a factor, but leaders apparently are not finding current call loan rates very attractive, and there is usually an effort to get a better rate for funds to be placed for over the week end. Money was boosted from 4 to 4 1-2 on Friday two weeks ago.

The steel shares displayed outstanding strength, with U. S. Steel rising more than 4 points to a new high for the year at 189 1-4. Other steels were also strong, notably Republic, which made an extreme gain of about 6 points in a large turnover. Youngstown made a similar advance.

A buoyant feature was Eastman Kodak which sold up 12 points to 205, a new peak for 1930, but about 60 points below the 1929 top. American Machine and Foundry sold up 10 points and Air Reduction, American Tobacco, Canadian Pacific, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone, Liggett & Myers, Western Union, Stone & Webster, and Westinghouse Electric chalked up fair gains. New York Central was a leader in the rails, rising about 5 points to a new 1930 top at 192 3-4.

Oils and coppers were inclined to sag. The oil shares were influenced by definite indications that Standard of New Jersey was winning the rest of the industry over to its lower price level for mid-continent crude. Copper shares eased on reports that red metal producers' hopes of lower prices had been revived by the January statistics of stocks on hand, and that buying had turned slack. Pressure against Simmons and Gillette was renewed, and both touched new lows for the movement, although they rallied substantially before the close. American Can and General Electric closed off more than a point each. Norfolk and Western dropped 7 points, then rallied 3.

In the commodity markets, grains again turned heavy. Wheat futures lost about 2 cents a bushel, reflecting a bearish government estimate of the winter crop. Corn sagged about 1-2c on large receipts at the markets. Cotton futures fluctuated widely but closed firm at advances of 20 to 55 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges eased moderately. Sterling cables were quoted at $4.86 3-16, off 1-16 and the lowest in weeks.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—The curb market developed several outbursts of strength today, but profit-taking sales reached such large proportions in the last hour that the tone was irregular. Except for the tightening up of the call money rate from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent, there was little in the day's news to influence the price movement, but many traders sold stocks on the theory that many of the recent leaders were entitled to at least a technical reaction after their spirited advance of the last few days.

Consolidated Gas of Baltimore ran up nearly 10 points to 118 [illegible], and then dropped back almost as quickly to 111 1-4, up 1 3-4. Electric Bond & Share encountered heavy realizing sales, closing 1 1-8 points lower at [illegible], after having sold as high as 103 1-2 and as low as [illegible]. American Light & Traction fell [illegible] points and American Gas & Electric and American & Foreign Power warrants about 2 3-4 each. United States Electric Power & Light opened at 22 1-2, a new high, in response to the announcement that the Mellon interests had acquired a large block of the stock but closed at 21 5-8 for a small fractional gain. United Light & Power A advanced [illegible] on a heavy turnover.

Air Stocks, Inc., jumped [illegible] points on the announcement of a proposal to dissolve the company. National Investors, Third National Investors and Fourth National Investors recorded substantial gains but Goldman Sachs Trading and Lehman were heavy. Oil Stocks [illegible] sank [illegible] to a new low at [illegible]. Petroleum advanced fractionally.

Oils moved within narrow and irregular limits, the decision of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company in meeting the recent mid-continent cuts of Standard Oil units acting as a deterrent to any bull speculation in that group.

Niles Bement Pond ran up more than 3 points in anticipation of an early inauguration of dividends. Anchor Post Fence advanced to a new high for the year on buying influenced by the high dividend yield. There was a good demand for some of the natural gas stocks, particularly Dixie and American. The new when-issued stocks of Chesapeake & Ohio, Deere & Co., and Republic Steel all attracted a large following.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—(AP)—With no adequate export outlet in sight and with United States 1930 wheat production threatening to show another surplus, wheat values underwent sharp setbacks today. North American wheat export clearances for the week were announced as only 5,023,000 bushels, an amount below either the week previous or a year ago. Export purchases today from the United States and Canada together were but 400,000 bushels, mostly Canadian.

Under heavy selling from commission houses wheat collapsed in some cases nearly 3c a bushel here, and closed nervous, 1 5-8 to 2 3-8 lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 3-8 at 1-2 to 5-8c down, with oats 3-8 at 1-2 to 1c off, but provisions showing 5 to 10c advance.

Throughout the day wheat values here showed a decided downward trend. Breaks in Liverpool quotations preceded Chicago weakness, and were associated with reports of cheaper offerings of Argentine wheat and of increasing pressure of unsold Canadian wheat afloat for Europe, it also being asserted that there have been extra large fields of rye in European countries and that new wheat import duties abroad have been making wheat prices relatively excessive to European consumers.

Indications of almost utter lack at present of foreign demand for United States wheat were later given additional bearish effect by official reports that under normal conditions this season the domestic wheat harvest will show yields well above home requirements. In this connection, unofficial summaries at hand suggested that crop damage to domestic winter wheat so far is inconsequential, although sudden severe low temperatures now would catch most of the wheat bare of snow. Late reports from Winnipeg that the British government may take 20,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and ship it out from Montreal in the spring were regarded here as bearish implying lessened chance of export business from the United States. Corn and oats went lower with wheat and as a result of continued favorable weather for movement of corn.

Provisions responded to estimates that western stocks of lard total only 90,000,000 pounds compared with 140,000,000 pounds a year ago.

Closing bids and offers: Wheat March 1.14 3-4; 1.17 7-8; May 1.19 1-4 to 3-8; 1.22 3-8 to 1-2; July 1.20 3-8 to 1-2; 1.23 1-4; September 1.22 3-4; 1.26 1-4.

Corn March (bids) 86 7-8; May 90 5-8 to 3-8 at 3-4, 91 3-8 to 1-2. July 92 5-8 to 3-8 at 3-4, 93 1-2. September 95 5-8, 92 3-8.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Communication company bonds played leading roles in today's market. Aside from those issues and a couple of convertible rails, the list had little depth and net changes in seasoned obligations were in minor fractions.

American Telephone Debenture 5s of 1960 and 1965 moved in large volume but got nowhere. The combined turnover for the two was approximately $650,000, principal amount, almost evenly divided. The convertible 4 1-2s, showing transactions of about $780,000, touched the year's high at 158 and then eased off for no net change.

The recently issued International Telephone 5s were active but failed to vary from the previous close. The same company's convertible debenture gained 3-4 on the day.

Santa Fe convertible 4 1-2s and Chicago Northwestern 4 3-4s, another popular stock privilege bond, traded briskly. Dealings were especially heavy in the former, which sold up to the new 1930 high of 140 1-8. At the closing quotation of 140, the bond was up a point from the Thursday final on total sales of slightly more than $350,000.

Standard rails of all grades were dull. There was virtually no change in Atchison General 4s, Baltimore & Ohio 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s, Missouri Pacific 5s, New Haven 4 1-2s and St. Louis San Francisco prior lien 4s. Pennsylvania Gold 5s eased 3-8. Southern Railway listings displayed better than average activity and ruled firm.

Activity in foreign bonds dwindled. Brazilian 6 1-2s the Colombian bank issues, French Republic 7 1-2s and 7s and Cuba 5s improved. Rio Grande do Sul 7s were soft.

New offerings of the week reached the total of $150,465,000 compared with $81,478,000 last week and $78,574,000 in the corresponding period a year ago. Three issues—The Cuba, Western Union and Morris & Essex railroad loans—accounted for $100,000,000 of the current volume.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

stead of putting your hook in the last treble you made put in the cas'n's, and then in the next treble, then chain five for your next space. I hope this will help you.

As I have just returned from the club meeting today I must write and say I had a wonderful time and a wonderful dinner; my brother was kind enough to take care of my children so I could go and I am sure glad I went.

Sisters, I wish I could go every month and help to give good big entertainments like they do at other clubs. I think we would have a large crowd. The sisters are falling out fast, but I know a good program would bring them back. If I can possibly help and can leave my children I am willing to do my part.

Olga, Lonesome Pine, I missed you today. What happened Theoda?

I will try to do my part on writing and show our club is still together.

PALEFACE, Club 1.

GREETINGS FROM FLA. TO THE SOCIAL CORNER

To the Editor and Sisters of the Corner: It's a little late to wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year, but I am sending you all my best wishes.

A friend from Connecticut has just sent me a few January Corner pages so I thought I would write.

E. Natural: There's quite a few from Windham county who attended Tampa fair from town here in Florida and many from Connecticut will attend the Volusia county fair this week from Feb. 11 to the 15th. Today is the first day and Children's day. All of our 1300 children from the city, besides other county schools are to be guests there,free.

Aries: Hope to hear from you soon. Have you heard from Adam lately? Tell him to write us another letter from California. Will write you a long letter soon, I enjoyed that parody, "My Hosiery." Am pasting your "Great Events in Few Words" in my scrap book. That is fine.

Biddy: Would you send me your methods for canning pork? In Florida, here, we can not keep meat in brine as long as in Connecticut. It gets ropey at once. Want to try canning pork, beef and rabbit. (The editor has my address.) Will be much obliged to you for the recipes.

Now for a few words of a good time I just had on my husband's island, with 29 or 30 folks from the town of Plainfield, Conn. The weather man was good to us to begin with. The day was like June up yonder. We had about 30 good sized fish, which I dressed and fried, corn meal cakes, palmetto cabbage, cold slaw, potato salad, pickles, rolls, bread and coffee. We all had plenty and they seemed to enjoy all of it, too. Then we all went for a sail up the St. John's river for about 20 miles up and back in a big motor boat. My better half being captain and pilot. While on the way, we saw the budding leaves coming out on all the trees and flowers of all sorts and while going by some fishermen they showed us the biggest black bass I ever seen in Florida. My husband told me later that they were having the two fish mounted. One weighed 15 3-4 pounds and the other 18½ pounds. So you see that all the big ones have not all been caught yet in Florida waters.

Now I will tell you all, that the orange trees in the grove on the island are beginning to blossom. They smell so good, and the bees are busy storing up the money from them, too. The pear trees are in bloom every where. The gardens look fine also. I was through the celery and strawberry fields near Sanford, Fla., a week or so ago. The berries are now selling for 20 cents a quart. They were shipping celery by the carload. Some were just seeding in more, others cultivating, others bleaching and others crating the celery.

This month end will begin the potato season, too, north of this county. There remains only the late oranges to be picked up in this section.

Iola: You wouldn't find many attics full of old things in Florida like you wrote of. There's something about Florida that you can't keep papers or clothes put away, unless packed with care and in tight boxes. I've been here seven years and have learned that in that short time.

Must close now by wishing good health and thoughts to all shut-ins. Wish I could attend some of the meetings but walking 1700 miles is too much. I would like to hear from the old correspondents I used to have, Balsam Fir, Whirlwind, Fox Glove, Anna E and others.

This is my first letter in two years and hope to write more often in the future.

E. M. R. C., (May 7)

"COLD WEATHER HAYING"

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: Some one who is touring California, writes to his Jewett City friends, of a ranchman, T. B. Shank, having 200 acres of hay ready for cutting. Shank ordered the man to proceed with the work. As it was unusually cold the employes refused to go to work without their overcoats. That is what I call haying under difficulties, but no more so than a certain Franklin, Conn., farmer.

I won't vouch for the truth of the following story, but it was told as an actual happening, many years ago.

This farmer was always late with his haying, never finishing until it came time to take the cattle from the pasture and stable them from the cold.

The last load of hay driven into the barn was usually fed from wagon into the mangers. One season he was particularly late with his haying. On his farm there was a meadow that became flooded to quite a depth by a very heavy late fall rain. Before the water subsided an unusual cold spell came and froze the water covering the meadow some two inches in thickness. As the water went out, the ice was left as it had frozen. Now comes the wonderful part of the story.

A wood chopper going to his work, took a short cut across the ice. When part way across, he heard a sound like that of a hay-maker whetting his scythe. Passing along, he heard the noise more plainly, coming from underneath the ice.

With his axe he cut a hole through the ice and looking down he saw the belated farmer mowing out the meadow of luxuriant grass.

The one who spied on the farmer didn't say whether he had on great coat and mittens or not.

I think this must have been the fall following the cold summer, nearly, or more than 100 years ago, when boys rode horse to cultivate corn in June, with over coat and mittens on.

I don't think the California farm story is many laps ahead of the near home story.

Black Eyed Susie: We surely had a good visit with the crowd, with stories and lots of laughs. Now why should any one kill the Blarney Stone when there are other objects more inviting? I will let "Dad" speak for himself. No flattery. "Plain, honest truth needs no artificial coloring." I was pleased to meet you at the social meeting, also your friends you so kindly made me acquainted with.

O, yes, the mind rambles. We took our highways and by-ways that were so familiar to me in the sixties and the dear faces came that I often met in the "way yonder." As they were brought to my mind it seemed but yesterday.

"Sweet as a rose are the lingering fragrance of memory."

Practical Polly: I have seen another frost picture since the one you referred to, but not to compare with the one I described. Yes, nature does appeal to me and to see it in both the vegetable and animal kingdom in all its phases from the sublime to the ridiculous was the incentive that sent me to take a horseback trip of two weeks in "The Land of the Sky," among the peaks and valleys of the Great Smokies.

TEA CAKES.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Here is a recipe for tea cakes. They can be quickly made and are always a success.

Tea Cakes: One-half cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 scant cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, pinch of salt, 1-2 cup milk and 1 teaspoon of vanilla, or other flavoring if preferred.

Cream butter and sugar well. Add eggs unbeaten, one at a time. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt, and add alternately with the milk. Mix well, and put into well greased muffin tins, filling them about half full. Bake in hot oven 10 to 15 minutes. They are delicious served hot.

Stebelia: Cream is canned exactly the same milk is canned. Let the water in which you are sterilizing your jar of cream come to a boil, and boil "moderately" for half an hour. Hard boiling might toughen it. Seal at once. The fact that you got butter from the cream of your canned milk proves it can be whipped the same as fresh cream. The scalded taste, if any, can be overcome by adding a little powdered sugar and a little flavoring.

August, 1894: Are you sure there isn't some obnoxious weed in the hay you are feeding? I had a similar experience. I have also noticed a change in the consistency of the cream and the flavor of the butter as the cow nears her dry period.

A SOCIABLE LETTER

Kind Editor and Corner Friends: I was glad to read such nice letters in Saturday's paper, and so interesting.

Jane of R. I.: Your letter was a real old fashioned homey one, like people used to be years ago, a helping hand and kind words for all. I wish there was more like you. What a heaven on earth there would be. Your poem was nice. Hope to see more of your nice cheery letters in the Corner page.

L. W. Hopkins: I was happily surprised to see your letter in Corner page. It sure was interesting and hope you do write more and often. Think you could write on many interesting places in R. I. Hope some of the Corner writers can send in the song you mentioned. Have you the cradle now that Rowland Hazard was rocked in when a baby or has Henry Ford found it?

Calla Lily: My thoughts are with you on club days, but too far away to help you, your letter was nice Saturday. I hope I could once get over it and help you what they can. Hope you will have lots of helping hands today.

Joan: How are you and your plants? Twelve above this morning 8.30, did not look early don't like to ha! ha! Makes it colder to me and you know I do have the ozone from the North pole here, but love it just the same, healthy, many airplanes pass here now. Wonder if it is cold up where they are? Let's go up and see how it is up there.

Nonesopretty: Hope you got my letter. I was so sorry about other, but you will have to take the will for the deed. In a time, letter will explain why.

Brick Top. Many thinks for lovely cards and good wishes. Arm is better, so use it all the time now, a little tender on big muscle and bone, but won't complain. I enjoyed your nice cheery letter.

C. D.: Your letter received and rather you would ask yourself, not but what I am willing to do errand for anyone. Will explain later to you But you write and address Baltic, Conn., R. D. No 1, Box 43, and it will reach her O. K., I am sure, for boxes on route 1 are all numbered and the carrier is very good to put mail in box addressed. Thank you for nice letter etc.

Strawberry: Long time since reading a Corner letter from you. Do write unless too busy in mill.

Violet: The message was good. I will send in song sent me by a dear friend, "God Will Take Care of You." God will take care of you, be not afraid. He is your safeguard through sunshine and shade. Tenderly watching and keeping His own. He will not leave you to wander alone. God will take care of you through all the day. Shielding your footsteps, directing your way, He is your Shepherd Protector and Guide. Leading His children where still waters glide, God will take care of you long as you live, granting you blessings no other can give. He will take care of you when time is past. Safe to His kingdom, will bring you at last. (Chorus), God will take care of you, still to the end. Oh, what a father, redeemer and friend. Jesus will answer whenever you call, He will take care of you; trust Him for all. It was composed by Fanny Crosby and Ira D. Sankey. I don't know name of song book it is in, but have asked my friend to know and will tell you, Brick Top, Aries and others soon as I find out. I expect to soon.

Red Rose: About time you wrote a letter to Corner page. Thought of you Sunday p. m.

Cecil Bruner: Long time since I heard from you Hope all are well. Such a lovely winter. Suppose you two are enjoying auto trips, lovely view, now leaves are off trees you can see so far. Old ocean looks nice on pleasant days, but not inviting for a dip. Did you read Noank news and the freaks? Well, I got one of them Bought some clams from there. One of them had twin necks, one body. I looked close to see if diamond or pearls in it, but found nothing but two perfect necks. Noank is sure some place for freaks

J. S.: Don't let them get you. How is your hubby? Well now, I hope. Write, I lost your address or would have written when I heard he was ill. Absent but not forgotten Remember Four Leaf Clover.

Ann Tenna: I wrote last, but lost address, Also Pices, enjoy your poems and letters in Corner page. I looked for Saturday's paper, it is so much company for me.

Mrs. Frank Gardner: I hope your leg is coming good. Are you at home or at hospital? I lost your pen name. Had a lot of in a book when other things were stolen out of house that was with them. Second book I have lost, first one I lent to a party to copy names and addresses they wanted and I never got it back, forgot they ever borrowed it, so end of that. Will try and start another one, but won't get as many names I fear as first book contained a good many.

Lonesome Pine: Miss your nice Corner letters Hope to see one soon.

Was thinking yesterday of the nice times we all had at Kenyon's Grove, Orchestra and all. Could we only turn back the wheel of time to those days and evenings. No such pleasures now days and the Labor day dinner there, male quartet sang the Old Oaken Bucket, the bluefish and dressing best I ever ate. Wish I had some like it now. Maybe you helped bake them. We all sure had good times there; so many of them have passed on to the last call. Best wishes to the sick and shut-ins and those who have lost dear ones. Best wishes to all.

DECORATING GLASS VASES

Dear Editor: A friend has been telling me how to decorate inexpensive glass vases, jars, bowls, etc. As we have tired of the crazy-patch-work ones, I think these bronze ones will be pretty. Some containers are beautifully shaped but have ridges around the top which are unsightly. The spaces between these can be filled in with a mixture of whiting and shellac laid on carefully with a small brush. Let first application dry before putting on another and repeat until neck of bottle or jar is smooth. Have your vase clean and dry. First paint the vase any color you wish. Let stand a few minutes, but not entirely dry; then place bronze powder on a piece of glazed paper, hold near the vase and blow gently upon the powder. The bronze settled on the vase in an irregular design and more than one color of bronze can be used if desired.

A black vase with blue and green bronze is good. Gold, bronze and fire on black; any combnations are sure to be odd and pleasing. Should you wish further to decorate your vase, the bronzes can be mixed with banana oil and designs painted upon the background after they have dried thoroughly. Enameled vases dry quickly and can be shaded or blended.

Some one wrote about books. There are so many thousands of books today, one is bewildered which one to choose to read, so I was glad to run across a list of names of books suitable for adults selected by Charles F. D. Belden, director of the Boston Public library.

Jean Christopher, Rolland; Steeplejack, Huneker; Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft, Gissing; The Forsyte Saga, J. Galsworthy; Penguin Island, A. France; Old Wives' Tale, A. Bennett; A Preface to Morals, W. Lippman; Our Business Civilization, J. T. Adams; Modern Democracies, Viscount Bryce; The Rustic Hind, Ben Ames Williams; The Virginian, Owen Wister; The Sea and the Jungle, H. M. Thomlinson; Vanity Fair; House of Seven Gables; Pickwick Papers.

These books are for people past the prime of life: Biography of Disraeli, Audre Maurois; In the Evening of My Thoughts, Geo. Clemenceau; Roamin' in the Gloamin', Harry Lauder; Madame Claire, Susan Ertz; With Malice Toward None, Mrs. H. W. Morrow; Safari (Jungle Adventures in Africa), M. E. Johnson; Beneath Tropic Seas, C. W. Beebe; Masks in a Pageant, W. A. White; Old Rybus (English School Life(Warwick Deeping; Son of the Middle Border, Hamlin Garland.

CROCHETING AND RUGMAKING

Dear Editor and Cornerites: The letters of the past two weeks about rugmaking and crocheting have put an itch into my pen again. I didn't know as I'd ever dare use it again after the flurry of my last contribution which was interpreted so far from my intent or thought. I mean the "commercializing the Corner" discussion. But perhaps I can say something about the new topics of interest as I am an irriterate crocheter and rug and quilt fiend. Like Interested Reader, I cut from largest to smallest patterns and when I get to the end of cutting, the blocks for each quilt are all in piles, each quilt in a separate box, with elastic bands around each lock, while one box contains the leavings that are too small for patterns and this will eventually blossom as a log cabin, or perhaps gingerbread or miser's misery, which uses them up to the last switch.

And rugs! How I love to get into some big baskets and boxes of old clothes and revolutionize them into useful floor coverings. I both braid and crochet them. Have woven hundreds in the old days and my loom is still stacked in the cellar but I'm afraid will never be used again for warps are so high priced and hard to buy. One can scarcely find a store that carries them now. But all the woolen garments go into braided rugs of which I have made hundreds and have sold cheap to California; and the silk stockings and rayon undies make beautiful crocheted rugs. I dye the faded or white things in pink or French blue and then make pattern rugs with borders of diamonds edged with black and they are really very pretty. I crochet over a heavy cord or small tow string and then the work can be kept perfectly smooth. All my friends save stockings and undies for me and I'm almost never without a crochet rug "on the way."

And thread crochet is my neverfailing hobby. I have made dozens of large pillows and now have a dozen or so in my collection beside many other large pieces and enjoy most the Mosaic of needle painting. I have many pieces in colors, some of them considered very good and have taken prizes at fairs wherever exhibited. To Trundlebed Sleeper would say row 32 in the pattern she spoke of is much easier narrowed if the second method suggested is used. Instead of making the last space on row 31, make a Tr. T. across the block below and then when you turn you find yourself one block from the end to start row 33. Is this clear? The "slip stitch" method makes a whole space on the end which isn't so good when you come to finish the edge. If any Corner sister has a pattern for grange pillows which can be done in colors, I would like to borrow it and will gladly return the favor in any way I can. Just finished the crocheted square on page 50 of February Needlecraft and it is very pretty.

I, too, slept in a trundle bed of my fathers own building, in Minnesota and well remember it all.

Alvernon: Do tell us what you dyed and the colors for your rugs and do you braid or crochet them?

WELL REPAID AT CLUB MEETINGS

Dear Social Corner Friends: I attended both clubs this month and had a most enjoyable time at each meeting.

I was well repaid for the effort it took to plan the day's work to go conveniently, for I met an old, dear friend, whom I haven't seen for 25 years. She was one of my teachers when I first came to this city. What happiness we experienced in reminiscences of the past!

I can't say that of all my teachers; so often a child has a fear of the teacher. What a wonderful opportunity is theirs! They have the child when in his most impressionable years. How much further a word of praise, or at least appreciation, goes, than constant correcting.

Calla Lily and Red Rose had a novel way of getting folks acquainted by matching numbers. I therefore sat at the table with a lady who I wouldn't have otherwise met. She told me of being left a widow, and although she couldn't put her boys through college herself, she worked to take care of herself and gave them the chance to put themselves through if they could—and they did.

It might be well for us, as parents, to think about that. Some of us who might think it an impossibility, in terms of dollars and cents, might think differently if we'd consider that we're giving our children something very valuable when we're giving them their time.

In reading the Corner page last Saturday, there were so many interesting letters that I took a red crayon and marked the different ones that I wanted to answer.

I marked yours, Susanna, because you mentioned West Chester, Pa., and since I came from Chester, I felt as if you and I might have something in common. Our club would enjoy hearing of your European trips, I know. Your letters relating your trip to Paris were so interesting.

Prairie Chicken: You mention a motto calendar. Our pastor gave all of his people one. You wish that we could all see it. Through his kindness a great many people are seeing your calendar. I recognize your quotations.

This impressed me: "Beware what you set your heart upon, for it surely shall be yours," and also "Whate'er thou lovest, man, that, too, become thou must God. if thou lovest God. Dust, if thou lovest Dust." This puts a great responsibility upon us, besides a glorious privilege, does it not?

Cosmos: Although I don't know you by your nom de-plume, I see you planned to go to Hartford for the state grange, just as I, but didn't get there.

Chauffeur: Hope your husband is much better. We missed you in our circle meeting.

Friendly Voice: Did you enjoy the lecture? He didn't take us far around the world as I had expected.

Canterbury Belle: How fortunate you are to be in Florida at this time of year! We have friends in St. Petersburg, Mt. Dora and Eustis. Since you are such a lover of birds and flowers, we'll be expecting a fine report. No doubt you'll visit the famous Bok bird tower.

Theodo: I hope you will visit us in March. I think of you often. Is Brave with you yet?

True Blue: How about next Wednesday for our trip in the country to visit my sister?

When one is troubled with "very close" veins (as one of the Black Crows calls them) would it not be wise to adjust the piano stool and sit while using the electric flat? Oh, I know the ironing wouldn't be done as well, but one can hire the ironing done, if need be, but can't hire health.

I wonder how many of us peel the apples before making apple pie? In as much as the flavor of all fruit, vegetables as well as fish, is right next to the skin. We should try to preserve it. This can be done, in piemaking, by not peeling the apples It saves time and enriches the flavor.

I can't close without sending my best wishes to Alice in Springfield for "Auld Lang Syne." Sincerely,

CHELSEA.

Palace Theatre

An all-talking, dancing and color extravaganza that is the most tuneful and delightful batch of musical nonsense which has yet been presented by the screen, starts today at the Palace Theatre with the initial showing of "No, No, Nanette," glorious film adaptation of the musical comedy hit which thrilled the nation when it was presented on the stage a few years ago. Greater than the stage presentation is this new picture. It has more and new songs, more girls, more hilarity, more lavishness. In fact it has almost everything the original show had, and a lot more.

The story is of course the comedy fable of a very unsophisticated millionaire who imagined he could buy clothes for pretty girls just out of pure good nature—and get away with it. He had made his money printing Bibles, so naturally he was actually a pretty moral old chap. Yet when the two flossies whose clothes he had been buying, came to town to see him, his wife began to wonder if her husband was as blameless as she had thought him to be in the good old days.

The special scenic details of the film are dazzling. They include a scintillating trip to Holland, another to Japan, another to Mars (of all places.) By the way, the girls of Mars aren't so bad, either, if one is to judge by the number and variety shown in this scene in "No, No, Nanette." Another scene is laid in New York and is very effective. In fact the whole piece is a melodious ensemble of fact and fantasy that would be hard to reproduce.

In its musical bits, "No, No, Nanette" is delicious. Warner Brothers, who made the film, decided to retain two of the original numbers, the famous "Tea for Two," and the lilting "I Want to Be Happy," which no doubt everybody in town has hummed at one time or another, without ever having seen the show from which it comes. The new numbers include "King of the Air," a song hit with a swinging, breezy, powerful cadence, "Dance of the Wooden Shoes," "Dancing on Mars," and "Pretending."

The stars of the piece are beautiful Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray who was seen with Marilyn Miller in "Sally."

The management of the Palace theater is pleased to announce as an extra added feature a treat for the music lovers for this city by presenting Giovanni Martinelli singing M'appari, from "Marta" by Flotow, assisted by Livia Marracci, this is one of the outstanding musical offerings ever offered to the patrons of this theatre. You can now hear the wonderful grand opera star in your theatre.

Breed Theatre

Willard Mack, author, director and star of "The Voice of the City," a one hundred per cent, talking picture produced by Cosmopolitan for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which will open at the Breed theatre, today, is rated as one of the "big five" of stage playwrights.

He comes to talking pictures with an unusual reputation. Not only has he been a star on both stage and screen (his first picture work was in 1918) but he has written a record number of successful stage plays, including "Kick In," "Common Sin," "Gang War," "Tiger Rose," "The Man Who Came Back," "Lily Sue," "Weather Clear," "The Noose," and "The Big Chance."

"The Voice of the City" marks his assumption of duties with the talking pictures. The story is a gripping one of an escaped prisoner and his fight for a chance to make good. It carries with it the deep flavor of that human sincerity for which Mack plays have become noted.

"Tide of Empire," Peter B. Kyne's mighty romance of the California gold rush will be shown today as an added feature, also the "House of Terror," a talking comedy, Aesop's Fables and Fox Movietone news complete this mammoth program which begins today at 1 p. m.

Christian Science Services

Wednesday evening, meeting 7:45. The reading room, 40 Main street, is open every day except Sundays and legal holidays from 3 to 4:30 p. m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Bessie Love and Charlie King, that lovable pair of the "Broadway Melody" are back again on the talking screen in a scintillating musical comedy "Chasing Rainbows," a chase that is rewarded with the proverbial "pot of gold" when the two straying lovers are re-united. Even speedier than its famous predecessor, with pep, gayety and lilting melodies, roaring slapstick comedy, a touch of pathos here and there, a sparkling little love tale, and above all packed with the freshness and vitality of youth, "Chasing Rainbows" is the perfect talking picture—and, of course, it's at the Broadway. Besides the mischievous Bessie Love with her cute tricks and snappy tap dancing, and Charlie King, with his raven curls and appealing voice, there is Jack Benny as the wise-cracking stage manager—and how that boy can crack 'em! George Arthur is a "sweet child," no less, and Polly Moran and Marie Dressler, with their eternal abuse and scrapping, ending with a side-splitting anti-Volstead armistice, furnish an endless series of hearty laughs. There is dangerous Nita Martan, the brunette menace, and Gwen Lee, a dangerous blonde, with Eddie Phillips, a philandering "heavy" with Brigham Young ideas! There are a dozen real song hits that will leave you whistling, there are chorus costumes that will have you gasping, and the color scenes which run riot through the production are gorgeous beyond comparison. "Chasing Rainbows" being the story of a small time musical comedy troupe is natrual to a degree, as it follows the varying fortunes of the troupe through a 42-week season, facing Minnesota summers and Vermont winters, pouring rain, scorching heat and blinding blizzards. The atmosphere is perfectly presented, and the intimate "shots" back stage and in the hotels and dressing rooms are interesting and lifelike. On the same bill is presented William O'Neal in "On the March," an interesting "bit" in the French Foreign Legion; Fisher and Hurst in "Apartment Hunting"; C. C. Peterson in a billiard exhibition that will have the boys on edge; "Minstrel Days," a complete old-time blackface minstrel show, and the latest Paramount sound news.

Picture at Y. M. C. A. Sunday.

At 4 o'clock Sunday at the large Y. M. C. A. gymnasium of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. the splendid moving picture story, The Younger Generation, will be shown in eight reels. The principal personalities are Jean Hersholt, Lina Basquette and Ricardo Cortez. This picture is adapted from one of Fanny Hurst's magazine stories. A tense drama of love, sacrifice, and devotion, in which sudden riches wreck the happiness of the home and blast future hope. The story of an East Side family that rises from poverty to affluence. While youth struggles for prestige and wealth, the older generation pines away in sorrow. Pathos, love, and humor are presented with rare understanding of human emotions. Jean Hersholt's rare artistry makes this picture one that will long be remembered.

To this service the public 18 and over are invited and boys and girls from 11 to 18 inclusive may attend if accompanied by their parents, but not otherwise.

A free will offering will be taken at this service.

YANTIC

Peter, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Evanuk, of Wauwecus Hill, was seriously burned about the face Monday afternoon by the overturning of a pan of hot grease. Dr. David Sussler was called and took the boy to Backus hospital. Wednesday both eyes were closed and his condition is very serious.

Mrs. W. W. Bentley and Mr. and Mrs. John Proctor were recent visitors in Ashwillett, attending the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Vergason. Mrs. Vergason is a sister of Mrs. Bentley.

Several from here attended the burial of Winslow Tracy Williams of New York, in Yantic cemetery last Thursday. The Williams family developed the village of Yantic and to their interest the beautiful Episcopal church here is a lasting memorial. The parishoners are ever active in increasing its value to the community. At present the members have plans for the enlargement of the parish hall. An ell is to be added to the southeast section of the parish rooms that are attached to the rectory. A modern kitchen and recreation rooms will cost between four and five thousand dollars. Every society connected with the church is working hard to raise the money. The Sunshine club plans a minstrel in the Samuel Huntington school auditorium, while the Girls Friendly society is putting on a modern drama there. A large bridge is to be held at the home of Mrs. S. Howard Bishop and the spirit of cooperation is on every side.

Miss Anna Johnson of Hartford was a recent guest here of her brother, Eric Johnson. She spent the week end in Norwich with Mrs. Howard Kelley of Union street.

William F. McHale has been spending several days in Bridgeport with his sister, Mrs. Stephen O'Hearn.

Frank Johnston has left for Long Island, where he will spend the remainder of the winter.

Eric Johnson was a recent visitor in South Manchester with his mother, Mrs. Anna Johnson.

Several from here motored to Mansfield Sunday to view the ruins of the Central Vermont railway station that burned.

Mrs. James N. Congdon has sold her home in Stafford Springs and is making her home in Yantic for the present.

Kenneth Hamilton was a recent visitor in New London.

Surveyors for the state highway department have been in the village recently and some new stakes have been driven.

Miss Pauline Nawrocki has returned to her studies at Brown university, Providence after spending several days at home.

Miss Goldie Fishbone has returned from Willimantic and is taking a post-graduate course at Norwich Free Academy.

OAKLAND
ANNOUNCES THE APPOINTMENT OF UNCAS MOTOR SALES
45 Broadway Phone 360
AS OAKLAND-PONTIAC
DEALER

This appointment is in itself a token of the excellent qualifications and responsibility of the new dealer who will sell and service these two automobiles which are outstanding in their respective price fields:

THE NEW OAKLAND EIGHT

This is General Motors' lowest-priced eight-cylinder car. Its 85-horsepower engine develops one horsepower to every 37 pounds of car weight. That is why few cars can equal its speed, power and acceleration. It is a car with superior performance. It is also a car of exceptional smoothness. And its new bodies by Fisher are splendid examples of smart styling. Yet, with all its outstanding qualities, it is exceptionally economical to own and operate because of its moderate first cost, its sturdy construction, its accessibility of parts and its exceptional gasoline mileage.

THE NEW SERIES PONTIAC BIG SIX

This new and finer Pontiac includes all the big car qualities which made past Pontiacs so widely popular. It also offers many important improvements. Its big, powerful 60-horsepower engine is smoother than ever because of new-type rubber engine mountings which insulate it from the frame. Improved brakes, a sloping non-glare windshield, Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers at no extra cost, and many other features make this newest Pontiac a finer value than ever.

Your new dealer is authorized to give you the full benefit of the G. M. A. C. time payment plan. His franchise enables him, furthermore, to sell Good Will Used Cars—reliable, inexpensive transportation backed by a fixed policy of honest value for the customer's dollar.

Come in and examine these two new cars. You are assured a cordial welcome. And we hope you will take the earliest opportunity to become acquainted with your OAKLAND-PONTIAC dealer.

LARGE NUMBER WITNESS SUCCESSFUL PRODUCTION

A very successful entertainment was held Friday evening in the church parlors of the Greeneville Congregational church by the Bright Jewels circle of King's Daughters of the church. A prettily decorated candy booth was at one end of the hall in charge of Miss Jeanett Beattie and Miss Ida Luther. Miss Natalie Service, who took part in the play, was presented a beautiful bouquet of choice flowers. The program was as follows:

St. Andrew's Men's club will meet Monday, Feb. 17, with Judge J. H. Barnes as the speaker, and a program of music.

TAFTVILLE

Another lot of two dozen cottontail rabbits purchased by the members of the Taftville Rod and Gun club to stock the local woods where rabbits are scarce, arrived last Saturday, and when opened at Chip Dugas' bowling alley, there were only 3 dead. The remaining 21 had marvelous appetites and proceeded to clean up everything that was offered to them.

Joseph E. Benac is caring for half the lot in a brooder, where they were given plenty of hay for bedding, and quarts of carrots and cabbage for food. In the morning not only the food had disappeared but the hay also. The other half were taken in charge by Edward Duprey who has an open air yard. The last lot of rabbits when placed in this yard were killed by a vicious dog which forced its way into the pen, but the hutch is now dog proof, and the rabbits are at present dwelling in safety.

When the dog damaged the property of the club, an investigation began which resulted in the discovery that the dog was not licensed, so the matter was placed in the hands of Dog Warden Bushnell who disposed of it. The rabbits were paid for.

Because of state regulations the rabbits have to be kept in quarantine for ten days, in order that infections and contagious diseases peculiar to cottontails may not be imported into the state. This lot came from Iola, Kansas, and Superintendent Titcomb of the state board of fisheries and game, has already advised the club that all animals in good condition at the termination of the quarantine may be liberated.

The only danger attendant to keeping the rabbits in quarantine is that they become quite tame and eat out of the hand of the person who feeds them. When liberated in the woods to join their fellows, it is believed that they will regain their natural timidity, and help to replenish the local woods with rabbits, the supply of which in this locality appears to be very low.

Many of the grades in the local schools had valentine boxes, which were opened Friday afternoon and the contents distributed.

The Basketry club held its regular meeting Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah community building.

The next meeting of the Thimble club is to be with Mrs. Adam Leupold of Blissville.

Miss Helen C. Aberg of North Third avenue has returned from Mansfield where she has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Porter Staebner and family.

The members of the Wequonnoc school orchestra held a meeting and rehearsal at the schoolhouse Thursday.

The regular business meeting of Court Wequonnoc, No. 98, Foresters of America, was held Thursday evening in the courtrooms on Merchants avenue.

TEAMS BRING CAMPAIGN TO OVER $6,600 FOR BOY SCOUT BUDGET

The Boy Scout teams' campaigners closed their formal report and supper evenings Friday at the Arcanum club with a total of $6,610.78 on hand and the feeling on the part of the workers that they have reason to expect that the full amount of $8,000 will be reached in the next day or so.

There are delayed reports yet to be heard from, there is more to be expected from the mail campaign, there will be something coming from the work at the theatres, and Putnam sent a telegram to the meeting Friday night, stating that Putnam will do its share in support of the campaign.

Tag Day Today

Good returns are also expected from the tag day plan which will be put into operation in this city today (Saturday), so as to give many persons an opportunity to help in a large or small way, as they are able.

Rev. John J. Reilly offered the invocation at the supper hour Friday and Fred C. Geer was at the piano for the singing during the supper hour.

When the report had been presented and received with cheers, Campaign Manager H. D. Larrabee expressed his great appreciation of the work done by the leaders and the team members, and others to speak in commendation of different phases of the work were ex-Mayor H. M. Lerou, Rev. Father Reilly, James L. Case, Wilbur S. Williams, Charles B. Gilbert and James P. Sheridan.

Formal votes of thanks were passed to the theatres and to the Arcanum club and the expressions of appreciation included mention of the help the mills had given, with three cheers for the work of Scout Executive John L. Sellman and Campaign Manager Larrabee, and also for the steward of the Arcanum club who has served the suppers.

The teams are to keep working through Saturday, Sunday and Monday, but reports from now on will be made at Scout headquarters in the Thayer building.

LEBANON WOMEN VOTERS HEAR SCHOOL SPEAKER

After a short business meeting called to order by the president, when the regular reports were read and approved and several motions voted, the meeting of the Lebanon League of Women Voters on Thursday became a public one. The speaker of the afternoon, Franklin E. Pierce, director of secondary education in Connecticut, was introduced by Mrs. E. J. Graham. His subject was Secondary Education in Connecticut. He traced its growth from the needs in Colonial days for men of education to supply the pulpits and to explain the law to the people, up to the present day. He brought out the differences in systems, methods, curriculum, types of building, and the uses of the present-day buildings in different cities and states. He thought that inasmuch as the townspeople had to erect and finance the upkeep of these newer and larger buildings, they ought also to have the right and privilege to use them socially and educationally when not interfering with regular schedule.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Pierce for his splendid address.

GAVE VALENTINE MASQUERADE FOR DANCING CLASS

Over 50 high school members of Miss Helena Crandall's dancing class and their guests attended a delightful valentine masquerade dance at Odd Fellows hall Friday evening from 7:30 to 10 o'clock. The event was one of a series that is given throughout the year by Miss Crandall for her dancing pupils.

Nancy Pitcher led the grand march with Grant Denison and the prizes for the prettiest costumes were awarded to Ruth Ayling for the girls and Edward Rich for the boys. The latter was dressed as Peck's bad boy and Miss Ayling was attired in a black and white silhouette. Virginia Chase and Edward Rich won the prizes in the elimination dance. There were many beautiful and comical costumes worn by the gathering.

The music for dancing was provided by an orchestra, whose members were Richard Kyle, drums; William Malone violin, and John Egan, piano.

"DRY WEATHER" GIVEN BEFORE CROWDED HOUSE

If anyone thinks interest in motion pictures has replaced interest in the drama, they should have been in the well-filled Samuel Huntington school auditorium Friday evening and seen "Dry Weather," a play by Helen Baggs, presented by local talent and seen the enthusiastic audience witness a Broadway play well acted by the following cast:

Jonas P. Crabb, senator, of Massachusetts, C. E. Carpenter; Dorothy, his niece, Margery Harvey; Tom, his nephew, Elmer F. Farnham; Jimmy Curtis, who admires Dorothy, Walter G. Hitchon, Jr.; Charles McBride, a young journalist, Charles Bentley; Paula Vincent, a scenario writer, Rosalie Matassa; Jane Spencer, in film land June Iris, Phyllis Irvine; Julia Taylor, a sweet girl graduate, Marion Gibbs; Amarilla, an Irish maid, Mrs. Ellis Bentley; Mrs. McGuire, a federal prohibition agent, Florence Congdon.

They were ably instructed and directed by Mrs. S. Howard Bishop.

The three acts were presented in the living room of Senator Crabb's summer home near New York. The different scenes were morning, noonday and evening. The stage settings were furnished by the courtesy of the Gilbert Furniture company.

Between the acts and after the play music was furnished by an orchestra whose members also played for dancing after the entertainment. Candies were sold and with the attractive advertising programme a goodly sum was realized.

UTILITIES BOARD RE-OPENS BOZRAH ELECTRIC CASE

The public utilities commission has been requested by Nathan Gilman, president of the Bozrah Electric company, to re-open the case of the Rev. George W. Borden and 12 others in a petition for a readjustment of rates for electric service. The commission in a decision found that the practice of the electric company in purchasing electric current from Nathan Gilman, a manufacturer, is unbusinesslike, and also found that certain rates in effect in the town are discriminatory.

In complying with the request of the company's president, the commission is re-opening the case and has assigned Friday, Feb. 21, at 10:30 a. m., as the date for hearing at Hartford.

RECEPTION OPENS HOME OF UNITED ITALIAN SOCIETY

A gathering of nearly 1,000 of the Italians of Norwich and vicinity visited the new and spacious home of the United Italian society at Washington street Wednesday evening and took part in an informal reception that marked the official opening of the place. During the evening the members and guests enjoyed dancing, to music provided by the Venetians, and were served with delicious refreshments. The visitors were shown through the many rooms of the new home, everyone being delighted with the attractiveness of the place and the many facilities it provides.

A number of presentations were made to the society during the evening, two coming from other Italian organizations in the city. The Italian Young Men's club, a body organized and sponsored by the United Italian society, presented the elder group with a handsome framed painting of Abraham Lincoln, and the Society Terlizzi made a presentation of $25.

The new home was purchased during the latter part of the past year and has been renovated to suit the purposes of the Italian society. The building is of three stories, the first being used as club rooms by both the older and young men's societies. On the second floor is located a large and attractive auditorium and it is planned to convert the top floor into apartments.

The Italians have worked hard to make possible a home of their own and success has rewarded their efforts. Arrangements for the reception were under direction of the officers of the organization and the following committees: Entertainment, Bruno Pedace, chairman, Raffaele Caldorola, Frank Camarda, Rosario Zigari, John Macione, Paul Lializza, James Mingola, Dominick Quarto, Frank Ferri, Cesidio Leone, Frank Pedace, Antonio Giovannini, B. ADDRESSED CONGREGATIONAL WOMEN AT MEETING AT PARK CHURCH MANSE

Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mrs. Theodore M. Shipherd graciously opened the Manse on Chelsea parade South to the Federation of Park Congregational church for the regular mission meeting. Representatives from all the other Congregational churches were invited, so the rooms were well filled.

All business and the programme were dispensed with to give time to hear Dr. Malcolm M. Dana of Hartford and Yale Divinity school, a native of Norwich, speak on the subject, "The Rural Church and Changing New England," which he said exceeded all others in interest.

Change is the only certain thing that has followed the war, he said, we have a new world and the biggest business of all is the Lord's business. We should hold everything in the past worthwhile, but link ourselves with the changes that must certainly follow.

Dr. Dana spoke of the country church as his particular charge, also that of his son, Malcolm Dana, 3rd, who is following in his footsteps, as he did his father's, one time pastor of Park church, also of the old Second church. He spoke feelingly of the abandoned country churches, of the larger parish work and the great help needed by both.

The speaker said when we prayed for foreign missions, God "called our bluff and put foreigners all around us"; our job is to find a point of contact with them so that we may receive the contribution they are able to give us and thus make the Americanism of tomorrow.

Questions asked by the audience were answered at as great length as Dr. Dana's time allowed.

The following books were suggested as pertinent reading along the line of his address: "Farmer Immigrants and Their Children" by Brunner, "America Comes of Age" by Seigfried, "The Conquest of New England by the Immigrant" by Chauncey Brown and "Immigration Crossroads" by Pannuncio.

Every legionaire is cordially invited to be present, it is not compulsory to take part, but every one who can participate is requested to do so. After the regular meeting there was a meeting of the degree team with Captain Teresa Watters in charge. It was voted to hold a series of afternoon card parties to be given by the degree team. The first is to be given at the home of Mrs. Flora Gilchrist. The money made is to be used for the expenses of the degree team at the state meeting in June. PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange, No. 172, held its regular meeting Wednesday evening in Grange hall with W. M. Albert W. Lillibridge presiding. All officers but one were present with an attendance of 121 members and 9 visiting grangers. An invitation was accepted to attend a meeting at the Norwich Town Methodist church on Feb. 23rd, to hear Rev. Charles A. Downes of Killingly, chaplain of Connecticut State grange. After the business meeting the lecturer had charge of the literary program. A patriotic program with a surprise feature for the closing made the evening a very pleasant one. It began with a song by the grange, America, and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, Miss Beulah Rogers, beautifully given. Captain W. G. Tarbox gave a most interesting address on Early Recollections of Lincoln. This was followed by a song by the grange, America the Beautiful. Recitations by Mrs. Eunice Stott, Lincoln the Boy, and The Farmer Boy, received great applause. Three solos were given by Mrs. Helena M. T. Church, accompanied by Mrs. Mabel Stebbins: My Own United States, The Captain, and Old Folks at Home. Dressed in a period gown of 1860, Mrs. Church was beautiful as a southern belle, and gave the audience a rare treat in listening to her wonderful contralto voice.

The surprise feature was a mock trial in which Clara Burke was accused of stealing the feathers from the tail of a pet rooster, owned by the worthy master. It created a lot of fun. Judge John H. Barnes, as the judge, kept all in laughter by his witticisms. The prosecution was ably handled by Attorney Telley E. Babbock. The victorious counsel, who appeared for the accused, was Attorney Charles V. James. The members of the jury, John Hollowell, Henry Bates, William Bode Jr., John Hubbard, August Weiman and Mrs. Helena Church, the only woman on the modern jury, was foreman. Witnesses for the state were: Mrs. Abby Olsen, Mrs. Florence Dean, Lee Coles, Ralph Marsh, Charles Ellis and A. W. Lillibridge; for the defense, Mrs. Ida Richardson, Thomas Beetham, Mrs. Alida Boyens. Mrs. Burke, the accused appeared on the witness stand with many feathers in her hat which she claimed were guinea hen feathers and not rooster feathers. Many were the conflicting stories told by the witnesses. The judge, in charging the jury, said in part: "If you believe the testimony of the witnesses for the state you would find the accused guilty. If you would believe the testimony of the accused and that of her witnesses, you would find her not guilty. But if you are like the court and do not believe any of them on either side, I do not know what you will do, unless you find both of the lawyers guilty of something. You will retire and select one of your members as foreman or forelady and bring in the verdict, but don't take all night."

This feature was a very pleasing finish to an excellent program. Refreshments were served in the dining hall by Div. D., Mrs. Higgins chairman. The auxiliary of the grange held an all-day session and finished tying two quilts, also other sewing. They are to have a supper Feb. 21, at Grange hall, from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. A pinochle and whist party is to be given Tuesday at Grange hall by the auxiliary. Thursday night, The Log Cabin minstrel was given by Norwich grange at Hachaug, to a large sized audience. Dancing was enjoyed after the minstrel.

A watchmaker's advertisement is a timely announcement.

POETRY

The Wakers

The joyous morning ran and kissed the grass
And drew his fingers through her sleeping hair,
And cried, "Before thy flowers are well awake
Rise, and the lingering darkness from thee shake

"Before the daisy and the sorrel buy
Their brightness back from that close-folding night,
Come, and the shadows from thy bosom shake,
Awake from thy thick sleep, awake awake!"

Then the grass of that mounded meadow stirred
Above the Roman bones that may not stir
Through joyous morning whispered, shouted sang;
The grass stirred as that happy music rang.

Oh, what a wondrous rustling everywhere!
The steady shadows shook and thinned and died,
The shining grass flashed brightness back for brightness,
And sleep was gone, and there was heavenly lightness.

As if she had found wings, light as the wind,
The grass flew, bent with the wind, from east to west,
Chased by one wild gray cloud, and flashing all
Her dews for happiness to hear morning all * * *

But even as I stepped out the brightness dimmed,
I saw the fading edge of all delight
The sober morning waked the drowsy herds,
And there was the old scolding of the birds.

—John [illegible].

Today

So here hath been dawning
Another bright day;
Think, wilt thou let it
Slip useless away?

Out of Eternity
This new day was born;
Into Eternity,
At night, will return.

Behold it aforetime
No eye ever did;
So soon it forever
From all eyes is hid.

Here hath been dawning
Another blue day;
Think, wilt thou let it
Slip useless away?

SENATE MAY SCRUTINIZE DRY LAW ADMINISTRATION

Resolutions Committee Today Will Take Up the Wheeler Resolution, Proposing Inquiry Into Enforcement—There Are Evidences That Several Dry Senators Will Favor the Investigation—Wets and Drys Will Be Heard By the House Judiciary Committee This Week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—Investigation by the senate into the administration of the prohibition law is in prospect as an early development in the spreading wet and dry controversy at the capitol.

The senate judiciary committee will take up tomorrow the resolution of Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, proposing the inquiry into enforcement of the 10 year old dry law. While there has been no crystallization of sentiment on this proposition, there were evidences today that some of the drys would favor it.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, who has frequently complained that prohibition enforcement is mixed up with politics, is chairman of the judiciary committee. Senator Borah, of Idaho, who has charged that open saloons are running throughout the country is a member of the committee.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, announced today a hands off policy toward the proposed investigation, thus leaving the issue up to the decision of the senate. A substitute to the Wheeler resolution which called upon the judiciary committee to determine whether the law can be enforced probably will be offered with a view to confining the inquiry solely to whether the law has been enforced. The substitute is expected to attract greater support.

Regardless of the decision of the judiciary committee toward the investigation, the senate too must act upon the resolution of inquiry. This resolution is expected to be among the first of the prohibition issues to come before the senate when it squares off for the long awaited wet and dry debate after disposition of the tariff. Senate drys also have given notice they are ready to vote on the resolution of Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

Meanwhile, the belligerent wets and drys in the house will resume their activities this week before the judiciary committee in its hearings on the prohibition law. The wets who were heard by the committee last week on bills for repeal and modification of the dry law will have Wednesday and Thursday of this week to conclude their arguments.

The Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie, of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, said today that his group was not ready to announce the list of dry witnesses who will get the rostrum next week.

The house judiciary committee also will return to work on Tuesday on the legislative program recommended by the Hoover law enforcement commission. Representative Christopherson, republican, South Dakota, has drafted four measures aimed to meet the many objections to the bill proposing to give United States commissioners power to try petty offenders.

House leaders have expressed some doubt that a favorable report would come from the judiciary committee on the bills for repeal and modification. It looks, therefore, like the only straight out vote this session on prohibition will come in the senate on the Blaine repeal resolution. Overwhelming defeat of this resolution is anticipated.

LESS DRINKING AMONG HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—Indications that there has been less drinking among high school students under the prohibition laws than there was prior to their enactment were described today as being reflected in reports in a survey being made as the result of the law enforcement commission.

J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the National Education association, said that his organization had been asked by the commission to aid it in making contact with sources of information and that early reports that he had seen indicated that there was less drinking by students under the dry laws than there had been before.

Crabtree said that while he did not feel at liberty to make public the reports, his familiarity with school conditions had led him to anticipate such a result. He added that he expected the findings of the survey to be made public soon.

SENATE EXPECTS TO PASS TARIFF BILL BY MARCH 10

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—With more than 500 committee and individual amendments to the tariff bill acted upon, the senate will endeavor to speed up its revision work this week with a view to passing and sending the measure to conference with the house early in March.

Leaders of all factions are anxious to have the long pending legislation, last of the Hoover-recommended tasks for the special session that ended in November, whipped into shape for final passage so the senate can get down to other important business.

The tariff bill has been before the senate since Sept. 9. Leaders on many occasions predicted senate passage long before this, but interjection of extraneous subjects has served to delay final action.

Republican and democratic chieftains now look for passage by March 10. But if the measure is through the conference stage and ready for dispatch to the white house by May 1, there will be many lifted eyebrows.

ZERO WEATHER TOO MUCH FOR ESCAPED PRISONERS

CONCORD, Mass., Feb. 16—(AP)—Half frozen after a night in a woods during a heavy snowstorm, James S. Vincent, 20, and John F. Buchanan, 27, who escaped yesterday from the Concord reformatory after beating a guard with a hammer, were captured with out resistance this morning.

The youths came into the open as the temperature dropped near the zero mark. They were returned to the reformatory and placed in solitary confinement.

The youths, both residents of South Boston, were repairing desks and chairs in one of the reformatory buildings when Daniel O'Connell, their guard, turned aside for a moment. One of the prisoners struck him on the head with a hammer. A ladder was procured and the two fled to the roof through a skylight.

Buchanan was said to have told reformatory officials today that he was to blame for the assault on O'Connell, whose recovery is expected.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH IN LOG HOUSE

DE SOTO, Mo., Feb. 16—(AP)—Three children were burned to death last night when fire destroyed a two-story log house in which they resided with their parents on a farm six miles southeast of De Soto. They were Gerald, 14; Vernon, 9, and Roy, 7, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William McFarland. The fire was believed to have been caused by a defective flue.

All three children slept in two upstairs rooms. Their parents were awakened by smoke about 10 p. m. They discovered the house afire and found the single stairway leading to the upstairs rooms cut off by smoke and flames. McFarland tried frantically to scale the outside wall and to cut a hole in the ceiling but the building was quickly enveloped in flames and the children, apparently suffocated in their beds, were burned. NAVAL CONFERENCE IS NEARING CRITICAL STAGE

LONDON, Feb. 16—(AP)—Entering the most critical phase of its work, the London naval conference tomorrow faces the fifth week of its negotiations without the presence of Premier Tardieu of France, upon whose policy seems chiefly to depend the rapidity of progress toward a treaty on the limitation of armaments.

A disturbed political condition in France and an attack of grip will probably keep the French leader away from London for at least a week.

Meanwhile Prime Minister MacDonald and Secretary of State Stimson, in conjunction with Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy and ex-Premier Wakatsuki of Japan, will continue tomorrow and throughout the week the informal conversations begun last week for detailed study of the French fleet tonnage figures.

The French demand for a total of 724,479 tons by the end of 1936 at present occupies the interest and attention of all the delegations. American and British circles tonight did not consider that the absence of Premier Tardieu would greatly delay the discussion of it.

The other delegations will make use of the time by formulating their arguments to persuade France to slice at least 100,000 tons from the figure she announced.

Closing Gambling Houses In Miami, Fla.

Nineteen Arrests Were Made In Series of Raids During the Week-end.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 16—(AP)—Opposing forces in the battle for and against enforcement of anti-gambling laws in this winter playground, were reported to be holding councils of war today and tonight.

The indefinite alignments understood to divide factions of the winter gambling fraternity have left officials and gamblers in the dark. Raids late last night by deputy sheriffs, however, more o riess defined the stand of law enforcement officials a sone of continued action through the wealthy winter resort area.

The raids were made on two night clubs, the Floridian, in Miami Beach and the Embassy club here. At the former place, approximately $100,000 worth of gambling equipment was seized in a room apparently devoted to games of chance, although no patrons were found.

Nineteen arrests were made in connection with the raids, which were mad eat two dog racing tracks and a number of gambling rooms.

Today's conferences and meetings, it was reported, were to decide procedure of both factions. Unofficial rumors have drifted through the winter resort area that proprietors of closed gambling establishments have refused to be victims of what they term discrimination and seeking evidence of gambling at the Miami Jockey club and the dog tracks.

Such evidence, according to the rumors, would be presented to law enforcement officials as a combined self-preservative and retaliative measure on the part of the men whose places of business were closed some time ago by police order.

Sheriff M. P. Lehmann, last week, entered actively into the anti-gambling campaign in the area, and launched a series of raids on the basis of search warrants.

City officials embroiled in what was understood to be local political difficulties, already had ordered all gambling houses with in the city limits closed.

The worst difficulty was encountered in New London county, he said, where 12 inches of snow was found in sections of the highway from Norwich to Stonington. LOCAL STRIKERS TO SEEK TO EFFECT SETTLEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 16.—Shades of the big textile strike that was declared March 9, 1925, were stirred Saturday when some 100 "strikers" met to discuss possible means of a settlement with the American Thread company. The meeting, held in Central Labor Union hall, was in charge of Mrs. Loretta Oatley, president of local No. 671 and a prime mover in the strike of nearly five years ago.

The result of the meeting was the appointment of a committee composed of Mrs. Oatley, Fred Lord and Octavien Dubreuil to investigate the possibilities of an adjustment with the thread concern. Mrs. Oatley is said to represent the United Textile Workers of America as an organizer.

On March 9, 1925, hundreds of employes of the thread company, protesting against one wage cut and the prospects of another in April of that year, banded under the local leadership of Miss Amy Hooker, Mrs. Oatley and others and declared a strike. Over 2,000 men and women left their work, crippling the big plant for many weeks. Officials and organizers of various labor organizations joined the local movement. Efforts at arbitration or mediation failed and the company eventually "imported" entire families from Massachusetts and New Hampshire, housed them in company tenement houses from which strikers had either vacated or been evicted and, after due warning, reopened the mills. These operatives have continued in the employ of the company. Some of the strikers have since returned to work, while many found other employment in this and other cities.

The arrests were made following an investigation into a complaint of Morris Foster, who conducts the wholesale fruit and produce establishment at Milk street and Valley extension. Foster opened his place of business Saturday morning and discovered that during the night a large sign bearing the name of the business had been ripped from its brackets, set in brick, and removed. The sign was later found underneath the loading platform of the building. The accused are said by the police to have admitted tearing down the sign between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock Saturday morning. The motive for the act was not made known. Whittemore and Chalifoux were released under their own recognizance and retained counsel. Osterhoudt, who is said to have been implicated, was formerly employed by Whittemore, but more recently has been in the employ of Foster. Whittemore at one time conducted the fruit business at the Milk street establishment.

SHEA WILL ADMITTED TO PROBATE DESPITE OPPOSITION

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 16.—Despite opposition on the part of Mrs. Catherine Mooney Shea of Providence, R. I., a daughter-in-law of the deceased, the will of the late Dennis Shea of 125 Windham road was admitted to probate Saturday by Judge Valentine L. Murphy. Charles A. Gates and James S. Donahue, Sr., were appointed appraisers. The document was drawn up Nov. 20, 1928, by Attorney John Hamilton King. Mr. Shea's death occurring Jan. 7 of this year.

In filing opposition at the first hearing on Feb. 1, Mrs. Shea, widow of Judge of Probate James E. Shea, who died January, 1917, alleged that "undue influence and lack of mental faculties at the time of making the will" were the grounds of protest. The hearing was continued from the 1st to Saturday. Mrs. Shea was represented by State's Attorney Hugh Alcorn of Hartford, assisted by his son, Attorney Howard Alcorn, of Hartford and Attorney Samuel B. Harvey of this city. Attorney John H. King represented the family.

The will provides that all the property of the deceased, consisting of three parcels including two business blocks on Main street, his home and other property on Windham road, be left to his three daughters, the Misses Annie and Mary Shea and Mrs. Alice Lund, all living at 125 Windham road. The sum of $500 was left to the 18-year-old daughter of Mrs. Catherine M. Shea. Testimony was introduced to show that some years ago Dennis Shea had given to his son, James E. Shea, father of the girl, the valuable business block at the corner of Main and North streets.

Dr. Louis I. Mason, the family physician, and Miss Sarah Clancy, one of the witnesses to the signing of the will, and the three members of the Shea family, were sharply questioned by the attorneys for the opposition. All claimed that Mr. Shea was in good mental condition and had full knowledge of his actions at the time the will was made out and up to a short time before his death over six weeks later.

Calling attention to the fact that the other two witnesses to the will were at present in California, Attorney Alcorn requested the court to keep the case open until their return. Attorney King objected on the grounds that their testimony was not needed. Judge Murphy ruled against the appeal and admitted the will.

Under questioning, Miss Annie Shea said that her father had made out a will late in October, but she had never seen it. She told of the drawing of the last will in November. Miss Mary Shea said that she was not in the room when the last will was drawn. She said that she and her sisters had always been supported by her father by means of an allowance. They had some stocks in investment companies. Mrs. Alice Lund said that her two sisters conducted the business of the father. She corroborated testimony of her sisters that her father had at times remarked that when James, their brother, was married many years ago, he had given the groom his share of the property. Mrs. Catherine M. Shea, James' widow, did not testify at the hearing.

With the election of five directors and a good speaking programme scheduled, a large attendance is expected at the annual meeting of the chamber of commerce to be held in the Nathan Hale hotel with a dinner at 6:15 o'clock Monday night. Fullerton, Attorney John B. Harvey, Edward C. Kenney, Pierre J. Laramee, Andrew C. Roux, William B. Sweeney and Patrick J. Twomey.

DANIELSON

POLICE BARRACKS NOW HOUSING PLENTY OF LIQUOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 16.—A squad of state officers from the Danielson barracks fared forth last night to conduct another series of raids, the net being spread on this occasion in Putnam and sections of the town of Thompson. The detail and net result of the series of raids is set forth in the Putnam news this morning. As in last Monday night's raids, County Investigator Rowe Wheeler, representing the state attorney's office for Windham county, cooperated with the state officers stationed here under the command of Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart in carrying out the actual raiding, which, it so happened, was not so productive of seizures as was the rule a week ago. The general assumption in official circles is that those who are selling whatever they have to sell, that has a kick in it are a bit more particular about not keeping too much stuff around at the present time. However, there may be some later developments of interest. Raids have been made in the past without officers getting anything, but they always have their reasons for raiding where they raid. Sometimes they already possess evidence of sales, though this is not always the case, and may not be as regards the raids of Saturday night.

Upwards of 500 bottles of home brew were seized at one place in Putnam and 331 quarts of wine were seized at one place raided at Mechanicsville. All of this potential enthusiasm is now under lock and key at the state police barracks on North Main street.

This particular Sunday just reached out and grabbed the doubtful honor of being the coldest day of the present winter. There has been plenty of cold weather, not a few people will recall, since that Saturday that fell on Nov. 30, and nearly froze thousands of football enthusiasts to death as they watched games on eastern gridirons. Yet compared to teday, Nov. 30 was comparatively warm. At 7:30 this morning thermometers about town registered 8 degrees above zero. Never during the day did the mercury climb above 12 degrees, and meanwhile a punishing northwest wind was whipping and whirling about the snow that came last night, and left a deposit of between five and six inches for people to clear off walks this morning, if they happened to be interested in any such Sunday exercise. Many were not interested, letting nature take its course. There may be colder days as the winter wears itself away, but they are going to be really rough if they beat this one.

OBITUARY

Mrs. William J. Brennan

The hundreds of people who knew her here and in Putnam and Mechanicsville will be shocked at the announcement of the death at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic, unexpectedly, Saturday morning, of Mrs Margaret Brennan, 44, wife of William J. Brennan, of Front street. The body was brought to the home here by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy.

Comparatively few people were aware that Mrs. Brennan was ill, and no one was prepared for the announcement that she had passed to another life. She had been a patient at the hospital in Willimantic, and had undergone a surgical operation, with practically no one here knowing anything about the matter. Her death is a cause of very general regret.

Mrs. Brennan was born in Halifax, N. S., a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Brien. For years before coming here to reside she had been a resident of Mechanicsville, where her father was one of the best-known citizens. She was also well known in Putnam. In past years, Mrs. Brennan had been associated with her husband in coaching successful amateur theatrical events in Danielson, always with success.

Mrs. Brennan leaves her husband who has been a resident here all of his life, and who is very well known; a sister, Nellie, in Baltimore, and a brother, resident in Pittsfield.

George Ford, alias George Beecher, the man who had it out with a squad of state officers in a raid at the Howard Bullard place on Killingly avenue in the town of Putnam the past week, isn't going to lose his eyesight as the result of being tear-gassed into submission by the officers, who were forced to be a bit rough with him to bring him under control. Beecher was flourishing a gun and was a prospective killer at the time he was gassed. Today it was stated that his eyes are clearing up, and there is the prospect that he may see more reasonably than ever before when he is well again. He is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic. Upon his release from the institution he will be arraigned in the city court at Putnam on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Howard Franklin of the Danielson Trust company and Ernest Dyson of the Windham County National bank, drafted without their knowledge or consent to do a service for the chamber of commerce, were handed some information on Saturday pertaining to a secret drawing to designate the store and the hour where some person would be awarded, through their observance, the $25 to be given away by the chamber of commerce. The store drawn was the Darbie Furniture company, the hour 3:50 p. m. Messrs. Franklin and Dyson were notified and went forth. Under the rules, they were to award the money to the first person they saw making a purchase. In accordance with that instruction, having entered the Darbie store, separately, yet together, in effect, they decided that Arthur U. Messier is the person entitled to get the reward, and while he may not, and probably does not, know at the time this was being written, that he is the winner, he can collect by seeing Charles E. Francis, chairman of the Merchants' committee of the chamber of commerce, at the Bacon company furniture store.

Miss Blanche Lamoureaux, who has established a high record of efficiency as a stenographer at the Windham County National bank during the past six years, and who some time since tendered her resignation, completed her association with that institution on Saturday. She is to enjoy a much-needed rest. During her period of service at the bank, Miss Lamoureaux has handled transactions of every financial description, and has enjoyed the confidence of depositors in every walk of life, and those she has so served will regret that she has resigned. Miss Lamoureaux, because of her efficiency and widespread acquaintance, has received offers of various positions, which, after a period of rest, will receive her consideration. And wherever she may go she will have the utmost wishes for success of her great many friends here.

Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The officers of the solemn high mass of requiem were Rev. Philip Massicot, Rev. J. H. Quinn, Wauregan, and Rev. Henry Chagnon. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Wauregan. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Miss Nellie Sullivan of Hartford was a guest here today of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, after having been in Plainfield Saturday to attend the funeral of her cousin, Daniel Sullivan.

At the week end, Amadee Goulet, financial secretary of Rose of Lima council, K. of C., surrendered its charter after nearly 40 years since its institution, of nearly 100 members, to Mystical Rose council, K. of C., of Wauregan, and Cargill council, of Putnam.

Church attendance in Danielson was cut this morning by reason of the fact that there was much snow on the ground after the storm of last night and because of the penetrating cold and high wind.

Saturday of this week, Washington's birthday, will be a bank holiday in Danielson, with all financial institutions closed for the day.

Many were attracted here from out of town Saturday, the occasion of Danielson's semi-annual Dollar day, and with many business men offering very special bargains.

PUTNAM

RAIDERS GET 512 BOTTLES OF BEER IN RESTAURANT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 16.—In their effort to curtail the activities of liquor sellers in eastern Windham county, which began last Monday evening with a series of sensational raids staged in Thompson and Killingly, state officers of Danielson barracks, co-operating with County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler of Willimantic and working under the direction of Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart invaded this city last night, staging a repetition of their work performed earlier in the week outside Putnam. Seven alleged speak-easies were visited, most of which were located in the north end of the city on Providence street. Only in one instance did the enforcement officers' venture meet with any degree of success, that being in the place of the fish and chop restaurant of Frank Smith on the corner of Providence and Church streets, where 512 bottles of home brew beer were seized. In other establishments no liquor of any description was obtained.

The liquor detail's visit last evening was not altogether a surprise. At frequent intervals during the course of Saturday afternoon the presence of the law enforcement officers was felt by keen observers and by dusk word of the impending raids had been buzzed throughout that section of the city known as "Rhodesville," furnishing ample time for violators to prepare for the onslaught.

The officers went out in pairs and at seven o'clock, the detail simultaneously swooped down upon the alleged liquor "joints." The candy and confectionery store of Louis Vadnais on Providence and Marshall streets, was visited by State Officers Nolan and Martin. No liquor of any description was found. The confectionery and news stand of Alvin Jarvis on Providence street, raided by Sergt. George L. Gardner and Officer James Carmody, failed to yield any of the contraband, as did the home of George Gates on Killingly avenue on the outskirts of the city. The meat market of Beausoliel Brothers, on the west end of Providence street, searched by Detective Wheeler and Officer Henry M. Mayo, contained no liquors. At the home of Felix "Babe" Peloquin, on Lee and Water streets, a small container of moonshine was seized by Detective Wheeler and Officer Mayo, after a lengthy search of the premises. Peloquin has not been arrested as yet. The home of Fred Gaucher on Providence street, proved to be bone dry, as Officers John T. Murphy and Royal V. Scranton found after a detailed search. The same was true of the alleged speak-easy at the home of Joseph Lucjak on Lincoln street in the Manhasset village, which was raided by Officers Martin and Elton T. Nolan.

The fish and chop eating house of Smith was visited by Detective Wheeler and Officer H. Theodore Strand. The large quantity of beer seized was carried away in a van employed by the detail. Smith was placed under arrest, charged with keeping with intent to sell and sale of intoxicating liquors. After posting a bond of $500 he was released for his appearance in city court in this city, Monday morning.

Their work finished in Putnam a squad of officers went to Thompson and Mechanicsville where two successful raids were staged. The wine manufacturing works and dispensing parlors at the home of George Martin, situated in the rear of the French River inn in Mechanicsville, fell before the onslaught of Officers John T. Murphy and Royal V. Scranton, netting an assorted cargo of wines with a value of $440 placed on the liquors by its owner, who was taken into custody, but later released in bonds of $500 for his appearance in justice court in North Grosvenordale, Monday afternoon at two o'clock. Officers Murphy and Scranton confiscated a large pressing machine and other apparatus used by Martin in manufacturing his products.

The farm of Joseph Balboa on Brandy hill in Thompson, was searched by Officers Nolan and Martin, but no liquor was found. The raids of Saturday evening are believed to be the result of the operations of undercover agents, said to have been devoting their efforts to alleged liquor establishments here for the past fortnight and the intensive drive against violators started last week in Danielson. Only a few of the places raided last night were old timers in the game of carrying on the illegal pursuit, the majority of proprietors being young men who took more or less delight in the fact that they had gone through the first onslaught of the law unscathed. Those of the old school, whose business establishments on Providence street have been the objectives of law enforcement squads since the institution of the prohibition laws were the least concerned with the invasion of the officers Saturday evening, passing the raids over as a periodical occurrence. In places where no liquors were seized, no arrests were made. In no way did the Putnam police concern themselves with Saturday evening's raids, it was learned today.

TWO BREAKS REPORTED IN BUSINESS SECTION

PUTNAM, Feb. 16.—A recurrence of activities of burglars in the business section, who have kept local and state police guessing as to their identity since last November, was evidenced again today when breaks were discovered at the fish market and sea grill of C. D. Arnold on Bundy street, and at the Progress Confectionery store on Main street. At Arnold's, windows rifled last November to admit thieves, were discovered broken this morning. An investigation revealed that the business house had been entered and a petty cash box robbed of about $4.20. No tell-tale marks to establish the identity of the person or persons responsible for the work were found by police. The entrance of the confectionery store and candy kitchen was discovered by officers making their rounds. Admittance was gained by forcing open a steel blind on the north side of the Court House block and breaking the window. Nothing of any value was reported missing from the store. The large safe containing Saturday's receipts had been tampered with, showing that the burglar was one familiar with the system and layout of the store.

Sergt. Alpherie Spooney, who investigated after the breaks were reported this morning, stated tonight that the burglars operated between 11.40 and 12.30 o'clock this morning. Captain A. J. Dubreuil who continued the work this morning said tonight that several local men are under surveillance and that an arrest may possibly be made Monday.

Both stores are out of the way places affording thieves opportunity to perform their deeds under the cover of darkness which prevails in the locale of each establishment.

4-H clubs of Killingly will mass at parlors of the Methodist church in Atawaugan next Friday evening, Feb. 21st, where an Achievement Night program will be given. The affair is being put on under the direction of Mrs. Marion Mills Wing, county club agent of the Windham County Farmers' association and will be marked by a series of demonstrations, a play and talks to be given by members of the organization for rural children. The three clubs—the Killingly Klimbers, Busy Bees and Bossenbiddies are to join in giving a one act play written by members of the clubs. Besides the short talks and songs to be given by local talent, there will be a talk, "So Big," by Bob Foster, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This will be a most worthwhile part of the evening program. There will also be a brief talk by Mr. Brundage, state club leader of Storrs college. During the program meritorious members of the clubs will be presented with certificates of achievement. Mrs. Mills has extended a cordial invitation to all those interested in the activities of the 4-H club work in Windham county to attend.

Lieut. Everett S. Davis, Army Air service, who arrived at Larned field Friday afternoon in a Curtiss Falcon bombing plane from his home base in Langley Field, Va., to spend the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett A. Davis, of Gary district, was forced to delay his intended return flight to the southern army base today because of extreme cold.

Cards and letters received this week from many Putnamites enjoying the balmy breezes of Florida's summer weather told of the intentions of the writers who are intending to attend the trial of Roland G. Laigne, "ice box" bandit.

While a six to seven inch snowfall of Saturday evening created playgrounds for local lovers of winter sports, the storm caused much damage to telephone and electrical circuits in this section, not to mention the volume of work it entailed for the maintenance crews of the railroad and state highway department here. At 11 o'clock Saturday night the storm reached the height of its intensity and displayed no signs of abating. The fleet of trucks of the highway department manned with extra crews and equipped with large plows set out at that hour to conquer the elements. Keeping up a steady race until early this morning all roads in this section were passable. The railroad section crews were kept busy until morning freeing interlocking signal systems hereabouts from the toils of the snow. Running a few minutes in arrears of schedules this morning trains on the Midland division of the New Haven made up for lost time this afternoon when relief from the effects of the storm had been obtained. Motor coach vans experienced no serious delays on the head of the snow, according to reports this afternoon.

Russell Gagne of Moosup was operated upon Saturday at the Day Kimball hospital for appendicitis. His condition was reported to be improved today.

Miss Ann Hogan of New York city is spending the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Hogan, of Tatem street.

Thomas J. Aylward of Pleasant street was in Providence Saturday.

Herbert A. Keech of Farrows street, spent Saturday in Springfield, Mass., where he attended a Boy Scout rally.

U. S. navy recruiting officers enlisted three local young men in the government service Friday.

According to Alderman Robert T. Chadwick of the ordinance committee of the common council, there appears to be no opposition to the proposed plan of a two hour time limit system of parking on the streets of the business section. The plan will be recommended to the council at the March session.

A number of local people who were returning from a boxing show in Taftville, Friday evening, viewed the wreckage of two cars which collided in Newent and in which Raymond Bernard, 18 year old North Grosvenordale youth lost his life.

Miss Ruth Shaw and Miss Ernestine Sherman, operators at the local telephone exchange are spending a few days in New York city this week.

Miss Alice Perry returned to her studies at Willimantic normal school today after passing the week end at her home on Grove street.

Ralph Davis, of Norwich, visited Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Davis of Gary district.

WAUREGAN

An excellent address was given by Rev. Carlos C. Rowlinson at the February meeting of the Wauregan Men's class. Preceding the meeting a meat-pie supper was served by a committee Mrs. Gertrude Tracy, Mrs. Arthur Milligan, Mrs. Kenneth Filkins, Mrs. A. J. Atwood and Mrs. Williams.

Mr. Mercier who is now employed at Lincoln, Maine, has spent a few days with his family at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Burns.

Rev. William Williams assisted. Rev. J. Ross Jones at the funeral of Mr. James Wignall. Mr. Wignall was a communicant of the Episcopal church, a member of the Wauregan Men's class, and will be greatly missed by many of the villagers.

The third in a series of dances sponsored by the Twilight league was held in the company hall Friday evening, Leach's orchestra furnishing the music.

Much activity is evidenced in the rehearsing of several plays to be given soon, as the Lenten season is approaching.

Founder's night will be celebrated Wednesday evening of this week by the local P. T. A. A special program has been arranged. All the meetings are held at the Wauregan grammar school, on the third Wednesday in each month and are open to all interested in the town schools.

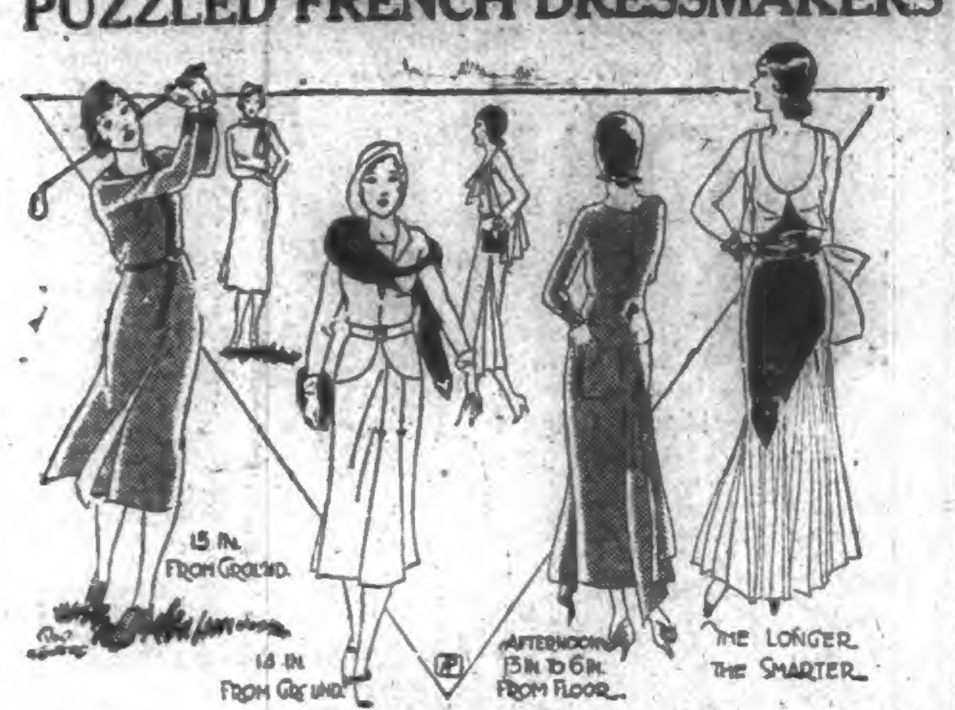
COMPOSITE WOMAN TO GUIDE PUZZLED FRENCH DRESSMAKERS



French dressmakers, fixing skirt lengths by applying a measuring tape to a "composite" American woman, say styles should be as pictured.

PARIS, Feb. 16—(AP)— French dressmakers, who are nothing if not individualists, are relying on a composite American woman to standardize skirt lengths.

The dressmaker started this long skirt business, to be sure, but over here each style creator makes his own rules and turns out skirts which may vary as much as 13 inches from those of rival couturiers.

Spring skirt lengths from New York to San Francisco will be determined by average measurements representing a non-existent composite creation most important to Paris designers.

Averaging skirt lengths of the 12 foremost dressmakers gives approximately the following measurements:

Clothes for active sports, 15 inches above ground.

Informal day and street costumes, including tailored ensembles, 14 inches from the ground.

Afternoon dresses, 13 to six inches from floor, depending on material and purpose.

Evening dresses, according to Paris, must not be more than six inches from the floor—and the longer the smarter.

By winter standards of the biggest houses skirt designs have not been lengthened greatly. Followers of haute couture houses have been accustomed so gradually to longer skirts that it is difficult for them to appreciate long skirts unaccepted everywhere.

Women dressed by exclusive Rue de la Paix couturiers have been wearing skirts almost as long as those shown for spring for six or eight months. By chic French women's standards, spring skirts for sport and street wear are only one to three inches longer than those they are now wearing, while ankle-length evening skirts are the rule at society gatherings.

Paris Convent Now Shelters Queen World Thinks Dead of Broken Heart

PARIS, Feb. 16—(AP)—A placid Montparnasse convent shelters a queen the world believes dead of a broken heart.

She is Natalie of Serbia, mother of the assassinated King Alexander and wife of King Milan whose riotous living forced his abdication and exile.

Queen Natalie is 71, withered and white haired. At the convent of Notre Dame de Sion it is said she has not spoken of her personal life since she entered the retreat 18 years ago.

She lives in strict seclusion with a lady-in-waiting always in attendance. The mother superior and nuns call her Queen Natalie but some are rather hazy as to what country she was queen of, believing it Rumania. Her mother was the Rumanian Princess Stutza.

Last of the once ruling house of Obrenovich, the death of her son, her marital difficulties, her husband's abdication and exile are well known episodes of the last turbulent days of the house of Obrenovich in pre-Karageorgevich Serbia, now part of Jugoslavia.

Married at 16 to Prince Milan she became the storm center of counterplotting on the part of Russia, Austria and Germany from the first days of her husband's coronation.

Her marriage to Milan was annulled in 1888 and until 1893 although hailed and treated as queen she lived apart, maintaining her own court at Wiesbaden. In 1893 the pair was reconciled and remained together until the king's abdication in favor of his son.

The story of the son's reign was even more unhappy. He and his wife, a former lady-in-waiting to Natalie, were murdered in their sleep at Sinaja palace, Belgrade, and their unclothed bodies flung into the garden below.

SMART FRAULEINS MUST BE BLONDES

BERLIN, Feb. 16—(AP)—Golden locks must grace the stylish German woman in 1930, whether gentlemen prefer or not, according to a decree of the hairdressers' guild.

The result has been startling. Brunets became blondes over night and blondes suddenly became titian-haired sirens.

A group of American redheads, a girls' jazz band, are credited with starting the fad.

REVIVE CAMISOLES FOR JERSEY BLOUSES

PARIS, Feb. 16 — (AP) — Tuck-in blouses, made of sheer lace-like wool jersey, are pushing the revival of lace and embroidery trimmed camisoles.

Several couturiers show jersey tuck-in blouses with tweed suits. They all require separate foundations or camisoles which form an integral part of the blouse.

TALKIE KISSES AROUSE AGITATION IN TURKEY

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 16 — (AP)—Audible kisses of the talkies, now that the talkies have become established in Constantinople, are giving rise to an agitated polemic in the Turkish press.

A shocked woman correspondent of one leading paper began the attack with an article stating that embraces of the old silent film were dangerous enough for Turkish girls, but that hearing kisses was far more deadly than seeing them.

She said official action should be taken to safeguard Turkish girls from this influence.

One masculine reply to the woman's article implied that differences of opinion exist as to the prudery of the modern Turkish flapper.

"DISTINGUISHED STRANGER" RANK SOUGHT BY WOMEN

LONDON, Feb. 16—(AP)—English women, who can vote, sit in parliament and hold cabinet portfolios, now seek the right to be Distinguished Strangers.

Thirteen of the 14 women members of the house of commons have signed a letter to the house speaker, pointing out that, while women are admitted to the public gallery of the house on equal terms with men, the Distinguished Strangers' gallery still is barred to them.

Why, they want to know, isn't a distinguished woman as distinguished as a distinguished man?

The "inequality" of the gallery of the illustrious, they say, frequently causes them embarrassment when they are visited in the house of commons by distinguished women from England or abroad.

RED, GREEN SIGN SPRING COLOR PACT

PARIS, Feb. 16—(AP)—Pea green, coral, cafe au lait and navy blue are colors for summer stressed by a couture house noted for its color schemes.

Pea green and tobacco brown are combined in dress and jacket ensembles, the darker shade utilized for belt, scarf and collar touches.

Navy blue and powder blue are extensively used in afternoon and morning ensembles, both silk and wool.

Emerald green with touches of bright or wine red is a new combination of color suggested for sport and wool dress and jacket ensembles.

WOMAN'S DESERT FLORA WINS HONORS IN ENGLAND

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 16—(AP)—The Royal Horticultural society of England has expressed its official appreciation to Mrs. A. Sherman Hoyt of her gift of a collection of California cacti and desert plants to Kew Gardens, London.

Regarded as one of the world's foremost authorities on desert flora, Mrs. Hoyt exhibited the collection at the society's Chelsea show last spring and was awarded a gold medal and an honorary life membership. This was the first time the Royal Horticultural society ever bestowed such honors on a woman.

Most of her collection, which numbers more than 150 plants, was gathered in Death Valley, with some coming from various California arid areas and deserts.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Cold tea will act as a fertilizer for house plants.

Painted shelves are most easily cared for.

Before handling dough, wash the hands in a weak solution of soda and water.

With all roasts, serve potatoes that are mashed, baked or roasted in the pan with the meat.

A very smooth hard sauce may be made by adding a beaten egg to the sugar and butter.

Quite often grease spots can be removed from wall paper by using a flannel rag dipped in alcohol and rubbing gently.

To remove paper, which has stuck to a polished surface, soften with a little olive oil.

A cocoanut can be broken without difficulty if it is first placed in the oven until warm.

Use paper napkins instead of cheesecloth to strain fat that has been used for frying: it saves laundry.

Use a cloth dipped in turpentine to clean greasy woodwork. Then wipe with a cloth dipped in water, to which add a little kerosene.

When buttering sandwiches dip the knife in hot water frequently and it will be much easier to spread the butter.

Juice of a fruit pie will not soak into the bottom crust and make it soggy if the crust is brushed with the white of an egg before the fruit is put in.

If necessary to bake several cakes at one time, much time can be saved by putting the required ingredients of batter in an ice cream freezer, then turn the crank to beat it.

COLD HINTS

When serving cold cuts and salad for luncheons, be sure that your plates are chilled thoroughly.

When you have left over boiled chicken or meat that you intend using later as cold cuts, put it back into the juice in which it was cooked and allow to cool before putting into the ice box. This makes it tastier and juicier.

MERINGUE

Make the meringue on pies and puddings at a moderate temperature sufficiently long to give it time to rise and cook the egg white; then it will hold its shape.

CUSTARD

A curdled custard may be rubbed through a fine sieve and cooked up again. There will be a loss in quantity, but that is better than atotal loss. Before you do anything, though, try beating it very hard.

SAVES NICKS

When washing valuable china or glassware, it is advisable to place a thick Turkish towel or a rubber pad in the bottom of the dishpan to prevent their chipping.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

To prevent a blister on the heel when shoes slip, rub paraffin or soap on the stocking. Within a short time the slipping will stop.

To make a mustard plaster measure one part of mustard and four parts of flour. Add tepid water until the mixture is smooth and the consistency of a well-cooked cereal.

Olive oil may be used on dry skin just as cold cream is used. It will not cause the growth of hair. Superfluous hair is due to a peculiarity of the structure of the skin and not the use of creams or lotions.

When the weather is too cold to permit opening the bedroom window of a sick person with comfort, have a board cut the exact width of the sash. Raise the window and place the board as you would a screen beneath it. This sends fresh cold air upwards and protects the patient from cold air.

SHAMPOO

Although it sounds very clean to wash your hair every week, nature never intended that it be shampooed that often. In cases of dry hair, oils are absorbed by the system, causing the hair to become brittle and straw-like, while in cases of oily hair, the glands are secreting oil on the outside of the hair, often-times causing it to become prematurely gray, the while leaving the lengths stringy with oil and the ends dry and brittle. If excessively oily or dry conditions were corrected in time there would not be so many prematurely gray heads as there are today.

CORRECT WALKING

To walk correctly hold your head erect, backbone straight, adbomen in and chest out. Be sure that your body from the waist up makes no movement. The propelling is done with legs swinging easily from the hips, knees held slightly rigid. Place a little more weight on the ball of the foot than the heel, so that you may be ready for the next step.

PREVENT TARNISHED JEWELRY

As the charm of many an antique trinket is in the dull, ancient finish it has gathered with age, do not be too hasty in rushing it off to a jeweler who may give it a high, modern finish with his electric buffing wheel. Dirt, of course, or tarnish, is apt to accumulate on any piece of gold or silver, new or old. But silver polish is quite as effective on gold as it is on silver. In fact, a simple polishing cloth, such as every housekeeper uses to give a final burnish to flat silver, will keep the same nice finish on any piece of jewelry. A still easier way of preventing tarnish is always to have a small piece of camphor in your jewel case.

CHILDREN'S COZY CORNER

Children should be provided with a cozy corner, with lounging couch or easy chair and light just right for reading or playing games. Too often the adults take all the available spots and wonder why the children do not read.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Handkerchief linen blouses and gilets are also important.

Chantilly lace is rivaling Alencon on smart lingerie sets.

Wide fur edged collars tied at the front are liked for resort coats, which are so often pastel.

The cowl neckline remains one of the favorite ones of a season rather remarkable for variety in necklines.

A vivid blue tweed suit has a flaring skirt cut well below the knee and extending above the high-waisted belt.

A new string of evening pearls has large ones for necklace and a decorative tassel of small pearls joined by a sacred jade brooch.

Lelong has a new evening gown of chiffon lace in floral design that has a bolero swinging below the waistline.

TREND IN SPRING SILKS

Shantung in natural color varying from the near-white tones to the very deep creamy biege shades promises to appear in fashionable costumes for winter resort wear.

Not only has shantung retained its vogue of last season, but it has influenced printed crepes to the extent that natural backgrounds and natural shantung colored resigns are seen in many of the springtime silks. The shantung weave also has affected a number of attractive woolens.

FUR FROCKS IN FASHION

Fur frocks are among the novelties made of rabbit—which you may call "lapin" if you like—dyed in beige or silver tones, these dresses are beautifully warm outdoors through a trifle too warm for the fireside. The fur is shaved so closely as to resemble velvet, and a smart little hat of the same fur completes the costume.

NORFOLK JACKET IN NEW VERSION

Whether the Norfolk jacket would return with the new favor for belted waistlines is a settled question, answered in the affirmative. It is a very feminine version of this type of jacket that adorns the resort and spring modes. Tweeds and knitted fabrics are the principal materials called into the service of the swagger style. Tuck-in blouses and hip-yoke skirts accompany the Norfolk jacket which alwas wears at least two pockets.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A better way than ironing a ribbon is to fill a fruit jar with boiling water and wind the ribbon around it, leaving it until dry.

When woolen stockings shrink in washing, put them through water again, and while still wet put them on a stocking stretcher.

Do not wring out rugs after washing them. Hang on the line and play the hose on them for rinsing. Then leave them until dry.

To keep curtains clean when the windows are open, paint safety clothes pins gay colors, and snap them on the curtains for holders.

Bluing stains can be removed from fabrics by soaking in strong ammonia water. Or soak in kerosene and wash with naphtha soap in tepid water.

WILL REMOVE INK

Ink accidentally spilled on table linen may be quickly and easily removed if the juice of a ripe tomato is rubbed over it immediately.

SHRUNKEN DRESSES

If your waists or dresses seem to have shrunk, perhaps it is in the pressing. Try pressing them the other way and see if they do not expand to their former dimensions.

TEST COLORED FABRICS

In laundering colored fabrics test a corner of the under hem or a part of the inside of a pocket. This is done by dipping it in a table glass of luke warm water and squeezing gently. If a little color escapes into the water, do not be alarmed, as that is merely surface dye. Use good neutral soap and luke warm water.

VARNISHED LINOLEUM SURFACE

A protective covering of varnish will make linoleum last longer and help to keep the kitchen floor attractive and clean. Varnishing is not a difficult process. Before you begin, make sure that the linoleum is spotlessly clean. Go over a small area at a time with mild soapsuds and luke warm water or a soap jelly, rinse and wipe each part thoroughly dry before proceeding to the next. Avoid flooding the surface with water as this is likely to rot the fabric. Then apply the first coat of varnish, wait until it is dry, and go over the surface a second time.

A coat of wax applied to the varnished surface will furnish additional protection. Rub it in well, let it dry thoroughly, then polish it with a weighted brush or an electric waxer. Frequent dusting with a clean dust-mop will remove gritty particles of rust and keep it clean under ordinary circumstances, but if the surface becomes spotted a damp soapy cloth will remove every trace of the stain. Be sure to replace any wax that may have been taken off in the washing. When the surface becomes soiled do not hesitate to mop it with soap and warm water. Dry it thoroughly and apply a fresh coating of wax.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Every native woman in Turkey has the right to elect or be elected in municipal elections.

Girls who work in Japanese mills receive, on an average, the equivalent of $15 a month in wages.

Mrs. Desire B. Pancaire, of Lucy, is the first woman in Louisiana to qualify as justice of the peace.

Married women in China have more freedom in business and in politics than unmarried women.

Women in Germany are opposed to the latest edict of the Paris dressmakers that women must wear long skirts.

Only 181 women are included among the 5,282 internes who are at present in hospitals in the United States.

After defying barbers for eight years, Judge Florence E. Allen, member of the supreme court of Ohio, now wears bobbed hair.

EXQUISITE INDEED

A most luxurious trifle for the writing desk consists of a flat piece of jade, which shades from white to pale green, and is beautifully carved. Upon it is set a small rooster carved from pink quartz, which faces a fountain pen, which stands ready for use, in a swinging socket.

AIRED HATS

Hats that business women wear to work should be aired each night by being hung up by their linings where the air can reach them.

CLEAN COLLARS

Many women let their coats go for weeks without cleaning the collars. Between cleanings for the whole coat, rub over the collar and cuffs with an old bath towel, dipped in cleaning fluid.

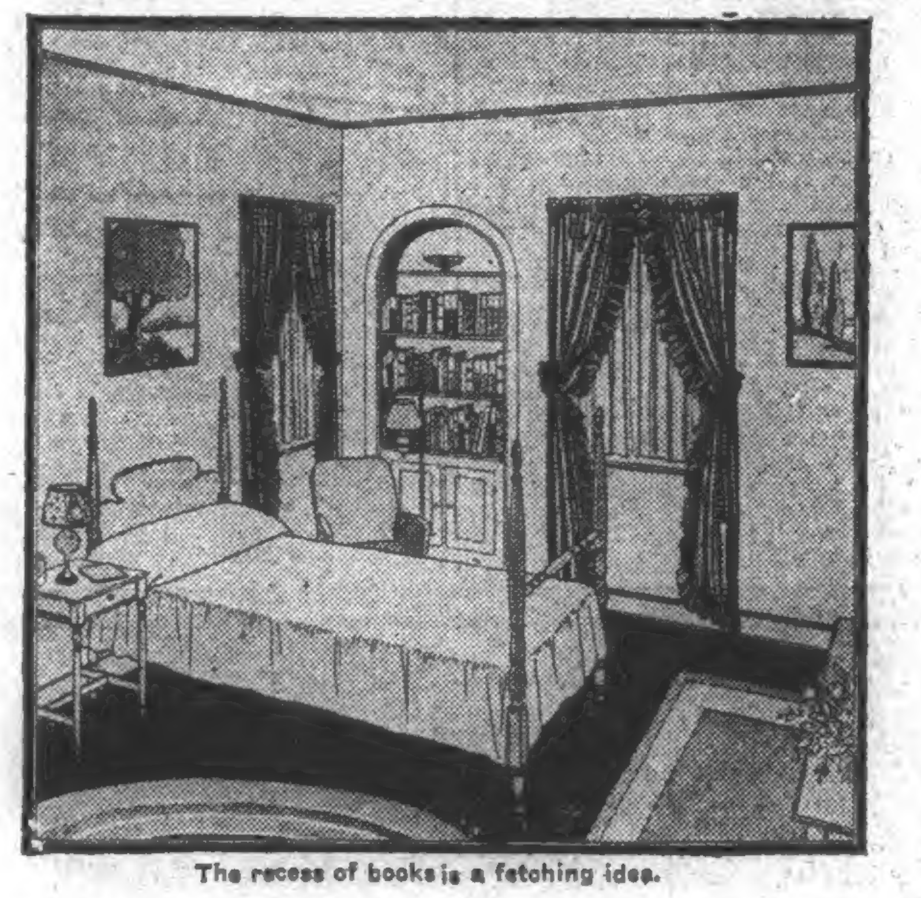
SACRIFICE JEWELRY FOR PERFECT SUN TAN

PARIS, Feb. 16—(AP)—Costume jewelry has lost its popularity with feminine sun bathers because it makes streaks where it prevents the sun from reaching the skin.

As a result costume jewelers show almost no beach jewelry for the coming summer. Most of their displays are intended to be worn on the ankles, where jewelry is in frequent motion.

Some beach beauties will wear beads around their hats instead of their necks. Braids and twists of multi-colored glass and wooden beads are chic torches for the sun sombrero.

CHARM AND UTILITY—THE BUILT-IN BOOKCASE



The recess of books is a fetching idea.

By Elsie Drew Kennedy.

For students, and those who love to have their books accessible, the bedroom with a built-in bookcase is a happy arrangement.

For one thing, a bookcase adds color and character to any room. And this is especially desirable in a bedroom, which is too apt to be an uninteresting affair of light bedspread and wall expanse. By giving your bedroom the comfort and color of a sitting-room you will add greatly to its attractiveness.

A built-in bookcase, such as the one shown in the illustration, combines charm with utility in a decorative manner. The shape is very pleasing—the graceful curve of the arch adding much to the decore of the room. Four set-in shelves provide plenty of room for books or bric-a-brac. And below these shelves, twin doors close over a cupboard.

Everyone collects odds and ends which must be kept in a fairly accessible place. For these, such a cupboard, which may be crammed with things and yet present a neat appearance, is a godsend.

One of the best features of the bookcase, however, is the fact that it may be made from a shallow closet—too shallow to hold many clothes, and an eyesore with its useless expanse of wood.

The four-poster bed is an admirable choice for a room which gains a certain quaint air from an arched, built-in bookcase. For convenience as well as effect, a small table with a reading lamp is drawn close to the head of the bed. This lamp is particularly interesting with a gracefully curved pewter base.

The shade may be made of parchment, gaining warmth in the application of an old print. The soft, subdued colors of a print on a parchment shade give glowing warmth to the light it sheds. Thus you obtain a light which is sufficient for reading, and also restful and attractive.

A gay binding at the top and bottom of the shade, and the application of minute silver stars are charming final touches. On the other side of the bed, a comfortable arm-chair and an adjustable bridge-lamp are placed conveniently near the bookcase.

You will notice that the floor is covered with a plain linoleum. It is always wise to keep the floor as inconspicuous as possible. Covering it in a plain color draws attention to the gay-colored scatter rugs which may be advantageously placed.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Barn Swallows.

Lucy was eight the summer the old barn had to be torn down. From June to August it was the home of hundreds of swallows that flew in and out of the little window under the peaked roof.

Many times Lucy had climbed the rafters in the mow and looked into the nests. She had lain for hours in the hay while the old birds flew in and out feeding their young. She listened idly to their delicious family conversations until she thought she quite understood.

So when she heard her father announce that the men were to begin wrecking tomorrow, she thought at once that the second brood was only just hatched, and that scarcely any of the young ones except those in the nest over the big door knew how to fly at all.

Next day the men began work. The nests were broken down and the pitiful debris of mud and straw and naked baby birds littered the old barn floor. Lucy did not go near, but for three days she heard the agonized cries of the frantic parent birds as they flew wildly about.

Lucy never forgave her father that carnage. At the time no one took the trouble to answer her plea that the wrecking be postponed until the swallows had gone. No one explained to her that the work of a farm cannot stop even for creatures as dear and beautiful as swallows, nor that nature daily perpetrates crimes of much greater magnitude.

Children often are thus shocked by what they feel to be the crass brutality of their elders. We who deal with children must keep ourselves aware of their feelings and values. We must try to soften the impact of experiences which outrage their sensibilities. We must act as sensible and sympathetic interpret[illegible]

FEATHERY FRILLS FLUTTER ARMY HEARTS IN CAPITAL

Miss Jane Crosby (right) and [illegible] Carr (left), two popular army girls of the capital's younger set, show new fashions in fans and flowers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—Army girls in Washington present the ultra feminine mode in dance frocks this season in striking contrast to the background of severe tailor-made uniforms of their escorts.

Feather fans, flowers, beads and bows are favored for that demure effect which the up-to-date members of the younger set prefers.

Mrs. Coolidge introduced the huge feather fan at a white house party last winter and since then it has been gaining in vogue. Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the vice president, carries a huge one of gold feathers which was sent her as a gift.

So many artificial flowers are worn by the younger girls that often they cover the whole shoulder and side. In color they range from flame to green and in kind from orchids to violets.

Katherine Carr, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Daniel Carr and Miss Jane Crosby, daughter of Major General and Mrs. Herbert Crosby are two popular army girls in the capital's younger set. Major General Crosby has just been named by President Hoover to head the district's police.

Army Officers Will Accompany U. S. Gold Star Women to France

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—Fifty army officers, selected for their tact and courtesy, will accompany the pilgrimages of 6,000 war wives and mothers to the graves of husbands and sons in France this spring and summer.

The women, who are being taken on the unique pilgrimage at government expense, will sail in groups of 300 on regular passenger vessels every week throughout the summer, according to plans of the war department.

One oficer will be on each boat. Others will accompany various delegations on their visits to cemeteries in France. The first contingent of women will leave New York May 7.

Engraved invitations soon will be sent the first 300, their names to be determined by a drawing of various states and territories to take place in Washington.

To avoid partiality, the names of the 48 states and five territories will be placed in a bowl in sealed envelopes. Some high ranking official will draw them out. Mothers and wives who are eligible for the trip from the first state or states will go first.

Nothing is being life undone by the government to make these pilgrimages of sentiment as comfortable and pleasant as possible for the women. They will go in spring and summer when the carefully-tended, flowering cemeteries in France look their prettiest.

Hotel accommodations in both New York and Paris are being engaged, as well as half the space on ocean vessels sailing weekly. From Paris the women will be taken to various cemeteries by bus in parties of 25 each. They will spend two weeks in France.

PRINTED MAROCAIN AMONG NEW FABRICS

PARIS, Feb. 16—(AP)—Some printed marocain is used for summer silk suits by outstanding style houses here.

Black and white printed marocain, in a small tweed patern, made up by one couturier in skirt and jacket suit with lemon yellow silk blouse and scarf, is among the new fabrics offered.

BEACH STYLES MATCH EVERY LITTLE THING

PARIS, Feb. 16—(AP)—Shoes, bag, beach cape, mattress, cushion, parasol and all knickknacks of the up-to-the-minute beach girl should be made of the same washable material, according to latest dictates from fashionable sport clothes designers.

The material may be linen, plain or printed cretonne, calico or gingham. It need not be assorted in texture or color to the essential beach suit or bathing costume, though it sometimes is.

White pique beach suits are much in vogue. They lend themselves to accessories of vivid color and design.

ROBIN'S EGG BLUE LEADS SPRING HUES

PARIS, Feb. 16—(AP)—Robin's egg blue is one of the pale shades favored in the spring showings.

The 1930 summer girl is being steered toward sleeveless sport dresses with short loose jackets of the same material and color. Most of the ensembles are pastel colored.

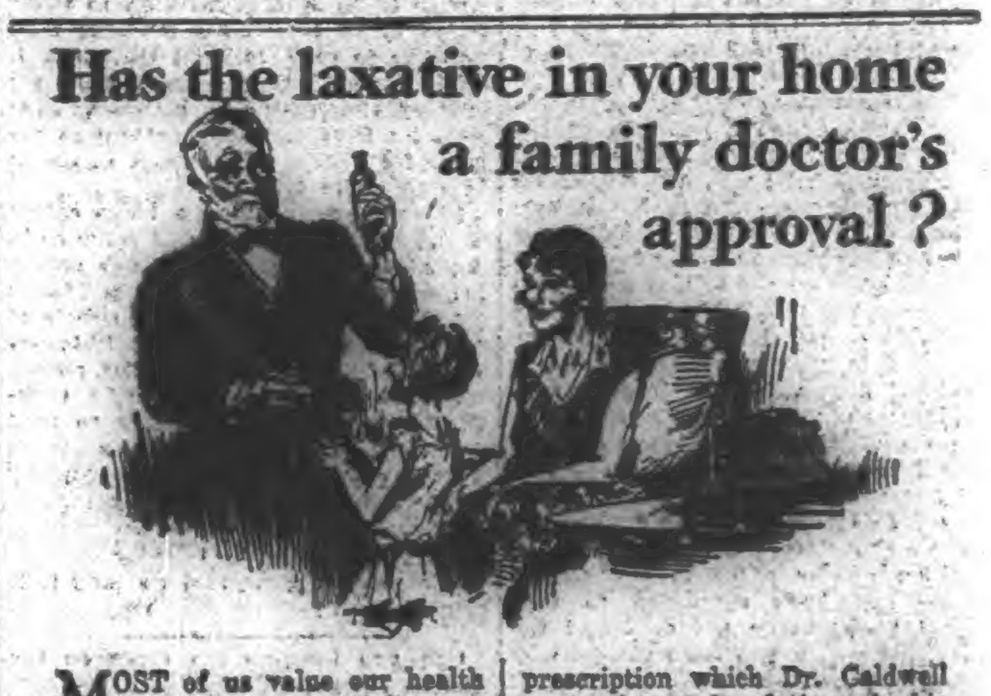
Cut-out embroidery of the old-fashioned eyelet type is used by an important designer for a robin's egg blue ensemble of wash silk.

CHIFFON RUFFLES TOP LONG, COLORED GLOVES

PARIS, Feb. 16—(AP)—Long evening gloves, of bright colors, flesh pink or black are shown with all evening dresses at the style establishment of a well known Russian woman designer.

Long chiffon ruffles, made of the same material as the evening gown, are added at the top of some of the long gloves.

Red and black printed chiffon is used for one effectivve costume which includes chiffon topped long gloves.



Has the laxative in your home a family doctor's approval?

MOST of us value our health too much to purposely neglect ourselves when we are warned of constipation by bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, a headache, lack of appetite, or that weak, helpless feeling. The continuation of our trouble is more often due to the things we do rather than the things we leave undone.

Some things people do to help the bowels really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what things will cleanse the system without harm. That's why the laxative in your home should have a family doctor's approval.

A wonderful product now known to millions of people as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original prescription which Dr. Caldwell wrote thousands of times in his many years of practice at Monticello, Illinois. He proved it safe and reliable for women and children; thoroughly effective for the most robust men. He showed it actually corrects constipation. It is made from fresh herbs and other pure ingredients.

Since Dr. Caldwell first permitted his prescription to be put up in bottles and sold through drug stores, it has increased steadily in popularity until today it is the largest selling laxative in the world!

TAKING THE CENSUS

It will not be long now before the census takers will be actively engaged in getting the records of the people of this country. This is in compliance with a federal requirement and all must respond to it whether they like it or not, although it is to be remembered that even though it is not approved the answers to the questions are held in confidence.

Already some of the blanks containing the questions to be asked are being put out for publicity purposes in order that all the people may have an opportunity to read them over in advance and be ready with the information desired when the census taker knocks at the door. This must be regarded as a good move for, as in the case of the farmer, there is a string of questions as long as his mowing lot to be answered and it is only fair that he should have a chance to do a bit of advance thinking about them. There seems to be no doubt but what it will save the time of the census taker if he finds the people prepared for his questions and ready with the answers.

The census machine has been gotten together to the extent of naming the supervisors of the various districts throughout the country. There remains the task of naming the actual census takers and schooling them in their duties.

When it comes to the census every ten years there is a demand for accuracy and thoroughness. Naturally every community wants its correct count. It has been fed up on estimates ever since the previous census and it is desirous of knowing the facts. The careful census taker is therefore important, but there is likewise a large responsibility that rests upon each and every person interrogated. There should be a desire to help the census taker with correct information and as complete as possible.

Although there are always those who make up their minds that they will resist in whole or in part the questionnaire, they must realize that in most instances others can furnish the facts, but in case the opposition to the census taker is serious enough those refusing to answer can be brought into court and penalized. It is thus the proper thing to lend every possible assistance to the decennial inventory of the country and speed it along.

VALUE OF FIRE DRILL

At such times as emphasis is being laid upon the importance of school drills to acquaint the children with the proper conduct in case of fire, the question is often asked as to whether there is any real value in it, whether the excitement surrounding a fire doesn't nullify the training.

Experience is one of the best answers to such a question. There are repeated instances which go to show that under the guidance of their teachers, school children march out of school buildings in time of danger in a prompt and orderly manner, with results far more satisfactory than would be the case if there were a wild stampede with everyone pushing and screaming to get out first. It reflects the fine work that has been done in the training and the thoroughness of the drills.

This is drawn to attention especially in the case where a quantity of gas which had escaped and become ignited in a building that was being used for the illicit manufacture of liquor near a New York school house. The explosion and the smashing of nearly every pane of glass on the side of the building adjoining the building where the explosion occurred would naturally be expected to greatly alarm the school children. Just what had happened no one knew. It was deemed advisable to get the children out as soon as possible and this was done by resort to the fire drill. There was no wild rush, no undue excitement and no one injured and it is clearly evident that full credit must be given to the control which had been developed in that school through the fire drill and the discipline which had been obtained by the teachers.

There is no telling when the occasion is going to arise for the immediate clearing of a school house as a protection for the many pupils. Unless there is some method of adequate preparation, those occasions must be stampedes with everyone looking out for himself and those in the way must take the consequences. It is fortunate if there is never any real occasion for putting the fire drill to actual use, but it is, nevertheless, an invaluable protection and preventive.

CHICAGO'S JOB

It makes little difference what it is, there has been so much happening in Chicago of late, that most anything in the way of news from that city attracts attention.

Raids are being made there which would create the impression that a real clean-up was being made. Many are being taken into custody, some are being prosecuted and others discharged. It is even claimed that the activity among the underworld is causing criminals to leave the Windy city and seek haven and new fields for operations in cities not far distant.

Whether this effort in Chicago represents a change of heart and is notice to the effect that it can be expected to accumulate strength as it grows older is a question which many would like answered. Chicago must realize that the trouble it has been experiencing at the hands of gangsters is only what it has invited. Efforts at clean-up have amounted to nothing. They have been flourishes that quickly faded away with criminal activities being resumed on a bigger scale within a few weeks. It has been much the same with them as it was with the mayor of that city, who appeared at his inaugural with two brooms with which to bring about a house cleaning in city hall. It was soon forgotten and now look at the condition which is prevailing in that city because of the manner in which its affairs have been administered. It would have been much better had there been no such proclamations about a house cleaning.

While Chicago needs the clean-up in the criminal class, and it has been made quite clear that the police know where to find those wanted, it will be of little value to the city if it is only a gesture. There will be a semblance of better conditions for a bit but all will be in operation again very shortly and bolder than ever, unless there is a determination to keep at the good work until some definite and lasting result has been obtained. In any clean-up the important requirement is to get the head and brains and so deal with them that there will be an actual breaking up of the reign of terror which has prevailed too long in that city. It is a question whether Chicago is ready to seriously tackle such a job.

LOCK YOUR CAR

It is customary to raise a big howl when crime is committed, but too often no effort is made to prevent its commission by those doing the howling.

Out in Indianapolis at the present time attention is being called to the many automobiles that are stolen in the course of a year, the demands that are made upon the authorities and publicity to recover them and the figures which show that most of the cars are recovered, having been taken for joy rides or the commission of some crime.

This naturally leads to the assertion that there is no need for many of such thefts, the claim that most of the cars are equipped with transmission or door locks and that if car owners would simply lock their machines they would be saved the annoyance of having them stolen and eliminate much of the work that is put upon the authorities in trying to locate and actually finding them.

As to the correctness of this statement there can be little doubt. It is an old habit to lock the door after the horse has been stolen and yet more and more people are being impressed with the importance of locking their machines whenever they leave them, even though it is only for a short time. This makes it impossible for those who would steal the machine for any purpose whatever and it would frustrate the scheme of others who are inclined to carry off whatever they can put their hands upon in automobiles.

Naturally the owner of a car is the one most interested. He doesn't like the annoyance which goes with a stolen car, but he should realize before he loses his car that it lies within his power to prevent it. Instead of encouraging auto stealing, car owners should be the first to be anxious to prevent it.

FIGHTING ILLITERACY

From time to time new efforts are put forth for the purpose of reducing illiteracy in this country. Just how much results from such movements is never definitely disclosed, but there is need for persistent effort in this direction.

When it is shown that there were about 5,000,000 illiterates in the country at the time of the last census, when the country's population of persons over 10 years of age was nearly 82,000,000, it showed that about one in every 16 could not write in any language. As an average throughout the country that discloses more than there should be.

Figures for Connecticut showed over 67,000 illiterates in a population of 1,088,000 over 10 years of age. In Rhode Island there were 31,312 in a similar population of 484,000, Massachusetts had 146,600 in a total of 3,142,000 and New York 425,000 in its population of 8,402,000.

These figures show that there is enough illiteracy to support any movement that is seriously undertaken to reduce it. That such inability to write, which in all probability includes their inability to read, in most instances, is found among adults doesn't make the task of overcoming it hopeless. That adds its handicaps but provisions are made for giving instructions to adults as well as to children.

Illiteracy prevails to a large extent in the southern states, and more so in the east than in the western states, but wherever it exists there is ground for prolonged and persistent efforts to reduce it. The fight against illiteracy needs to be aggressive. Desired results cannot be expected by merely mentioning the need of learning to read and write, and in most of the states, wherever located, there is opportunity for increased efforts.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The popular query: How long is it going to last?

Can you imagine the smile on the face of the groundhog?

There was never a time when the liquor business got so much advertising for nothing.

The man on the corner says: As a reminder of blizzards man ought to be satisfied with small imitations.

While the radio industry estimates the business this year is going to reach a billion, are you prepared to furnish your share?

Does Chicago place an inspected tag on all those gangsters it takes into custody and then turns loose without prosecution?

And still the wonder grows as to how long the flow of previously untold and unpublished Lincoln stories can be continued.

THE TRAVEL-TALK

"You know, darling we're all so thrilled to have you back and to hear all about your wonderful trip! Not one of the crowd has ever been to Africa, and I really think it's remarkable that I was able to get twenty-five girls together. Right after luncheon we'll go out on the veranda and you'll tell us every thing you saw and did."

Indes Canterbury had a mist before her eyes when she sat in the pretty dining room, looking around at the faces of these young matrons and girls whom she had known and loved through her schooldays. Around the world and back she had been since she had seen this merry crowd together. How long it seemed—and how very short!—since they had all romped and danced in the old grade schools or picnicked under the giant oak trees!

She didn't feel in the least like the Indes Canterbury who had traveled and been interviewed all over the country.

The old town had changed amazingly little in the six years. Every street had memories, each turn of the river recalled happy hours in a gay canoe. She blinked and listened hungerly to the broken, gossipy chatter which filled the air. To be called Iny again! How long was it since she had heard that loving, intimate little nickname?

Delicious food came and went. She knew that she was eating all of her old-time favorite dishes. They had remembered that she loved potato salad. That she always begged for hot cinnamon rolls with her fried chicken. Was there any place in all the world where one could get blueberry pie like this, the combination of luscious fruit and flaky pie crust?

She turned suddenly to her hostess. Pretty blond Kitty Meaden, who hadn't changed a bit, if she did boast a successful husband and a 4-year-old Bobbie.

"Kitty, do tell me, is old Gertrude still alive? I'd swear that no one else could make a pie like this."

Kitty dimpled and beamed.

"Alive and right here with me. Wait till I tell her that you remembered her and her pie! We can't wait to hear your wonderful adventures, Iny; and it's so heavenly to see you just the same, so pretty and interested in everything."

How they all chattered and laughed as they followed Kitty to the veranda. Ines felt that same choked feeling in her throat as she tried to talk to three at once. They circled about her, eager, sparkling faces, waiting for her words.

"You want to hear everything? Well, we started from Paris. We had to outfit there because—"

Plump Helen Grey caught her hand excitedly.

"Oh, darling, please tell me about that shop where you bought the coat. I'm going over next month—" For ten minutes they buzzed like magpies. Then Ines tried again.

"You see, we were going to interior Africa this time and several of the party met us in London, so—"

"Oh, Iny! Did you see Bess Walker in London? You knew that she married that rich Englishman, didn't you? My dear they have three homes! Tell her about the time you visited Bess, will you, Catherine?"

Ines listened eagerly, demanding news of people whom she thought she had forgotten years ago.

"Did you say Billie Fanning was a minister, Dot? How queer! Whom did he marry?"

"We had a great time in Rhodesia. Dr. Aiken had pulled the governor's little boy through a bad sickness and they couldn't do enough for us—"

"Iny, Sybil Grey adopted a little boy. Did you hear about her divorce?"

"Speaking of ice machines, did you know that Jim was the manager of Icy-Cold company, Iny?" handsome Lydia Cole demanded, her black eyes on her 2-year-old Betty. Ines exclaimed in pleasure and another half hour flew by.

Scraps of information about interior Africa drifted in and out of the conversation, but it was merely incidental. The air was full of:

"Oh, Iny, do you remember the time the boys put a tame mouse into our tent on that camping trip?"

"What ever became of Renny Hopkins? Some one said he lived in Camden—"

"How old are the twins, Janie? And can't I see them some time tonight?"

At 5 o'clock Kitty gave a startled gasp when she heard the chimes. She stared around the room at the vivacious crowd that surged about her. Her eyes widened.

"My goodness! I wanted Iny to tell you about her trip! It's terrible. We've just talked about ourselves and gossiped. What'll you think of us, Iny?"

There was a sudden pause in the mirth and chatter. The bright faces turned to the traveler.

Ines winked happy tears out of her eyes.

"Oh, drat the trip," she said a tremble in her voice. "You can all read the book. If you only knew how wonderful it was to see you all again like this"—and the voices rang out again.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—"Ole Joe" Grundy of Pennsylvania has earned a new title since he joined the senate. He's "Silent Joe" now.

He has cultivated the habit of being silent in more languages and on more subjects than "Silent Cal" Coolidge ever dreamed of.

Actually "Silent Cal" was a very loquacious president. If you doubt it, look back to the papers during his administration. You will find presidential views on many and divers subjects aired twice a week. It was only in connection with his own political plans that he closed up like a clam. On that subject he was silence itself.

But "Silent Joe" as a senator has been silent on all subjects, even the tariff. He wore his toga many weeks without bursting into speech on the senate floor. Yet, kindness of Fess of Ohio, the Congressional Record, quoted Mr. Grundy at length on the tariff. Only it was a second-hand speech, delivered to the Manufacturers club of Philadelphia. It got into the Record through no visible effort on Mr. Grundy's part.

At Little Say

That is one of the senate's little ways. No senator ever puts in a speech he delivered himself elsewhere than in the senate. Yet they all, or a great majority of them, manage to get into the Record. Some fellow senator does the job, saving the modesty of the speech maker.

The house is either less modest or less courteous. Members usually have to ask "leave to print" their own extra-congressional remarks themselves. They are not slow about doing it.

Senator Joe's Philadelphia speech attracted considerable attention when delivered because of his references to "migratory American capital" which emigrates abroad to find cheap labor, sets up its plants and joins cause with other foreign exporters and makes war on the American protective tariff wall. Senator Grundy promised to do something about that as senator, "in addition to the hoped for protective tariff."

But in the first part of his speech, which did not get much press attention, he did something else. He likened the state and federal division of governmental functions to "the broad arrangement of responsibilities which prevails in the average American home."

"Ma" and "Pa"

Household economy education and upbringing of children, maintenance of "community life and society as organized" were wifely matters dealt with by Mama states while Papa Uncle Sam's business was to go out in the world and bustle the national income.

It was, Mr. Grundy admitted, "a homely illustration." And had he used it in a senate speech instead of uncorking it in his maiden public effort as a senator in Philadelphia, much more might have been heard of it. What a chance lost to Thad Caraway, or Bill Borah, or Pat Harrison or any other representative of those "backward" mama states once enumerated to the lobby committee by Mr. Grundy.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 13

Pensions paid by a corporation or person to an individual for services he, himself, has rendered are taxable. Pensions or retired pay paid by the United States government also are taxable, except as provided by the revenue act, which exempts from taxation "amounts received as compensation, family allotments and allowances under the war risk insurance act, the vocational rehabilitation act, or the World war veterans' act, 1924, or as pensions from the United States for service of the beneficiary or another in the military or naval forces in time of war."

Pensions received from a state are exempt from tax, also a bonus paid by a state to its residents who served in the military or naval forces during the war with Germany. Benefits received from a labor union by a member while on strike constitute taxable income. An allowance paid by the governing body of a religious denomination from retirement funds formed by assessments of various churches in which he has been employed is taxable income.

Annuities paid to retired employees of the Federal government are subject to the tax to the extent that the aggregate amount of the payments exceed the amounts withheld from compensation of the employees. If an employee leaves the government service before he is eligible for retirement and receives the amount of salary withheld, together with interest, he should report only the amount of interest received as income for the year in which received.

YOUR HEALTH

Home Example And Health

By Philip Zenner, M. D., Cincinnati
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Examples in the home have a profound influence on the life and character of the child. Whether it be truthful or untruthful, honest or dishonest, considerate of others or selfish, quarrelsome or peaceful depends in no small measure upon what it has seen in its own home. All this is well known. But we often overlook the equally true fact that example in the home may have a decisive influence upon the child's health.

Childhood is the especially impressionable period of life, when suggestion has great influence and the instinct of imitation is all-powerful. So the manifestations of health or disease which the child sees may lead to like manifestations in itself.

For example, take the mother who makes much of her ailments. The child is sure to imitate, and even to imagine symptoms if it does not feel them. Or the mother gives way to her nerves, or makes bitter complaints of her suffering. Or there may be attacks of moodiness, temper, irritability, anxiety, fears, unhappiness or depression, any of which may have a disastrous effect on the child.

Many an invalid, both child and adult—for the symptoms acquired by the child may pass on into adult life—owes its condition to its parents to the manifestations of disease it saw in them in early life. It is not a happy thought to parents that they are responsible for the ailments of their children, but the knowledge that this may and does occur is of double value. The love for the child and the desire to promote its health and happiness will help to a degree of control so that the child will see less of symptoms in the parents; and at the same time this self-control on the part of the parents will be often a direct benefit to themselves. So much for the influence of disease suggestions.

Now just a word on the other side. A morning shower, regular use of tooth brushes, regular bowel movements, judicious eating with no tendency to finicky preferences, adequate sleep, scrupulous cleanliness—these are forms of instruction the parents give by example far more effectively than by talking and scolding. Always expect the child to imitate what you are rather than do what you say.

A Baby Has a Tumble

You'll often find a sorry deed
Is traceable to naught but greed.
—Old Mother Nature.

Sammy Jay couldn't keep away from that part of the Green Forest where Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty had their nest. He knew he was running a risk every time he went over there. But the idea that any one could have babies in winter, with snow and ice all about, was something that Sammy couldn't get over. Once he got near enough to that nest while Hooty and Mrs. Hooty were away so that he got a good look at the two baby Owls. He discovered then that of all the bird babies he had ever seen these were the most warmly dressed. They had downy coats that went clear to their toenails. He understood a little better then how it was that they could stand the cold weather.

And such a hungry pair as they were! Sammy soon discovered that Hooty and Mrs. Hooty hunted by day as well as by night. He used to wonder sometimes when they slept. He was shocked many times, was Sammy Jay, when he saw how many little people had been caught and killed that those little Owls might grow.

"They have bad tempers," declared Sammy to Mrs. Sammy. "They fight over their food. You would think there was enough for a dozen babies, but, just the same, they fight over it. Never in my life did I see such cross, greedy youngsters!"

This was quite true. Those babies were short-tempered and they were greedy. However, Hooty and Mrs. Hooty were good providers. It might be hard huntin at that season of the year, but the babies were never allowed to go hungry. The father and mother often went hungry, but the babies never did. Of course, having plenty to eat, they grew rapidly. It was surprising how fast they did grow. When there was a storm of snow or rain their mother kept them covered. Sometimes it seemed as if the worse the weather, the stronger those babies grew. They certainly were a healthy pair.

It happened that one morning Sammy Jay got over there very early. He discovered right away that Hooty and Mrs. Hooty were both away. Those two little owls were fighting over something. Yes, sir, they were quarreling and fighting. It wasn't at all a nice thing to see. Presently one of them, who was a little bit stronger than the other, managed to push the other to the very edge of the nest. Then what do you think he pushed that other right out of the nest. Yes, sir, he did just that thing. Sammy Jay saw it all.

The little Owl who was pushed out fell over backward. He turned over once in the air. He hit against a limb, and before he could grab it with his claws he fell once more. He hit on the broad part of a hemlock limb below. It didn't hurt any, but there was nothing to hold onto. He just slid off. So, flapping his funny little wings, that hadn't feathered out yet, he tumbled on clear down to the ground. He landed with a thump. Sammy wondered if he were hurt. Then he concluded, by the fuss the little Owl was making, that he was more frightened than hurt. Sammy himself was very much excited. He wondered what would happen now. What would Mrs. Hooty do if she came home and found only one baby? Would she go looking for the other? If she found him, would she pick him up and carry him back?

"I've got to stay around," muttered Sammy. "I've just got to see what Mrs. Hooty will do. Yes, sir, I've just got to see. My, my, I wouldn't have missed this for anything! Such tempers as those two young Owls have! I'm glad my youngsters are not so cross. If Mrs. Hooty doesn't take that youngster back up in the tree, Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote or Yowler the Bobcat will have a chance to try young owl for a dinner."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Dainty Bessie Love, the smallest and most lovable of all the screen stars, walked straight into the hearts of her audiences at the Broadway Saturday and yesterday, in "Chasing Rainbows", exceeding even her success in "Broadway Melody." In "Chasing Rainbows," she is again teamed with Charlie King, also a "Melody" star, whose black curls and devastating voice are more attractive than ever. The picture tells an absorbing story of a little musical comedy star who "mothers" the whole company, and in particular the philandering Charlie, who flits from girl to girl, with every change of the wind. In the end, however, after a 42-week season of varying fortunes, and weather ranging from blistering heat to blizzards and pouring rain, Bessie "gets her man" from the grasping clutches of a scheming vamp. Cleverly sustained suspense is lightened with howling comedy and bewilderingly beautiful revue scenes in natural colors, with snappy melodies and jazz tunes running riot throughout the production. Jack Benny comes into his own as a wise-cracking stage manager, and Polly Moran and Marie Dressler have the funniest opportunity of their torrid career. Eddie Phillips, Nita Martan, Gwen Lee and George K. Arthur are also prominent in the cast. Faster, funnier, friskier than any of the musical shows, "Chasing Rainbows" furnishes nearly two hours of delightful entertainment, and is surrounded with an interesting bill of "shows," including the latest Paramount Sound news, three selected vitaphone specialties, including an old time minstrel show, and William O'Neal, well known operatic baritone with his French Legion buddies in "On the March," a stirring vocal novelty.

Former President Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge and their party passed through Jacksonville on their way to the Pacific coast.

MOTHERS' HOPES
What Chance Have They if Real Music Must Be Sacrificed to Machine-made Sound?

MOTHERS strive valiantly to give their children happiness—a chance to enjoy the richest, fullest lives. Contrary forces forever oppose Mother's hopes.

Today change — speed — unrest work to thwart her longing for contentment. . . . The ruthless spirit of the Machine Age threatens to crowd out all humanizing culture. . . . Men and women whiz heedlessly through life to the clatter of the eternal machine. . . . Now, the machine has entered the realm of the musical art. Is this the Song of Progress? No! Machine-made music can never provide a substitute for the mellowing cultural influence of Real Music. Those concerned for the future of the race will resent the strangling of the art of music by a mechanical substitute in the theatre. Yet the art will be strangled if this false economy is not halted by public demand. . . . Here is opportunity for Mother and all who share her hopes to cast a vote for preservation of Living Music. Verified Origin Seed Available

The successful growing of alfalfa and red clover in Connecticut is determined among other factors upon the source of the seed, according to Commissioner of Agriculture S. McLean Buckingham. It is essential in order to avoid crop failures that seed sown should come from a section of the country where the climate is at least as severe as it is in Connecticut.

Sixty seedsmen handling 85 per cent of all alfalfa seed produced in the west, central and northern producing districts have voluntarily enrolled in the seed verification service and are known as verified-origin seed dealers.

Farmers planning to sow alfalfa or red clover this spring are advised by the state department of agriculture to give the origin of their seed serious consideration.

There is to be a fashion show Thursday afternoon in Westerly high school auditorium under the auspices of the Rhode Island Farm bureau.

URGES NORWICH JEWS TO SUPPORT SYNAGOGUE

"The Jews of Norwich have an excellent opportunity to preserve the Jewish past," said Rabbi Bernard Stolper of the Jewish Theological seminary in an interesting sermon at the Norwich Community synagogue service Friday evening at the B'nai B'rith rooms. "It is within their power to be the torch bearers of Jewish tradition. They need but will it that it be done. If there is anything that can be pointed to as the single means of preserving these ideals it is the synagogue."

"It is in the synagogue that the Hebrew language is fostered," he stated. "It is in the synagogue where young and old receive instructions in Jewish law and it is there where Palestine is mentioned thrice daily. No greater ideals need be held up as the necessary goals for Norwich Jewry. No effort should be spared in making the newly acquired synagogue a success. If we still believe in the traditions of our fathers, if we desire to maintain Jewish continuity, if we desire that our children re-live the noble life of our ancestors, we must leave no stone unturned toward the raising of a house of worship. May Norwich Jewry go from strength to strength, may their efforts not be in vain and may they be the pride of their community."

"We Jews are on the point of entering a new life," the rabbi said. "Jewish life in the future will have to be different from that of the past. We must free ourselves from the "slaveries of many Egypts." The material, spiritual and cultural oppression of our people no longer exists in the country as it did in medieval Europe, and in more recent Russia and Rumania. But this newly acquired freedom we have gained in this country should in no way destroy the memory of the past. There is no reason that we, with our blessings of freedom should not observe our sacred traditional teachings of the past as well as our fathers who did not have, these self-same blessings.

"Memory is as important in the race as it is in the individual. Memory links the past with the present. It raises man from the depths of barbarism to spiritualized civilization. If the child began life depending solely on his own memory it would be necessary for him to re-live his life, so it is with the people. A nation's memory is its tradition, its culture, its cherished ideals.

"We do not forgive Ohmar because he burned the Alexandrian library, since he destroyed the valued traditions of the past. It is only natural for future generations to say that we are a group of barbarians because we failed to transmit our past.

"Then what is necessary to be done so that we may carry our past along. We may briefly summarize our obligations in three words: Language, law and land. Language is the vehicle of individual expression. The Hebrew language is the vehicle of expression of the Jewish soul. It is the language through which our people have poured forth their souls in times of distress and oppression. It is the language of song and the time of joy. Without it the Jews are as helpless as the carpenter is without his tools.

"Law, by which I mean that element which serves as a guide to life, is also indispensable for the survival of our people.

"But neither language nor law can become realized without some degree of attachment to the Holy Land."

FARRELL WINS PENSACOLA OPEN WITH GRAND FINISH

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Playing the final round in three under par and sinking a 25-foot putt on the final green for a birdie, Johnny Farrell, slender St. Augustine, Fla., professional, posted a 287 today to win the second annual $3,500 Greater Pensacola open golf tournament. The former National open champion, playing his best round of the 72-hole tourney, thrilled a gallery of several hundred as he sank his long putt to win first money, which seemingly was destined to go to Gene Sarazen, little Italian pro, from New York, who had posted a 288 more than an hour before Farrell finished.

Four strokes behind Sarazen and five away from the leader were Whiffy Cox of Brooklyn and Herman Barron of Portchester, N. Y., with 292's.

Barron, who was tied with "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, unattached, yesterday for the leadership at the end of the 36 holes play, took 149 today and dropped from the preferred position. Mehlhorn also faltered today, taking a 151, and fell back into sixth place with 294, one stroke behind Tony Manero of New York, who captured fifth place money.

Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., had a 295, while two veterans, Craig Wood of Bloomfield, N. J., and Harry Cooper, unattached, were deadlocked for eighth place with 296's.

Roland Hancock of Lynchburg, Va., and Al Espinosa, master artist from Chicago, were side by side with 297.

THREAD CITY ELKS WIN FROM WHALERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 16—Following a precedent established in the defeat of Norwich last week Willimantic Elks trounced their brothers from New London 9 1-2 to 3 1-2 in the return engagement in the second round of the round robin tournaments played at the local home today. The locals took three out of four points in the spectacular bowling matches, three out of four in pool and three and a half at cards. In bowling Willimantic took the first string by 36, the second by 58, but dropped the third to New London by 79. A strong comeback by Tom Pickett gave Willimantic the point for total pinfall by a margin of four pins, 1754 to 1750. Scurvis of New London took high three strings and a point for his lodge with a total of 382. Ray Parker of Willimantic took high single with 153. Other good total scores for the three strings were Lace of New London 374, Tommy Pickett 373, and Ray Packer 370. In the pool matches Al Benoit beat Rasmussen of New London 50 to 34. Wadsworth beat Chandeor of New London 50 to 9. Douglas of New London defeated J. Potvin 50 to 34. Ray Angier defeated Griffin of New London 50 to 46. At cards Willimantic took a half point in pinochle, one point in pitch, one in cribbage and one point in 45, leaving New London a half point in pinochle. Despite the inclement weather there was a large turnout of Whaling City Elks as well as local members. Excellent refreshments were served in charge of the refreshment committee, Ernest Lafleur, chairman. The next round robin tournament in which the locals will engage in will be at New London Wednesday evening, Feb. 26.

TWO BANNER GAMES IN CHURCH LEAGUE TONIGHT

Tonight at the Y. M. C. A. two of the most important games toward the final standing will be played.

In the first game of the evening the Gamma club will meet the second place Brothers of Joseph. A Gamma win will send the Brothers into third place and will send themselves well on the road to another league leadership. A. B. O. J. win will result in a tie for first place. The Gammas are favored to win because of their new teammate, Earnie Stevens of last year's Academy squad.

In the second game of the evening the Central Baptist will meet the Baltic Methodist, the former in fourth and the latter in third place. The Baptists have a good chance to upset the Methodists as their teamwork has improved while the Methodists made a poor showing against the Stronghearts in their last game. Both games prove to be exciting prospects both for the game and league standing.

The present standing:

FIVE TIGER GAMES UNDER NON-SCOUTING AGREEMENT

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Five of Princeton's seven football games next fall will be played under non-scouting agreement, it was announced today by Dr. Charles E. Kennedy, chairman of the Princeton board of athletic control.

Following its policy of recent years, Princeton invited all of its 1930 football opponents to meet under non-scouting agreements. The five who accepted, Amherst, Chicago, Brown, Lehigh and Yale had similar agreements with the Tigers last year.

BEAUREGARD IS STATE TITLEHOLDER

Al Beauregard of Taftville has been named as state bantamweight titleholder by Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue of New London. Commissioner Donohue made this statement during the bouts at Parish hall last Friday night, saying that the bantamweight crown rightfully belongs to Beauregard as there is not another bantamweight in the state who can rightfully claim recognition.

Bantamweights in Connecticut are few and far between and in fact there are not so many in New England. In fact, there is such a dearth of bantams that Beauregard has been forced to fight at 121 and even as high as 124 pounds in order to get work. A few bantamweight boys are springing up in the western part of the state but they are still fighting preliminaries and have not advanced far enough to seriously challenge Beauregard's right to recognition as the state champion.

The leading bantams in New England include Johnny Vacca of Boston, Vernon Cormier of Worcester and Al Brown of New Bedford. Of these three, Beauregard has met Vacca and was beaten on a questionable decision at Pittsfield back in 1928. Beauregard is anxious to defend his title against the boys in the state before going out after the New England title, which he intends to go after in the near future.

Cold, isn't it?

Well, the cold weather and the snow will give the country correspondents something to write about.

There seems to be more or less rivalry between certain towns relative to the low temperatures, the depth of snow and the amount of rain each has.

You see in one town where the thermometer registered zero on a certain morning. Then next day a neighboring town comes out with the statement that it was six below. And so it goes until finally we find a town that almost rivals the temperature at the North pole.

One town says that the snow was four inches deep. Next day the neighboring town registers eight and finally some enterprising correspondent measures a drift and claims three feet for his town. Yes, weather makes a wonderful topic for discussion, the same as big fish.

And what would the old timers do if it weren't for an occasional snow storm and cold day. What excuse would they have for telling us of the younger generation about the terrible blizzard of '88. There's been some powerful tales about that blizzard.

Every time it starts to snow in a real brisk way you'll hear some old timer say, "Waal, it looks like we was in for a bit of weather now. You know this is just the way the blizzard of '88 started." And then comes the story of how he had to go up to the second floor in order to get out of the house.

Then you hear somebody say, "The winters we have now ain't like those we used to have. We don't get no more big snow storms. Why, I remember it was days and days before the roads was open."

Sure, that's probably right. In those days they didn't have wide state roads and a state highway department that was out before it stopped snowing to clear the roads.

Yes, the weather makes a great subject to talk on. If it hadn't been for it I'd have been out of luck tonight.

KIMBALL WINS DOG DERBY IN RECORD TIME

OGDEN, Utah, Feb. 16.—(AP)— Earl Kimball of Reno, Nev., won the Wasatch dog derby today from a field of 11 starters. His time for the full course of 50.4 miles was three hours, 42 minutes, 19 seconds believed to be a new world's record for the distance.

Thula Green, Idaho woman musher driving for a San Francisco commercial concern, was second with a total elapsed time of 3:52:14, and only 43 seconds behind her was Roy Stover, Sacramento, winner of the Tahoe-Sierra derby last month. His time was 3:52:57.

Fourth was Pete Kiley of Franklin county, Idaho, driving for his wife, "Whistlin' Lyd" Hutchinson, in 4:055-13 and Delbert Groom, youthful Idaho musher, driving for a Sacramento business house, was fifth in 4:06:52.

Other finishers in order were:

Tud Kent, Ogden, 4:07:37.

Dwane Kent, Tud's brother, driving for Brigham City, Utah, 4:07:45.

Ray Peterson, Salt Lake City, 4:23:52.

Harry Whitehead, Ogden, 4:33.34.

George Allan, San Francisco, driving for his father, "Scotty" Allan, 4:43:41.

NO FAVORITE SEEN IN INTERCOLLEGIATE BASKETBALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 16. —(AP)— Defeats during the past week for both Penn and Columbia, coupled with Cornell's victory over Dartmouth have made the 1930 Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league championship race a wide-open affair with no outstanding favorite.

Columbia, after giving Penn a terrific trouncing at New York on Wednesday night, fell before the cellar-dwelling Elis of Yale at New Haven two nights later. Thus the beginning of another week of league warfare finds Columbia and Penn tied for the lead, each with three victories and one defeat, and the rest of the pack all within hailing distance of the top. Even Yale, with four defeats in six games figures to better its position for the Bulldogs will play all but one of their remaining games at New Haven where they are exceptionally strong.

KOZIOL FIGHTS YOUNG LEFTY AT FALL RIVER TONIGHT

Al Koziol, local knockout king, fresh from his knockout victory over Joe Machado of Fall River on Friday night, resumes the fistic war tonight at Fall River when he meets Young Lefty of Providence. Lefty holds a decision or so over the local boy, but so did Machado. Koziol since knocking out Machado is full of confidence and last night said that he was certain that he could take Lefty by the same route.

On Thursday, Koziol fights at Providence against Tony Lizia, a newcomer from Sunny Italy, who is making his American debut. The local boy is also signed for a bout in Middletown this month and then on March 4 boxes Ero Peterson of Worcester at Danielson.

HOROWITZ STILL AT TOP OF COLLEGE LIST

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Ed Horowitz, Yale forward, maintains his lead in the scoring race of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league but Lewis, of Cornell, may yet give him a real battle for the individual title.

Figures compiled by the Associated Press to date credit Horowitz with 52 points in six games to 38 for Lewis in five contests. Gregory, Columbia center, holds third place with 32 points in four games.

Horowitz easily leads in field goals with 21 and Burch of Dartmouth in four goals with 11. Murphy of Cornell has committed the most personal fouls, 13.

MUCH INTEREST IN TOMORROW NIGHT'S GAME

Interest is running high in the coming attraction to be staged at the Parish hall, Taftville, Tuesday night when the Army and Navy and the Shyma club basketball teams take the floor in the first game of their series for the championship of the village. This game should be a hummer as both teams seem to be evenly matched and there is plenty of rivalry between the outfits. Watch tomorrow's paper for the lineups.

Y SENIORS TAKE ONE-SIDED GAME FROM WINSTED FIVE; NORWICH GIRLS WIN

The Y Seniors had things mostly their own way with Winsted over at the Y gym Saturday night and went back into the winning column in the state Y league race by winning a wild and wooly game as far as the scoring was concerned. The final score read 62 to 37.

The Seniors played rings around their opponents from the other end of the state and at no time after the first two minutes was the outcome of the game in doubt. The Seniors ran up a 6 to 0 lead in the third minute of the game and were able to hold this advantage and even add plenty to it as the minutes rolled by.

The locals were in front by 15 to 9 at the end of the first period, 33 to 17 at the half and 48 to 24 at the third quarter. Winsted spurt a bit in both the first and last quarters, holding better than its own against the Seniors' second team in the last period.

Tommy Lynch, right forward, the youngest member of the team and who will no doubt be a whale of a player for the Academy next year, was the leading scorer with 18 points, followed by Aubrey Brown with twelve and Les Pingree with ten. Finn was the leading Winstead tallier with 11 points.

Girls Win Once More

The Norwich Girls had the toughest problem of their home season with the Tourtellotte high girls from North Grosvenordale but managed to come out with a 22 to 16 decision. It was their fifth victory in six starts.

At half time the locals led by only two points, 14 to 12 but were slightly better in the next half. The work of Miss O'Hart, the sharpshooting forward and the clever guarding of Miss Manry, right guard, featured the play of the winning sextet. Miss Johnson played a neat game for Tourtellotte.

ACADEMY RELAY TEAM PLACES 4TH IN COMPETITION AGAINST COLLEGE RUNNERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

BOSTON, Feb. 16.—Norwich Academy's crack relay team had another fine performance to its credit to add to brilliant work of the past year, after the College Freshman event at the Boston A. A. games in the Boston Garden had been concluded Saturday night.

Beat Four Good Teams.

The Wildcat quartet from the Rose City of New England, Bill Agnew, Jim Sera, Johnny Lenkiewicz and Captain Sam Berkman, running from scratch against eight leading yearling teams of the eastern states came through with a fourth place, beating out Holy Cross, Harvard, M. I. T., and Brown, and being nosed out only by Northwestern, New Hampshire and Dartmouth, in that order. But for accident to Bill Agnew, the lead-off man, the Red and Whitesters might have returned home with a position among the first three.

At the crack of the gun the nine lead-off men were off in a bunch. On the second bank of the Huntington street side of the arena, two men cut in, knocking Agnew to the track. The three men fell and three more runners immediately behind, piled up in a heap, making six in all, on the floor.

Agnew Runs Game Race.

Agnew, although severely shaken up, was the first up, and picking up his stick, set out to regain the loss of 2-3s of a lap to the three runners that had gone ahead. He ran a game race for the remainder of the distance and then passed to Sera, who set out with a burst of speed that cut down much of the distance, but he tired from the pace toward the end of his journey and things began to look dark for Norwich's chances of making a respectable showing.

Lenkiewicz, taking the baton from the fast-tiring Sera, held his own with the field and then passed to the anchorman of the only high school team in the race, Capt. Berkman, the Wildcats were in sixth place. Berkman set out with grim determination and passed two colleges to bring his team in about only five yards behind the Dartmouth freshman anchor and showing his heels to four of the strong freshman quartets. Had the race gone just a few yards more, Berkman would probably have brought N. F. A. into a place among the first three, as he was fast gaining at the tape.

Large Attendance.

The track at best can accommodate but four runners, and with nine on the track, this put the speedsters to quite a disadvantage, and it was practically an impossibility to pass on a bank. The meet drew a packed gallery.

Other events of interest to Norwich fans, were the winning of the 40 yard dash by Jimmy Daley, of Holy Cross, in which Gordon Winslow, of Putnam, Conn., a freshmen at the Worcester school, was also a finalist, and the sensational performance of the Holy Cross varsity relay team in winning from Boston college, their old rivals. The Crusader relay team, together with Daley and other of the Holy Cross stars, had competed in Norwich within the month.

This was Norwich's first entrance in a major meet. The relay team will compete in the Knights of Columbus games in New York, March 1, and will also probably enter the big meet at Hartford, March 10.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Beaton and Cadwell Manufacturing Company, New Britain.

The company was organized as The Beaton and Bradley company at Southington in 1894 to manufacture floor and ceiling plates, moving in 1901 to New Britain. The corporate name was changed to The Beaton and Cadwell Manufacturing company in 1910, at which time the capital was increased from $10,000 to $50,000 and the floor space from 1500 square feet to 7,00. In 1914 the capitalization was doubled and the floor space increased to 9,000 square feet. The present capital is $200,000 and the floor space 15,000 square feet.

In 1917 a modern six story factory building, made necessary by the increasing volume of business, was completed. Products then manufactured consisted of the "Perfection Line" floor and ceiling plates comprising 25 styles made of cast iron and brass and sheet steel and brass, several types of pipe hangers, pipe hanger rolls, floor sleeves, automatic air valves and key and wood wheel air valves.

Additional items are continually being added to the company's varied line of steam and plumbing specialties, noteworthy among them being the Simplex flush valve, manufactured since 1924, the Cadwell No. 10 non-adjustable air valve for steam radiators and in September 1929 had begun on the Cadwell No. 20 vacuum valve which had been perfected after extensive experimentation.

The present officers are: William H. Cadwell, president; Russell H. Hubbard, treasurer; James E. Lukens, secretary and assistant treasurer.

GENERAL RECOVERY IN TRADE AND INDUSTRY REPORTED LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—(AP)—Gradual broadening out of the recovery in trade and industry was reported during the past week, although gains continued irregular and for the most part small.

Of particular interest, were the weekly mercantile reviews reporting slight though tangible expansion in both wholesale and retail trade, the first improvement to be noted in several weeks. Wholesalers reported more active buying in anticipation of spring requirements, and retail sales were undoubtedly helped by less severe weather over large areas.

Steel mill operations continued to gain slowly, ingot production for the industry reaching an aggregate of about 79 per cent of capacity. The gain, however, was attributed primarily to large purchases of rails and rolling stock by the railways.

The rather sharp drops in commodity prices, unsettling factors of the past fortnight, appeared to have been checked, and partial recovery was achieved here and there, notably in grains. The cotton market fluctuated uncertainly, but managed to work a little.

The petroleum industry continued to have its difficulties, the reductions of about 15 per cent in crude oil purchasing prices posted about a month ago by Standards of New Jersey and New York were finally met by Sinclair and Standard of Indiana.

The January copper statistics showed further gain in stocks, although smaller than that of December, despite somewhat larger shipments and further cutting down of production.

Automobile plants continued to expand output slightly, particularly manufacturer of small cars. Farm implement makers also were active. Manufacturers of small cars. Farm implecotton goods continued dull, while silk and rayon mills were fairly active. Few visible signs of the expected upturn in building activity were seen, and lumber, brick and tile plants were quiet. Shoe manufacturing was a little more active in the middle west, but held quiet in the east.

The Boston and Kansas City Federal Reserve banks joined the New York and Chicago institutions in lowering rediscount rates to 4 per cent. Easing in credit rates to commercial borrowers, however, has been slight so far.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—(AP)—Lumber orders were about 4 per cent less and shipments were about 7 per cent less than production for the week ending Feb. 8, it was indicated in reports from 793 hardwood and softwood mills to the National Lumber Manufacturers association. These reports gave combined production as [illegible] feet, with new business 12 per cent and shipments 11 per cent, respectively, above that figure. A week earlier 821 mills gave production as [illegible] feet.

Phoenix Hosiery Co. had net income of $[illegible] last year, equal to 34 cents a share on the common. Earnings in the preceding year were $871,175, or 80 cents a share.

A new investment firm, to be known as the First National Company of Bridgeport, Conn., has been formed by interests close to the First National Bank and Trust Co., of that city. The company plans to specialize in conducting an investment security business and will confine its activities to the New England territory and to the metropolitan area of New York, eventually extending them to other investment centers.

MR. AND MRS. B. C. BLISS NOTE GOLDEN WEDDING SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Bliss celebrated their golden wedding Sunday with a family gathering. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bliss have been ill, but are in much better health, and were able to enjoy the party, which included their daughters, Miss Marguerite Bliss and Mrs. William McNicol, and the latter's husband with their three children; their son, Donald and his wife and son, Robert, of Worcester, and Mrs. Bliss' sister, Miss Sarah Burrall. Not being aware that anyone knew of the anniversary, they were delightfully surprised to receive a basket of fruit from the Ladies' society of the Congregational church and Warden Edmond Jodoin, in which was $50 in gold from their many friends in the church. An exquisite basket of yellow roses and carnations was received from Dorcas circle of The King's Daughters and a gold piece from Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R. A huge wedding cake adorned with 50 golden candles was made by their daughter-in-law. Numerous gold pieces were received from the family, with various remembrances from other friends. Mr. and Mrs. Bliss have lived in Jewett City for over 34 years, coming here when Mr. Bliss was buttermaker at Jewett City creamery, and later became its superintendent, a position he held until two years and a half ago. Mrs. Bliss was born in Stockbridge, Mass., July 12, 1862, and Mr. Bliss was born in Hatfield, Mass., March 28, 1858. They were married in Stockbridge. Both are members of Jewett City Congregational church, and were faithful attendants at all its services until prevented by ill health. Mrs. Bliss is a member of Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., and the auxiliary of the local American Legion post. Mr. Bliss is a member of Reliance lodge, I. O. O. F. Both have received the congratulations and best wishes of many friends.

Oyster stew and raw, scalloped salmon, Pachaug chapel, 6, Tuesday, 45c.—adv.

Few men have ever attained the record in the butter-making industry held by Mr. Bliss. He began the business when a young man, and when the commercial creamery was in its earliest stages. With long terms of creamery management in every state of New England, except Maine and Rhode Island, as well as in New York state, Mr. Bliss became familiar with all branches of expert butter making and a master of his trade. His knowledge was of the sort that is accumulated by years of actual contact with the many phases of expert butter manufacturing. Among the many lines of advancement which he has seen is the improvement in creamery machinery, notably in tempering vats, mixers and churns. As applied to the Jewett City creamery, where 25 years ago Mr. Bliss became buttermaker, he was able to turn out the gilt-edge product for which he made the local plant famous, for the reason that he knew his business and kept the machinery of butter making always up to the minute. In his time here, the old swing churn which was suspended from the ceiling by means of long iron rods made way for the revolving square pattern. The printing system was improved and the mixing accomplished by power. When the creamery enjoyed its heyday, from three to four hundred pounds of print butter were often the daily product. Mr. Bliss always made every matter connected with his business subservient to excellence, so that time and again premiums were his reward. At the state fair in Meriden, 32 years ago, the local buttermaker, Mr. Bliss, swept the board and took the first prize and state certificate for excellence.

Tonight's K. of C. meeting postponed until Tues. eve.—adv.

Patrolmen and watchmen reported Sunday, that Saturday night was the first real rough night this winter. There have been a dozen colder nights but none with the accompaniment of a near-blizzard. After midnight a stiff wind blew from the east, at half-gale velocity, with the result that the eight-inch snowfall was considerably drifted. Both the town and state road snow plows cleared the streets early in the day. This, the tenth snowfall of the winter, with eight inches, brings the total of snow in this section up to 22 inches. All day Sunday the mercury held at points between 8 to 14 above.

ALL GAVE HELPFUL AID AFTER ARCH BRIDGE CRASH

Mr. and Mrs. George Guillotte were the first to render aid to the people injured in the wreck at the Arch bridge in Lisbon Friday night. They were driving toward Jewett City when they came upon the site of the accident and immediately rushed three of the ones most seriously injured to Backus hospital. They remained until after midnight at the hospital, assisting in their care. All the calls for relatives, doctors, ambulance and priests were made from the home of Clarence Whitaker, who resides nearby. Miss Bessie McCluggage, operator on duty at the Jewett City exchange, is being praised for her prompt transmission of the calls for assistance. Mrs. P. W. Chase, R. N., hearing almost immediately of the tragedy, offered her assistance, and drove at once to Lisbon.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

Durin the past several months the Palace theater has presented a number of musical shows. You remember the "Gold Diggers of Broadway," with all its lavish splendor and great songs. You recall the "Show of Shows," so thickly sprinkled with stars. Next came "Sally," with beautiful Marilyn Miller dancing her heart out for you and singing you into another world. Now the Palace has another great show of this type, greater perhaps than any of the preceding ones—"No, No Nanette," a dazzling musical comedy starring Bernice Claire and handsome Alexander Gray whose singing was so large a part of the success of "Sally."

This exceptionally lavish production has a whale of a good plot. The story is all about a good wife who wouldn't let her millionaire husband spend any money on her. So the husband let other women spend it instead. He was that way, and his intentions were always of the best, even when, unknown to his wife he financed a musical show written by the sweetheart of his best friend's daughter, and starring the daughter herself. Pretty soon everything starts coming out in the wash, and the husband, who, as we have said, is really just a big-hearted boy, finds the water getting hotter and hotter until at length everything pretty nearly goes up in steam—but doesn't, just by a stroke of great luck.

There are many stars in "No, No Nanette." Do you like saber-faced, dismal-voiced Zasu Pitts? Well you'll find her in this show as the maid, and she does a remarkable job of acting. If you like Louise Fazenda, come and see her as the dowdy misunderstood wife, who finally works up courage to go out and buy herself a load of clothes. Then there are also the inimitable Lucian Littlefield, as the husband himself, Mildred Harris and Jocelyn Lee, a couple of vamps, Bert Roach had a host of other singers, dancers and funny people. To see "No, No, Nanette" is an education, and a glorious holiday from the everyday, workaday world. Nobody should miss this musical, dancing and comical treat. It will be held at the Palace through Tuesday evening.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 16—Harold Smith, ice dealer and Edna Roy, who gave her occupation as housekeeper, were arrested early this morning at their abode, 33 Chappell street, charged with lascivious carriage and were locked up at police headquarters. They furnished a surety on their respective bonds of $100 and were liberated. The young man and woman will be in the police court Monday. Smith and the Roy young woman, the latter having been a charge at the State Farm for Women at one time, were arrested by Sergeant John Courtney and State Police Officer William E. MacKenzie. They had been residing for several months at the Chappell street house and prior to that time at 71 Blackhall street, as man and wife, although they had not gone through the formality of being married. Smith has been married, but stated that he is of the opinion that his wife has divorced him.

Quaker Hill Woman a Scofflaw

Alvina M. Byron, of Quaker Hill, Waterford, was arrested by Patrolman Lawrence Fardy Saturday charged with violation of the city's parking laws and will be in police court Monday. The woman not only parked her automobile in restricted area on Masonic street, but drove the car to a point in front of the fire house of Nameaug Engine company that would prevent the fire truck being driven from the house in the event of a fire.

Merris Levine reported to the police today that he drove his automobile to his garage on Tinker court Saturday afternoon and this forenoon discovered the car missing. It was later found abandoned on Shaw street, near Pratt.

BUS DRIVER MAY DIE AFTER THREE-CORNERED CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 16—As a result of a three-cornered crash between a Groton & Stonington Traction company bus, a truck owned by Marcus Trail, Groton and a Pontiac coach owned by Milford Swineburne, Poquonoc Bridge, Saturday afternoon in Groton, one death may be the toll. The driver of the bus, Melvin F. Gilleney, 50 High street, Mystic, is in a critical condition at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Gilleney suffered internal injuries, a fractured leg, contusions and abrasions of the face and head. Edward Deady, 29 Granite street, Groton, a passenger in the bus, suffered a fractured left arm and he is also a patient at the hospital. George W. Taylor, driver of the truck, residing on South road, Groton, suffered contusions of the head and is being treated at his home. Swineburne escaped injury. Bus and coach were damaged, particularly the bus, which was rendered unfit for service. The crash caused a complete tieup of traffic for nearly two hours, during which time all of 200 automobiles were held up at either side of the crash. The accident is being investigated by State Police Officers William E. MacKenzie, Michael Murphy and Arthur Whitmarsh.

The crash occurred shortly after 5 o'clock when the bus was following the Pontiac coach on Poquonoc road, both destined for New London. When between the mill of the Max Pollack company and Trail's corner, the Pontiac skidded on the slippery highway and went to the right side of the road. The bus was close behind the pleasure auto and when the latter skidded, the bus hit Swineburne's car and then passed to the left side of the road just as the truck, headed in the opposite direction was about to pass. Before Gilleney or Taylor could bring their heavy vehicles to a stop, a head-on-crash resulted, the bus and the truck locking and stopped directly across the road. The crash caused Gilleney to be hurled forward violently and produced the injuries which are so serious.

A wrecking outfit was summoned, but it was nearly two hours before the truck and bus were freed and hauled to the side of the highway so traffic could be resumed.

There was no session of the police court Saturday. But one arrest was made Friday and the man, who was charged with intoxication, was discharged as he was not a frequent offender.

Fred Barber, who has been using a portion of the highway of Sixteenth street for storing four delapidated automobiles and who could not be found Friday, was located Saturday by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and ordered to have the derelicts taken from the street. Barber promised to carry out the order.

An employe of the Southern New England Telephone company made complaint to the police Saturday that cables stored on the premises, 409 Broad street, were tampered with Friday night and that it appeared as though some of the cable had been stolen.

A deed was filed for record at the office of the city clerk Saturday, quitclaiming property on Tenth street, owned by Arthur Messer, to John Messer, Jr., of Pawtucket, R. I. The property comprises three houses. Messer has also been given power of attorney by the Pawtucket man.

NEEDED A NEW COAT— GOT ONE BY STEALING

Raymond Gentiliella, 17, of 46 Truman street, was arrested Saturday by State Police Officer John Smith and will be in Waterford town court Monday afternoon. Gentiliella went to a Pleasure Beach, Waterford, dance hall earlier in the week and decided to exchange his overcoat for a better one. Entering the coast room, Gentiliella stole the coat of Edward S. McLaughlin and left his worn one in its place. When McLaughlin discovered the theft, he reported it to the state police and suspicion pointed to Gentiliella as the thief. When Officer Smith found Gentiliella he admitted the theft of the garment, for he was in possession of it.

ARRESTED IN STONINGTON— LOCKED UP IN NEW LONDON

Joseph Serpa, New Bedford, Mass., was arrested in Stonington today by State Police Officers Arthur Whitmarsh and Michael Murphy charged with intoxication and resisting an officer. He will be presented in the police court Monday and will be held for he is desired in court as a material witness when the trial of Linwood, "Peanuts," Farrell, 17, and colored, is started in May. Farrell is in jail and has confessed to beating and robbing Wsheman on Shapley street early the morning of Jan. 12.

WINTER'S COLDEST STORM FURNISHES WORK FOR IDLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 16.—This city experienced the most severe weather of the winter, Saturday night and today, but with the Arctic weather came work for many unemployed. Throughout the day shovelers and truck drivers were engaged removing snow from the principal streets. The snow started falling Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock and continued until the early morning hours. With the ending of the storm, the temperature dropped rapidly and at 6 o'clock thermometers registered 7 above zero. A high wind prevailed during the day and tonight a further drop in the mercury was noted, for at 9 o'clock the thermometer registered 4 above and will fall close to zero before morning. Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning a force of truck drivers and about 50 shovelers were set to work removing snow from State, Main and Bank streets. As fast as the trucks were loaded they were driven to the municipal pier and the snow was dumped into the river. This work will be continued Monday and men who have been without work will thus secure two or three days' employment.

Several cases of intoxication will be included in the grist to be given attention in the police court Monday. A sailor who was at the Crown theatre Saturday night, and who was ejected three times, was finally arrested by Patrolman Michael Dorsey. Another fellow, who was on North Bank street and who had fallen several times in the snow, was arrested by Sergeant Frank Howard.

At the meeting of Stafford grange Tuesday evening there will be readings on Washington and Lincoln, also Flag Etiquette.

COLCHESTER

The snow which began to fall in this vicinity about 5 o'clock Saturday evening reached a depth of nearly six inches, one of the heaviest falls so far this winter. Foreman Maurice S. Raymond, of the local state highway repair division, had his men with motor-driven plows at work throughout the evening clearing the snow from the Hartford-New London-Norwich and Willimantic turnpikes. Late at night, all the main roads were reported in good condition for motor travel. In keeping with the record set by previous foremen of the local state highway district, Foreman Raymond has maintained fine efficiency this winter, the state roads in this vicinity being kept open to traffic regardless of the intensity of storms.

No serious automobile accidents were reported in this section. Business in the local stores was at a standstill Saturday evening, as the majority of the townspeople preferred the comforts of the fireside to braving the storm. The principal activity in the business section was at new Park hall where a basketball game was played between Bacon Academy and Nathan Hale high school.

Early Sunday morning, mercury readings as low as six degrees below zero were reported at different points about the village, while in the vicinity of the Lucius H. Chapman garage on the Colchester-Norwich road, the mercury registered twelve below.

Miss Silvia Jaffe of Hartford visited over Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Jaffe.

Friends of Albert Harrison Foote were encouraged to learn that he showed some improvement over the week end from his recent serious illness, at his home on the Amston road.

An old resident who keeps a record of the weather says that Saturday evening's snow storm is the nineteenth so far this winter, snow-falls heavy enough to track a fox being included in the count.

John J. Wrinn, of Brooklyn, N. Y., visited over Sunday with Windham avenue relatives.

A number of local motorists expect to go to Hartford this week to secure renewal of their operators' licenses which expire at the end of the month.

Jitney Players Coming

Under the auspices of St. James lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M., the Jitney Players are to present at Masonic temple next Friday evening a popular melodrama of 1840 called "The Murder in the Red Barn." This was produced all over England in a portable theatre and it is the Jitney Players who are giving it its first American production.

The action of the play is swift with lively dialogue and many screamingly funny scenes such as the one at the local circus and that of frightening Tim Bobbin, billed as a Rustic Gent, with a make-believe ghost. If you are tender hearted, don't worry, for you will laugh more than you will weep.

WESTERLY

WILLIAM J. HAYDEN DIES AFTER SHOCK FROM WIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 16—William J. Hayden, 30, of 307 West avenue, Pawcatuck, R. I., shocked by a high tension electric current, died at the Westerly hospital about 1 p. m. Saturday.

About 7:15 a. m. the accident happened as he was beginning his day's work on the new transformer plant of the South County Public Service company at Westerly. How he came into contact with the wire has not been explained. He was working on a stretcher 15 feet above ground, fellow employes said, when an arc flashed out of his body and he was thrown down. In the fall he fractured his skull. At Westerly hospital Dr. Michael H. Scanlon and Dr. C. Grant Savage found he had virtually no chance of recovery. An hour before Hayden died his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Hayden of Pawtucket, arrived at the hospital. A brother, Robert G. Hayden, was working on the transformer plant at the time of the accident but did not learn of it until some time later. The brothers were employed by the New England Power Construction company of Worcester, coming to Westerly when that concern began construction of the power company's new sub-station. William Hayden boarded temporarily at 106 West Broad street, Westerly.

Knight Children Buried

From the Gavitt Funeral home Saturday morning were taken the bodies of year-old George Everett Knight and his crippled sister, Annie Elizabeth, who were trapped by flames in their home at Lantern Hill, North Stonington, Thursday afternoon, for burial in Elm Grove cemetery, Mystic. The children belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Knight, who formerly resided on a small farm in Lower Pawcatuck. One son survives.

Clem Bradshaw of Canal street, and Albert Henderson of the Shore Road, Westerly, were summoned Saturday by Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon, of Pawcatuck to report in Stonington town court before Judge William A. Wilcox Tuesday next. Bradshaw was arrested on West Broad street after engaging in an argument with the officer. It is claimed that he parked his car to go into a store and that while he was away the machine moved. When the officer asked Mr. Bradshaw what was the matter with his brakes the latter is said to have become "sassy" with the result that Patrolman Sheldon requested his license. His arrest followed when he could not produce one either for himself or the car.

Henderson, whom Officer A. R. Sheldon claims is being held on a breach of the peace charge, was released Saturday afternoon under bonds of $50 furnished by Henry P. Walton.

It is understood that Representative Clifford W. Campbell had parked his automobile on the bridge while he went into Henderson's market. Officer Sheldon spoke to Mr. Campbell, it is said, about his car being on the crossing and the owner of the machine volunteered to remove it. Officer Sheldon claims Mr. Henderson then started an argument with him which resulted in the officer summoning him to appear in court.

MYSTIC

KNIGHT CHILDREN'S BONES BURIED IN ELM GROVE CEM.

(Special to The Bulletin)

MYSTIC, Feb 16.—Saturday morning, at 11 o'clock, the charred bones, all that was left of the two Knight children, were lowered into the grave on the Knight plot, in Elm Grove cemetery, Mystic. The children were George, one year old, and Annie, two years old, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Knight of the Lantern Hill road, near North Stonington. Mr. Knight had gone to Westerly to get some food for the family, which was just about destitute, and Mrs. Knight had gone to a neighbor's for some milk Thursday afternoon, thus leaving the two children with their three-year old brother alone in the house. In some unexplainable way, fire started and the oldest child was able to escape and started to get his mother. By the time she returned, the house was tumbling into the cellar, taking the two helpless children with it. Annie was a cripple, having suffered from rickets and of course, the baby was too small to move. It was one of the most tragic happenings ever recorded hereabouts.

There will be a mission meeting in the vestry of the Union Baptist church this (Monday) evening at 7:45, under the auspices of the Friendly league of the church. The speaker will be Mrs. A. D. Markley, wife of the superintendent of the Mather school, Beaufort, S. C.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Burdick visited friends in Westerly Saturday afternoon and evening.

After a lingering illness Mrs. Mary M. Clark, 73, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Herbert, 41 Golden street, Sunday morning at 3.30 o'clock. She was born April 11, 1857, in West Hartlepool, England, the daughter of the late Ralph and Ann Thompson, and spent most of her life in England. Eight years ago she came to this country to make her home with her daughter.

WORST SNOW STORM OF WINTER HITS CITY FOLLOWED BY SHARP COLD SUNDAY

Between eight and nine inches of snow were left in the wake of the worst storm of the winter which swept over Norwich and eastern Connecticut Saturday night and early Sunday morning. Automobile traffic was badly tied up and trolley car, bus and train schedules were delayed. Zero weather and a northeast gale accompanied the storm with the result that Sunday was close to the coldest day of the present winter.

It was shortly after 4 o'clock that the snow started to fall, and a couple of hours later the storm took on the proportions of a blizzard. From then on until the early morning hours the storm gathered in intensity, the gale piling up the fine snow in drifts as high as three and four feet.

Many automobile drivers, caught without chains, found the going extremely difficult early Saturday evening. On the hills in and around Norwich many a driver found it almost impossible to move either up or down and in a number of cases machines became stalled and had to be abandoned for the night. Machines skidded sideways, backwards and forwards on many of the local hilly streets. West Main street hill, High street, Broadway, Union street, Bath street hill, West Thames street hill, Gallows hill and numerous hills on side streets were so slippery that machines, even those equipped with chains, slid in all directions, completely out of control, for an hour or two during the early evening. As the snow increased in depth the going was easier.

The mercury started to drop late Sunday night, giving promise of new low readings for the winter. At 7:30 o'clock Sunday night it was one above zero at Thames square, zero in the Boswell avenue section of Greeneville, and from one to two below in Norwich Town, Taftville and Thamesville.

Employes of the street department put in a busy day ploughing out the main streets of the city, and the state department ploughs were equally busy on the state highways. The trolley line kept its sweepers and ploughs out over the tracks and the cars were run as nearly on schedule as possible. Many automobile radiators froze Sunday afternoon and evening and there was an almost unprecedented demand for alcohol and anti-freeze mixture. A number of machines froze up on the streets and had to be towed to garages or thawed out with hot water secured from nearby houses and gasoline stations.

The only accident reported in which there was personal injury was on Saturday night on Washington street near the corner of Lafayette, when "Big Dan" Ziezunk was hit and tossed in the air by a machine driven by Joseph Joly of R. F. D., Yantic. "Big Dan" refused any medical attendance and said he wasn't hurt.

SETTLEMENT MADE IN FRINK VS ULMER SUIT

Settlement for the reported sum of $5,500 has been effected in the $50 000 alienation of affections suit brought in the superior court by Mrs. Rose Beckley Frink against Mrs. Hazel Smith Ulmer, both of this city, and formal notice of withdrawal of the suit without costs from the docket of the superior court was filed here Saturday with Clerk John H. Walker.

Trial of the case before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury at New London had been assigned specially for Tuesday of next week.

Mrs. Frink, who was married to Charles W. Frink on June 30, 1923, brought the suit on the grounds that Mrs. Ulmer had alienated the affections of Mr. Frink since August, 1928, so that he had deserted his wife and destroyed her peace and happiness.

The settlement was effected in conference between the principals and their attorneys, G. C. Morgan and C. V. James acting for Mrs. Frink and William A. King of Willimantic for Mrs. Ulmer. The Willimantic attorney came into the case when Attorney C. L. Stewart, counsel for Mrs. Ulmer, became incapacited by a nervous breakdown.

It is anticipated that Mrs. Frink will now bring suit for divorce against her husband and for custody of their son.

Commission Suit Withdrawn

The suit in which Ambrose Cassara sought to collect a commission of $1,800 from Antone Leverone of New London for the sale of property owned by Leverone has been withdrawn from the docket of the superior court, according to papers filed with the clerk of the court.

The snow storm was welcomed by the youths of Greeneville Saturday, for two reasons, first, for the outdoor sport of coasting, which was made very good owing to the roads being plowed by the city trucks, and second, ambitious youths were enabled to make extra pin money by shovelling paths

CRUCIFIX A REMINDER OF REDEMPTION, SAYS PRIEST

Although the cold and snow somewhat affected the attendance at St. Patrick's church at the 7.30 mass Sunday morning, nevertheless Rev. Myles P. Galvin was required to aid Rev. John J. Reilly, who read the low mass, in giving holy communion, there were so many penitents following the confessions of the previous day. Rev. Father Reilly preached in continuation of his sermons on Catholic doctrine, going on with the apostles' creed and the mystery of redemption.

The redemption of Christ was universal; His blood flowed freely for us all. The preacher spoke of the narrowness of those who consider themselves alone as the redeemed, who, presuming on this, scandalize others outside the fold by lives which are not temperate, model, sincere. These pull against Christ, instead of helping Him redeem the world. Instead of controverting the Saviour's great aim, Father Reilly's hearers were eloquently exhorted to throw their weight against Christ's cross, and in doing all possible to help Him save souls, to pull, and pull, and pull. Previously, he had depicted the Saviour as the great substitute for all men in suffering to appease an offended creator, recalling how the world would cheer for one who would volunteer to take the place of another doomed to die, the acclaim given the aviator who flew to the rescue of a comrade in disaster and who, after rescuing the latter, died from pneumonia; of the glory bestowed upon the boys in France who went as substitutes for those who stayed at home.

HENS AT STORRS ARE BETTERING FORMER RECORD

The hens at Storrs are striking their stride. In the 15th week of the egg-laying contest the total production for all pens was 4,722 eggs. This batting average of .683 in the middle of February is not a bit bad.

By way of comparison it can be said that the hens topped last week's production by 175 eggs and the corresponding week a year ago by 402 eggs. If this trend continues the birds are sure to exceed their quota of 66 eggs per hen from Nov. 1 to the end of February.

Rhode Island Reds are showing their stuff. The 11 pens that did 60 eggs or better last week include eight Rhode Island Reds, two White Leghorns and one Barred Rock. The range in production is from 60 to 65 eggs or an average margin of slightly less than half an egg from the lowest to the highest of these 11 pens.

Toivonen Leghorn farm at Girard, Pa., got away to first place with a score of 65 eggs. Edward N. Larrabee's pen of Reds from Peterboro, N. H., was an exceedingly close second with a tally of 64 eggs. F. H. Sampson's pen of the same breed from Springfield, Mass., was an equally close third with a lay of 63 eggs.

Two other pens of Reds owned by Harold G. Colt of West Hartford, Conn., and W. Otis Day of Westford, Mass., tied for fourth place with 52 eggs each. Three other pens of Reds and one pen of Leghorns scored 61 each. One pen of Reds and one pen of Barred Rocks came through with 60 eggs each.

The management of the contest proposes presently to include in this bulletin some statements about the farms on which the contest hens are bred. Unusual and interesting items will, of course, have the right of way. Special inquiry has been made in respect to size and location of farms, system of feeding, plans for brooding, etc., etc.

With the cooperation of the contestants it is hoped that such a departure will result in good, not only for those directly participating in the contest but for other poultrymen as well. What the plan really proposes is an exchange of views between successful breeders.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes—The Locusts, West Cornwall, 824; Fisher P. Farm, Ayton, Ont., Canada, 656.

Barred Rocks—R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, 762; R. C. Cobb, Littleton, Mass., 739; Spring Brook P. Farm, So. Wethersfield, 723.

SHOWING GREAT INCREASE IN TELEPHONE USAGE

More than a half billion telephone calls, local and toll, were completed over the lines of the Southern New England Telephone company in 1929, an increase of 30,508,000 over 1928. The estimated total is 500,846,000 calls of which 22,042,000 were toll calls. In addition to the foregoing, 2,003,000 toll calls were completed to points outside of the Southern New England's area over lines of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

It is pointed out in the annual report issued by President James T. Moran, that with 320,712 telephones in the company's system, there is one telephone for each 5.2 of population.

The large number of local calls was commensurate with the increase in growth in the number of telephones but again in 1929 toll traffic was relatively higher, an increase of about 10 per cent being recorded in the number of toll calls over 1928.

There can be no doubt that improved transmission, reduced toll rates and a more prompt completion of calls contributed in a large measure to this more extended usage of toll service in this territory.

Of Interest to the Farmer

THE FARMER is a business man and is entitled to a business letterhead the same as is the furniture dealer, the lawyer or the radio manufacturer.

We want the farmer to wake up to his privileges and let the world know he's around here. A neatly printed letterhead with envelope to match should be the first step toward distinguishing YOU and YOUR farm from the thousands of others in the land, a form of advertising that is decidedly in good taste and that is certainly necessary.

Mr. Farmer, send us your name, name of your farm (if it has a name), post office and rural route with box number, and a list of the crops you sell, and we will quote you a price on printed letterheads and envelopes to match in any quantity you desire.

It will cost you nothing to get this quotation.

GOV. TRUMBULL INJURED IN FIRST FLIGHT IN A GLIDER

His Legs and Left Arm Were Slightly Cut and He Was Severely Shaken At Newark Airport—At a Height of 25 Feet the Glider Nosed Over, Dived to Earth and Skidded 60 Feet, Dragging the Governor Over the Rough, Frozen Ground—Mr. Trumbull Was Dazed and His Clothing Was Disarranged—Declined Medical Attention and Hurried Off to New York in An Automobile—German Pilot Had Made Two Unsuccessful Attempts to Put the Glider In Flight.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 17—(AP)—Governor John H. Trumbull, Connecticut's flying governor, was badly shaken up today at Newark airport, when he cracked up on his first flight in a glider.

The exact extent of his injuries were not determined as the governor refused medical attention and after reiterating his faith in the future of the motorless airplane hurried off to New York in the automobile of General John F. O'Ryan.

The ship, after attaining a height of 25 feet, suddenly nosed over, pitched to earth and skidded 60 feet along the ground, dragging the governor over the rough, frozen runway. More than 150 spectators rushed to the spot and unstrapped him from the fragile seat. He rose and limped about the runway, dazed, and his clothing disarranged.

His legs and left hand were slightly lacerated and he was severely shaken. After he had limped about for several minutes, he insisted upon walking to his car and asked to speak to newspapermen.

"This confirms my opinion," he said, "that gliders are safe even when they do crash. I'm certainly glad it wasn't a motor-powered plane. I've been in a few crashes in power planes before as a pilot. This won't bother me much."

Governor Trumbull, who has been interested in aviation for several years and holds a pilot's license in his own state, came to the airport to participate in the dedication of the new hangar of the American Airways, Inc., formerly Colonial Airways, of which he is an officer. General O'Ryan is president of the company.

Before he took his place in the glider, the governor had seen a German pilot, Heinrich Knott, make two unsuccessful attempts to put the craft in first flight. Both times the kite had pointed earthward immediately after the cable by which it was being towed behind a motor truck had detached itself. Knott flew but a hundred yards and attained an altitude of only 30 or 40 feet in each attempt.

When the wind shifted and the glider was towed back for a takeoff in a new direction, the governor volunteered to take the controls.

He seated himself in the glider, a knitted helmet on his head, and waved his hand. The car shot forward, the elastic rubber at the glider end of the cable began to stretch and the ship shot suddenly upward to an elevation of 25 feet.

Unprepared for the sudden yank, the governor was first thrown backward in the seat and then lurched forward. His feet slipped off the rudder bar and with nothing but the belt strapped about his waist to hold him in his precarious perch, he fell against the control stick. The ship plunged to earth at an acute angle and struck the hard runway with a crash which splintered the under-structure and sent broken shafts of wood through both wings.

TRUMBULL WAS HURT IN CRASH AT GROTON JULY 20, 1928

HARTFORD, Feb. 17—(AP)—Gov. John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut, hurt today in a glider accident at Newark, was slightly injured in a spectacular plane crash July 20, 1928, at Groton, Conn., when his ship collided with one piloted by Lieut. J. Lanceto during a landing.

Lieut. Col. James W. Gilson, a passenger in the governor's plane, was badly cut and bruised. Both planes were demolished. The accident was described as unavoidable after an official inquiry.

Gov. Trumbull began his flying career on April 26, 1926, when he had the unique experience of being the first flying governor in the United States to fly over his own capital. With him on this hop was Lieut. Louis N. Eller, regular army instructor of the 118th observation squadron. He passed the United States department of commerce examination for a private pilot's license on December 21, 1927.

Even as a tyro the governor earned the reputation among local fliers as being among the "coolest" of the students who have done their first solo flying here.

I. C. C. INVESTIGATING EXTRA FARE RAILROAD TRAINS

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Passengers who ride trains nowadays want speed and service and are willing to pay for it, L. F. Vosburgh, vice-president of the New York Central lines in charge of passenger traffic, testified before the interstate commerce commission today.

Mr. Vosburgh said tariff on the extra fare trains has increased more rapidly than on regular trains and said his company had received no complaints against the extra charges for the faster and better equipped service. As an example of the popularity of the extra fare trains, he said of the 90 trains now operated daily by the large trunk lines between Chicago and New York, 60 of them were extra fare trains. Annual revenues of the New York Central lines alone, from extra fare trains, amount to about $4,000,000, he said.

The commission is investigating generally the practice of trunk line railroads in operating extra fare trains throughout the country. The principal opponent of the railroads at the hearing here was the Chicago Association of Commerce which objects to alleged inequalities in extra fares, rather than to the surcharge itself.

BODY OF BORLAND FOUND NEAR WRECKAGE OF PLANE

MOTORSHIP NANUK, North Cape, Siberia, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The body of Earl Borland, companion of Carl Ben Eielson, noted Arctic flyer, has been found near the wreckage of their plane which crashed Nov. 9 last, 90 miles southeast of North Cape, and today searchers resumed the hunt for Eielson's body. Storms had interrupted the search.

Momentarily expecting word from the searchers that the body of Eielson had been found, the officers and crew of this ice-bound fur trading vessel today were preparing to receive Borland's body.

As the two airmen were side by side in the plane which was filled with supplies for the Nanuk, it was believed here the body of Eielson would be found within a short distance of Borland's which was under five feet of snow and ice. It lay near the engine of the plane which had been hurled far from the wrecked plane.

HOOVER MOUNTAIN SCHOOL WILL OPEN NEXT MONDAY

MADISON, Va., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Deep in the Blue Ridge mountains, President Hoover's bright, trim little school for mountain children will open its doors to an education-starved people next Monday. The school was to have been opened today, but bad weather made postponement necessary.

From the tangled wildness of the interior of the mountains, will come afoot and on horseback the 30 children who will be the first pupils of the school.

Getting learning from books will be a new experience for these shy folk of the Virginia wilds and Miss Christine Vest, teacher of the school, will have to start with elementals.

There will be no grand celebration Monday. That will come in about a month, when Mrs. Hoover has announced she will visit the school. Mountain roads are virtually impassable now owing to winter snows and rains.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge, former president, and Mrs. Coolidge arriving here today for a visit to southern California, were greeted by thousands of persons, including a welcoming committee headed by Governor C. C. Young.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge had sent word in advance that they were traveling merely as tourists, they found the station decorated upon their arrival and streets lined with school children and spectators on the drive to their hotel.

The former president chatted freely with newspapermen. Announcing he had accepted an invitation to attend the annual banquet of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce next Monday, he remarked:

"I understand they already have engaged a speaker and I wish to say that while I am here I will do anything except make a speech."

ADJOURN HEARING ON BAIL FOR HANDEL AND FLEISCH

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—(AP)—Hearing on a motion today to free Samuel Handel, 38, and Harry Fleisch, 25, supposed members of Detroit's "Purple Gang," from Tombs prison in $10,000 bail was adjourned until tomorrow, by Supreme Court Justice Nathan Bijur. The men are being held pending extradition to New Haven, Conn., to answer charges of kidnaping Max Price, wealthy real estate man.

Justice Bijur agreed to an adjournment until tomorrow to consider what proof the two may offer of their statements that they were not only in Detroit on the day Price was kidnaped but also for two days afterwards.

Justice Bijur said that the charge was serious and if he fixed bail at all it would not be less than $50,000.

SENATE COMMITTEE FAILS TO DECIDE ON DRY PROBE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—(AP)—The senate judiciary committee debated but failed to decide whether it wants an examination made of prohibition enforcement, after its chairman—Norris of Nebraska—had advocated a thorough scrutiny.

Senator Robinson of Indiana opposed the proposal by Norris on the ground that it would "paralyze all prohibition enforcement for two years." Both men are republican drys.

No vote was taken, the committee deciding to let the subject rest for a week. Meanwhile viewpoints of some committee members who are undecided are expected to crystalize.

While the democratic drys appeared to be divided after the session, the western republican independents, of whom Senators Norris and Borah of Idaho, are leaders, appeared to be in line for it.

Senator Borah, also a dry, has charged open saloons are running throughout the country and he is a member of the committee. He is expected to support the proposal, having expressed the opinion that prohibition would never be enforced "with the present personnel from top to bottom."

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, another republican dry, gave the word that the attempt to enact the Norris resolution would be taken to the floor, in event the judiciary committee failed to approve the proposals.

The milk parachuted down in paper containers. A quart of milk of the bovine air queen will be presented to Colonel Lindbergh when he arrives.

Weighing more than 1,000 pounds, the cow will be flown to demonstrate the stability of aircraft. Scientific data will be collected on her behavior.

Before his death next day the Negro is said by police to have identified DeRicco as his assailant.

Coalition Senators Win Tariff Struggle

Slash Import Levies On Aluminum to the Level of the U[illegible]ood Rates of 1913.

[illegible]NGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Sen[illegible]ocrats and republican inde[illegible]nts won a smashing victory in [illegible]ong tariff struggle today when [illegible] put through amendments to the [illegible]awley-Smoot bill slashing existing import levies on aluminum to the level of the Underwood rates of 1913

During a session marked by frequent references to Secretary Mellon and by monopoly charges hurled against the Aluminum Company of America, in which the treasury head and his brother, R. B. Mellon, were said to be interested, the coalition succeeded in cutting the rates on crude and sheet aluminum and aluminum household utensils.

Earlier in the day the coalition demonstrated time and again its majority strength and eliminated proposed increases in levies on hollow drill steel, wire rope and wire rods, and pared down increases on fourdrinier and cylinder wires for use in paper-making machinery and cast iron pipe.

The test vote on aluminum came on an amendment by Senator Walsh, of Montana, acting democratic leader, to cut the present duty on crude aluminum from 5 to 2 cents a pound. This carried, 41 to 39, with 15 republicans and 26 democrats supporting the cut and five democrats and 34 republicans opposing it.

Without a record vote, another amendment by Walsh then was approved to lower the duty on sheet aluminum from 9 to 3 1-2 cents a pound.

By a vote of 41 to 30 the duty of 11 cents a pound and 55 per cent ad valorem on aluminum household utensils was reduced to 25 per cent without any specific rate per pound. All three aluminum rates approved were carried in the democratic Staff act of the Wilson administrations.

FINDING IN POTTAWATOMIE COUNTY LIQUOR LAW CASE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 17—(AP)—A jury in United States district court agreed today with the government's charge that a conspiracy for the violation of national prohibition laws existed in Pottawatomie county for nearly three years, but disagreed in part as to the purported leaders by acquitting Randall Pitman, county attorney.

Frank Fox, sheriff from 1925 to 1929, was among the eight defendants who were convicted. Pitman, who with Fox was accused by the government with being an "arch conspirator," and three other defendants were exonerated by the jury. REP. TILSON OUT OF PATIENCE WITH OBSTRUCTIONISTS IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Responding to alarm signals from republican congressional leaders, President Hoover tonight summoned the party chieftains in for a breakfast conference tomorrow to discuss the piled-up legislative situation at Capitol hill.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the party leader in the house, carried to the president shortly after the latter's return from Florida today, a report that the delay in the senate in passing the tariff bill was threatening any extensive legislative program going through at this session.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader in the senate, gloomy over another victory today of the republican independent-democratic coalition in slashing tariff rates, likewise gave a pessimistic report to the white house.

Mr. Hoover immediately summoned a party group together tomorrow morning around the breakfast table. He invited Speaker Longworth, Senator Watson, Representative Tilson, Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant republican leader, and the authors of the tariff measure—Senator Smoot, of Utah, and Representative Hawley, of Oregon.

What remedies the president may have in mind are unknown. He will receive a report from the exasperated senate leaders that the tariff bill is under the control of the coalition with little prospect of final action in less than two weeks.

Frankly out of patience with the senate, Tilson spoke bitterly today. He believed that the bill to transfer prohibition from the treasury to the justice department was the only measure of those recommended by the law enforcement commission to have chance of success at this session.

The house has passed that bill and it is now on the senate's doorstep along with a batch of the annual appropriation bills from the house.

The house republican leader warned that even after the senate passes the tariff bill, it will require several weeks to reach any manner of agreement between the widely varying views of the senate and house. The republican independent-democratic coalition has rewritten the house measure, eliminating almost all increases except those on agricultural products and is working now in cutting down existing rates on many industrial products.

As for prohibition, Mr. Tilson insisted "the republican party is as much divided on the wet and dry question as the democrats." He deprecated the suggestion that the republican party was becoming the prohibition party.

He gave notice that unless the senate situation clears soon and gives some indication of opportunity for discussion of other business, there would be no disposition for the house to go ahead on other legislation, including the bills for railroad consolidation and for strengthening the banking laws.

In fact, the republican house leader talked about the house stopping work as soon as it has passed the necessary appropriation bills and taking three-day recesses until they begin to catch up.

"There is no reason why congress should remain in session after June 1," Tilson said.

Asked by newspaper men if he thought President Hoover should appeal to the people of the country to urge the senate to remedy the situation, Tilson said that he thought the suggestion advisable.

RESIGNATION OF TARDIEU FRENCH CABINET ACCEPTED

Ministry Resigned After Failure of Vote of Confidence By a Margin of Five Votes—Tardieu Had Refused to Accept An Increase In Pensions For Widows of Officers and Soldiers Killed During the War—M. Tardieu Is Considered the Favorite Candidate to Succeed Himself, With Poincare Second Choice.

PARIS, Feb. 17—(AP)—The political storm threatening the Tardieu cabinet since the naval conference got under way in London broke in the chamber of deputies today, and the government went down to defeat.

A few hours later the ministers handed their collective resignation to President Doumergue, who immediately accepted it. The cabinet had been in office for a little more than three months.

The political consequences of the resignation were obscured tonight by the excitement attending the government's downfall.

M. Tardieu is considered to be the favorite candidate to succeed himself, with former Premier Poincare, who recently returned from a rest cure on the Riviera, second choice.

Many politicians thought the new cabinet would contain both men, M. Tardieu as premier and M. Poincare as minister of finances.

Premier Tardieu went down with colors flying, and though unable to rise from his sickbed, where a severe attack of grippe has confined him, directed the government's tactics in the chamber by telephone.

Three successive attacks were beaten off before the government finally fell on the fourth vote of confidence by a margin of five votes. The figures were 286 to 261.

The vote was taken on M. Tardieu's orders on a financial measure of M. Cheron, who in accord with the premier refused to accept an increase in pensions for the widows of officers and soldiers killed during the World war.

Before bringing the measure to a vote of confidence, M. Cheron telephoned M. Tardieu, who gave him full support.

"I am making it a question of confidence with the full approval of my chief, Premier Tardieu," the minister of finances told the deputies from the rostrum of the chamber.

The opposition hesitated for an instant and then insisted that the increase be made.

"I refuse," shouted M. Cheron. "I may not get your votes but I am sure of keeping your esteem."

The answer of the opposition was to vote him down.

The ministers and under secretaries of state, numbering 21, went immediately after the announcement of the vote to the sickbed of the defeated premier. They discussed their letter of resignation, which M. Tardieu in defiance of his doctor's orders insisted he would deliver in person to President Doumergue.

Finally Senator Lucien Hubert, vice-president of the cabinet and minister of justice, led his colleagues to the Elysee palace and handed the president the cabinet's resignation at 9:41 p. m. The president immediately accepted it. Chafing under his doctors' instructions, M. Tardieu remained at home in bed studying the situation.

The overthrow of the government places France in the anomalous situation of taking part in the London conference, and yet being practically unrepresented there.

Under the French constitution resigned ministers are empowered to administer "current affairs," but have no authority to bind succeeding French governments to treaties affecting France's relations with other powers.

Thus Minister of Marine Leygues, who arrived in London this afternoon, is relegated to the position of an "unofficial observer."

Only the status of Ambassador De Fleuriau, French representative in London, is presumably unaffected by the defeat. Premier Tardieu, Foreign Minister Briand and Minister of Colonies Pietri, in addition to Minister of Marine Leygues, have lost their official positions.

On leaving the Elysee after handing in their resignation, the ex-ministers gave no information to newspapermen, except that President Doumergue had accepted the resignation.

Some spectators in the Rue Du Faubourg-St. Honore shouted "Tardieu again," and Senator Hubert and M. Loucheur agreed that the ex-premier's return was "quite likely."

There were cheers also for M. Briand but he grumbled "This would be my thirteenth cabinet. It's impossible."

Many observers picked a Tardieu-Poincare combination as the strongest that France could present now.

POINCARE HAS CANCELLED TRIP TO BUENOS AIRES

PARIS, Feb 17.—(AP)—Former Premier Poincare announced late this evening that he had cancelled his trip to Buenos Aires, scheduled to begin at the end of the month.

This news roused rumors that he was ready to enter a new cabinet either as premier or as a minister under Tardieu.

NAVAL CONFERENCE IS STUDYING SEA OF FIGURES

LONDON, Feb. 17—(AP)—The defeat of the Tardieu government and the premier's resignation in Paris, tonight, left the London naval conference becalmed in a sea of figures.

Among the delegates in London there was no hope that negotiations could profitably get under way again until France had a new government.

In circles close to the French delegation, it was stated tonight that the cabinet crisis in Paris would probably have little or no direct effect on the naval negotiations beyond delaying them for some days. The French here believed that the re-shuffling of the cabinet would find Premier Tardieu again at the head of the government, with M. Briand still at the ministry of foreign affairs.

DOZENS OF DEATHS ARE ATTRIBUTED TO THE COLD

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP)—After thermometers had dipped to as low as 41 degrees below zero, the severest cold spell of the winter in the north Atlantic states reached its climax today, and temperatures generally began to ascend in fulfillment of the weather man's promise of relief.

Eastern Maine was an exception. There the cold continued unabated and the forecast was for even lower temperatures.

A dozen or more deaths were attributed directly or indirectly to the cold. A recluse was found frozen to death today in his hut in the wooded section of South Foxboro, Mass.; another man was found frozen to death in his unheated apartment in Providence, R. I., and ten other deaths in New England over the week end were ascribed to the weather.

New low records were registered in many localities.

The lowest thermometer reading to be reported came from Tupper Lake, near Saranac Lake, N. Y., where the reading was 41 below zero.

SECOND CONFESSION OF MURDERING 4-YEAR-OLD BOY

WOOSTER, Ohio, Feb. 17—(AP)—With Charles Hannah's second confession within the last 16 hours giving a location of the body of Melvin Horst, 4, in their hands tonight, county officials and Special Investigator Ora Slater were still firing questions at Hannah and the man he accused as the killer, Earl Conald. The body disappeared 14 months ago.

Hannah late today broke for the second time during the day and sobbed out a story of digging up Melvin's body from its original resting place in the back yard of the former Hannah residence at Orrville and reburying it on a bank of Sugar creek.

Slater said there probably will be no search for the body tonight. He gave no reason.

DEATH OF A. P. MOORE, U. S. AMBASSADOR TO POLAND

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Alexander P. Moore, U. S. ambassador to Poland, died in a hospital here today.

Several relatives including Marion A. Culbertson, a cousin, were with Ambassador Moore during his last hours. J. P. Emge, an associate of the diplomat during his career in Pittsburgh, Pa., also was present. Although funeral plans have not been completed, it was stated by the relatives that the body would be sent to Pittsburgh for burial.

Physicians who attended him said that Ambassador Moore apparently had suffered from the throat and lung infection for some time. He had considered it only as a severe cold until a few days ago when it grew worse. He returned from a desert resort at Palm Springs, Calif., to obtain treatment here in a suburban sanitarium. Friday his condition became critical and he was removed to the hospital, where he was either in a delirious or unconscious condition until his death.

More than 1,400 of the 5,000 arrests were made during a week-end spurt by city and county police. Only a few of the total have been held.

Eighteen of the 29 gunmen indicted by the Cook county grand jury last week, were arraigned today and their trials set for an early date at the request of State's Attorney John Swanson.

CHARGES $1,000,000 HAD BEEN USED FOR BRIBERY

Northup, who sought a court order commanding Chamberlain to surrender records of his company to the grand jury investigating conditions in the Chicago sanitary district.

According to Northup's petition, Chamberlain withdrew upwards of $1,000,000 during the last three years from his company's banking connections. Northup maintained the money was used to buy expensive gi[illegible] a number of public [illegible]

QUICK WORK SAVES 4,000 LIVES AT POULTRY FARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 17.—The lives of over 4,000 baby chicks, valued at approximately $20,000, were saved by speedy action at the George Lowry Poultry Farm, Inc., in East Willington, Sunday morning, when the steam boiler of the plant went out of commission during sub-zero weather. Realizing the necessity of keeping the temperature from 80 to 90 degrees in various compartments, employes of the plant secured a coal stove which was quickly set. It was feared, however, that this arrangement would not be sufficient and an emergency call was sent in for electrical appliances from the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company. The call was readily answered by Sales Manager John T. McCahey, Clarence Avery, a salesman, and James Brown, service man of the sales department. The three men gathered up eight electric heaters and a quantity of wiring, fuses, etc., and set out shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday morning through snow drifts and freezing temperature for the Lowry farm. After encountering much difficulty the men reached the farm and installed the heaters which had to be affixed with special wiring to stand the excessive load. The combined heat of the coal stove and electric heaters served to restore the required temperature and the chicks were declared out of danger.

Owing to a defect, a hole had been blown out of the boiler about 4:30 a. m. Otis T. Greeg of Hackensack, N. J., president of the corporation, received word of the explosion of the boiler at his hotel in Philadelphia, Pa., through messages relayed from his home, and believing the situation to be serious rushed on to this city only to find all of the chicks warm and happy upon his arrival. The boiler was repaired and put into operation this evening. The Lowry farm is famous for its pen of 10 White Leghorns that in 1929 took the world's egg-laying championship conducted at Storrs by laying a total of 2,014 eggs in 365 days.

AGENT CURTIS DECLARES STRIKE IS CLOSED MATTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 17.—Declaring that the strike of 1925 has long been considered a settled matter in the minds of officials of the American Thread company, Agent Don H. Curtis of the local mills of the concern today made answer to the action of some 100 former operatives taken last Saturday. Upon his return from a week-end trip to Boston, Agent Curtis was confronted with the movement of the former operatives to investigate the possibility of a settlement of the five-year-old strike. Agent Curtis said that the effect of this action would have no bearing whatsoever on the policy of the company. The former operators named Mrs. Loretta Oatley, president of Local 671 of the United Textile Workers of America, Fred Lord and Octavien J. Dubreuil as a committee to study adjustment possibilities. When apprised of Agent Curtis' statement this afternoon, Mrs. Oatley said, "We will not be deterred by this statement from continuing our investigation with the hope of finally witnessing a definite settlement of the strike controversy." Mrs. Oatley stated that the chamber of commerce will probably be appealed to with a request that it act as a form of mediation board. An interpretation of the aim of the former operatives in this more recent movement would indicate that the hope is to arrive at a settlement, with sufficient compromise on the part of the thread company to eradicate entirely the atmosphere of a strike situation, Mrs. Oatley said, that the committee was hoping to accomplish this for the good of the community.

OVER 100 ATTEND ANNUAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DINNER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 17—The annual meeting of the Willimantic chamber of commerce was held with a dinner at the Nathan Hale hotel tonight, attended by about 100 enthusiastic members. In the absence of President Frank P. Fenton and Vice President Oliver L. Willard, who are in Florida, Louis H. Arnold, member of the board of directors, presided. Seated with him at the head table were William J. Fortune, the speaker of the evening and J. Albert Carter, both vice presidents of the Shawmut National bank, Boston, Mass., Mayor Walter R. King, First Selectman William A. Buck, Rev. Henry E. Quinn, of St. Joseph's church, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of the First Congregational church and P. D. Donohue, president of the Willimantic Merchants bureau, of the chamber of commerce.

The only business of the evening was the election of five directors of 15, who retire this year. The return of the ballots cast for ten nominees, elected the following: John F. Carr, William B. Sweeney, Frank P. Fenton, P. J. Twomey and Benjamin Eisenberg.

Entertainment was in the form of musical selections by the Peerless orchestra and group singing under the direction of Ralph H. Gibson.

In opening his talk Mr. Fortune, who is affiliated with the New England council, paid high tribute to the efficiency of Executive Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the chamber of commerce. While giving accurate figures of the migration of industries from New England to the south, Mr. Fortune painted a most optimistic picture of conditions here. He gave a resume of the founding and the function of the New England council and presented statistics showing that New England was still, by far, a strong leader in the textile and boot and shoe industries, having a capital investment of 550 millions in textile and 255 millions in boot and shoe.

He quoted a report that the removal of all textile and shoe industries would still leave New England in possession of 71 per cent of the industries of the country. Two of the greatest outlooks for New England's future were presented by Mr. Fortune as being its agricultural development and the return of tourist business. Upon extolling the climate, history, traditions and scenic beauties of New England, the speaker said that actual returns from recreation alone in the six New England states during 1929 was $400,000,000. He predicted this tourist business as becoming one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of New England's businesses in the future.

He urged all New Englanders to spread wide New England advantages.

J. N. DAUPHINEE CARRIED FROM CELLAR BY FIREMEN

Chief H. F. Brown with the engine and squad of men were called out about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon to fight a fire in the cellar of the J. Newton Dauphinee residence on Linwood avenue. It is understood that the blaze started when a lighted blowtorch which Mr. Dauphinee was using, tipped over. The fire was discovered by Marshall Dean who was driving by on his way to the village. Upon arriving, the firemen entered the cellar and carried out Mr. Dauphinee who was nearly overcome by the dense smoke. Quickly laying a line of hose to the nearby well, the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before much damage was done.

Monday morning was said to be the coldest so far this winter. At the A. A. Brown farm in the Parum section, the mercury registered 18 degrees below zero while residents of the Standishville section report readings as low as twenty-four below zero.

The Stafford girls are so elated over their success that they are talking of keeping the team together and playing other games during the winter.

Monday morning was by far the coldest of the season in this section, thermometers registering anywhere from 10 to 18 degrees below zero, according to location. It was so cold that one of the water pipes connected with the boiler at the high school froze and as a result the fire went out and classes had to be dismissed for the day.

Palace Theatre

Another double-feature program for patrons of the Palace theatre! Starting tomorrow this popular local playhouse represents two pictures which for entertainment value and for beautiful variety have never before been duplicated on a single bill. That the treatre can offer two such films on one program is a tribute to the scope and power of Warner Brothers.

One of the features which begins a three-days' run tomorrow is "In the Next Room," a weird and thrilling mystery starring Jack Mulhall, Alice Day and a great supporting cast. The other is "Is Everybody Happy," a riot of melody and high stepping with Ted Lewis Ann Pennington and others doing the gay rioting.

"In the Next Room" tells an absorbing story. The city of New York is terrified with a series of knife murders. The police arrive at the house of a Mr. Valentine who has just bought the place, but he refuses to let them in. Then Jimmy Godfrey, a young newspaper reporter in love with Valentine's niece, arrives on the scene and gets rid of the police. He stays on to see Lorna and helps Valentine unpack an antique cabinet. Lorna lets him in on a secret. She is mortally afarid of the house, and she says that at times she hears the sound of a one-legged man stumping up and down steps and scraping in the basement, but no trace can be found of the man.

So much for that film. Now in "Is Everybody Happy," we swing away from the tensity and suspense of the mystery to a carefree, high-kicking comedy full of liveliness and fun, just the sort of picture to go along with the other drama. Nobody should miss such a well balanced and interesting bill.

Today for the last times, the Palace presents beautiful Bernice Claire, Alexander Gray, Jasu Pitts, Louise Fazenda, Lucien Littlefield, Bert Roach and the other stars in that charming musical comedy done by Vitaphone, "No, No, Nanette." It's as good, and maybe a little bit better than the "Gold Diggers of Broadway," which was such a tremendous success wherever it played, and which played to capacity houses at the Palace here.

Broadway Theatre.

The final showing of that delightful musicolor comedy "Chasing Rainbows," with Bessie Love and Charlie King and a host of "Broadway Melody" and "Hollywood Revue" favorites will be made tonight at the Broadway, followed tomorrow with one of the most remarkable double-feature programs yet booked at that popular playhouse. Gary Cooper, fresh from his recent success in "The Virginian," shares starring honors with a tiny, gray-haired old lady, Beryl Mercer, in "Seven Days Leave," a very "different" story of the World war. The film is adapted from Sir James M. Barrie's intensely human story, "An Old Lady Shows Her Medals," and tells a vivid tale of an old Scotch scrubwoman in London, who frets because apparently every one of her "pals" has a son or "summat" at the front, and being a childless widow, she cannot join in their bragging. From the casualty lists she selects the name of a slightly wounded Tommy of the same name as hers, and "adopts" him. A tense dramatic document of human love and pathos, with plenty of hearty laughs, and surprising drama, "Seven Days Leave" gives the lanky Gary and the diminutive Miss Mercer the finest chance of their careers in a production that will live long in the memories of its audiences. The companion feature, "The Shannons of Broadway," introduces the famous Gleasons, Lucille and Jimmy, to the talking screen, and they have the unique distinction of creating the film versions of the characters they have played on the legitimate stage to crowded houses for over two years. It's a rollicking yarn of a small time vaudeville team who have their route cancelled, leaving them in a small New England village. They decide to buy the village hotel, and the fun begins—village politics, the romances and scandals of the town, and the wise-cracking of the two hard-boiled Broadwayites, contribute to a howling comedy, with just enough drama and punch to give tired sides a chance to rest up for another spasm of giggles. The Gleasons are supported by Mary Philbin, Charles Grapewin, Tom Santschi and other screen stars, and by several members of the original New York stage company who have their stage roles duplicated on the screen. Fox movietone news completes over two and a half hours of splendid screen entertainment, Program "F" in the Broadway's Greater Entertainment Month.

Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Formal announcement was made today by John A. Hartford, president of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company that the oldest and largest of the vast chain systems of today will open branch units on the Pacific coast on or about March 15th. The first of these food stores, possibly a dozen in number, are to be located at Los Angeles. Others eventually will follow along the entire west coast. It was announced as the biggest single step in expansion and development in the seventy year history of the A. & P. organization. There are units now in 34 states and two provinces of Canada. While present plans call for openings of units only along the coast, officials admitted today that in the organization's nation wide development plan they are looking forward eventually to establishment of their stores in the intermediate states of Montana, both North and South Dakota, Arkansas, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Nevada, Arizona, Idaho and New Mexico, as well as California, Oregon and Washington.

Opening of these stores on the coast, thus welding the final links of an Atlantic-to-the-Pacific chain, is the fulfilment of a dream long held by George Huntington Hartford, founder of the chain store system, in the single store in Vesey street, New York city, which opened in 1859. Decision to open at this time in California as a starting place, was reached after an intensive survey of business conditions as they are now and as they are in the cards for the future. This survey, according to A. & P. officials, points to a healthy, steady and normal growth of public buying power that is naturally based on a very definite trend toward sustained commercial and industrial expansion and prosperity throughout the United States.

Up to the present time the A. & P. system of stores has not extended west of Omaha. Its 16,000 stores which serve 5,000,000 customers daily and do more than a billion dollars' worth of business annually, are located in thirty-four states—all excepting those mentioned. Its expansion into those thirty-four states from the single New York city unit has always been preceded by careful economic surveys, the findings of which have invariably proven exact harbingers of future business and commercial conditions, according to Mr. Hartford.

"Methods of distribution of all merchandising and of foods particularly are changing rapidly. In this change there is always uppermost in the minds of executives of all great organizations the reduction of distribution costs, which so greatly affect the prices the ultimate consumer pays. A. & P. has succeeded in eliminating the maximum of multiple handling which accounts in large degree for its ability to effect the economies it does and which it passes along to its customers. Our very growth and our present move to the Pacific coast are irrefutable proof of this."

The woman of today values expert beauty care.

Why every woman who values beauty needs the services and advice of a Professional Beauty Expert

Modern beauty culture has been making tremendous strides—today, it has become a science practiced by specialists whose sole task is to safeguard and accent beauty.

DURING recent years, beauty science has been so highly developed by the experts in this comparatively new profession that every woman can now make the most of her natural loveliness.

Laboratories are workrooms for research. Schools of beauty culture have been developed to teach workers not only the methods of perfecting external beauty, but also laws affecting good health.

Today—to add that finish, that perfection of grooming, which distinguishes the truly fastidious woman from her less particular sisters—a certain professional touch is needed. The deft, well-trained, skilful touch of the beauty expert.

Since Cleopatra's time

The quest for beauty is not new. Neither is the science of beauty culture. Both began when history began. But in more recent years we have had greater leisure, more time for perfecting ourselves, less need for the crude, hearty makeshifts of pioneer days. And we have turned, naturally enough, to those whose experience qualifies them to help us—the beauty specialists.

Your beauty expert applies, to your individual case, the methods best suited to bring out your own natural loveliness.

Go to Paris, home of beauty in all its forms; or to Rome, Madrid, London, Berlin, Budapest, Vienna! Wherever you travel—either here in the United States or abroad—you will seek our experts to help protect and revitalize your good looks.

Throughout the world

And it is therefore particularly interesting that more than 19,000 of these experts today recommend Palmolive Soap. What a remarkable tribute to the purity, the blandness, the delicacy, of this vegetable oil soap . . . which is based on an age-old formula combining palm and olive oils for beauty cleansing!

Palmolive does not—nor would anyone claim that it did—make all other beauty care unnecessary. It aids your beauty specialist by providing the finest natural skin cleanser, the greatest day-in-and-day-out safeguard for facial beauty. Its thorough, gentle cleansing, of course, makes the work of the beauty specialist easier.

And it is, for the same reason, an ideal bath soap. That is one of many reasons why 19,813 world-famous beauty experts recommend it . . . why they unite to urge "foundation cleansing by one means and one only—the twice daily use of Palmolive Soap."

This advertisement is published in the interests of lovelier complexions and the furtherance of the beauty profession by the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co.

DANIELSON

EXTREMELY LOW TEMPERATURE REPORTED IN KILLINGLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 17—Since so many talked about the matter, and since there was reason to, the weather became an outstanding subject here today. Not in several years has so low a temperature been recorded in this town as this morning. Scores of thermometers showed readings of 12, 14 and 16 below. It was 15 below at the home of Principal E. R. Warren on the Green Hollow road, and 13 below was reported from near the A. E. Hall place at South Killingly. Walter G. Bruce, head of the agricultural department of Killingly high school and who has a little farm place at Attawaugan, said a thermometer at his home registered 20 below zero at 5 o'clock this morning. A thermometer that may have been a bit fanciful showed a reading, near the Ballouville section of the town, of 24 below. In any event it was dreadfully cold.

There were some minor casualties and some damage because of the extreme cold. Water pipes froze and burst in some homes in the Dyer street sections, allowing water to pour into the cellars. Several people reported frostbitten ears and fingers.

Car Owners Worried

There are residents of Killingly who own old, but serviceable cars, who were a bit upset this morning by a press despatch out of New York setting forth that the National Automobile chamber of commerce plans to spend $15,000,000 this year to scrap automobiles regarded as unsafe for use on the highways.

The despatch in question was not sufficiently clear to indicate just what it is proposed to do, hence the apprehension here. What owners of the class of cars referred to would like to know is just what is intended to be done. Hardship might be worked on many a deserving person by ordering the scrapping of his car. Persons interested here hold that if the state of Connecticut issues a registration for a car and accepts payment therefor that car should be allowed to remain in service. And the question is raised: "Just what is the National Automobile chamber of commerce going to do about it if the state is satisfied?"

Many people here who cannot afford to own a car in which any great amount of money is invested have low-priced, low-investment cars that they actually need in getting to and from their work and in carrying on their business affairs. It would be a major handicap and injustice to them to force them off the highways. And these owners point out with no small degree of truth that when accidents occur, new and high-priced cars figure in them very frequently, yet no one proposes to take these machines off the highways.

Hence, the old car owners would like to know what this morning's broadcast is all about. They would like the detail of the plan.

The case of Louis Auger, facing a statutory offense, was again continued when it came up in the town court this afternoon, this time to April 19. Auger was taken into custody by a state officer last week at approximately the same time that Mrs. Edith Carr Thereault was arrested. They had been living at Dayville. After her presentation in court she was ordered committed to the State Farm for Women at Niantic, and now is an inmate of that institution.

These are days when thoughtful and kind-hearted Danielson people are thinking of their feathered friends—and are daily furnishing something to eat for the birds. This benevolence is practiced by a very considerable number of people here. One reward for those who feed the birds is the enjoyment they get out of watching them from day to day, and experiencing the feeling they are doing something well worth-while.

Mrs. H. L. Mason, who has been traveling abroad this winter, will be the delegate from Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R. to the Continental congress in Washington in early April. Alternates are Mrs. Nellie Cundall, Mrs. Eric Johnson, Mrs. E. H. Keach, Mrs. Deborah Atwood, Mrs. Mary Taintor and Mrs. Kingsley and Miss Louise Kingsley, the two latter now resident in Washington.

A short wave length set being operated by Earl Bassett at his home on Broad street this morning clearly brought in Station 2ME of Sydney, Australia. Mr. Bassett was listening to KDKA of Pittsburgh, on short wave, when he heard the conversation with the Australian station and the information that Station POZ of Germany was interfering. With this information Mr. Bassett "fished" around until he picked up 2ME, which was coming in splendidly. Experiments between these stations are to be continued, the talkers agreed, Monday morning of next week. Last week Mr. Bassett picked up a concert being broadcast from a station in Costa Rica.

The next meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange is to be held on Saturday of this week—Washington's birthday—with Brooklyn grange. There is to be a morning session, opening at 11 o'clock, for the transaction of general business and the presentation of reports of the secretary, treasurer and executive committee. Dinner is to be served by Brooklyn grange. The lecturer's program is to open at 1:30. The opening number is to be a piano solo, this to be followed by the singing of a group of songs by Mrs. Miriam Bliss Beckwith of Franklin grange. The address of the afternoon will be by George Alan Works, president of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. A reading by Myra Fring of Brooklyn grange is included in the program. No other meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange is scheduled following the one of next Saturday until April 26, when there is to be an evening meeting with Ashford grange at Knowlton Memorial hall in Warrenville.

At the close of the Sunday morning service, the members of the Baptist church held a business meeting at which a resolution presented by the church clerk, fully endorsing and approving the sermon on Law Enforcement by the pastor, was unanimously adopted.

At a session of the town court this morning, Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding, the lone man presented was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail at Brooklyn on an intoxication charge.

Only 10 days remain for driving automobiles under the operators' licenses in current use. New licenses will be required on and after March 1.

Wednesday evening, at 7:00 o'clock, the Young People's Discussion class will meet in the church parlor, this gathering to be followed, at 7:30, by a meeting and social of the Westfield Church school workers, in the Congregational church.

Winners at whist at the meeting of the Social club were Miss R. Blanche Tetreault, who won first honors for the ladies, Mrs. Pierre Boulaine, Miss Fleurette Boulaine and Mrs. Edward Berthiaume. First honors for the men went to Pierre Boulaine, second to Emil Auger and third to Amadee Bernier.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Hutchins of Mechanic street are the couple who recently observed the 54th anniversary of their marriage, and interest in this was heightened by reason of the fact that a radio announcer at a Providence station announced the anniversary, but withheld the names.

Next Sunday, Rev. Henry A. Coolidge, pastor of the Congregational church at South Killingly will preach at the morning service at the Westfield Congregational church in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord.

Ideal coasting conditions existed today in various sections of the borough, and a great many children were out enjoying the sport after being released from school this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Irwin, who have been in the south since last fall, have returned to Danielson. Mr. Irwin was the professional at the Putnam Country club last year.

Merchants today reported satisfactory business at the semi-annual Dollar day sales on Saturday.

Arctic weather conditions of this morning notwithstanding, spring must be on its way. Mrs. Aldred E. Williams of Brooklyn said this afternoon that at the week end she saw five robins on the lawn at the Williams home and that they seemed as chipper and happy as could be.

Mrs. Edward Hatch, resident here but who has been employed in Hartford, is to enter the employ of the Windham County National bank, taking up her duties in the near future.

The new and higher taxi fares announced the past week for Danielson became effective this morning. Now the cheapest ride is 20 cents, as against 15 cents formerly, and 25 cents is the current charge for extreme cross-town trips. The advances have been made to give the operators a more certain assurance of profit.

Rev. Albert Abbott has been extended an unanimous invitation to return here as pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church for another year, and Rev. Myron E. Genter, district superintendent, invited to use his influence to that end.

A temperature of 20 degrees below zero at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gallup of Broad street was reported this morning.

Last evening at the Congregational church in Brooklyn a service commemorating the Anniversaries of Lincoln and Washington was held. A special series of services for Sunday evenings until Easter is arranged to be held at this church.

Many are expected to appear in period costumes when the Wesleyan Circle holds a Colonial social on Wednesday evening.

Manning, pastor of the Boylston church where Rev. Mr. Reese was the pastor before coming here. The double ring service was used. The church, having a seating capacity of over two hundred, was filled with relatives and friends of the bride and groom. As they assembled, Walter A. Morrill of Worcester, played several selections and as the bridal party entered Mrs. Mabel Carlson Farley sang "O Promise Me." The organist played "The Bridal Chorus" as the bridal procession entered. During the ceremony an improvision of echo chimes was played and after the ceremony the "Wedding March" was the recessional. Miss Doris E. Durrell, sister of the bride was maid of honor and Walter Reese of this village was the groom's attendant. Master Russell Fuller, nephew of the bride was ring bearer and Miss Lillian Reese, sister of the groom and Miss Betty Fricker were flower girls. The ushers were Ernest M. Fuller and Raymond B. Lovell of Boylston and Carlton Taddock of Worcester. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Elmer Durrell. The bride wore a gown of white satin and a veil with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white rose buds and baby's breath. Her travelling gown was of blue crepe de chine with hat to match. The maid of honor wore a frock of salmon pink crepe de chine, and carried a shower bouquet of pink rose buds. The flower girls' frocks were robins' egg blue silk trimmed with pink rose buds. The ring bearer wore a white suit. The church decorations were very effective. After the ceremony a reception was held at Birch Knoll, the home of the bride, who received many gifts. Guests were present from Westboro, Shrewsbury and Worcester, Mass., Maine, Windsor and Central Village, Conn. The bride is one of the very popular Boylston and Worcester girls. PUTNAM

F. H. SMITH FINED $200 FOR LIQUOR VIOLATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 17.—In the city court this morning before Judge M. H. Geissler, Frank H. Smith, proprietor of a fish and chop restaurant on Providence street, in which state police of Danielson barracks seized over 500 bottles of beer Saturday night in a raid, was found guilty of liquor law violations and fined $200 and costs of court. It being Smith's first offense of this nature, only a minimum fine was imposed, which Smith paid promptly. He was without counsel and entered pleas of guilty to charges pressed against him.

Out of seven alleged speakeasies visited by the raiding squadron of officers Saturday night, the establishment of Smith was the only place found to be housing liquor.

George Mertin of Mechanicsville, whose reputation is known the length and breadth of Windham and Worcester counties, arrested Saturday evening in state police liquor raids, was before Justice Percy P. Tourtellotte in justice court in North Grosvenordale this afternoon, was found guilty of owning and keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell. Taking into consideration the fact that Mertin's arrest constituted his first offense of the 18th amendment, Justice Tourtellotte meted out a fine of $200 and costs of court. The Mertin wine parlors were raided by State Officers John T. Murphy and Royal V. Scranton, who confiscated one of the most valuable caches of wines seized in this section in several years.

Investigation of the breaks at the stores of C. D. Arnold and the Progress Confectionery company this morning by local police disproved the theory that two or more persons were responsible for the burglaries. It appears from circumstances gathered at the Progress store that a local burglar playing a lone hand is committing the breaks. Sergt. Alpherie Spoocey and Capt. A. J. Dubreuil found one set of tracks in the fresh-fallen snow early Sunday morning. While the foot prints would tend to exaggerate to some degree the size of the shoe worn by the burglar, police have been able to calculate the size fairly closely. The distance between the foot prints indicated that the man took long steps. A butt of a cigar was found in the snow, with fire not quite extinct, causing police to conclude that the burglar was frightened away by an officer trying doors, a brief spell before the burglaries were discovered. Every detail is being considered by investigators who are making a determined effort to end the series of breaks which have bothered the police department since early summer months.

Officer Joseph G. Page of the local police is confined to his home on Marshall street, suffering from inflammation of the throat and threatened with influenza. Officer Page was taken ill Saturday evening while on duty and was forced to abandon his beat early Sunday morning. Unless a favorable change is noted in his condition Tuesday, he will not be expected to return to duty for several days. Supernumerary officers are doing duty in the absence of Officer Page.

James B. Tatem of this city, owner of a chain of taxi cabs operating in Putnam, Willimantic, Middletown and Manchester, has scored one victory in his controversy with the public utilities commission, seen in the commission's granting Tatem permission to operate his service in Middletown. The matter had been under fire for several months, after the public service bureau of the state motor vehicle department had been transferred to the utilities commission. Tatem is negotiating with the commission for an adjustment in his favor in Manchester and Willimantic.

12 Degrees Below

Sunday's cold spell following close on the heels of Saturday's storm, dealt the mercury a flooring wallop early this morning. Early risers said that thermometers on South Main street registered 12 degrees below at 7 o'clock this morning. Sub-zero temperatures prevailed Sunday, and the continued coldness forced the mercury down steadily during the early hours of the evening. The effects of the "snap" were felt by trains and motor coaches, which fell behind in their schedules and a general slowing up of automobile traffic was experienced hereabouts. Many freeze-ups on the highways necessitated garage crews going to the rescue to bring in the marooned vehicles.

A check-up of doctors' offices and the hospital revealed no victims of the frigid temperatures. Although the summer supply of ice has been harvested, city ice dealers today were in a position to reap a second crop, when tests showed ice on ponds to be nearly 13 inches in thickness today.

Divisional Assistant Superintendent William E. Sault of New Haven returned to his headquarters at the railroad offices here Sunday afternoon after an illness of three weeks. His many friends in Putnam were relieved to find Superintendent Sault at his desk, his physical condition not in the least impaired. Published reports to the effect that Mr. Sault was in danger of suffering the amputation of toes on his right foot, which were frozen by exposure three weeks ago, were grossly exaggerated. Mr. Sault asserted last night. The divisional official of the Norwich branch suffered great pain from the effects of the exposure and has not completely recovered yet, but sufficiently to enable him to resume his duties.

JEWETT CITY

GEORGE E. SPARKS' DEATH FOLLOWS SHOCK OF SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 17.—George E. Sparks, 52, died at his home on Tracy avenue at five o'clock Monday afternoon. Sunday, apparently in his usual health, while shoveling snow from the walks about his house he was stricken with a shock but was able to get into the house where he fell. Soon passing into a stupor, he had not regained consciousness when the end came, some twenty-four hours later.

Mr. Sparks was a machinist at the Ashland mill where he had been employed for 44 years. A quiet, friendly man, his main desire appeared to be to attend to his daily business, and to see that no neglect of his should mar the comforts of his pleasant home. He was a regular attendant at the Baptist church, and a member of Reliance lodge, No. 29, I. O. O. F.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sparks. Oct. 14, 1908, he married Miss Gertrude J. Prior, who survives him. He is survived by two brothers, Duke and Alfred, and by three sisters, Mrs. Clara Robertson, of Jewett City; Mrs. Eva Lathrop, Bozrah, and Mrs. Minnie Delaney, of Plainfield. Mr Sparks' sudden death is especially pathetic, since, in the home is Mrs. Sparks' 90-year-old mother, whose health is precarious and in whose care he has aided so devotedly.

PUTNAM QUESTIONNAIRE AND ITS RESULTS TO DATE

In response to a number of inquiries relative to the questionnaire which was sent out by the Putnam chamber of commerce, the answers have simmered down to the fact that not much fault is to be found with any matters considered in the case except the mail. Two big concerns report their freight service as O. K. In the matter of passenger transportation, the only difficulty of importance which has been presented is by those who may wish to travel and take a trunk along. It is understood today that the mail transportation contract is about to be let to the lowest responsible bidders. When this arrangement becomes operative, it is expected that any item of criticism will be smoothed out. The mail service formerly performed by rail through this valley is now under the supervision of Chief Clerk William J. Stoddard, of Boston. Mr. Stoddard, for many years a railway mail clerk, knows the business from start to finish, and it will be his chief concern to arrange for adequate local mail service.

Anniversary Of Big Fire

Twenty-five years ago, Feb 27, 1905, the plant of the Jewett City Textile Novelty Co was destroyed by fire, with a loss of $75,000. At that time no hydrant was nearer than the corner of Brown avenue and East Main street. The fire was discovered by the watchman at half-past three in the morning. The officers of the company at that time were: President, Archie McNicol, vice president, John Tattersall; secretary, Oliver P. Wattles; treasurer, Dr. J. J. Donohue, the latter of Norwich.

Game wardens report that there are thirty flocks of quail in the various local covers, which up to the storm of Saturday night have been wintering finely. Last fall, as a result of the vigilance of the Griswold game wardens, the coveys were but little molested.

The icemen were saying Monday, one never can tell about the ice harvest. The houses were filled during what appeared to be the last chance, the men working all day Sunday, Feb. 9. Today, the old ice on the pond is 14 inches thick, with the areas whence the harvest was taken, showing four inches.

Accident To Chas. Latham

Charles Latham escaped serious injury when he was thrown from a wood sawing rig Saturday afternoon. He was driving a pair of horses home from Glasgo, where he had been sawing, when going down Gardiner hill the horses became uncontrollable and ran at top speed down the long incline. Mr. Latham was thrown from the machine, and the horses ran into a telephone pole at the foot of the hill, this stopping their career, for it threw them. Mr. Latham has a cut on his head and was terribly bruised, but did not call a physician. The horses were scratched in a few places.

CONNECTICUT FOREST TRAILS

Even in these days of rapid transportation when every person in five owns an automobile there are those who like to walk, who not only enjoy getting out and stretching their legs but know that such exercise is the best thing for them. But aside from physical need the charm of walking, especially through the fields and the woods, has a strong appeal.

For that reason there will be many in Connecticut who will be deeply interested in the announcement which has been made by the Connecticut Forest and Park association that this state is to have a system of forest trails.

It is the purpose of this organization to complete about 100 miles of such construction during the present year and it is an interesting feature of this movement to note that the work is to be done by volunteers after getting permission from land owners. Walkers and hikers can thus make plans for some interesting trail following in the not distant future.

While the start is to be made in New Haven county, with a trail of a dozen miles from Mt. Carmel over Mt. Sanford, this route will be continued as far as Southington mountain and be known as the Quinnipiac trail. There it will join the Tunxis trail leading up into Massachusetts.

Those who pursue these trails far enough will be carried entirely across the state northward, but it is to be expected that the effort will not rest there but that attention will be given to supplying a similar need in other parts of the state, so that hikers in any locality will be able to find a trail that will suit their fondest dreams.

Eastern Connecticut has its enthusiasts when it comes to walking and hiking and it has some charming country through which to lay out paths and trails for those interested. In time it can be expected that it will be able to point to one or more trails fully marked and much traveled and it can be assured before a start is made that it will have much to provide in the way of natural beauty. Trails will not appeal to the hitch hikers, but to those who are in search of wholesome exercise and recreation.

CATS AND DOGS

There are many angles to the work that is done by the organizations which are trying to prevent cruelty to animals, but there is need for all of it if we stop to consider the many ways in which their services are required.

There are cases where people know that they are being cruel to beasts, where they know they are underfeeding them, where they are not giving them proper shelter and care and where they are heaping on abuse in addition. There are many other instances where failure to anticipate what may result from their acts may result in torture and possibly death to the animals.

This latter situation is brought to attention by the plea which has been put forth in behalf of cats and dogs by the society in Massachusetts. A tin can seems harmless enough to either cats or dogs, and it is if properly used, but it is possible for it to be decidedly menacing. The Massachusetts society is trying to center attention upon this matter by urging people not to "throw away empty tin cans that have had any kind of food in them without flattening them at the open end so that no cat can get its head into one," and it goes on to explain that "cats and dogs have caught their heads in empty cans when seeking food and have been cruelly injured or have died before they were released."

Until a person has had such a thing called to his attention, or has happened to witness such an experience as described, he is not inclined to think of such possibilities, but with the matter brought to attention, there should be an eagerness to comply with the small effort that is involved.

It can be readily understood how such an undesirable situation can develop when a hungry cat, and possibly some dogs, seeks food wherever possible. The discarded can which has contained meat or fish is a drawing card. They are after every last bit to be obtained and in their effort to succeed they push their heads into the cans and encounter great difficulty in withdrawing them because of the jagged edges.

The trouble is eliminated by jamming the open end of the can together by stepping on it. It is a simple prevention but it saves needless animal suffering, and even those who do not care for cats and dogs ought to be willing to contribute that much consideration.

SEARCHERS ELIMINATE DOUBT

If there was any meager doubt about Carl Eielson and his companion being killed when their plane crashed in northern Siberia it has been eliminated by the finding of the body of Earl Borland.

Hope that they might be found alive was entertained by searchers until it had been ascertained that their plane was a wreck. Even then there were some hopes that the fliers had managed to escape from the plane and might be found in the vicinity. There was little upon which to base such a slim hope, especially when it was found that they had not touched the reserve food supply aboard the plane. Still there was a determination to keep up the search until something definite was established or until the bodies were found. Persistence in this quest has resulted in the uncovering of the body of Borland, buried in the snow at a point near where the engine was located.

With Borland dead all hope disappears. Somewhere under the snow in the vicinity of the plane the body of Eielson will be found. Shoveling away the snow and ice to the depth of several feet is not the easiest task that might be undertaken, especially when there is nothing definite to guide the diggers, but there is the same determination on the part of the searchers that sent Eielson into that region to bring out passengers and furs from the stranded Nanuk. They are unwilling that his body should be allowed to lie where it fell and there is much encouragement given them in their search by the finding of Borland's body. Fears were entertained that even if dead they had been attacked by wolves, but they would seem to be upset by the discovery already made.

Fortunate were the fliers who, in their search for the lost aviators, located the shining wing of the fallen plane. But for that, no idea might have been gained as to where they had fallen, although there could have been no assurance that they were alive. Yet developments have gradually pointed to the result of that flight which is slowly being proved, and the finding of the body of one of the aviators gives reason for believing that it will be only a matter of time before Eielson is also located and so much of the crash as ever will be known cleared up.

TRADE SCHOOL FOR NORWICH

Announcement has been made by Henry Ford to the effect that he will spend $100,000,000 and the rest of his life in the establishment of trade schools throughout the country.

There has never been any question but what Mr. Ford has the money, and there are those in all parts of the country who have contributed to his wealth, but now it has been shown that he has the disposition to scatter good with part of his wealth in such a manner that young people may obtain technical and vocational training.

It is quite apparent that Mr. Ford fully appreciated the demands that would be made upon him to distribute his $100,000,000 according to the desires of others, for he took the precaution to state that "I do not wish to be bothered by suggestions from persons who have never made or saved a dollar," but it must be realized by him that if he expects to forestall all requests for the establishment of schools by such a statement, or if he plans to put his schools at only such points as do not make bids for anticipated benefits therefrom he may be disappointed.

It is gratifying to note that the Norwich chamber of commerce has called Mr. Ford's attention to the desirability of having one of his schools located in Norwich and the opportunity that exists here for carrying out the objects he has in mind. It is to be hoped that he can be impressed with the proposition. This is not the first time an effort has gotten underway for a trade school in Norwich. If Mr. Ford is interested in advancing such a proposition in this locality it is believed that he will secure the heartiest cooperation. He cannot find a better location. But if he isn't interested Norwich should not let the need for such an institution go unanswered.

THE SIMSBURY FATALITY

According to the reports, the circumstances surrounding the fatal accident at Simsbury, when the machine containing four Yale students crashed into a tree, killing the driver and badly injuring the other three, were such as threaten all others who fail to recognize the added danger of snow and ice-covered roads and that of driving too fast and following too closely behind another car.

The students were returning to New Haven and it is reported that the machine was traveling at a fast rate of speed when the car ahead slowed up, making it necessary to apply the brakes on the students' car at a point where an icy spot in the road was covered with snow. The result was a skid, inability to control the car and a crash with a tree, one death and three injured.

The accident happened under highway conditions which called for caution. The situation was such as to indicate that skidding might be expected if an attempt was made to stop a rapidly traveling car, and that is just what happened at a point where a tree added to the complications. Had the machine been going at a reasonable rate of speed it would have been possible to have slowed it up without trouble when the driver ahead applied his brakes successfully but speed made quick work necessary and quick work was what ought not to have been attempted under the conditions of fast traveling and highway.

It was one of those unfortunate accidents for which there have been plenty of bad examples. It reflects the reason for too many of the auto accidents and fatalities that are recorded almost daily, accidents which are on the increase instead of the much desired decrease.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—The chief events of the week, so far as Connecticut is concerned was the bitter attack on Senator Bingham by Norris of Nebraska, insurgent leader, when the nomination of Walter for U. S. marshal came before the senate. Mr. Norris told Connecticut senators he "had no objection to the confirmation of Walter," but wished it delayed a couple of days as he had something to say. So Walcott and Bingham courteously refrained from asking it to come up prior to the Hughes contest, and then, when the Walter nomination did come up, it developed that what Mr. Norris "had to say" was not about Walter but another attack on Senator Bingham in connection with something published, alleged to be a quotation from the senator. But then that is typical of Norris.

Probably nothing of recent years has made such a deep impression, and a very unfavorable one, as the coalition of insurgents and democrats to defeat the confirmation of Chief Justice Hughes. It was moreover entirely unexpected, and is very generally regarded as a fling at President Hoover, rather than Hughes.

In fact, Senators Walsh of Montana and Overman of North Carolina, both able lawyers, and both entirely familiar with the details of Mr. Hughes' career as lawyer, and on the supreme bench, voted for confirmation of Hughes as members of the judiciary committee, then turned turtle, and voted against his confirmation, and lined up with their colleague, Carter Glass of Virginia, who had been a bitter anti-Hughes man from the start.

That the opposition was largely on the Hughes campaign speech for Hoover is the conviction of practically all Hughes men here. In fact some of the opposing senators did not hesitate to state that as one of their objections.

But it forecasts trouble when other supreme court justices come up for confirmation, as is likely to happen before the close of the Hoover administration.

The Connecticut delegation has been active socially the past week and on Tuesday Representative and Mrs. Tilson will give a dinner in honor of Speaker of the House and Mrs. Longworth, at which a number of the delegation will be guests, as well as several senators and members of the diplomatic corps.

Several intimate friends of the Tilsons will come on from New Haven to attend the affair and the guests will number 50.

Connecticut shows a slight increase in its marriage rate over that of the preceding year, but even then is failing to keep up with the record of five years ago. The figures show a decline of more than one per cent. The birth rate declined more than three per cent in the same period according to the U. S. department of health in its returns as they reach here.

The presidential offices in the war department are large and far more impressive than those of the white house office annex, now undergoing restoration after the fire at Christmas.

There is even more formality in reaching the president as several large marble corridors, on which the department offices open, make it a public corridor to a great extent.

You enter the building from one of its four sides, for it covers one entire street block. You walk up a very graceful circular marble stairway, unless you prefer the elevator. The stairway is built on old colonial lines.

Walking half the length of a broad marble corridor, you see ahead of you several secret service men and guards. When you reach them you find a heavy red velvet rope is stretched across the corridor, similar to that used to shut off the corridor at the capitol when the chief justice and members of the supreme court are crossing from the robing room to the court room across the way.

If you possess proper credentials the rope is lowered to the floor; you step into the reserved space beyond, where you face other men or guard. There are the same secret service men, the same doorkeepers; the same group of newspaper correspondents as formerly at the white house.

Though the surroundings are different, the practice followed is the same: if you seek an interview with the president or one of his secretaries.

In a great high studded room sits Rudolph Forster, executive secretary, and who knows more and tells less about past and present administrations than any living man. So valuable is Forster, that no incoming president ever dreams of letting him relinquish his office. Perhaps it is secretary to the president Akerson you want to see. If so, Mr. Forster passes you along out of the president's office. You do not see the president unless you or your business is so important that an interview has been previously arranged, or you are a member of the press gallery and your visit is timed for the bi-weekly conference the president grants that body of correspondents.

It sounds complicated, but it is not, and the need of the formality and safety precautions are necessary, as will be readily understood, when it is realized the great building is open to all visitors, while at the white house there are guards at every door, and none are admitted to the white house proper, or to the white house office building, except they present cards of endorsement, as individuals or are members of endorsed delegations. The exceptions are persons known to be eligible for such admittance, of which of course there is a long list, both officials and plain citizens.

It is pretty well understood here that former President Taft suffered a paralytic shock while in the south, and that the shock, coupled with his heart and kidney trouble, have left him in a serious condition, though he has gained in ability to speak and swallow food since his return to his home here. But that he is a very sick man is certain. Reports of his improvement are by no means indications that he can ever recover his normal health or strength.

If the democrats should win the next election and thereby gain control of the house of representatives, for the first time in history a woman is likely to be chairman of a great committee. Mrs. Norton of New Jersey, is second in rank on the committee of the District of Columbia, so only one member, Sullivan of New York, stands between her and the chairmanship, should the election go to the democrats.

The chairman of the committee is known here as "the mayor" of Washington, for that committee has complete control of recommendations to congress concerning its city government. Mrs. Norton is a wringing wet democrat; is an ardent supporter of the repeal of the 18th amendment and was one of the four women to so urge during the hearings of the last week.

It would be a strange freak of fate, if the "Dry Up Washington" movement now being urged, should come face to face with the opposition of the nominal "mayor of Washington," which would happen, if the democrats control the next national house of representatives, for Mrs. Norton is making good and has no opposition in sight for reelection.

CYNTHIA'S ENGAGEMENT

Cynthia Carmalee turned in the foyer of the new Tagle Arms with a lingering, affectionate look in her eyes. She had selected the furniture and designed the draperies. Even the frescoes decorating the breakfast nooks were the work of her own hands.

"It is really a triumph," said the low voice of the man beside her. "This afternoon, the sign will be hung." He pointed toward a black shield with gold lettering, "Ready for occupancy." A small sigh escaped Cynthia's lips.

"That is my cue to leave," she said with forced brightness. Arthur Berlyn looked at her half quizzically.

"Dickinson and Mayhew pronounced the effect superb." A dull flush crawled into Cynthia's cheeks. She knew that to attract the attention of men like Mayhew and Dickinson was a credit to any interior decorator. What disturbed her was that she cared more for Arthur Berlyn's opinion than for theirs.

Berlyn was the architect who had discovered her, who had taken her away from a mediocre position and had given her opportunities. Mr. Berlyn's name occupied no mean rating in the world of architects. Dickinson and Mayhew were, however, recognized powers. Contracts under their tutelage proclaimed success.

"I have another engagement in mind for you," said Mr. Berlyn. He caught at the entrance door, held it open. They passed out of the Talge Arms together. "An engagement for the future," he explained.

His words were like the fresh pricking of a wound. His thoroughly businesslike concern for her welfare, his willingness in helping her to reach the goal that she had set for herself hurt. What a strange goal it was after all, making places beautiful and charming to live in, and then withdrawing and giving others the pleasure of occupancy.

"This time, the venture is entirely my own," he explained. "I have made plans for something rather beautiful and distinctive in the way of a house, and I want you to take over the furnishing, down to the smallest detail. Shan't we have lunch together somewhere and go over this thing in the rough?"

They talked above a shimmer of sparkling glass and silver at a small table beside a large window, and there were many other tables about, and many other people. Music mingled with the babble of voices, and taken altogether the scene was gay and festive. Cynthia wondered how it would seem to come to such a place for pleasure's sake and not for the purpose of talking business, wondered how Arthur Berlyn's voice would sound in a lighter vein.

"You see," he said seriously, "this plan has been brewing for several years."

"Have you a particular client in mind?" inquired Cynthia.

"I'm not building this to sell. I want it for my home."

His words fell like a pall. "Oh," was all that Cynthia replied. Suddenly she remembered scraps of office conversation, references to an heiress whose name had been coupled with Mr. Berlyn's recently in the social column of a paper. For a time speculation had been contagious among the employes, but gradually it had waned, and now Arthur Berlyn was going to marry, was going to build himself a home, was asking Cynthia to decorate it.

Well, why should he not marry? Why should he not build himself a home? Why should he not engage her services? She should, she told herself, feel especially honored. She tried to gauge her thoughts and form a fitting answer. Was it not her profession to make places charmingly livable for other people? If only she could rid herself of that suffocating force which was choking back what she ought to say.

At last she raised her eyes bravely, gallantly, was steadied by Arthur Berlyn's kindly, searching glance, but was completely unsteadied by his words.

"Surely you know that I care. Won't you marry me, Cynthia, darling? We'll build this house together, and I won't have to leave it when the last brick is in place, and you won't run away from it as soon as the portieres are arranged. We'll enjoy it always, you and I. Won't you marry me, Cynthia?"

And Cynthia's shining eyes signed the contract for her new engagement. —Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.— In the heated row precipitated before the lobby committee when Arthur Faubel, secretary of the American Tariff league, charged that Chairman Caraway had been paid to speak by the National Importers and Traders council, another part of Faubel's remarks failed to draw the attention it deserved.

He produced what purported to be a circular issued by a New York bureau engaged in furnishing speakers, at a price, for any and all occasions requiring oratory.

The appended list of senators or house members said by the circular to be available, at the aforesaid price, was rather startling.

It was, however, wholly non-partisan. Democrats, republicans and "sons of the wild jackasses" were included. The thing that impressed the Bystander, however, was that no effort was made, apparently, to advise prospective customers for oratory as to the special subjects upon which each congressional war-horse might be expected to hold forth.

Word Weary

Washington's word weary press galleries could supply that deficiency. Reporters soon learn to know legislative hobbies of each member of senate or house.

Who doesn't know what Tom Heflin likes to talk about? Who doubts that George Norris is apt to at his best when he's grilling the power trust? Reed Smoot is the accepted spokesman of high protective tariff rates, or he was until Joe Grundy joined up. Pat Harrison is well worth hearing whenever he undertakes to spank the republicans verbally in his own, inimitable, ironically humorous way. Peter Norbeck gets spicy when he belabors his own party majority for alleged failure to do right by the farmer. Then there's Sam Shortridge on sunny California or Jim Couzens on Andy Mellon.

Talk For All

Step over in the house and even setting aside the endless wet and dry sniping fire, you find men with vocal specialties of all sorts. La Guardia can find plenty to talk about besides that. Ross Collins has been shooting up army propaganda for years. Cockran is agin' toll bridges and likes to tell why. Green is a wonder on the wonders of Florida; John Tilson comes in strong whenever industrial mobilization gets a hearing. James is chockful of aviation; Almon has been talking Muscle Shoals and little else for ten years. Edith Rodgers is an encyclopaedia of veterans' hospitalization facts and figures. Tinkham's pet subject is how the 14th amendment just ain't, as he sees it, down in Dixie.

Then there's Jack Garner on the "helgebiters" across the aisle; Doc Sirovich on poisoned alcohol; Ham Fish on Tammany and the whole house from Abernathy to Zihlman on pensions and public buildings.

Any oratorical taste could be satisfied.

NERVOUS INDIGESTION

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

By Lee Rice, M. D.
San Antonio, Texas.

"Nervous indigestion" is the name given to a group of symptoms or sensations that constitute the chief complaint in more than half of the moderately sick folk of this county. But it is no more a diagnosis than is the vague word biliousness. Out of a great number of patients examined there will be a very few with ulcers, cancer of the stomach, gall-bladder disease, etc., and when they have been separated from the larger group we have remaining the overworked and overtired and unhappy, maladjusted, psychotic, or disgruntled multitude with indigestion, whose stomachs must not be treated.

Such symptoms of "nervous indigestion" as clammy hands, cold feet, heartburn, short-breathing, choking sensations, belching, and fulness or gas, are produced by the nervous system and can always be relieved when the cause, which is frequently mental, has been found and properly handled. That requires thought and experience. Then the symptoms are treated in some simple manner. Usually sedatives are required.

Gas is the commonest complaint in this disorder. It is, no doubt, the commonest complaint in the domain of medicine. Gas does not produce pain and marked distension causes the simplest sort of discomfort or none at all. The formation of gas and numerous unpleasant odors accompanies normal digestion and the normal bowel is an open tube where absorption may proceed because of it. Nevertheless, purges and enemas are still given which increase the pain when atropine, hot compresses, and a little paregoric might relieve it. A gentle laxative and irrigation of the colon once daily with warm water could do no harm.

Nervous constipation is the second commonest symptom of nervous indigestion, and is the cause of constipation in 82 per cent of the people who are afflicted with this malady. It is a condition in which laxatives should not be used. They irritate an irritable bowel, produce churning, increase absorption, and help the muscular system to hypertrophy.

The competent family physician, if given the opportunity, will distinguish between those who have real organic diseases and the far greater number who simply need skill and patience to treat them carefully and finally to relieve their many pains.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

George Washington.

Mr. Editor: As we study and note the onward march of time, and the history of any nation or people, it seems through the evolution, and critical periods that arise and confront the people that there is found some one man who is specially endowed by nature to meet a situation with a lofty purpose to make good, and right the wrongs of those who are burdened with laws that become an infringement upon their rights as a nation and a people. In the dark days when this country was struggling for an existence the men who had the courage of their convictions framed that immortal document, the Declaration of Independence. And they staked their lives, their fortunes and their existence upon the outcome upon signing that which meant to them Liberty or Death. You who are today enjoying the fruits of their privations and suffering can give a thought to those men who were told that now me must hang together or we will hang singly. They had been called rebels by their king for, as we read, "When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinion of mankind requires that they should declare the cause that impels them to the separation." This is but a very small part of the whole declaration and all who signed the rebellious document were from that date men with a price upon their heads, but they believed in the justice of their cause.

Consider for a moment the poor condition the country was in, poorly equipped men, with all kinds of military supplies of very inferior quality and this was the army of which the one who was destined to be our first president, George Washington, took command. With a sublime faith in the justice of his cause, he fought on to the end, ever relying upon God and His watchful care. It was to be a bitter struggle, for he had poorly equipped troops and even among some of the leaders he was hampered by jealousy and discord. Just for a moment consider the insubordination of Major General Charles Lee who refused to obey orders at the battle of Trenton and who was court-martialed and dismissed from his command in the army and after his retirement spent all his time villifying and abusing Washington, with the treachery that was found of the proposed handing over of that military stronghold, West Point, to the enemy and the conspiracy of that arch traitor, Aaron Burr who was already looking and trying to set up an empire in the western country which was but the Chimera of an adventurer with a keen but unscrupulous brain. Yet with all these things to worry and harass him and to hinder, he still moved on to victory and to found the great and glorious country that we all have today. A great deal of this war and desolation was perhaps carried on by some of his many loyal ones who were part and parcel of this great panorama of life. Give a thought to Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain boys, General John Stark, your own Nathan Hale. And those farmers at the battle of Lexington, for

"Here beside the rude bridge that arched the flood.
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
Here the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the

All these were vital parts of that great army of what some of those English generals had called rebels, without a leader and soon would give way, and their leaders would be hung and the revolution ended. But they little knew the determination of those hardy sons of old New England who wanted freedom and were determined to secure it through the superb leadership of Washington who today is listed with the immortals as the man of the hour. Washington, like many other great men did not believe in his own greatness for he did not desire to undertake the position of commander-in-chief of the Continental army, not deeming himself competent for the position, as I will try to show you through his letters to his wife.

"You may believe me when I assure you in the most solemn manner, so far as seeking this employment I have used every effort in my power to avoid it. Not only from my unwillingness to part from you and the family, but from a thought it is too great for my capacity. I shall rely confidently on that Providence which heretofore preserved and has been bountiful to me. My only unhappiness will be from the uneasiness I know you will feel from being left alone."

This letter is too long to give in detail, the above must answer for in this he is seen as a man who loved his home, but when put to the acid test he showed that determination to win for his country, your country and mine where all people are entitled to freedom, the right to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience and to this they pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor. To secure this which was their divine right their destinies were placed in the hands of him who was to be your first president—George Washington, the one who was the noblest figure any people has ever set in the forefront of its life and history.

He had much to contend with for while he lived and fought on with his ragged trops, the union was held together in spite of all that was brought to embarrass him. He worried over the treason of Arnold and meanness of Lee. And when his time had come even his enemies mourned his passing on for of him it could be said, "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen." Today Washington and Lincoln have reached that pinnacle where it can be said Washington founded the union and Lincoln saved it, and their memory is enshrined in the hearts of their countrymen today and for the years to come.

He Doesn't Like Port Said

LONDON—The world was startled to learn, through the League of Nations, that Egypt has more than 500,000 drug addicts out of its 14,000,000 population. Some are said to be tots of six years.

Perhaps the outside world has been more astounded than Egypt. Cleopatra's land always has been naughty. If it worried about morals it never lost any sleep. The Nile has had some pretty grimy linen washed in it at one time or another.

Port Said is Egypt's plague spot. This gateway to the seats of the Pharaohs didn't get the title "cesspool of the east" for nothing. Drug taking is a mild evil compared to others in this seething port.

All That's Bad

I have been in some tough places in many countries, but never encountered such filth as in this city of myriad tongues.

Port Said lies at the point where Orient, Occident and savage Africa converge. Perhaps because of this it is the bottom of the whirlpool into which is sucked the flotsam and jetsam of evil from many nations.

It's only fair to say that Port Said doesn't represent moral standards for all Egypt. Very likely Egyptian officialdom is as much distressed as anyone could be. Every country has blemishes it would like to remove, but finds difficulty in doing so.

Lawless Desert

So much has been said recently about child marriage in India that most people overlook the fact that it is fairly prevalent in Egypt.

Some of the customs of the desert tribes are shocking. But that cannot be charged against Cairo and Alexandria.

The Bedouins are a law unto themselves. No government would be able to change them except by force of arms.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Beaton & Corbin Manufacturing Company, Southington

The Beaton & Corbin Manufacturing company was organized in 1898 by H. H. Corbin, W. P. Corbin and A. J. Beaton to manufacture split or hinged floor and ceiling plates, which has just been invented by A. J. Beaton.

Operations began in a small way in Beaton's plumbing shop in New Britain, but within a year the company absorbed a small polishing and plating business, and purchased a plant in Southington. Since that move was made, the original plant has been entirely replaced, and the new buildings contain some 30,000 square feet of floor space.

Soon after the removal to Southington the original owners dropped out one by one, and Messrs. I. N. Wells, A. R. Wells and F. N. Wells became identified with the business, developing it to its present position.

Although other items have been added to the company's line from time to time, floor and ceiling plates remain their principal product, for which they are known throughout the industry they serve. Beaton & Corbin products are shipped over the entire United States, to Canada and many overseas points.

The paper box department added some years ago serves customers in Southington and nearby cities.

The present officers are: F. N. Wells, president; A. R. Wells, treasurer; H. B. Armstrong, secretary.

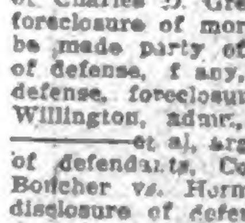
WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET



Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

Telephone Employes, As Salespeople

There is team work and pride in their work among telephone people. That is conclusively shown by the fact that during the three months ended December 31, 1929, the employes of the S. N. E. Telephone company made 4,800 telephone sales for an increased revenue to the company of $143,000 annually, these sales being negotiated by telephone workers not regularly engaged in sales work.

Employes in this city are keenly interested in the sales plan and have done their full share of this work, making many sales and bringing much added revenue to the company.

With every employe in the service, and there are about 5,700 of them, the telephone company has an exceptionally large sales force and it is a force that apparently takes pride in the service and facilities being sold.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

St. Petersburg, Florida, papers, in their news of social happenings at the week end, devote considerable space to a valentine bridge tea, given by Mrs. Charles B. Lee, of Norwich, an annual winter guest at the Hotel Soreno. Friends from the hotel and the city were entertained by Mrs. Lee, seven tables being occupied in the lounge. The prizes were huge boxes of Willard fruit in red, heart-shaped design, tied with bows of red tulle, for the high scorer at each table. Dainty nosegays of brilliant red sweet peas and baby's breath were received by the holders of low scores. The color scheme was carried out in the strawberry ice, snowballs with heart decorations, and coffee. Mrs. Lee's guests were six members from the Connecticut winter colony, with others from Michigan, New York state, Providence, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Illinois, Kansas and St. Petersburg.

Mrs. Adams P. Carroll entertained the Fesma Auction bridge club and friends with a luncheon Monday, the decorations being in pink. The prizes were won by Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. Roy D. Judd, Mrs. John E. Hawkins, Mrs. Herbert M. Lerou and Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell.

The Monday afternoon Sewing club met with Mrs. Allyn L. Brown.

Mrs. Wallace S. Allis entertained the meeting of the Monday Study club for Miss Helen Marshall. Miss Marshall had the paper, which was on Lamartine and the Second Republic. Miss Fannie L. Bliss considered the oral topic, Viollet-le-Duc and His Restoration.

When Miss Helen Pendleton entertained at bridge Friday afternoon, in compliment to her guest, Miss Suzanne Smith, of New London, the prizes were won by Miss Louise Evans and Miss Virginia Chase.

Estimated from the miles flown during the first six months of this year, navy airplanes will have flown a total of 16,000,000 miles for 1929, or seventy-one trips to the moon.

DISCUSSES WORLD CURRENT EVENTS BEFORE CIVIC DEPT. OF WOMAN'S CLUB

Another interesting discourse on current events was given Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel by Mrs. Marion Gaylord Atwell, noted lecturer of New York city, under the auspices of the civic department of the Woman's City club. As has been the case in her previous appearances in the city, Mrs. Atwell was extended a warm welcome by a large audience.

Mrs. Atwell spoke at great length upon the resignation of William H. Taft as chief justice and the subsequent appointment and confirmation of Charles E. Hughes for the position. She said that there was considerable criticism upon Mr. Hughes receiving confirmation of that office, the opposition being first led by Senator Norris of Nebraska. He was opposed, she said, on the grounds that Mr. Hughes made a faux pas in resigning as a justice in order to run for president.

Others who were opposed to him, Mrs. Atwell declared, based their criticism principally upon the grounds that his attitude on economic issues before the courts today was in sympathy to the "great trusts and moneyed people and not for the people in general." If this discussion had continued longer in the senate it was felt, said the speaker, that Mr. Hughes might not have been confirmed, but a vote was finally taken and he was elected by a 2 to 1 vote. She alluded to his acceptance speech as a "dignified" one.

From the bitter fight of the senate over the confirmation of Mr. Hughes the speaker went on to tell of the able commission that was appointed by President Hoover to investigate the conditions now existing in the island of Haiti, a United States possession. She said that the president wants the facts on when and how the marines, stationed on the island, are to retire and what is to be done in the meanwhile to educate the natives for self-government.

In speaking of the inauguration of President Rubio of Mexico which she termed a quiet celebration, Mrs. Atwell said that she heard a Mexican address a gathering in New York city the other night. In answer to the question, What was the best thing that the United States did in creating good will between the two countries? the Mexican responded, "In sending down Ambassador Morrow." The second and third best, were "In sending down Col. Lindbergh; and Will Rogers."

The situation in Russia, she classed as "interesting, irritating, yet so tremendously important." She stated that the present heads of the government "had either been in jail or served under the czar," who was ousted from office several years ago. She also spoke of the religious turmoil in the country, which is now working on a five year plan, building great railroads, buildings, etc. She said that there are now four of the greatest generators of the world building at Schenectady, which are to be placed in a plant in Russia to be used in furnishing light and electricity. "They seem to feel that they must do gigantic things to impress the world."

In concluding her remarks upon Russia Mrs. Atwell declared that the pope made a proclamation to the Catholic church leaders that March 16 be set aside for a day of prayer for the oppressed peasants of Russia, following which other churches have made known their intentions to co-operate in a concerted movement for deliverance of these peasants from oppression by those who would make Russia a God-less country.

Mrs. Atwell brought her talk to a close with mention of the accomplishments made by the delegates attending the naval conference, now in session, remarking that she was bitterly disappointed in the concessions made by the United States in the matter of disarmament.

During the meeting announcement was made that the civics department of the club was to have charge of an Americanization program to be given Friday afternoon, Feb. 28, at 4 o'clock, when a well known speaker from Bridgeport would be heard. There is also to be a business meeting, with social time and refreshments, of the club this (Tuesday) evening at the hotel, it was made known.

BABY BURNED BY FALL AGAINST FURNACE

Lois, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Rosenlund of Palmertown, was badly burned Friday when she fell onto the hot air furnace. The floor register had been taken off for dusting and the child fell through, landing on the hot pipes below. Her mother was near and pulled her out as quickly as possible, but not until the child had been severely burned about the body. Dr. Rasmussen arrived promptly, and after an examination stated that though the burns were severe they were not critical.

Reserved Decision In Common Pleas

Judge Charles B. Waller took the papers and reserved decision in the case of Max Steinlieb & Son of this city against Sam Toplis of Winsted at a session of the court of common pleas here Monday. The suit arose over a bill of merchandise.

SCARLET FEVER DEATHS IN STATE DECREASING

Scarlet fever patients in Connecticut are responding better to treatment these days than was true ten years ago, more recoveries being effected, it is shown by the records of the state department of health. Whereas in 1919 there were 2,853 patients of whom 46 died, the rate per 100,000 was 3.1 as compared with 0.9 in 1929 with 15 deaths. The percentage of deaths from scarlet fever last year was .7 as compared with 1.7 per cent in 1919.

Improvement in milk supplies and detection of germ carriers has improved the situation in typhoid fever cases, the records disclose. With 56 deaths of 415 cases in 1919 the rate per 100,000 was 3.8 while last year 15 deaths from the disease brought the death rate down to 0.9.

The treatment of diphtheria showed the most remarkable improvement in the ten-year period. Ten years ago there were 3,833 cases and 53 deaths, the death rate being 17.3 per 100,000, while last year there were but 62 deaths and the rate dropped to 3.8, which was the rate for typhoid fever ten years ago. The department ten years ago frankly believed there was little hope for material improvement in the treatment of diphtheria cases, it being one of the so-called respiratory diseases in which the germs are inhaled.

In 1919, 5,884 cases of measles were reported in the state with 100 deaths resulting, the death rate being 6.8, whereas last year of 9,800 cases there were 49 deaths and the rate dropped to 3.0 per 100,000. The percentage of deaths had also dropped to .6 from 1.7. The number of cases of tuberculosis in the state are holding their own, but the number of resulting deaths are decreasing. In 1919 there were 1,640 cases and 1,485 deaths, the death rate being 101.4 per 100,000. Last year of 1,421 cases there were 919 deaths, the death rate being 56.0. Last year there were 24 deaths in the state from cerebro spinal meningitis the death rate being 1.5, while in 1919 the rate was 3.1 and the number of deaths 45.

APPEALS FOR PALESTINE SCHOOL LUNCH FUND

An urgent appeal for the support of the school luncheon quota for the children of Palestine was made Monday evening by Mrs. Alexander Lamport of New York, in an address at Buckingham Memorial at an open meeting held under the auspices of the Norwich chapter of Hadassah. There was a good sized attendance at the meeting which was presided over by Mrs. A. Ableman. Preceding the address by Mrs. Lamport there was a pleasing entertainment programme given by the Junior Hadassah branch. Miss Fay Cadinski was heard in two vocal solos, Jack Davis also entertained with vocal selections and Miss Rivy Rosenberg gave a humorous sketch that met instant approval.

Mrs. Ableman then introduced Mrs. Lamport, who has just returned to this country after spending seven months in Palestine. "I lived in Palestine as a Palestinian," said Mrs. Lamport. "I lived there, not as a tourist passing through in two or three days, riding in fast-moving automobiles over the Palestine roads. My children attended the schools there and I entered the social and home life in Palestine. Just at this time they, in Palestine, are celebrating what is called the 'planting of the trees.' We are today planting in Palestine many types of trees and we are preserving them. We no longer can afford to cut our trees. We must spend our energy in planting.

"It is places like Norwich that give one heart in the work. You are all energetic workers, especially the Hadassah group. I know Norwich has an active chapter. Before I went to Palestine I couldn't picture what I was to find there. An organization has grown up that has woven itself into the very life of Palestine. You women of Hadassah are the life blood of this organization. If it were not for Hadassah would 125,000 Jews have been able to go to Palestine and settle there as they have? Hadassah has brought medical science to Palestine. We are now endeavoring to keep the people well, through preventive efforts."

Mrs. Lamport, who is national chairman of the Palestine school luncheon movement, told, more or less in detail, of the work with the Palestine children. "We care for the children from birth on," she said. "When they attend school we care for their eyes, etc. We have found a great need for proper feeding of the children. Therefore we are trying to raise a new quota for school lunches. The children can't go home for lunch, first, because of the distance, and then, because there is nobody home to get it for them. Our Palestine mothers are harnessed as well as the men. They go out into the fields, out to sew and perform other labors. Therefore there is a real need for school lunches. It is not entirely a philanthropic project, as the children pay what they can, even only a half penny. Many of the children in Palestine suffer from stomach trouble at a very early age. We studied the children in a kindergarten to learn the reason. We found that many small children, even as young as two and a half years old, lived entirely on food hardly fit for adults. So we have not only to provide nourishment but have to teach the children to eat it and like it.

"Our money for school lunches has come in rather badly, especially this year. I hope Norwich will go over the top in raising the school luncheon quota."

Mrs. Lamport, in conclusion, gave a most interesting account of the annual three-day celebration of Purim, after which Rabbi Joseph N. Rosenberg briefly addressed the gathering. Refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served by a committee comprising Mrs. M. Rosoff, Mrs. Jacob Slosberg, Mrs. Joseph Lahn, Mrs. Frank Goldstein, Mrs. L. Pollock, Mrs. Israel Goldberg and Mrs. J. N. Rosenberg.

DOCTOR GAVE TALK BEFORE CONTACT CLUB

An instructive talk on Cancer was given by Dr. John W. Suplicki at the weekly noon luncheon Monday of the Contact club at the Wauregan hotel. President Ernest O. Rodier presided at the meeting, Alex Pasnik was the song leader and Frederick W. Geer presided at the piano. Louis M. Crandall gave a brief talk on his trip to Biloxi, Miss., where the recent convention of the New England Mutual Life Insurance company agents was held. Mr. Crandall, while in the convention city, sent 1,400 postal cards to friends. He is endeavoring to write $1,000,000 worth of insurance this year.

Dr. Suplicki, who gave the principal talk, said in part:

I thought that the subject of interest would be cancer. You may ask me how you can do anything to prevent or limit such. In answer I would say that there are certain conditions which predispose to cancer, the avoidance of correcting of which would prevent the development of the disease. Among these are senile skin lesions on the face, irritated tongue, roughed gums, due to improper plates or decayed teeth, hot liquids, injuries of skin, where tissues may be bruised or lacerated, on the inside or outside of the body.

If any of the predisposed causes look doubting, you should at once consult your physician. Under his advice you may avoid a prolonged sickness and pain.

Doubtful growths should have a biopsy. This consists in removing a small portion of the cancerous growth which is sent to laboratory pathologists, who makes a slide and return to your physician the proper diagnosis of the case. Do not trust rubbers of the back or so-called masseurs or the patent medicine advertisements.

I shall now touch upon the most frequent growths. In women, the most frequent conditions are the breast and the womb, fortunately the lesions are more easily recognized. In the breast one should look for a small mass, the size of which might be from a pea to an orange. These masses may be hard or soft, they may adhere to the skin or be freely movable. The causes leading up to the cancerous breast are injuries sustained from nursing or from a blow or from accidents. Here I must remind you that cancer of the breast grows treacherously—why? In its early stages it is painless and therefore not given any attention.

Another thought should be given in regards to the cancers of the uterus. Suspicious bleeding should be looked upon with danger; also irritating watery discharges. Preventive measures should embrace the removal of continuous irritation and the treatment of above.

Of course, don't think that women are absolutely devoid of cancer of the stomach or any of the other organs of the body. A careful gastric analysis, followed up by treatment or resort made early where the condition shows no improvement to fluoroscopic or ex-ray examination. Money expended on examination seems exorbitant to us in the beginning but is well worth it in the end, might be the saving or prolonging of a life, and much suffering eliminated.

Serious consideration should be given to another part of the body, which seems to be to some of very little importance, namely, the rectum. Frequently patients visiting offices are ashamed to submit to examinations or to tell their physicians that they have bleedings or pain, and difficult bowel movements in these parts.

Another condition that exists is about the skin. The occurrance of this lesion is mostly in middle life, and appears as a growth, similar in nature to a wart. Irritation of the latter will cause considerable grief if not taken early. Many authorities teach that they should be removed even though they appear harmless.

Now that we have talked on the various causes and conditions of cancers, I would like to tell you something about radium and x-ray. These two agents have helped science to delay or depress the vitality of cancer cells, however, they are not a direct cure. Radical surgery is the only method in the early case. Many times it is impossible to resort to even surgery, due to improper diagnosis and neglect. However, I must repeat again radium and x-ray have done their share to prolong life and relieve suffering.

In closing I would like to stress the importance of periodic health examinations. In the bigger cities people have begun to realize their value.

Many faulty habits and organic conditions are discovered through a complete history, plus physical examination and laboratory tests.

If you would form the habit of having these thorough physical examinations at least once a year, you would perhaps lead healthier and happier lives.

Sensible Way To Lose Fat

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

Then watch the pounds slide off!

Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—they're tasteless that way and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing, go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at Lee & Osgood or any progressive druggist anywhere in the world.

It's the Little Daily Dose that does it.

Quickly Stops Dreaded Coughing

Coughing won't bother you this winter if you keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound on hand. Whether your cough results from a cold, irritated bronchial tubes, tickling throat, troublesome night coughs or a constant nervous hacking, each dose of Foley's Honey and Tar carries its curative balsamic demulcent virtues into direct contact with the irritated surfaces and gives instant relief. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar. For sale at Lee & Osgood Co.

Why Folks Stay Fat

Not always because of over-eating, but because a gland is weak. That gland largely controls nutrition. When it is weak one may nearly starve, yet stay fat.

Modern physicians the world over now combat this great cause of obesity. And excess fat, in late years, has been disappearing fast.

Marmola prescription tablets contain the chief factors which they use. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. And countless slender figures everywhere now show the amazing effects.

Go try this right method to reduce. Stop starving. Read the book in the box with the formula and reasons. Ask your druggist today for a $1 box of Marmola and watch the change.

Ending the suffering of 10 years in just a few weeks is going some but that's just an example of how quickly Tanlac works in stubborn cases that never yield to other remedies.

No wonder so many local people are so enthusiastic about Tanlac—no wonder local druggists are loud in praise of this medicine. Read for instance what Mr. J. L. A good powerful medicine was needed to fix me up and Tanlac proved to be all of that. From it I got relief from all troubles, stomach and rheumatism. My digestion now is just about 100% good. No more pain or distress, eat good, sleep as good as I eat, pain, stiffness, soreness all gone. Rheumatism in back and shoulders wiped out. I have tried out lots of medicines but Tanlac gave me results." That's the story of Tanlac in a nutshell—it gives results and gives them quick, for every herb, bark and root is a real medicine. SHYMAS MEET ARMY-NAVY TEAM IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES THIS EVENING

Parish hall, Taftville, should be taxed to capacity tonight when the Shyma club basketball team meets the Army-Navy team in the first game of the series for the championship of the village. According to reports this game should be a hummer. From the lineup given out by the rival managers the teams seem to be evenly matched and with the rivalry existing the fans are in for a treat as far as basketball is concerned. The manager of the Army-Navy team has gone out and secured the best basketball players in the vicinity and feels sure that his team will take the measure of the Shyma team; while on the other hand Manager Sullivan will present his regular lineup in an effort to take the first game of the series.

Manager Murphy of the Army-Navy team will have in his lineup several of the Y Seniors and this game should give the fans a chance to compare the two teams. In his lineup will be Ray Yerrington of the Y Seniors at forward. While the center position is undecided it is rumored that Manager Murphy has tried to secure Roland Harris of the Y team. In the backcourt two Taftville boys, who are now playing with the Seniors, Les Pingree and Enos Eccleston, will endeavor to stop the Shyma forwards. Eddie Murphy and Tommy Coleman will be held in reserve.

Against this array of basketball players, Manager Sullivan of the Shymas will present his regular players who have been practicing hard for this game and feel sure that they will come out on the long end of the scores. Rabbit Gauthier and Lefty Dugas will play at the forward position, while Pete Finn will jump at the center position. In the backcourt will be Jimmy Murphy, Peltier, S. Finn, Labarre and Lemieux. There will be no preliminary game, but there will be a whist party starting at 7:45.

DALEY BEATS SIMPSON IN 60-YARD SPRINT

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—(AP)—A pair of startling upsets marked the New York A. C. games at Madison Square Garden tonight. George Simpson, holder of the world's record for the 100-yard dash, bowed to Jimmy Daley of Holy Cross college in a 60-yard sprint and Fred Sturdy, former Yale sensation, finished third in the pole vault back of Tom Warne, Northwestern university, and Barney Berlinger of Penn.

Simpson may be the world's fastest human at the century on a cinder track but he was only another sprinter tonight to the Holy Cross speedster who beat him by a yard in 6 3-5 seconds after both had been clocked at this identical figure in winning their heats. Sturdy, who cleared 14 feet in this same meet a year ago, failed unaccountably tonight and could vault no better than 12 feet six inches. Warne, in a sensational New York debut, cleared 13 feet, six inches and barely failed in three attempts at 13:10.

Ray Conger ran the fastest mile of the season—4:19 4-5—in chalking up his fifth straight victory at the distance and the Holy Cross quartet turned in the speediest performance yet seen this winter in the mile relay by trimming Georgetown in 3:28 3-5.

These achievements shared the spotlight with the victories of Phil Edwards over Dr. Paul Martin in the half-mile and of the Polish invader, Stanislaw Petkiewicz, over two young college distance cracks, Paul Rekers of Penn State and Joe McCluskey, Fordham at 5,000 meters.

Hurdling honors were won by Monty Wells of the Boston A. A. who captured the 60-yard final in 7 3-5 seconds.

CARNERA KNOCKS OUT ERICKSON IN SECOND

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 17—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian giant, knocked out John O. (Man Mountain) Erickson, Chicago Swede, in the second round of their ten round bout at the Coliseum here tonight. The end came after 1 minute and 45 seconds of the second round.

The big Swede fought gamely during the first round and the crowd estimated at 6,000 persons, roared its approval. However, the ambling Alp grew furious in the second round after the "Man Mountain" stung him on the jaw with a right and a short jab to the stomach, and swinging wildly with both fists, floored Erickson twice in succession, before he took the final count.

Primo knocked Erickson into the ropes and he stayed down for a count of nine. Erickson came up and the vast Venetian rushed him across the ring. A left jab sent Erickson sprawling across the ropes again and he took a nine count. That was followed by a left hook and a right cross to the chin and the big Swede went down, to be helped to his corner.

Carnera weighed 284 and Erickson 237.

BAILEY NAMES WEAR AS DAVIS CUP CHAIRMAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—(AP)—Louis B. Bailey, of New York, newly elected president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, began his regime today by reappointing Joseph W. Wear, of Philadelphia, chairman of the important Davis cup committee and Fitz-Eugene Dixon, also of Philadelphia, non-playing captain of the team.

These two individuals will constitute two-thirds of the Davis cup committee as the only other member is Holcombe Ward of New York. Mr. Bailey declared this committee will have absolute authority in all matters pertaining to the Davis cup campaign. A committee of 17 served last year.

A similar group consisting of Harry S. Knox, Chicago, chairman; Joseph W. Ivvy, Kansas City, and Jones W. Mersereau, New York, will constitute the Wightman cup committee responsible for arranging the annual women's team matches with England. Mr. Knox succeeds Julian S. Myrick, New York, who for the first time in years was not given any office.

The advice of seven veterans of international tennis play, will be available to both of these bodies. The international play committee, whose functions are wholly advisory, will include Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, America's first and second ranking players; "Little Bill" Johnston of San Francisco; Richard N. Williams, 2nd, Philadelphia; Watson Washburn; Holcombe Ward, New York; and Charles S. Garland, Chicago.

Y SENIORS HAVE TWO HARD GAMES THIS WEEK

The Y Seniors, back again in the winning column by their one-sided victory over Winsted Y Saturday night, are preparing for two more state league games this week, coming at the week end.

Friday night Coach Demarest will take his squad down to Westport and Saturday return here for a tilt with Ansonia. The Seniors have a good chance of landing in the first division in the championship race and intend to improve these prospects in the coming pair of games.

The Norwich Girls, who have been very successful to date, winning five out of six games and who play the preliminary games for the Seniors, have listed the strong W. M. I. sextet for a game at the local gym, Monday, March 3.

It has also been announced that the annual Married and Single Men's game will be played at the local gym, Thursday, Feb. 27. Both teams are practicing hard for this clash and with the usual rivalry between the two quintets, one week from Thursday should be a busy night for ten local men. It is hoped to have the Norwich and New London Girls meet in the preliminary to this game. New London is the only team to hold a decision over the local lassies this season.

McCARTHY GETTING READY FOR SOUTHERN TRIP

CHICAGO, Feb. 17—(AP)—Enthusiastic over repeating in the National league championship race, Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs came to town today and made final arrangements for the first squad's getaway for Catalina Island tomorrow afternoon.

"We're going to have another big season," McCarthy beamed. "If Hartnett's arm is O. K. again and if our pitchers are as good as last year, we'll win."

"Marse Joe," held a secret conference with Cub officials, met a few rookies and said everything was set. He was especially elated over the acquisition of Lester Bell, who is expected to give him a hitting third baseman.

Only nine players, mostly catchers and pitchers will comprise the first contingent. Several will be picked up at Kansas City and many are on William Wrigley's island already.

JOHNNY KOP TO BOX ON BATTALINO FERNANDEZ CARD

Johnny Kop, local lightweight knockout artist whose boxing career was brought to a sudden halt about six weeks ago by a broken hand, is in shape again and will take up the quest of fistic laurels a week from tonight at Hartford. Johnny meets Rocky Rayo of Hartford, in a four round preliminary. Johnny's hand is completely recovered but he is taking no chances and will box only four rounds as a starter to try it out.

The local lad leaves today for Hartford where he will train for a week with Fernandez, Kid Kaplan and a number of others of pugilistic fame. Kop was going along at a fast pace and rapidly mounting the ladder to fistic recognition when his accident stopped his upward climb.

GAGNON BEATS PLIMPTON WITH UNFINISHED RUN OF 61

"Lewiston Joe" Gagnon, world's foremost pocket billiard trick-shot artist, defeated Young Plimpton of Norwich, 100 to 39, with an unfinished run of 61, at the Hickey Billiard parlors last night. Gagnon's exhibition was a demonstration of what can be done by long practice with a cue. His trick shots were exceptionally well executed and included many which were new to the local billiard enthusiasts. He also gave brief instruction regarding the execution of intricate billiard shots. He will give exhibitions at the parlor tonight and tomorrow evening, his opponent tonight being Al Senson, former state champion.

BUSH TO SELECT ANOTHER TRAINING FIELD

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Feb. 17—(AP)—Manager Donie Bush took one sweeping look at the yard picked for the White Sox spring training ground today and decided to move.

The diamond located to the rear of the St. Mary college campus was rough and dangerous and Manager Bush labelled it a "suicide plot."

Until a new diamond is located, Bush will train his men at the San Antonio Texas league club park. The baseball field at Fort Sam Houston, on the outskirts of San Antonio, also was under consideration.

Griffiths and Friedman Signed

BOSTON, Feb. 17—(AP)—"Tuffy" Griffiths, of Sioux City, Iowa, and Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, today were signed to clash in a ten round bout at the Boston Garden, on February 28. This pair met in Chicago last May, Griffiths being awarded the decision.

According to one young man in our town a girl's appetite should be regulated by the amount of the coin of the realm in the jeans of the boy friend.

And I ask you, folks, what's more embarrassing than to find that you are a few cents short of the dinner check when it comes time to settle up? There just isn't any alibi.

I am told that a certain young man in our town can give a very vivid description of a very embarrassing moment that deals with this subject of feminine appetites.

It seems that the young man met three young ladies of a nearby town, who had come to Norwich for an afternoon of shopping. Like the perfect gentleman that he is, he asked them to partake of light refreshments with him. Emphasis being laid on the word light.

As is the custom, or habit, or, whatever you may call it, they accepted with alacrity, in fact, with more than obvious alacrity. They were hungry, and when a girl is hungry, she is hungry.

A restaurant was selected and the young women began to scan the menu; it was a lengthy menu, too. And you know when a girl scans a menu she just selects her dishes from the right side of the card, that is, the side where the figures are.

Well, the very chivalous young man was something of a diplomat and sensing that the bank roll was on the verge of being taken for a ride, said, in a way of suggestion, "You know they serve the most delicious club sandwiches here of any place in the county."

To his very evident relief the young women announced that they would have club sandwiches, in fact, they would have two club sandwiches each. Well, that was bad, but it wasn't as bad as it might be.

Of course with sandwiches there are a number of other necessary incidentals in the way of nourishment. The young man, who is good with figures in more ways than one, did a little mental bookkeeping and when he had struck a balance he found that it was no balance at all. The liabilities far exceeded the immediate assets.

Now this young man has remarkable presence of mind. In fact, this presence of mind has saved him from many an embarrassing situation, if not worse. Immediately there was an urgent telephone call that must be made and he asked if he might be excused.

Now what this telephone call was, or bearing it had upon the tense situation, is unknown to me. But it was only a few minutes before the young man returned with a very much relieved expression on his face.

A few minutes later a friend sauntered into the restaurant and spoke to the young man, was introduced to the young women, and, of course, invited to partake of the refreshments.

He did, and what's more, he insisted on paying for the refreshments.

What handy things these telephones are.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years.)

One of the most thrilling Academy-Bulkeley games in history was played less than five years ago, Saturday, May 16, 1925, to be exact. The scene of action was the campus, and the game brought together an unbeaten Bulkeley team, headed for the state championship, and an Academy team that wasn't even considered able to score on the mighty Whalers.

Much to the amezement of the fans, Bulkeley didn't go right out and make a walkaway of it, for after seven and one-half innings had been played they had a four run lead, 6 to 2. But still that would have won the ball game and that's all that counts in an N. F. A.-Bulkeley tussle.

Came the Academy's second last chance at bat. With out one, Cimikoski was hit by a pitched ball. Gerry Burke walked and Shorty Hamil walked to the plate to gain everlasting fame. Shorty laid down a bunt and crossed up the whole Bulkeley team, Cimmy scoring. Greene was passed, Carroll doubled, Lloyd Jarvis singled and Hinrichs doubled, totaling in all six runs and Bulkeley was beaten. This inning will forever live in the minds of anyone who watched that game.

It turned out to be Bulkeley's only loss of the year and it crowned two new heroes for the school, Hamil, for his clever bunt, and Jarvis, for his pitching.

ATTRACTIVE CARD OF BOUTS SLATED FOR DANIELSON NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 17—The battlers will get together again in the Town hall Friday evening of this week, and Promoter Louis Peloquin said this afternoon that he believes the series of bouts arranged will prove even more interesting and exciting than those held here a few weeks ago, and those were exceptionally good.

Mr. Peloquin knows all the boys that will appear, and also their capabilities. He says they are very evenly matched, that they all crave action and develop it, and that the fans should be yelping with enthusiasm before the show has been open five minutes.

Al Brouillard of Danielson, will meet Young Kulas of Jewett City, in the four round opener, at 145 lbs. Both boys will be making their pro debut, after a successful record in the amateurs. Both are hard hitters, tough, and plenty of action is expected in this bout. Al expects to follow in the footsteps of his younger brother, Dynamite Lou.

Benny Novak of New London, will meet Curley Rota, of Norwich, formerly of New York, in the second four rounder, at 140 lbs. These two boys have plenty of experience in the pro ranks, and both are very fast and hard hitters. Their method of fighting, is to stand there, and give, also take it. This bout promises to be a tough fight.

Rene Peloquin of Danielson, is to meet Buster Ellis of New Bedford, in a six-rounder, at 123 lbs. This bout will be a hard hitting fighter, against a boxer, and that always promises a fight. Peloquin needs no introduction around these parts, being known as a fighter who fights, and proved this last Friday night in Taftville, against Romeo Dubois of New Haven, by taking the decision, in six rounds. Dubois is known as one of the best 122 pounders in this state. Ellis who has eight straight wins, promises to give Rene a tough evening. On the other hand, Rene expects to stop the winning streak, of the New Bedford flash, by a K. O.

Vic Darr, of Norwich, will meet Baldy Frodyma, of Providence, in the eight round semi-final, at 140 lbs. Darr is a hard hitting slugger, who recently lost a close decision to Ero Peterson of Worcester at Taftville, after having the Worcester boy on the floor, in the second round, for a count. He promises plenty of trouble for Frodyma. Frodyma who has a record of four straight one round K. O.s will no doubt try to keep his good record. He is known as a terrific hitter, who can take it, and is always boring in for more.

Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Danielson, meets Billy Carney, of New Bedford, in the star bout, of eight rounds. Dynamite Lou, who has won forty out of forty-four battles, thirty-two by knockouts, will meet a smart and clever boy in Carney, who is one of the four boys, who holds a close eight round decision over the local boy. Carney, who thinks he has Brouillard's mark, says that he will stop his winning streak. On the other hand, Brouillard says that Carney will find a different boy than the time they met, which was last summer. This bout promises to be a hummer. Lou has knocked out two opponents since the time he met Reid, here in Danielson, Kid Phippin of Newton in four rounds in Worcester and Jimmy Rossi, of Westerly, in two rounds, at Taftville.

EACH TELEPHONE STANDS FOR $197.29 INVESTMENT

The telephone on your desk at the office, or the telephone in the cabinet at your home represents an investment of $197.29 by the Southern New England Telephone company.

At the close of the year the total plant investment of the company was $63,274,000, and with the number of telephones then in service in the company's system each telephone represented the investment stated, on which, of course, earnings must be made to pay a reasonable rate of return and maintain service and equipment at the high standard required.

Many persons think of the telephone only in the sense that it is a small but indispensable thing to have around a house or a place of business. The telephone set is not an inexpensive thing, of itself. But the company maintains 1,367,532 miles of wire for the telephone subscribers to use at their will, much of this being underground and quite free from damage by any kind of a storm. Also the company maintains 86 central offices, some of them great buildings such as those in New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport, Stamford and elsewhere about the state.

In addition to the million and more miles of wire and the 86 central offices, there is a vast investment in motorized equipment and other necessities for keeping the service up to par, all of which are included in the $197.29 which the single telephone set represents.

Folks who stop to think of it will realize that every telephone added to the system makes the service just so much more valuable to subscribers in that it means another person or another business that may be reached by telephone. A few years ago a telephone subscriber could call only about 200,000 other telephones. Today there are 320,000 of them he may call and the plant must be maintained so that all of these will be available at any hour of the day or night.

SPEND $126,100,000 FOR RUNNING AUTOS IN STATE

The cost of operation of motor vehicles in Connecticut for one year is many millions of dollars more than the assessed value of the vehicles. A few items in the annual expense bill of motorists, as estimated by the State Motor Vehicle department, shows that more than $126,100,000 was spent in 1929 while the assessed valuation of all cars, computed by the state tax department from town reports, was only $117,600,000.

Maintenance costs exceeded any other item of expense, according to motor vehicle department figures. Connecticut's bill, based on a per vehicle charge of $190, estimated by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, was approximately $66,800,000. This was exclusive of amounts spent for fuel and lubricants, but included tire and parts replacements, accessories and service labor.

The amount spent for gasoline formed the second largest expense item. It was estimated from available figures as $36,995,000. In addition there was a state tax on this fuel which increased the gasoline account by $4,105,000.

Motorists paid $7,992,000 to the motor vehicle department for registrations, licenses, permits, fees and fines imposed by courts during 1929. The estimated tax assessed on motor vehicles for the year by towns was $2,350,000. Personal injury accidents were responsible for an expense of $4,277,000. This estimate is based on insurance figures for the average cost of hospital and medical treatment and payment on damage claims. The amount of property damage for the year because of motor vehicle accidents, was well above $3,000,000.

While figures for many items of expense connected with motor vehicles are not obtainable, these seven form a total of $126,110,000, or an average of about $360 for each motor vehicle. The average assessment value put on cars by town assessors in the state was $336. National figures show that the average retail price for automobiles and trucks is about $840. On this basis the original sale price of Connecticut registered motor vehicles in 1929 was approximately $294,000,000.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Riches and Riches

When I get rich I'm going to have
A wonderful horse to ride,
He'll be as black as a coaling ship
And as restless as the tide.
But if I should get richer than rich
My horse shall a chestnut sorrel be,
And his mane and his tail shall wave the gale,
As he gallops the hills with me.

Why should riches bring me a horse
That is black and restless too?
And why should riches-on-riches bring
Me a horse of chestnut hue?
I can gallop away on my dusky nag
In a dress of black sateen,
And all I will need is a ribbon or two
To feed like a gypsy queen.

But when I on my silver-dappled steed,
With his crested head held high,
Ride forth on the open roads of men
Or where paths wind up to the sky,
On the open road or wind-blown hill
I may ride as free and bard,
But my habit must be of 'broidered gold,
And his trappings silver-starred.

—Paulina Z. Brunt.

Cart Horses

What do they talk of
As they stand hitched together
In the windy street?
Of how hot the pavements are,
How very tired their feet?

Or do they speak of how
Somewhere the winds are clean,
With waters running cool
In meadows lush and green?

—Eleanor Halbrook Zimmerman

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Earthworms, are unthought of as food to us of the New World, but they are a delicacy to the native peoples of Arabia and India and in other foreign countries. Taste for food differs, according to the part of the world one lives in. Grasshoppers, for instance, nice, large juicy ones are served in dried form in restaurants in India, especially in Calcutta. In Arabia grasshoppers are ground up and used as a sort of flour. Some of the Arabs eat juicy grasshoppers boiled or stewed. The natives of certain sections of Africa like grasshoppers also. They make soup from the grasshoppers' eggs and include the grasshoppers in the soup to give it a flavor which they think delicious. We would hardly agree with the Africans that grasshopper soup could possibly compare with chicken soup.

The natives of far away Australia eat butterflies and in China, the people of that far eastern country make soup from the silkworm after it has woven its cocoon and become transformed into a chrysalis. Nice large, fat, juicy caterpillars are much in demand by the natives of the West Indies who think them a great treat. They would as soon eat caterpillars as we would relish a plate of ice cream. Roasted spiders often form one of the principal dishes at banquets held by the South Sea Islanders.

Ants are a favorable dish in the hot belt. Millions and millions of ants are eaten are by the native people of the torrid zone. In some of the hot countries ant eating is a craze. Millions of them are trapped in pots and the natives eat them alive. In the West Indies and parts of Africa fish eyes are devoured with much relish and the Indians of South America eat monkey meat. The flesh of the monkey is quite tough but the brains of monkeys, cooked, are considered a real treat. Snakes, in some countries, are considered as good eating as roast beef and roast lamb are in our own country.

Shopping On Dollar Day

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about an imaginary trip to Norwich on Dollar Day.

It is my mother's custom to go shopping nearly every Saturday. On this particular Saturday I wanted to go too. At first my mother said that I could not go but after teasing her for a long time, she finally gave me her consent.

The first thing that attracted my attention was a beautiful blue dress. "Oh mother," I cried, "Isn't this a beautiful dress?" and I grabbed the arm that I thought was my mothers. But when I turned around I saw a face, but not the face of my mother. It was the face of an old woman, who was staring at me. "I you don't know your mother when you see her,' she said, "you shouldn't have any at all!

After looking around the city for about half an hour, I found my mother, but when we came back to the shop the dress was gone.

I felt very bad, but it could not be helped, so I made up my mind to get a hat. But when I found the hat I wanted, it was so big that both my mother's and my head could fit into it.

Again I was really discouraged but my mother reminded me that I had to get a pair of stockings. So I bought the stockings.

My Pet Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and the Wide Awakes. I am going to tell you about my pet cat. My cat is a big white angora and his name is Rags. He can do many tricks, but when we let him out doors he is afraid and he jumps back.

The Tufted Titmouse

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you about a bird called "The Tufted Titmouse."

A jaunty little bird with his pointed crest and loud whistled notes, sometimes called Tomtit in the south, where he is abundant.

Perched on a tree top, he is one of the most persistent and cheerful songsters of early spring. Insects of various kinds are destroyed in great numbers, and in the winter he eats small acorns which he breaks open with his strong bill.

This Titmouse nests in holes where from six to eight white eggs, dotted with reddish brown and lilac, are found.

I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story. I will write again soon.

The M. F. Club

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you and I hope you and the Wide Awakes enjoy my story. This time I am going to tell you about a club four other girls and I organized. When I came to school that morning they said, "Let's organize a club and call it the "Merry Five" because there are only five here. We all agreed, and on the following Friday we had the first meeting at treasurer's home, Virginia Paquette. We had a lunch consisting of sandwiches, cake, and hot chocolate. Our dues are 10c a week. We have had the club going for three weeks and together we have a dollar and a half. This summer about the last part of August we expect to go to some beach.

Sugar

Uncle Jed: Sugar is an important food because it furnishes heat for our bodies. Sugar is made from the juice of the sugar cane and sugar beet, and from the sap of the sugar maple tree.

Sugar cane grows in warm countries. Louisiana in our country grows a large quantity of sugar cane. The sugar cane grows in stalks from eight to 20 feet high and looks like corn stalks. The juice is boiled and purified several times before it becomes the granulated sugar we use in our homes.

Sugar is also made from the juice of sugar beets. Sugar beets are white and much larger than the beets we eat. They will grow in a colder climate then sugar cane.

A small amount of sugar is made each year from the sap of the sugar maple tree. The sap is taken from the trees in the spring before the leaves come out. The sap is boiled and made into maple sugar.

Making Valentines

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to the Wide Awake Circle and enjoy writing. This time I am going to write you about Making Valentines. One rainy day I had finished reading my book and had nothing else to do. Then I remembered that Valentine day was coming soon, and that I had bought a box of valentines to be made up. I got a pair of scissors and began to make my valentines.

There were large pictures and little pictures that were to be pasted on the lace. The first thing I did was to pick out a pretty picture and cut it out and then cut some lace to fit the picture. I pasted the lace on the edges of the picture and the little pictures on the lace which made it look very nice.

I made one more valentine and before I knew it, was time for supper. I think that is a god way to spend part of the day when we can't go out.

Our Kitten

Dear Uncle Jed: I had a little kitty. I saw it, so small, on the street and it came to me. It had no tail. I took it home and gave it some milk. I called it Bobbie. I taught it to jump over my hand. As it grew older it would jump way up high. One morning Bobbie was sick and lay down all day. Mamma gave her some catnip but she was so sick she just lay down and looked at us. Then she died. We all felt so sorry. We cried to see her. We made her a grave and put some flowers on it.

A Pet Goat

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a pet goat. He is black and white. He is strong and fat and has large horns and a long beard. During the winter I keep him in the barn.

When I go to feed him he is glad to see me coming with his good food. He comes to the door to meet me. He is getting to be a large goat. When he gets a little older I am going to get a harness and a wagon. Then I will have some fun driving him.

An Adventure

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about an adventure I had when I went sliding. One day my friend and I were sliding down a hill near which was a store. In front of this store stood a horse hitched to a sleigh, while on the piazza was a small boy with a toy gun.

We hitched our sled to the sleigh and waited for the owner to come out. Meanwhile the boy discharged his gun in order to frighten the horse. The terrified animal broke loose from his hitching post and started off. It was very hard for us to get off and I allowed my friend to go first.

By the time I was off the sled the horse had stopped and when we looked back we saw the owner running toward us.

He told us he had finished his shopping and offered to take us for a long sleighride. We accepted his invitation and had a pleasant ride. When we thanked him he also said that if at any time we wanted a ride he would gladly take us.

A Visit To Providence

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first story I have ever written. I don't expect to get anything this time but I will try again. I am going to write about my trip to Providence.

One Saturday I went to Providence. It took us a little over an hour. We got there two o'clock and we went to a show. We went to Loew's State. The picture was Gold Diggers of Broadway. After the show we went to get our supper. On our way home we went through the park. I saw monkeys on swings and seesaws and on lots of other things. I saw an elephant bears and seals, buffalo and deer and lots of other things. Then we came home and I hope I can go again some day. I had a very nice time.

My Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I will write to you about my cat. Two years ago, on New Year's, my father brought home in a bag a small cat. My sister thought it was candy, but when she heard it say "meow" she knew it was a little cat. I gave him some warm milk and put him in some rags. We taught him some tricks. One of them was to jump over my hands. When you say "Jump," he will jump. The other trick is to stand on his hind legs and beg. He can not do the last trick very good.

My Little Puppy

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my nice bulldog. He used to follow me everywhere I went. One day I was going to the post office and I had to cross the street. My dog was following me. Just as he got about half way across the street an automobile came along and struck him and killed him instantly. I felt very sad. My father felt sorry for me, and he said, "I am going to see a friend of mine. I think he has some puppies for sale." So father went away one afternoon and when he came back he had a lively little puppy, eight week's old. And now I must tell you I am very happy again. I named him "Buster."

My Trip to Richmond, Virginia

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you once, so I thought I would write. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

In the summer of 1927 my uncle and aunt took my mother and I to Virginia with them.

We went across Bear Mountain bridge and went as far as Reading, Pennsylvania in the first day where we stopped at a hotel over night.

After breakfast in the morning we got into my uncle's car again and started on our journey. We went through Baltimore, Md., Washington, D. C., and arrived at my aunt's house in Richmond at six o'clock at night. I enjoyed my ride very much and I think you would have, too.

The Convention

Dear Uncle Jed: A few years ago on my vacation to West Haven my aunt gave my cousins and me a very pleasant surprise. She called us in from the yard and told us to get dressed. When we were ready we went down the street. Soon three clowns appeared. After them some men came playing a fife, drum and a horn. We laughed. Then came a fire wagon drawn by horses covered with flower wreaths. Soon the modern fire engines came. Following them were firemen dressed in all colors. When the fire veterans and floats had passed we beheld a wonderful sight. Firemen dressed in red, others blue, and others in white were coming, marching in such an order that it made it look like a marching flag. Later we went and saw them go through their maneuvers at Savin Rock. We all certainly enjoyed it all.

My Birthday Party

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading my story. It is about my 12th birthday party. The party took place at my home, Feb. 2, 1930. The dining room was decorated in red, white and blue paper, to represent our American flag. There were 13 little schoolmates present.

When they all arrived we played basketball. While we were enjoying the game, mother called me in and said, "Dinner is ready." Then we all came in and had a hearty dinner. After we finished dinner we played some games out doors which was a snowball fight, and then we built a snow man. Later we came into the house, we played spinning the plater and other games and dancing. During the games and dancing we had candy and fruit and cake. Then we lighted the candles and sang America.

Soon it was time for the children to go home. It was about five o'clock when the party ended. All the children and I had a very nice and enjoyable time. Don't you think so Uncle Jed?

To Cherokee Indians

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell the Wide Awakes about the Cherokee Indians. In 1834 congress set apart the territory which is now the state of Oklahoma for the Cherokees, Creeks, Seminoles, Choctaws and Chickasaw Indians. I am going to tell you how the Cherokee Indians learn to read. The Cherokee chief, Sequoyah, in his old age had to stay in his lodge and his chief amusement was to cut figures from pieces of bark. He became more and more interested in his work as he saw that these figures could have a meaning. In this way he formed the Cherokee alphabet which consists of 85 letters from which all the tribe learn to read and write. These Indians also introduced the first printing press into Oklahoma and published the first newspaper The Cherokee Messenger" in 1844.

The Present

Dear Uncle Jed and the Wide Awakes: Last week I read some interesting stories in the Wide Awake circle part of the Bulletin. I hope my story will be interesting to those who read it.

Mr. Lewis was a man about forty years of age. He had two sons and a daughter. The oldest son, Samuel, was ten years old, the next, Lawrence, was six years old, and the little girl, Dorothy, was only three years old.

Once Samuel said to Lawrence, "In two more weeks is papa's birthday. We ought to give him a present on his birthday.

But Lawrence said that he didn't know where they could get the money.

Samuel said, "Every day mamma gives us some pennies to buy candy. From today on, if we have the money, we'll have enough to buy papa a birthday present."

So, from then on, the two boys saved their candy pennies and tried to decide what to buy. Little Dorothy heard her brothers whispering and she said, "What can I buy? I haven't any pennies so I'm going to write a letter to papa."

She took ten pieces of paper and a pencil and wrote. But what did she write? She didn't know the A, B, C, so she wrote lines and dots. Everyday she wrote. Her big brothers saw her lines and dots and laughed and asked, "What are you writing, Dory?" And Dory answered, "A letter."

Then came their father's birthday. The boys got up early in the morning and came to their father's bedroom to congratulate him. The father was still sleeping. When the boys came in, he opened his eyes slowly. Samuel and Lawrence came to their father and gave him the present that they bought him. Mr. Lewis was very glad and kissed them both.

Then Dorothy came into the room and showed her father the different papers full of lines and dots and said, "Papa, here is a letter for you." "And who wrote it?" asked her father. "And what's written in it?"

"It's written there that I love you a lot, a lot, a lot, a lot, a lot.

Mr. Lewis kissed Dorothy many times and Dory's brothers saw that her present was just as good as theirs.

Don't you think it was, too. A new Wideawaker.

My Accident

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you for a very long time. Today I will write to you about how foolish I was not to obey my mother.

One year ago on Thanksgiving my mother told me to go to the store. I said, "No," then I ran up the lots which are in back of our house. In the lots there were some boys. They were standing near a fire. Some other boys were playing with a frame of a wagon. They pulled it up the hill. I went over and helped them to push it. When I was pushing it up the hill the wagon hit a rock. The wheels turned around and hit my little finger. When the wheels hit my finger it made a long deep cut. I ran home crying. My mother called the doctor. The doctor gave me five stitches.

"CONDEMNING SHADOWS"
[Shakespeare, 1564-1616]

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—you men who would keep that trim, proper form, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

BUILDING ACTIVITIES SHOW EFFECT OF ANNUAL WINTER SLUMP

The winter slump in building was shown last week when but a single building permit was granted by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft. This permit was for a hen-house. No applications for permits were received at the office, but plans are being drawn for a number of new buildings in the city, according to local contractors.

Despite the weather, fairly good progress was made on local building projects. Work at the Norwich Inn progressed favorably and a number of rooms were completed by the plasterers. Contractors Peck-McWilliams Co. anticipate a steady rate of progress as soon as the present cold snap is at an end.

During the week Contractor W. S. Spencer poured the cement for the foundation walls of the new Norton gymnasium at the Academy. The front and two side foundation walls have been poured and the rear wall will be poured as soon as weather permits.

On Fanning avenue, two of the new houses being erected by a local contractor have been closed in and work is progressing on the interiors. Contractor Sweeney has nearly completed the new house that he is building on this street.

On the West Side, Contractor Homer Monty has nearly completed the two apartment house at the corner of Asylum and Newton streets. He is planning to build extensively this year in the Grant court development which is rapidly building up.

In other sections of the city work progresses with creditable speed and the contractors look for a busy season with the coming of spring weather. It is noticeable that many new dwelling houses are being erected in the outskirts of the town and along the main highways. There is considerable activity on the Norwich-Westerly highway, the highways on each side of the Thames and on the Salem road. There are several sections of Norwich that are also being rapidly developed those being on the McKinley avenue extension, Grant court, and Fanning avenue, besides the Hamland road which is in the town.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 11 sales of real estate in Norwich, an increase of four sales over the same week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $12,010,710 and $17,550.

In New London during the past week there were three sales of real estate as compared to nine sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $53,400 and $39,357.

NEW LONDON

Despite the mid-winter slump in building activities being felt in this city at the present time the monthly report of Building Inspector William Gunn, Jr., for January shows that this month in 1930 compares very favorably with the report for the same period last year.

According to the report there were nine permits representing an outlay of $50,700 issued by the city council here last month as compared to six permits representing an outlay of $45,000 for the same time last year.

Although little activity has been noted on new work in the city during the past three weeks several contractors have started figuring on jobs which will materialize in the near future and the prevailing opinion is that early spring will find conditions favorable to those prevailing at the same time last year.

Donald H. DuMont has applied for permission to erect a building on the public landing at the foot of State street. Mr. DuMont has leased a part of the public landing which in former years has been used by the Griswold hotel to land its passenger boats, but it is understood these boats will not run next summer.

The building which Mr. DuMont proposes to erect is to be 16 by 20 feet in dimension, one story high, of frame and metal construction with roll roofing. Permission is also asked to enclose the pierhead with a picket fence six feet high and to sheath the inside of the small building now located on the wharf and included in the leased property.

A house being built for S. J. Crouch in Vauxhall street is ready for plastering. The house is a modern frame dwelling arranged for single family occupancy and has all improvements and conveniences including hardwood floors, built-in fixtures, etc. Work is being done under the supervision of the owner. The plastering has been completed in a house being built for Fred Onuparis in Vauxhall street. The house is also a frame structure of modern design with all improvements.

BUILDING PERMITS

Isidore Sarinsky, frame dwelling, Plant street, $9,000.

John Szigiewski, alterations, 15 Atlantic street, $4,000.

Anthony Benvenutti, to move house from Chelsea street to 93 Smith street, $150.

Oliver Woodworth Co., increase pier, public landing, $500.

Number of permits for the week, 5; estimated cost of buildings, $13,650.

JEWETT CITY

Plans are being drawn for an addition to the Slater library, to be known as the David Hale Fanning annex. The cost of the work will be $75,000. Changes will also be made in the present library building. Dr. G. H. Jennings, Alex McNicol, A. D. Tripp and E. A. Faust are members of the building committee.

WESTERLY

The generally unfavorable weather of the past week has prevented much activity in outside construction work in and about Westerly. However interior work in the nature of repairs and renovations has been carried on where the workmen have been protected from the weather. The large 15-room house being completed for Arthur L. Perry at the rear of his present residence, 62 Elm street, is now ready for lathers. It is now expected that this new house will be ready for occupancy until late in the summer.

For the second week in February Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills and Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi have issued the following building and zoning permits:

Feb. 14. Mrs. Ann Waddell and Mildred Erickson, South Manchester, 183 Atlantic avenue, Misquamicut. Two-story addition, 24 feet by 24 feet to house at 183 Atlantic avenue, Misquamicut.

Feb. 14. George L. Stillman, 36 Granite street. Five-year permit for wayside stand, 15 feet by 12 feet on Beach street.

Feb. 14. Watch Hill Bathing Beach association, Bathing Beach, Watch Hill. Open sun room addition, 15 feet by 40 feet, to private bathing pavilion on Watch Hill Beach.

DOOR CHECKS SHOULD NOT BE OVERLOOKED

Door checks are a useful addition to the hardware of the house. They eliminate banging and prevent double swinging doors, such as those between dining room and pantry, from passing the center.

Such a door swinging freely without a check is frequently a source of accident and injury. Other places where door checks serve a good purpose are the screen doors to prevent banging, the butler's pantry door to expedite quiet service, mirror-door closets to prevent slamming and the possible breakage of glass and front and rear doors to eliminate drafts.

Door checks may be had in two types, one attached to the top of the door and the other sunk in the floor. Both may be bought with the adjustable feature, which permits the door to be held in a desired position until released by hand or foot, according to the location of the check.

BUILT-IN GARAGE ENHANCES PROPERTY, SAVES MONEY

In addition to the considerable saving given the home builder by the built-in rather than the detached garage, the aesthetic sense is satisfied by the elimination of that sometimes objectionable little building at the rear of the yard. From the utilitarian standpoint as well as the artistic the most complete house is the one which holds within its walls all the features required for modern living; and with the automobile occupying so important a part in our lives, shelter for it should also be provided.

Gardens, too, occupy an important place in the true home, and the small suburban lot can sometimes ill afford the square feet of ground occupied by the detached garage. The built-in garage is apt to be popular with the garden lover.

TALKS FROM ONE ROOM TO ANOTHER BY TELEPHONE

The primary purpose of the telephone was to save time and to span great distances with the least possible effort. This is still the function of this now indispensable piece of equipment and in addition it acts as a means of communicating within the house itself. Inter-room communication within the house is rapidly becoming an accepted thing in our modern homes. The garage, basement and kitchen may now be considered at your fingertips if your home is provided with telephone conduits when it is built, for, by merely lifting the telephone one may communicate with any part of the home.

Modern methods of wiring and portable telephone sets have made this possible. At the time the architect is drawing the plans, should you be building a new home, be sure to have him incorporate a plentitude of telephone outlets. Every major room should have one, each of the bedrooms should be serviced, the kitchen, of course, and be sure not to forget the basement or the attic if these portions of the house are used for recreation or living purposes.

SUMMER COTTAGE SHOULD BE BUILT FOR PERMANENCE

Consideration of plans for the new summer cottage will shortly begin. Every season sees the erection of countless such habitations. Likewise, every summer sees the demolishment of almost as many more. For the summer cottage, occupied but a few months annually and utterly neglected the rest of the year, is peculiarly susceptible to the ravages of the elements. Wind and storm take quick and heavy toll.

It has been the custom for many years in most summer colonies to build the shack type; something that suffices temporarily, but isn't expected to last any great length of time. Thousands of dollars are squandered yearly in this type of summer home. It is inexcusably wasteful; for if the locality is at all worth while one always should be able to sell a summer home.

In most cases it develops that by the time the builder tires of such summer outings his shack is past recovery. Instead of being able to dispose of it at the profit the increasing popularity of its location should insure, he is forced to sell at a sacrifice, not infrequently for whatever he can get. It is one of the inevitable penalties of building thoughtlessly and with materials that are not proof against excessive exposure.

Should you be planning such a cottage consider its possibilities from all these angles. Construction today is rather expensive; double, almost, what it was before the World war. Materials of the ordinary class are no longer lived, no more impervious to decay than they ever were. Build with the idea of being able to sell eventually and receive a fair return. And consider your own comfort in occupancy meanwhile.

Select a permanent material for the exterior walls; one that will resist the elements, that a winter's exposure will not injure and one that will give you as dry a home in the spring as you left in the fall. There is no better material than brick to insure you all this, and common brick will cost you little more than wood.

USE FIRE SCREENS TO CURB SPARKS

Were you ever seated in front of a merrily crackling log fire and suddenly found it necessary to make a flying leap from your seat because the fire crackled a bit too merrily and sent a shower of sparks in your direction? Consider that this might happen when there is no one in the room to stamp out those dangerous sparks and prevent the possibility of fire. One sure way to eliminate this hazard and at the same time enhance the appearance of the fireplace is through the use of fire screens and fenders.

Only misconceived theory regards the fire screen as an agency that will detract from the attractiveness of the hearth. Used in conjunction with brass or bronze andirons and fire sets such equipments complete and finish the appearance of that side of the room wherein the fireplace is installed. In folding or one piece designs fire screens can be secured with such finishes as oxidized copper, antique, or verdi antique at a slightly higher price than the standard black steel or natural copper finish. Sizes and shapes are made to fit all fireplace openings. They can be obtained with or without andiron openings.

Fire fenders are of the same materials and finishes as the screens and are usually eighteen or twenty inches high. If desired, they may be equipped with brass claw feet. The wire meshing may or may not be ornamented according to the preference of the owner.

In the basement billiard room the fender serves another purpose. During exciting moments of play it is not uncommon for the balls to jump the tables. Should they happen to land on the tile, brick or stone which floors the hearth they are likely to chip. When the fender is in place this is prevented.

DOOR SHRINKAGE CAUSES TROUBLE

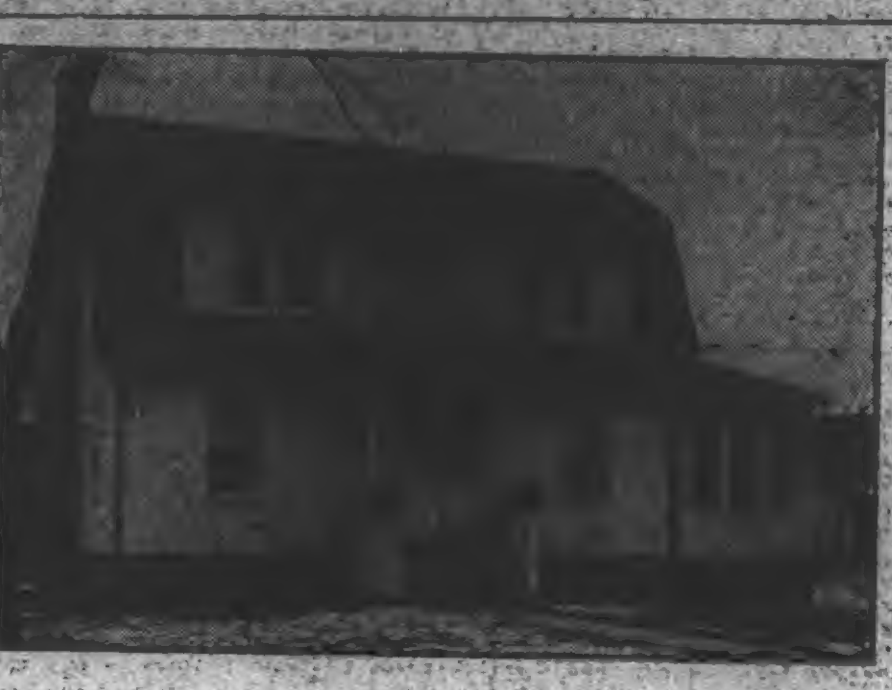
The bad temper of a child or adult is often exhibited in a most disagreeable manner by banging a door. Sometimes the door itself is the reason for that bad temper. Shrinkage, warping, or swelling, from a number of causes distorts an ordinary door. A vicious yank is necessary to close or open it, easily ruffling an ill-controlled temper and jarring the nerves of other members of the family.

Doors made of solid wood must expand and contract with changes in moisture content. Becoming almost human in their stubborness in refusing to properly they constantly annoy the household. Often they must be taken down and apart for planing to original size.

One large manufacturer of doors claims to have overcome this inherent fault of wood by laminated or built-up construction. Douglas fir logs are sliced by special machinery into thin strips. Dove-tailed and cemented to one another, these strips are squeezed by tremendous pressure into one solid piece of built-up lumber, forming the core of the door. The natural cavities of the wood, source of all door troubles, are closed up by the cement and the terrific hydraulic pressure. One layer exerts its strain against the next and thus keeps the whole in check. Selected layers of wood are cemented securely to this foundation with the same waterproof cement, to form the visible surfaces. Shrinking, warping, or other common door faults are said to be impossible in such doors.

Styles and types in this modern door are wide. Exterior and interior doors, French doors, doors for English and Colonial homes, are made with or without panels in various grains. Slash-grain doors bring out the natural beauty of Douglas fir. Resembling watered silk, this finish is especially adapted for stains and varnish. Vertical grain forms a smooth surface for paint and enamel. Prices for these laminated doors are only slightly greater than those of ordinary wood doors.

Home of John R. Tarrant on McKinley Ave. Ext.



This attractive house was built by Peck-McWilliams Co., building contractors for John R. Tarrant on McKinley avenue extension. In this home is embodied all the charm of modern American architecture and it is one of the most attractive of the many new homes being built on this street.

The house has a concrete foundation with stucco finished underpinning. The exterior is finished in wide clapboards with composition shingled roof. The chimney is built on the outside of the house. The flashing and water conductors are of copper.

The interior of the house is very prettily finished the floors being of oak and the trim being of colonial ivory. On the first floor is a large reception hall, living room, dining room, sun-porch and kitchen. On the second floor are three bedrooms and bath which is in tile.

The cellar is finished so that it can be used as a laundry with cement floor and walls. There is a cold storage cellar, and furnace room. The house is heated by steam and the piping is all of brass.

DOOR SLAMMING BY PEEVED FOLKS STOPPED

Widely used throughout office buildings, door-checks, or closers, have many advantages for doors of homes. Carelessly left open in cold weather, an outside door lets in a rush of chilling air. In a few minutes a great deal of heat can thus be dissipated—heat which has actually cost money to create.

Equipped with a check or closer, the door shuts automatically and quietly. Only a minimum amount of heat escapes. Drafts which swoops among the floor level and chill human ankles are largely eliminated. Peeved children and husbands will find it difficult to slam a door so equipped. In summer months flies and other insects swarm through an open entrance. During both winter and summer someone is inconvenienced by having to come after the thoughtless person to close the door which has been left ajar or wide open.

LAWS REGULATE SIZE OF FIREPLACE

From a practical point of view the fireplace opening must be of a certain size, the width, height and depth conforming to well recognized laws. To provide proper draft, the outlet to the flue and the flue itself must be proportioned to the size of the opening, and built in accordance with certain definite rules. Since the fireplace is going to hold fire, the materials surrounding the opening must not only be non-inflammable but of sufficient thickness to prevent heat from being transmitted to any woodwork in such intense degrees that it will be ignited.

Heating a room by means of a fireplace is not often necessary, but it may be very convenient at times in the spring or fall of the year. To increase the heat from a fireplace, double shell metal linings may be used, which will transmit heated air through proper ducts to the room. Masonry material is best around the opening. Brick is very often used, as is also tile, slate and cement.

DAMAGE FROM MICE

If you have not already done so, protect your shrubbery and small trees from mice by binding their bases tightly with straw or burlap, taking care that the covering is sufficiently snug to make it impossible for the pests to make their way through. Mice frequently select such places as winter shelters and the damage they do by gnawing is heavy.

CORRECT HEIGHT FOR TABLE

The kitchen table is generally the correct height for the worker is she can place her hands flat on the top without stooping.

SURE DEATH TO APHIDS

One of the most effective methods for killing aphids on house plants is to sprinkle the plants with a two per cent nicotine dust.

COMPETITIVE BIDS MAY BE HARMFUL

Unrestrained competition is an evil of the building industry, according to C. Herrick Hammond of Chicago, president of the American Institute of Architects, who urges closer industrial relations between architects and contractors to eliminate waste, and to promote higher standards.

"The prevailing system in this country of selecting a contractor by competitive bidding often fails to accomplish the very result for which such competitions are held, namely, to secure the best contractor to do the work," Mr. Hammond declares.

"When competitive bids are taken on an important building, general contractors are selected to bid, and as far as the architect is concerned an effort is made to select men as near equal in standing and qualifications as possible.

"But other contractors, not invited, bring about all the pressure and influence that they can organize to secure an opportunity to bid, thereby increasing the number beyond the desires of the architect and beyond the number which would give each bidder a reasonable chance to win. Worst of all, they inject into the list men who may not be properly qualified to do the work if they do get the job.

"Unrestrained competition in the building industry is an evil. Many evils of the industry are the result of the unfair competition that comes about through the necessity of accepting bids from contractors of unequal standing and ability; this is a problem that must be solved by the contractors.

"It is obvious that in the construction world the products sold in competition are made after they are sold. When a merchant sells a pair of shoes in competition, the buyer sees the shoes and can choose just as good or as bad a make of shoes as he will stand for or pay for.

"When the owner buys the construction of a building in competition, the competition is all over when the sale is made, thereafter the buyer, having bought blindly on a promise or on a reputation, receives in return an article which is no better than he or the architect will accept, or the craft pride and good faith of the builder will produce.

"It is that essential failure of ordinary competition when applied to building construction, that must be taught to the people who pay for the building, the owners, and it has to be taught to them by competent architects and competent contractors working together with a fine spirit of co-operation.

"I believe, and most architects, I am sure, would agree with me, that the ideal way to build a building is to select a contractor, who by his experience, his ability as a builder, his organization, his equipment, and his financial standing is best qualified. The building operation is thus put in the hands of the architect and contractor, both working in a professional capacity for the best interest of the owner."

DRAIN OFF WATER BEFORE CLOSING HOME IN WINTER

Don't forget to drain the water out of your plumbing and heating systems if you are going away and your house will stand unheated during your absence. Especially in January or February, no New England home-owner should take a chance on the weather, even for a few days. Bursting pipes, cracked toilet bowls, damaged radiators and ruined floors and rugs will be the result of such neglect, if freezing weather should set in during the owner's absence.

The draining of the water out of the plumbing system is not a difficult matter for a competent man. Nearly all houses built in recent years have a shut-off valve in the basement. This valve has an opening at the bottom for this reason is known as the check and waste. The turning of this valve will shut off the water. However, in order to drain all the pipes, it is necessary to get air into the system. This is accomplished by opening the faucets on all of the sinks, tubs and lavatories in the house as well as the sill cocks outside which are used for hose connections.

This operation will drain all of the water from the pipes providing all pipes in the house were laid with the proper pitch so they drain freely. There are some houses in which the pipes between the floors run nearly level and others in which one pipe is run over another one in such a way as to leave a small amount of water trapped. These are faulty installations which increase the difficulty of draining the pipes. The only way to get [illegible] water out of these pipes is to blow it [illegible].

If the basement is deep, there is no danger that the part of the water supply pipe which is underground will freeze. However in shallow basements or in houses that have no basements the water supply pipe is in an exposed position and in such cases the water should be turned off at the property line near the street, where the supply pipe comes out from the water main. Most plumbing contractors take particular care to shut off the water at this point.

The draining of the water from the pipes will not eliminate the water from the traps in the toilet or from the jets in the toilet or from the traps under the bathtub, sink, lavatory and laundry tubs. The best procedure is to siphon the water out of all traps and fill them with some non-freezing oil. Kerosene is frequently used for this purpose. The traps, of course, must be kept filled with a liquid in order to prevent sewer gas from entering the house. The water must be siphoned out of the jets in the toilet with a suction pump.

The next step is the draining of the water from the hot water storage tank and from the coils and pipes which are part of the domestic water heating system.

Draining the water from the plumbing system and from the hot water storage tank does not expel the water from the hot water, steam or vacuum heating system. This is another operation which is accomplished by opening a drain valve in the pipes near the boiler. Just as the faucets in the plumbing system are opened to facilitate draining by a competent heating contractor who will take all precautions to see that there are no trapped returns in which water might be stopped.

In the case of a steam heating system or a vacuum system drain the water from the boiler.

NEED LESS FUEL WHEN FLUES ARE FREE FROM SOOT

Soot must be cleaned from the flues of the boiler frequently if the householder wishes to get the maximum efficiency out of his fuel and his radiator heating system. According to heating contractors, soot has the insulating characteristics of asbestos, and if left on the flues will result in a considerable waste of fuel.

The frequency with which soot should be removed depends upon the kind of fuel that is used. The poorest grades of soft coal will cause the greatest accumulation of soot. At the other extreme is gas. When gas is used as a fuel there is practically no soot. If combustion is right, oil will make very little soot. A thorough cleaning of the flues two or three times during the heating season will probably be sufficient. If, however, combustion is faulty, the burner will not only throw off a large amount of soot, but will consume from four to eight times as much oil as under correct burning conditions.

The lighter and more expensive oils cause much less carbonization than the heavier oils. It requires only a thin film of oil soot to cut down the thermal efficiency of the system. Gas ranks first, oil second, anthracite coal next, coke is a close fourth and the better grades of eastern soft coal are fifth in the relative amount of soot deposited on the sides of the boiler, the flues and the smoke pipe.

Very little attention is necessary when anthracite is used. When coke is burned, a cleaning of the flues every month will usually be sufficient. Heating contractors recommend that the flues be cleaned every week if the better grades of soft coal are used and every day if the cheapest soft coal is burned.

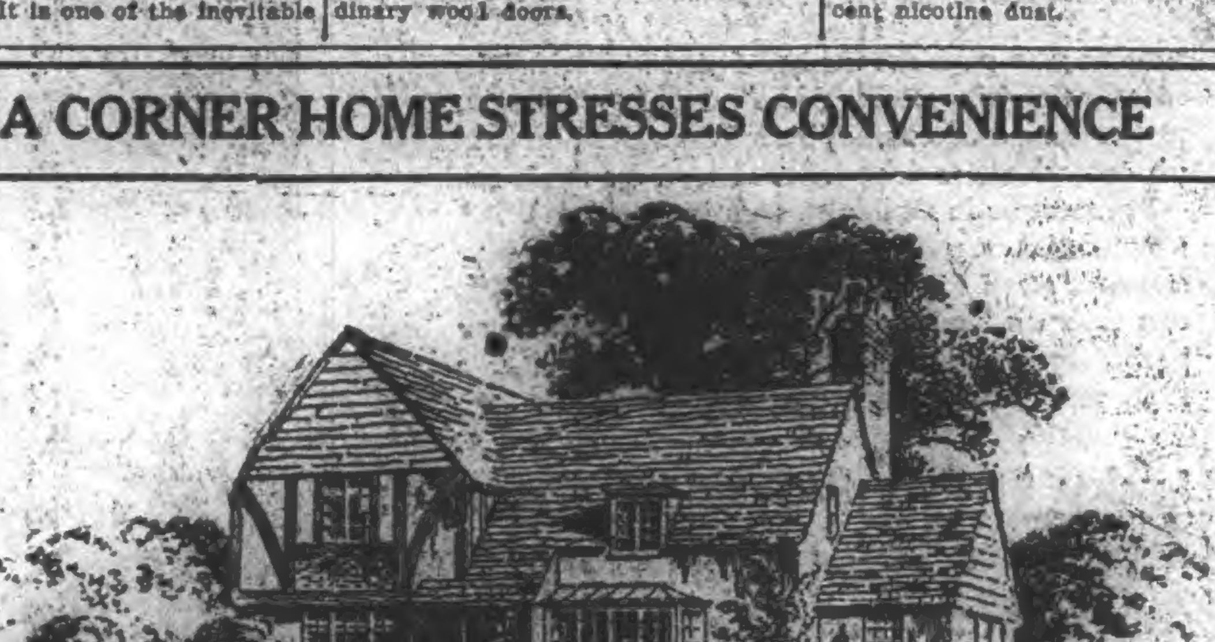
The clean-out doors are located just above the fire-box door on every boiler. The number of clean-out doors is in proportion to the number of sections in the boiler. The upper section of the flue should first be brushed with a metal brush and then the scraper which is furnished with the boiler should be used to push the soot through the opening to the lower section or to the firebox as the case may be. As the soot will burn, it may be allowed to fall on the fire.

Thus, a small amount of attention will assure the home-owner of getting from his radiator heating plant dependable temperature, healthful heat at minimum expense.

GET RID OF DEAD AIR

Dead air, like stale water, is hard to heat. Flood the house with fresh air in the morning and it will remain fresh and warm throughout the day. Even bedrooms where windows are left open throughout the night should be opened while bed clothes are airing. Both room and bedding will benefit.

A CORNER HOME STRESSES CONVENIENCE



Conveniences for every member of the family are embodied in this house especially designed for a sizeable corner lot.

Its principal room faces the street, and includes a reading bay. There is a well-lighted sun porch off the living room. A maid's room just off the kitchen is particularly convenient. Ample closet space is provided on both floors.

A warm gray of mellow tone is recommended for the exterior walls, with shingle roof of several colors.

The home is particularly adapted to a northern climate. The yard should be well planned to bring out the house's beauty, which is enhanced by a careful selection and grouping of a variety of materials.

The lot should be between 75 feet and 100 feet wide. Cost of the house, which varies with the materials in different sections, ordinarily will run between $8,500 and $12,000. Material selected, as well as regional wage costs, will determine the variations.

BULLS GAINED CONTROL OF THE MARKET AFTER EARLY PERIOD OF LIQUIDATION

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(P)—The bull action regained control of the price movement on the stock market today, which it lost on Saturday, after several days of indecisive struggle.

Further liquidation turned the market decisively downward during the morning, unexpected firmness in the money market and renewed weakness in the commodity markets damaging bullish sentiment for the moment, but trading soon turned dull, and pools were encouraged to resume operations.

The market rallied briskly during the afternoon under the leadership of the utilities, tobaccos, chemicals, aviations and some of the low priced specialties. Total sales for the day showed substantial contraction, transfers aggregating but 3,298,170 shares. Developments in the petroleum industry continued of an unsettling nature. Gasoline prices were cut about 2 cents a gallon in various sections in the middle west, and following recent reductions in crude prices in the mid-continent area Pennsylvania crude was reduced 25 cents a barrel, the fourth cut since August, sending prices to the lowest levels in more than two years. Oil stocks were inclined to ease. Nevertheless, losses were slight.

One of the first copper companies to report 1929 earnings was Nevada Consolidated, which showed $3.96 a share, against $3.18 in 1928, somewhat less favorable than the more optimistic estimates had indicated. This had a mildly depressing influence on the copper shares.

Firmness in the money market was rather surprising in view of recent trends. Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent for the first time in several days, and threatened to go higher for a time as banks called some $37,000,000 in loans, and replacement funds were slow in appearing. Money was in better supply in the afternoon. Withdrawals were said to be largely by interior banks.

Commission house advices and speculative sentiment generally remained rather confused. Several pools have been formed to put individual stocks higher, and various interests are undoubtedly anxious to keep a bull market in motion to aid financing and merger plans. On the other hand, efforts are being made to prepare the bond market to absorb large reparations issues and this program might be thwarted by a runaway stock market.

Eastman Kodak was a strong spot, rising 11 points to a new peak for the year. The American Tobacco issues rose about 3 and 5 points to new high levels for all time. National Air Transport was bid up more than 4 points to 39 1-4, a new top for the movement and United Aircraft made a 4 point gain.

Columbian Carbon rose nearly 9 points, Auburn Auto closed up 3 after fluctuating over a 18 point range. Columbia Gas and Consolidated Gas were strong spots in the utilities, closing about 3 points up. In the lower priced group, Packard Motor and Philadelphia and Reading Coal reached new high ground for the movement, the latter influenced by the cold snap, and American Woolen issues were again taken in hand by operators for the rise.

American Can and U. S. Steel rallied after early heaviness, the latter closing about 1 point higher. Allied Chemical and Atchison lost about 3 points, and Youngstown Sheet, 3.

Wheat and corn futures each lost about 2 cents a bushel, reflecting weak foreign markets and disappointing export figures. Cotton futures lost from $1.25 to $1.45 a bale.

Foreign exchanges continued to ease gradually, Sterling cables touching $4.86 1-16, off 1-16. The Canadian dollar was an exception, rallying to 99.28 1-8 cents, a new high for 1930.

STOCKS

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(P)— Acute weakness of the oil shares, several of which sank to new low levels for the year on selling inspired by the recent crude oil and gasoline price cuts, featured today's irregular curb market. The general list ran into a flurry of selling in the early trading, but offerings were readily absorbed and a brisk rally was under way at the close.

Recent cuts in the prices of petroleum products, coming at a time when many traders believed that progress was being made toward the stabilization of the industry, apparently led many holders of oil securities to dump them overboard. White Star Refining, making its first appearance on the tape in some time, broke more than 15 points below the previous sale on a few transactions. Cosden lost 3 3-4 net and Gulf, Humble, Imperial, Ohio Oil and Standard Oil of Ohio lost 1 to nearly 3 points. Standard Oil of Indiana sold below 50 for the first time since 1925.

Electric Bond & Share sold down to 97 3-4 and then crossed 100 again for a net gain of more than 1 point. Other utilities also made sharp rebounds from their early lows. American Gas & Electric was marked up 5 1-2 points and American & Foreign Power warrants, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and National Electric Power A were among the issues to advance a point or more. Sierra Pacific Electric jumped 4 3-4 points to a new 1930 high at 55.

Aluminum Co. of America, which has recorded a rather spectacular advance in the last six weeks, broke 10 points on selling presumably inspired by the announcement that Senator Walsh of Montana had asked for a drastic slash in aluminum duties on the ground that the company has a practical monopoly of the product.

Associated Rayon preferred, Republic Steel preferred, Hazeltine Corporation, and Lily Tulip Cup were outstanding strong spots in the industrial group. Gleaner Combine Harvester sold off about 1 1-2 points in the face of an increase in the annual dividend.

Chief interest in the investment trust and trading corporation group centered in the admission to unlisted trading privileges of the no par common stock of the United Founders, a few thousand shares of which changed hands around 43 1-2. The stock previously had been traded in "over the counter" and on the Boston stock exchange. Insull Utility Investment dropped 1 1-2 points despite the statement of Samuel Insull that stockholders would be given valuable subscription "rights" in the fall.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(P)—Only the federal farm board's newly-organized National Grain Stabilization corporation stood up today as a strong rallying point for wheat values. Almost every other known influence counted against upholding of wheat prices with Chicago future deliveries forced down to nearly the lowest level yet this season. A specially disturbing factor here was word that the Winnipeg market, shaken by a $2,000,000 grain failure and by flattening out of export demand for wheat from North America was reported as semi-demoralized.

Chicago closing quotations today on wheat future deliveries were nervous, 2c to 2 1-2c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1 3-4c to 2 1-4c down, oats 1 1-8a1 1-4c to 1 3-8c off, and provisions varying from 5 at 7c decline to an advance of 2c.

Capping the climax of adverse developments today for friends of higher prices on wheat was a late announcement that the United States wheat visible supply showed a disappointingly small decrease for the week. The decrease amounted to just 652,000 bushels compared with 2,511,000 bushels curtailment a week ago. Earlier, the market here had been thrown into turmoil by tumbling down of prices at Liverpool and Winnipeg and by spreading of assertions that European importers had definitely beaten North American wheat growers in the price war which has been waged for the last six months.

Smashing of wheat values at Winnipeg today went to an extreme of nearly 5c a bushel, with advices current that Argentine offers of wheat to Europe were enlarging at prices under those asked for wheat from North America. The maximum drop at Chicago was 2 5-8c. Meanwhile, Liverpool dispatches told of entire absence of any demand there for wheat, with stocks afloat for Europe showing an increase and only ten weeks remaining before the start of Great Lakes navigation will release further quantities of North American wheat destined for Europe. News that the agricultural committee of the French senate has asked the government of France to authorize immediate export of not less than 18,000,000 bushels of wheat and to pay a bounty to the exporters was also at hand. However, possibility of aggressive moves by the National Grain Stabilization corporation acted as evident steadying power giving considerable backbone to prices here as the day drew to an end.

Corn and oats as well gave way with wheat and outdid previous low-price records for feed grain this season.

Provisions were likewise responsive to wheat weakness, despite upturns in the value of hogs.

Closing bids and offers: Wheat—Mar. 111 3-8, 114 7-8; May 115 to 1-8, 119 7-8; July 118 1-8 to 1-4, 120 7-8 to 121 1-8; Sept. 117 3-4, 122 3-4. Corn—May 87 1-2 to 3-8, 89 1-4 to 3-8; July 89 1-8 to 1-4, 91 3-8 to 1-2; Sept. 89 1-2, 91 1-2.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(P)—Trading in bonds on the New York stock exchange fell off rather sharply today because of the continued firmness of money rates. The price movement was irregular, but the trend of active issues in all leading divisions appeared to be downward. Total sales fell below $8,000,000 as against a daily average of more than $10,000,000 last week.

The investment demand centered largely in issues with convertible features. American Telephone & Telegraph convertible 4 1-2s were turned over in large volume, crossing 155 to a new high record for a gain of more than 2 points above Saturday's close, and nearly 15 points above the year's low. International Telephone convertible 4 1-2s closed fractionally higher at 120 3-4 after having sold as low as 119 1-2 and as high as 121 3-4.

The disappointing character of recent traffic and earnings statements has dampened enthusiasm for the railroad issues, although liens of some of the southern roads, particularly Florida East Coast 5s and Louisville & Nashville refunding 5 1-2s, showed independent strength. Strength and activity of New York Traction Co mortgages apparently was in anticipation of another court decision on the 7 cent fare case.

U. S. government issues were slightly reactionary, pending the announcement of the terms of the offering of treasury certificates purchased under the new discount plan last week. The foreign group was extremely irregular, the announcement of the French cabinet's resignation coming too late to exert any influence on the French government issues. Antioquia first 7s, Esthonia Republic 7s, Finland Republic 6s and Rio Grande Do Sul 6s of 1968 touched new high levels for the year.

WESTERLY

WOMAN'S RIBS BROKEN— DORCHESTER CAR HITS POLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 17—A skidding sedan at Oxecoeset Monday afternoon about 4:30 was wrecked when it struck a telephone pole, as it left the Westerly-Stonington state road. The injured occupants were taken to the Westerly hospital for treatment. They were all from Dorchester, Mass. Florence Reddy, 56, five or six ribs broken, remained at the hospital. Joseph Reddy, with minor cuts and bruises, was discharged. Joseph Reddy, Jr., 11, who was thrown through the windshield, received cuts and bruises. Another unnamed woman passenger was not treated at the hospital.

Temperature 13 Below Zero

The severest winter weather in a half dozen seasons visited Westerly over the week end. After comparatively mild weather Saturday morning a wet snow began falling in the afternoon at 4 o'clock and was accompanied by gradually falling temperature. In the early hours of Sunday morning the wind howled a gale which swept the snow which might have made an eight inch fall into drifts of six and eight foot depths. Charles M. Lamb, Misquamicut fire chief, coming to Westerly on Sunday afternoon after the snow had ceased falling reported an eight-foot drift on Atlantic avenue which increased in depth until the wind died down.

Early Sunday morning Engineer Adolph L. Leon of Westerly highway department had plows and men at work in the streets in the center of the town clearing them out for Monday's traffic. A one-horse snow plow was used to clear the gutters. The men continued at work the greater part of Sunday the wind blowing snow back into the cleared streets and necessitating their being gone over again. In Pawcatuck Selectman Arthur P. Babcock supervised the work of the highway men in carting snow away from the Pawcatuck river bridge and on West Broad and Mechanic streets while other streets of Pawcatuck were gone over with plows.

First Chief George E. Egger of Westerly and Pawcatuck Chief Engineer Joseph Purtill had the firemen busily engaged in the removal of snow from the hydrants beginning with those on the principal business streets. Autoists coming to Westerly from New London reported a bad drift near the cemetery near Pine Point. Both Rhode Island and Connecticut departments of public roads had snow plows and men at work in shifts, Sunday and Sunday night.

In the early hours of Monday thermometer readings in and about Westerly were reported the lowest of the winter and ran 6, 8 and 10 or 13 degrees below zero. There was a slight rise in temperature Monday morning but the freezing point was not reached.

Cold weather Monday delayed repairs to the Pawcatuck river pontoon bridge, maintained at the printing press plant of the C. M. Cottrell and Sons Co. For this reason many residents in that section of Westerly were forced to make an extra two-mile trip by way of the Broad street river bridge. A middle section of the floating bridge was torn away by floating ice in the river.

Whistles of Long Island sound steamers were very plainly heard in Westerly during the snow storm even with the wind blowing in the opposite direction.

GRAND JURORS CONSIDER A TOTAL OF 22 CASES

The February term of Washington county superior court began on Monday morning at the West Kingston county courthouse with the qualifying of grand jurors and the consideration of the adjustment docket and motion calendar. It was 11:15 o'clock when the grand jurors were charged as to their duties and retired to the grand jury room on the first floor to give consideration to 22 cases.

J. Donald Pryor of Narragansett was appointed foreman of the grand jury. Two jurymen, Benjamin F. Hull and Frank H. Sheldon of South Kingstown, did not appear. The following jurors were accepted: Herbert H. Ford, Eugene W. Smith, Herbert A. Smith, South Kingstown; Fred L. Baker, Albert G. Brown, Welcome F. Bliven and George E. Denicourt, North Kingstown; John H. Farnsworth, Philip H. Gavitt, Peter Girard, William E. Lynch and Charles Ruisi, Westerly; Walter D. Barber and Ralph A. Thompson, Hopkinton; Julian L. Pignolet, Richmond; Joseph Weiss, Exeter; Robert Browning, Charlestown and J. Donald Pryor of Narragansett.

When the judge called the assignment docket in the civil calendar 15 cases were assigned to Westerly for trial at this term of the court, five to Kingston and 16 cases were passed.

NON-TOBACCO USERS' BIG VALENTINE PARTY

The members of the Aunt Sarah Peabody club held a valentine party in their rooms on Terrace avenue. Red hearts were all about, also black cats, with Center Groton paper tigers. The members came in costume to represent valentines. Stretch Moran came in like Father Time with his white whiskers and carrying a scythe over his right shoulder, Dexter Holliday was John Hobo bound west, all in rags, with a stick with a hankerchief bundle on it. A sign read "Been around the world 3 times and never cost me a cent!" Gee! he was given a real ovation by the side seat fans who came to see the St. Valentine rigs. Next there walked across the floor and made a bow in his grass suit, not a lady but a man, small as a pump and how he could shake—move anything but his feet. The Fort Hill orchestra stepped on the music and the fellow with the grass suit did a dance known as the Front Street Shake. The crowd went wild over the dances and he was called back several times. Miss Pearl Hunt was dressed like Miss 1930 at Atlantic beach, having a wall paper bathing suit on, carrying a green umbrella and on the top read, Miss 1930 from the cold waves of Atlantic beach in Atlantic City. She was on the list to get them more laughs than Buster Keaton could throw in a year. Miss Nellie O. Brady had the hoop skirt style of 1876, with pantalettes, as in the days of Abe Lincoln, made a bow and did the cake walk in three moves, light on her feet, as a feather. Never saw anything like the steps in the non-tobacco users ball. The hand she got from the Aunt Sarah Peabody members almost shook the coffee pot off the stove. A prize was given to the one who had the fanciest valentine rig on. Stretch Moran won a bowl of gold fish as the man's prize and the ladies' prize only needed three guesses, the first two didn't count. The winner was Miss Nellie O. Brady. The hoop skirt girl received a new Easter hat—a little early, the committee thought, but she sure did have the crowd laughing all the time. The steward, Miss Betty Tardy had a meat loaf supper with sugar cookies and cookies and 100 sat down to eat. There were 200 cookies baked by Smiling Tardy. After eating the crowd shot back in the hall again after coming from the kitchen, to see the play that was next on the list. The name was "Getting Married at Sunnybrook Farm." The bride, Miss Jessie Bump, (Miss Marion Dunlap); bridegroom, Roy Loophole, (George Deveau); bridesmaid, Miss Susan Jackson, (Elizabeth Johnson); best man, Peter Mooney, (Leland MacGrath). In those days no automobiles was in use; but a horse and wagon to bring the happy couple to the farm. The knot was tied under the oldest oak tree around here, 275 years old. The horse Shoot Again had ribbons and daisies hanging from his harness as the couples drove up to the old oak tree. Smiling at the happy couple, a large crowd was there to see the wedding. Standing, waiting, was the minister, Jerry Downs, (H. Bracci), with his claw-hammer coat and iron hat to read a few words to them and send them on a short honeymoon to East Lyme. It was soon over. The crowd threw rice and old shoes at them, wishing them the best of luck and hoping that they might live together for 50 years. Minister Downs had married over 150 couples and never heard of any leaving each other or getting hit with a rolling pin. A sign was on the wagon, "Just Married," so goodbye to all. But the horse Shoot Again would not go, for some joker had the reins crossed. It was more fun than seeing Charlie Chaplin throw pies in the movies. The bride's face was red as a North Stonington apple. She was afraid the horse would not take them to East Lyme. The crowd was laughing hard. Finally the horse Shoot Again got started, so they said good bye to all. Then the curtain went down, lowered by Stage Hand Leo Harris.

Dancing was enjoyed and a battle of music. It was Walter Willis' Happy Go Lucky orchestra and the Fort Hill orchestra of four music boys. All knew their stuff and talk about music floating around the hall! You could about read the notes through the air! The dancers sure did like it and jazzed around for a long while. They clapped the Happy-Go-Lucky orchestra for 15 minutes. Oh Boy! What a noise! as though the roof was coming off. Also the Fort Hill orchestra got a big hand, but Leader Walter Willis' orchestra won in the battle of music. During rest period, Edward Morgan showed how to play a cornet and made three tunes come out at the same time, something never done before in this fishing village. It sure took some wind, but he did it. The crowd cheered and cheered the leader, Eddie Morgan of the Fort Hill orchestra for doing the stunt. It will be talked about at the Aunt Sarah Peabody club rooms for years to come.

The time was up and the two orchestras went at it again until a late hour, as the roosters were calling the people out of bed the Valentine party was all over for another year. It sure was the bigest affair ever held by the non-tobacco users. It cost around $20 to put it on, but the tin box has a few more dollars left and in a little while another party will take place. That will be a roast pig supper—a pig that will weigh around 481 lbs. will be given to the Aunt Sarah Peabody club by a pig raiser, Patsy McMullian, who is a member of the club. McMullian has not touched a pipe for over 25 years, and will give a talk about smoking.

The crowd went home after a real evening with the non-tobacco using members in their hall. The committee, Paul Scott, chairman, Joe Murray and Carlo Bracci worked hard to make the valentine party a success.

CHAS. WILLIAMS ACCUSES FRANKLIN, NOT FARRELL, IN NEW LONDON CRIME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 17.—The return from Norfolk, Va., to New London Saturday night of Charles Williams, Negro bargehand, to answer to a technical charge of robbery, has shed new light on a murder mystery. Williams is wanted as a material witness in connection with the slaying of Jacob Waheman of 25 Shapley street, five weeks ago, and for the commission of which crime, Linwood ("Peanuts") Farrell, 17, colored, has confessed and is in jail awaiting trial of murder in the first degree in the next criminal term of the superior court. It may result in another arrest being made, for Williams has made statements to Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Coroner Edward G. McKay of Norwich, that Farrell is a falsifier. The bargehand declares in most emphatic terms that Farrell is lying when he states that he administered a beating to the Lithuanian. Williams declares that it was William ("Rattlesnake Pete") Franklin, also colored, who beat Waheman and then robbed him and further states that he and Farrell witnessed the beating of Waheman. Williams told his story in a signed confession at police headquarters today, which was in much more detail than was told to Sergeant Smith and Officer Edward Riordan, who went to Norfolk and brought Williams back to New London. Williams declared that he was relating the truth and did not intend to shield anyone, but was open in his declaration that it was Franklin and not Farrell who beat the Lithuanian and left the latter unconscious in the gutter, to die from a fractured skull 48 hours later.

Why Farrell should make a false confession, admitting administering the beating to Waheman that resulted in his death, is a mystery, especially when capital punishment is the toll upon conviction. However, Farrell has made the confession and with him in jail are Franklin and Ernest Johnson, the latter also a Negro, who have been held a fortnight as material witnesses. The police over two weeks ago, obtained information from Irving Gilliam, colored, who was held as a material witness at one time, that during their incarceration in jail, they all occupied adjoining cells and that Franklin and Johnson intimidated Farrell. Franklin and Johnson, Gilliam said, attempted to induce Farrell to admit the beating of Waheman for the youth was informed that he would not receive a more severe penalty than a commitment to Cheshire reformatory, in the event that he was convicted, while if Franklin was convicted, because of his reputation, he was liable to receive the maximum penalty for murder. Gilliam later was released and imparted this information to the police, but not until after Franklin and Johnson had also been released. When Williams was being sought in Norfolk and Gilliam made his statement to Detective Sergeant Smith, the officer and County Detective William Lewis rearrested Franklin and Johnson and both have been prisoners since, their case having been continued to Thursday next. In default of a surety on their respective bonds of $3,000 each, the Negroes have been deprived of their liberty.

Williams in his confession declares that on the early morning of Jan. 12, when he, Farrell, Franklin, Johnson and Gilliam were in a Main street restaurant, Waheman appeared and had been drinking. When Waheman paid for his meal, he displayed a few dollars and at the same time engaged in a brief argument with Franklin. When the Lithuanian left the eating house, all of the Negroes also left and remained outside, excepting Franklin. As Waheman made his way toward Shapley street, Franklin pulled a blackjack from his pocket and remarked that he was going to "give that to the ——." Franklin then, according to Williams, followed Waheman and Williams and Farrell followed Franklin. When Waheman turned into Shapley street, so did Franklin, and when but about 20 feet up the highway Franklin attacked and beat Waheman. Williams states that he and Farrell witnessed the administering of the beating by Franklin to Waheman from the corner of Main street and Williams declares that the rays of a street light made Franklin's act plain. Williams states that Farrell did not go near Waheman nor did Franklin give the youth money. Williams said that he did not hurry from the city Sunday and that he did not leave until Monday. His statement to this effect is corroborated by Sergeant Samuel Hick, who was talking with Williams Monday when the Negro requested to be directed to the customs house.

Williams was presented in court this morning and his case was continued until tomorrow. In default of bail of $3,000, the Negro was committed to jail.

NEW LONDON, Feb. 17.—Harold Smith, ice peddler, and Edna Roy, formerly of New Britain and more recently an inmate at the State Farm for Women at East Lyme, were in the police court today charged with lascivious carriage. Each pleaded guilty and a fine of $50 and costs was imposed in each case by Judge Daniel M. Cronin. The man and woman were arrested early Sunday morning at their residence, 28 Chappell street, where they had been living as man and wife for several months. NEW LONDON COUNCIL GETS BUDGET DOWN TO FINAL FIGURE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 17.—The city council held an unusually long session this evening, lasting until 10:30, but it reduced the budget so that the taxation will be no greater than last year and perhaps a little less. Chairman Minor of the finance committee made his report which brought about the reduction in the budget. Councilor May objected to the reduction in welfare work and said that the poor man was the sufferer. He said that no tax payer would object to what the city is now paying to produce employment for the needy. Mr. Minor resented this and pointed out that the city was now paying $76,000 for charity and $7,000 for hospital attendance. He said that he had sat in the tax collector's office and had seen property owners who could very poorly afford to pay their taxes and these were the men upon whom the burden fell for charity. He also accused Mr May of advocating an expenditure of $15,000 for work for which the city had just spent $5200. Another meeting of the finance committee of the council will be held Wednesday night when the budget will be finally passed on. Councilor Fox praised the work of chairman of finance and the city manager for the diligence and studious way in which they had performed their duties in preparing the budget.

The New Haven railroad petitioned for a commercial sidetrack on Nameaug street and the city manager was instructed to call the public utilities attention to this petition, according to statute. Mayor Twomey said it would be well to hold the matter up until the council was more informed as to what was wanted.

A report from the assessor showed that Thomas and Mary Phillips of Phillips street had been taxed upon property which they did not own and the tax is to be abated.

Silas Maxson, Jr., protested against the state highway department taking his land on Ocean avenue for railway purposes without any warrant in law. He represented that he held the property under the Meyers survey and that for 82 years sidewalks had been laid and other improvements made. He said he would hold the city responsible.

A vacancy on the zoning board of appeals is to be filled at the next meeting.

The fish dealers of the city asked for protection from non-residents who sell fish at the public landing. They represented that the latter pay no taxes and have no business other than that they come to the wharf to sell what fish they have. The petition was signed by Long and Co. and six others.

The Lions' club sought to lease the abandoned ferry house, in Groton, which is owned by the city of New London to make a comfort station of it. The matter was referred to committee.

Harry Gordon sought an ordinance that would fix a fee of $75 for anyone conducting public bathhouses at Ocean beach. The proposed fine is $100 and $200 for each offense against the ordinance.

Councilor Minor asked that the council and the board of education and all others in authority of educational matters meet for a conference to arrange for coordination in educational matters and a reduction of cost. He said there was duplication of instructions and that economy and efficiency and progress were the things aimed for. Councilor Fox said that the city could get for $4 what now cost $9. Councilor May gave notice of opposition of changing from one city tax to a city and school tax. He said it would cost $1500 to collect the school tax and would be clumsy and confusing. Mayor Twomey informed him no change could be made except by action of the legislature by amendment to the charter.

Twelve building permits were granted.

The city bought 300 cubic yards of sand at 98 cents a yard. The bids ran as high as $150.

The Montauk avenue Baptist church made an offer for the Isaac Thompson tract on Ocean avenue but it was not accepted and was referred to committee. The church proposes to sell one half the tract and build on the other.

The Conn. Power Co. made a proposition for proposed lighting on State street at an additional cost per year of $3782 on one plan and $3076 on another. They offered to light the space in front of the court house for $85 a year. The matter was referred to the public safety committee.

City Manager Holt has been offered a traveling fellowship by the City Managers' association of the state. In order to accept going to Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Rochester and Washington on research work, he must have a leave of absence from the city and that was granted him.

Councilor Fox called Counsilor May to account for a statement that the city had 42 less industries than it had a year ago. He asked May to correct the statement, but the latter would not consent to do so, saying that he got his facts from the abstract of the assessor and tax collector. It was then explained that any building not a store or residence was classed as industrial, but May was firm and would not retract his statement.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Mrs. Hooty Is Greatly Alarmed.

'Tis not alone the cooing dove
Whose heart is touched by gentle love.
—Hooty the Owl.

It was not long after the little Owl had fallen from the nest over in the Green Forest that Mrs. Hooty returned. She had a mouse. Of course, she flew straight to the nest. Sammy Jay was watching from a tree a short distance away. He was taking great care to be safely hidden while she watched. The lone little Owl in the nest became greatly excited when his mother arrived and snatched at the mouse she was carrying. He was so greedy and he made such a fuss that apparently Mrs. Hooty did not notice at first that there was only one baby there.

But after she had given the mouse to the greedy baby she missed the other baby. It looked to Sammy as if at first, she didn't know just what was wrong. She seemed to know that something was wrong, but what it was she didn't know. Then suddenly she realized that one of her babies was nowhere to be seen. Mrs. Hooty became much excited. She pushed that other baby aside as if she thought he might be hiding the lost one. She looked in and all around the nest. While she was doing this Hooty arrived. Mrs. Hooty began talking to him excitedly. Hooty had brought a mouse, too. He put this in the nest, or rather on the edge of it, and then he joined Mrs. Hooty in hunting for that lost baby.

It was very clear that Hooty and Mrs. Hooty were both very much upset. "I wouldn't have believed it," muttered Sammy to himself. "No, sir, I wouldn't have believed it! They were such terrible fierce folks that I wouldn't have believed that they could know what love is. But it appears they do. I have seen a good many bird mothers upset, but never one more upset than Mrs. Hooty is.

By this time the two big Owls were beginning to look the tree all over. They were looking to see if the youngster had fallen out and might be somewhere on one of the branches of that tree. Such a hurrying and scurrying around as there was! They didn't find the missing baby. Then they began to fly about and look in other trees. Of course, this was foolish. They should have known that that baby couldn't possibly be in another tree, for it couldn't fly. But anxious parents do foolish things. Sammy Jay began to grow nervous. What if they should come looking in the tree where he was and find him?

Mrs. Hooty began talking to him excitedly

At last Hooty flew back to the nest, and a moment later Mrs. Hooty joined him. "A robber of some kind has been here," declared Mrs. Hooty. "One of our babies has been stolen."

"Who would steal one of our babies?" demanded Hooty, looking very fierce. "Who would dare do such a thing?"

"Several, if they got the chance," replied Mrs. Hooty. "Only the other day I saw Terror the Goshawk. He wouldn't be afraid to take one if he got the chance. I wonder if one of those two-legged creatures has been here."

Of course, Mrs. Hooty meant a man or boy. However, when she came to think it over, she was quite sure that it couldn't have been one of those two-legged creatures. She was quite sure that either she or Hooty would have seen one if he had been around. You see, they hadn't been away from the nest but for a very little while. Mrs. Hooty had looked on the ground under the tree, but had seen nothing of the missing baby. However, she had not looked very thoroughly on the ground. She thought she could see everything that was to be seen there.

PENDLETON HILL

Richard Palmer who suffered a serious relapse at Backus hospital a week ago is somewhat improved although he continues very ill.

The Birdsey Palmers, senior and junior, have been confined to their beds for the past week.

Mrs. Birdsey G. Palmer who has spent the past week at Backus hospital in constant attendance upon her son, Richard is now at home. She is making daily visits to the hospital.

Noyes Wheeler, son of Thomas E. Wheeler, is attending a school in Boston for the three weeks' course, which that company is offering to some of its favored employes. Mr. Wheeler lacked but three months of graduating from Connecticut Agricultural college, when he went overseas and did war duty in France for a considerable period.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cottrell and sons George and Charles, and Miss Kittie Palmer attended the supper given for the benefit of the third Baptist church by the Woman's league of that church.

The Sewing society met as usual Wednesday. The dinner consisted of tomato soup with whipped cream and crackers, baked beans, escalloped potatoes, raisin pie, chocolate pudding and coffee. A good number of blocks were made for the intricate quilt being pieced for Charles Pendleton were added to the hundred already completed.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brooks spent a part of last week in Webster, Boston and Ashaway, R. I.

Thomas Wheeler has a flock of twenty turkeys, some of them however will doubtless be disposed of before the laying season.

GREENEVILLE

Jurczik—Wierzbinski

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Joseph's church Monday morning at 8 o'clock when Miss Balbina Wierzbinski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Wierzbinski, of 46 North Cliff street, was united in marriage by Rev. S. Iciek, pastor, with Andrew Jurczik, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jurczik of 59 Lorenzo street. Miss Johanna Jurczik, a sister of the groom, was maid of honor while the Misses Bertra Kolodziey, Jennie Krupinski and Sophie Shura were bridesmaids. John Wierzbinski, a brother of the bride, acted as best man and Anthony Baronowski, Andrew Prockop and John O'enkiewicz were ushers at the church.

The bride was charmingly attired in a white satin gown, covered with Spanish lace and wore a tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white carnations, roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Jurczik was gowned in old rose crepe de chine and Miss Kolodziey wore pink taffeta. Miss Krupinski was attired in orchid crepe de chine and Miss Shura wore an orchid taffeta gown. All the attendants wore maline headbands and carried arm bouquets of pink carnations and roses. After the church ceremony a wedding breakfast and reception was held at Pulaski hall with 200 guests present.

The couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful wedding gifts, including cut-glass, pieces of furniture, checks, gold, silverware, linens and bridge lamps. Guests were present from New York, Hartford, New London, New Britain, Meriden, Worcester and Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Jurczik left later during the afternoon for a ten-day honeymoon trip by automobile which will take them to New York, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C. Upon their return they will make their home at 59 Lorenzo street. During the afternoon and late into the evening, dancing was enjoyed with music being furnished by Sam's orchestra. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful string of pearls while she in return gave him a signet ring. The bride's gift to her attendants were compacts, while the gifts of the groom to his best man and ushers were gold cigarette lighters.

Mr. and Mrs. Jurczik have a large circle of friends in this vicinity who wish them happiness and prosperity in their married life.

CHILDREN'S MEMORIAL MASS FOR REV. FR. KEEFE

A memorial mass of requiem for the happy repose of the soul of the Rev. William A. Keefe, late pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church was offered in the church Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock by the curate, Rev. Frederick M. Coholan. The mass was requested by the parish school children, who attended the services in a body with their teachers. Many adults were also present and a large number received the sacraments for their late beloved pastor. The musical portion of the mass was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, the church organist, who was assisted by Edward T. Connelly, tenor.

Miss Mary Whitmarsh has returned to her home at Chester, Pa., after spending a few days with friends on Fifth street.

John Dunion, of Hartford, is spending a few days as the guest of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Dunion of Twelfth street.

Prize Award Made

The regular monthly business meeting of the Y. W. M. S. was held Saturday evening at the residence of Mrs. Robert Johnson, rear of 94 Sachem street. For the past two months the society has engaged in a membership drive and it was at this meeting that the prize was awarded to Andrew Marshall for bringing in the largest number of new members.

After adjournment the young people had a social hour at which games were played and valentines, which had been dropped into a box in the hallway, were distributed. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

$10 MORE FROM EVERY TEAM WORKER WILL PUT BOY SCOUT DRIVE ACROSS

The Boy Scout campaign which opened here Feb. 7, is so close to reaching the goal of $8,000 that only $10 more raised by each of the 100 team workers in Norwich will put it across. Just this $1,000 more will put the drive over the top and pay for all the expenses of the campaign.

With $6,400 raised in Norwich and a pledge of $1,000 from the territory of the Eastern Connecticut council, the leaders feel that the goal of $8,000 will be reached and it is anticipated that the drive can be brought to a close by the latter part of this week.

Now that the division heads have come to see how close they are to accomplishing all the campaign set out to do, it is proposed that each one of the 100 team workers hold himself responsible for securing $10 in addition to whatever else he may have secured already. The means, the method and the time are to be left to the worker. He can get the money in large or small amounts, from one or from many. The important thing is that he get it.

Now that the workers have had a breathing spell, it is believed they will welcome the opportunity of putting the final push to the drive which will make it a 100 per cent success. Today and tomorrow, division heads and captains will quietly spur on their respective teams to turn in to the local scout headquarters the amount necessary to make the full quota.

According to the local scout headquarters a full report of those who have subscribed to the Boy Scout work for the coming year will be published Friday with other interesting information concerning the amounts and the numbers subscribing. All persons who have not yet subscribed and are interested in backing the Boy Scout program for the coming year are asked to send in their subscription at once.

Four scouts were privileged to open and count the money in the barrels which for the past three days have been at the local theatres. A total of $39.75 was found, the largest single amount in an envelope being $1 and the smallest amount 1 cent.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. C. B. Gilbert several girls worked all day Saturday selling Boy Scout buttons and by this means raised approximately $40. Plans had been made for 30 girls to carry on the work, but only a few could be secured. Had there been 30 it is believed that $500 would have been raised.

According to the local office, Norwich has just been offered a camp site for $9,000. Norwich is one of the few communities of its size in the United States which does not own its own scout camp. It is hoped by the scout leaders that some citizen will purchase a camp as a memorial. Few investments can offer as great returns in welfare of youth as the establishment by a community of its own camp.

REPEATED PAGEANT FOR LEFFINGWELL CHURCH SERVICE

Representatives of the First and Third Baptist churches in Norwich, also the Fitchville Baptist and Bozrah Congregational churches, were guests of the Leffingwell Baptist church Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock, when the B. Y. P. U. repeated the pageant, As I Have Loved. The service was as follows:

Song, Oh, Worship the King; solo, A Little Bit of Love, Miss Linda Mowrey; song, Do Good to Others, The Bluebirds; solo, Fishers of Olden, Miss Caroline Beebe; hymn, O, Master, Let Me Walk With Thee, members of the First Baptist church; song, Fling Out the Banner; song, O Zion Haste; responsive reading; pastoral prayer; offering; offertory response, Beautiful Garden of Prayer, Misses Linda Mowrey and Lois Leffingwell; song, The Churches One Foundation.

The scenes in the pageant were: Opening scene, a Baptist home; scene one, India; scene two, Philippines; scene three, Western home; scene four, Ellis Island.

The doxology and Mizpah benediction closed the service, which was attended by about 60 people.

The Misses Mildred and Alice Leffingwell were accompanists.

TO MAKE CITATIONS AT LEGION DISTRICT MEETING

Several citations for meritorious service are to be made to individuals and to posts at the February meeting of the fifth district of the American Legion when it is held Thursday night at Baltic under the auspices of Baltic post, No. 55, and its auxiliary. The meeting will be held at the Baltic club and it is expected there will be a large attendance of Legionaires and members of the auxiliaries throughout the country.

TAFTVILLE

At the recent card party given by the members of the Army-Navy club at their clubhouse on Dion street, the first prize for ladies was awarded to Miss Loretta Gregory; the second to Mrs. Audette, and the consolation to Miss Georgette Gregory. The first prize for gentlemen went to Thomas Coleman, the second to Edward Jalowski and the consolation to Saul Germain. The series of card parties arranged by the club are proving very popular to the members and their friends and the committee plans to hold another like event in the near future. After cards, dancing was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs Albert Woodworth of Windsor Locks were week end guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Sarah Charpentier and her sister, Miss Annie Charpentier of Providence street.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amede Pion of Hunters avenue over the week end was their daughter, Miss Sherilda Pion, of New London.

Although traffic throughout the town was temporarily paralyzed Saturday night and Sunday, the state roads were opened during the night, the big scrapers working throughout the day Sunday to keep the highways clear and passable. Accompanied by a high wind, the snow banked along the road in many spots, especially on the Old Canterbury turnpike at Gallows hill, where the banks on each side of the state road were at least six feet high, presenting a bit of Alpine scenery to motorists who passed that way on Sunday.

The Taftville Lions' club which was organized several weeks ago, has been dissolved. The club had reached a point where officers were elected, but not enough interest could be worked up in the community, and it was obliged to disband. The initiation fees of the members who signed the charter have been refunded by the Lions headquarters.

Among the big crowd of young devotees of skiing Monday in the village, a number were noted who were using skiis cleverly fashioned from barrel staves.

The Boy Scout campaign in the village has been in charge of Robert E. Cooper.

SEVERAL SUITS BROUGHT IN COMMON PLEAS COURT

Damages of $450 are claimed by the Hanover-Curland Co., of this city in a civil action brought in the court of common pleas against Julian Falcone and Rose Chioda, alias Rose Falcone of this city. The music house claims they sold a piano, valued at $450 to the defendants on May 29, 1929, of which $50 was paid down at the time of sale and the balance was to have been paid at the rate of $3.75 weekly. Only $65 has been paid to date, the papers allege and the balance of $385 plus interest, expenses incurred, including attorney fees are due.

The Yantic Grain and Products Co. sues for $750 against Samuel Miller, also of this city, and returnable the first Tuesday of March before the court of common pleas. The papers allege that on June 13, 1927, the Grain and Products Co. recovered a judgment against Miller before the court of common pleas here for $561.12 damages and $42.58 costs, which judgment remains wholly unsatisfied.

In a suit returnable before the court of common pleas the first Tuesday of March, damages of $300 are claimed by Schwartz Bros., Inc., from Samuel Chinigo of this city.

FORMER MISSIONARY SPOKE OF HIS WORK IN INDIA

Dr. Lemon Uhl, ex-missionary of India, spoke Sunday in the morning and evening service at First Evangelical Lutheran church. His subject in the morning was "The Laborers in the Vineyard." He spoke on personal experiences in the foreign mission field of India where he labored for 50 years. A number of years he was president of Guntur college, under the auspices of the American Lutheran church. "A Trip to Guntur" in picture slides was shown in the evening by members of the Luther league and explained by Dr. Uhl. The pictures brough vivid recollections to him and his daughter Grace of their former field of labor. It was the first time that Dr. Uhl was called upon to explain a series of pictures on that particular mission field. It was pathetic to see him study each picture and recollect the scene and then make his comments. The audience was very sympathetic and appreciative. Dr. Uhl is the "patriarch" of the India mission as far as it is sponsored by the United Evangelical Lutheran church of America.

Slides on the Porto Rico field of the same organization will be shown in the near future. The local Luther league is anxious to pay its quota on a training school in Porto Rico by the help of these pictures. At the same time, it is cultivating interest in mission activities in general.

Of Interest to the Farmer

THE FARMER is a business man and is entitled to a business letterhead the same as is the furniture dealer, the lawyer or the radio manufacturer.

We want the farmer to wake up to his privileges and let the world know he's around here. A neatly printed letterhead with envelope to match should be the first step toward distinguishing YOU and YOUR farm from the thousands of others in the land, a form of advertising that is decidedly in good taste and that is certainly necessary.

Mr. Farmer, send us your name, name of your farm (if it has a name), post office and rural route with box number, and a list of the crops you sell, and we will quote you a price on printed letterheads and envelopes to match in any quantity you desire.

It will cost you nothing to get this quotation.

Members of the fire commission, Amiel C. Brosofske, chairman, visited the different fire stations Friday evening for inspection of the members of the department and equipment. The firemen were given a high rating and the various pieces of apparatus were found in good condition, which reflects favorably upon the heads of the department. The personnel of the department almost to a member, dressed in full uniform, was on hand for the inspection.

Gave Concert Program

The concert given Friday evening in T. A. B. hall under the auspices of McKinley avenue A. M. E. Zion church, with St. Mary's trio as the entertainers, had a large and appreciative audience, who found unlimited pleasure in the songs and humorous monologue of Edward T. Connelly the piano numbers and tenor selections by Nicholas J. Spellman and the baritone work, bird whistling and banjo solos of Michael J. Farrell. The concert arrangements were under the direction of Mrs. Matilda McKnight.

NORWICH TOWN

WESLEY FOUNDATIONS TOPIC OF LECTURE

A good sized congregation attended the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening when the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter delivered a stereopticon lecture on "The Wesley Foundations. The lecture was illustrated with 55 hand colored slides, the lantern being operated by Ralph Smith. District Superintendent Myron E. Gerter pronounced the benediction. A very pleasing feature of the service was a solo by Secretary John Richardson of the chamber of commerce, who sang in voice that charmed his hearers. Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, the organist, was accompanist. Earl Robinson and Edward Eccleston, Boy Scouts in uniform, acted as ushers. The Wesley Foundations working among the Methodist students in state supported and other universities does a work summed up in the words of a student at graduation: "The first Sunday morning after we arrived at the university, the Wesley Foundations brought to us Sunday school and church. You made us feel at home. You initiated us in all the organizations of the church. During these years we have lived with you, learning, growing, and leading the lives your experience and wisdom have shown us. We have come to know, to love, and to follow Jesus who alone makes university life complete. As we take our places in other churches, we will cherish the beautiful memories of life with you and shall ever try to live up to the ideals you have given us."

At the morning service the pastor spoke on the theme "Christ is All," his team, Colossians 3:11. Doris Dose was organist in the absence of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich.

The C. E. service was led by President Lewis E. Aldrich who spoke on "Lessons from St. John's Epistle"

At the Methodist church this (Monday) night the John Mason Community club meets. Tuesday afternoon, the Women's Home Missionary society meets at the home of Mrs. Arthur Fulton on Huntington avenue. This week also the C. E. society will serve a meat pie supper to be followed by a play.

Scout Robinson Holds First Place

When the meeting of Troop 3, Boy Scouts, connected with the Methodist Episcopal church was held Friday evening at headquarters in the absence of Senior Patrol Leader Donald Olsen the troop was inspected by Patrol Leader Arthur Bennett. There was an attendance of 17 including the officers. The business session was in charge of Scoutmaster Rev. George Warren Potter. The troop voted to enter the Red Arrow contest of achievement. A new book of patriotic songs was used during the song period, which was led by Bugler Edward Jordan with his trumpet. The standing in the efficiency contest shows Assistant P. L. Earl Robinson still holding first place with a score of 818 points. Patrol Leader Clayton Rose is in second place with 783 Edward Eccleston is third with 711, and Frederick Ross, fourth, with 745 points.

The special meeting of the League of Service of the First Congregational church scheduled for last Thursday evening, which was postponed, is to take place this week Thursday evening, following the mid-week prayer service of half an hour in the chapel.

Sunday morning at the Congregational church, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached on "The Impression Jesus Made Upon The World After Fifty Years." The text referred to was the first four verses of the first chapter of Luke. Forasmuch as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us, even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eye-witnesses and ministers of the word; it seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, most excellent Theophilus, that thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed. Rev. Mr. Bailey emphasized in an interesting vein the ministrations of Jesus and His good works previous to His death and what people thought of Him a half century after.

The Congregational Young People's C. E. society held a valentine social in the chapel the other evening, in charge of the social committee. The time was devoted to games, after which wafers and cocoa were served by the committee, Charles Barber, chairman, Misses Louise Sterry, Dorothy Waterman, Mrs. Charles Barber and Robert Stott and Ralph Barber. Miss Sterry did much to make the evening a pleasant one for those attending.

At the meeting Sunday evening of the Y. P. S. C. E. in the Congregational chapel Miss Helen Schwenk was leader. The subject was, Lessons From John's First Epistle.

This (Tuesday) afternoon the Junior C. E. society, in charge of Mrs. Ernest Washington, will have for its study lesson after school, "Are We Workers Or Shirkers?" With Miss Jessie E. Hyde supervising, the intermediates will have a hand-work meeting during the same period.

Thermometers in Norwich Town registered as low as zero, early Sunday morning, with a high cutting wind. During the day it only registered about five degrees higher. The storm over the week end, which was accompanied by such severe cold and high wind, was the most tedious one experienced this winter. As a result of the heavy rain Friday, the Yantic river rose considerably all along its banks.

Monday morning on Town street, the thermometer registered eight degrees below zero.

Friends of Mrs. William Weaver, of Huntington Green, were pleased to learn Monday morning that she is progressing rapidly toward recovery, following several days' illness.

John H. Durr and son, Master John S. Durr, left Saturday for their home at Bellefourche, S. D., after a visit of more than three weeks at the home of Mr. Burr's mother, Mrs. Mary Durr, of 85 Town street. Mr. Durr is to stop over at Omaha on business, while en route.

WISE BUYERS ARE GETTING THE CREAM, ARE YOU?

Ask your coal merchant for a copy of the Reading "Economy" leaflet, showing you how to have better heat at lower cost. Or write us at Philadelphia.

WISE buyers of fuel are getting heating satisfaction at low cost by buying the "cream" sizes of hard coal.

They order Reading furnace size coal and Fyrewell—a specially prepared small size Reading hard coal.

They use both sizes in firing their furnaces. Fyrewell is so low-priced that the average cost of Fyrewell and furnace bought together is just about the same as the original cost of smoky or synthetic fuels.

But from Reading furnace and Fyrewell, wise buyers get the world's finest furnace fires—clean, long-burning, needing little attention, giving uniform heat hour after hour, and all at a delivered heat cost that is surprisingly low.

We call these sizes the "cream" coals because your furnace gets more nourishment out of them at lower cost. If you haven't tried this combination, call your coal merchant today. He has these Reading sizes, or can quickly get them for you.

The Hope Of Crows

A thousand croaking crows are limned
Against the ruddy afterglow;
Slowly the light of day is dimmed—
The black horde seeks the willow row.

They trailed at dawn from timber haunts,
Ready to use their flinty bills;
Their raucous voices sending taunts
To echo down the river hills.

A bird has faith who flies so long
Above the house, the barn, the pen;
A bird whose appetite is strong
For dead earth-things like beasts or men.

Those crows have learned, by flapping high,
That plowmen on each corn-field slope—
Plowmen and grass * * * all flesh will die.
So crows must watch and wait and hope.

—Jay G. Sigmund in the Chicago News.

Old Ships

Besides dim wharves, the battered ships are dreaming—
The worn ships, the torn ships, with many a draggled mast,
The gray old ships are musing of those creaming
Waters that weltered in days long past.

Maybe they dream of how the idle ocean
A glittering dragon, with rippling scales of gold,
Would writhe and twist with sleepy, crafty motion,
Suddenly frothing where the hushed bark rolled.
How still they sway and think upon the glories
Of shimmering lagoons that lit the tranquil morn!
How still they sway and think upon the stories
Of Africa, Bermuda and the far Cape Horn!

By what fierce tempests were they hurled and harried?
Or did they groan on any foamy shoal?
And what strange freight or cargoes have they carried:
Bulging green bananas or the bins of coal?

But now they creak and startle from their napping—
These worn old ships with many a draggled mast;
And while they listen to the waves lip-lapping,
They fall to dreaming of the days long past.

—Louis Ginsberg.

SECTIONALISM DEVELOPS IN SENATE TARIFF DEBATE

Reaching the Agriculture Schedule the Senate Voted Increases In Duties On Live Cattle—Senator Connally, Texas, Questioned New Englanders' Policy of Protection When Every Time An Agricultural Rate Is Proposed They Say It's Going to Increase the Cost of Food—Senators Have Received An Open Letter From the National Grange Appealing For Retention of the Debenture Provision.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — (AP) — After increasing the tariff on zinc and refusing to levy an import tax on silver, now on the free list, the senate returned today to the heart of the tariff bill—the agriculture schedule—and voted increases in duties on live cattle above those carried in the Hawley-Smoot measure.

Eastern and southern democrats clashed heatedly over the proposed higher cattle levies, but the final roll call revealed the overwhelming sentiment of both parties for higher protection on farm products. The vote was 73 to 4 for the increases, those in opposition being Senators Copeland and Wagner, New York; Harris, Georgia, and Walsh, Massachusetts, all democrats.

Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, sponsored the new cattle rates, which as approved were two and one-half cents a pound on cattle weighing under 700 pounds and three cents a pound for those weighing 700 pounds and over. Present duties are 1 1-2 cents on cattle weighing under 1,050 pounds, and 2 cents on those weighing 1,050 pounds and over. The house and senate finance committee bills had made the dividing line 800 pounds and raised existing levies one-half a cent.

Connally proposed the lowering of the weight dividing line to 700 pounds to prevent what he termed "baby beef" from Canada coming into the United States and competing with beef cattle now afforded higher protection.

When Senators Walsh and Copeland protested that the cattle rate increases would raise the cost of meat, Senator Connally replied in stinging terms that easterners always raised the cry went a higher farm tariff was proposed that it would make those in the cities pay a little more for their food but were not solicitous about the "poor farmer" when an industrial tariff was up.

"How can New England stand before the country on its policy of protection when every time an agricultural rate is proposed they say it's going to increase the price of food?" asked Connally, adding: "The time for action has arrived. This is one farm commodity where the tariff will be effective.

Resenting the attack, Senator Walsh said he proposed to protest every increase where he thought a protest justified. Senator Copeland also came back at the huge Texan, saying if the eastern democrats had had some assistance from the "agriculture democrats" on other things the former would have an excuse to offer to their constituents for voting for higher farm tariffs.

Connally condede that imports of cattle were small at this time but said this was due to the foot and mouth embargo against Argentine cattle.

Coincident with the taking up of the farm schedule, senators today received an open letter from the National grange appealing for retention of the export debenture provision in the bill.

"As the time approaches to send the tariff bill to conference," the letter said, "we trust that the senate will take an unflinching stand in favor of retaining the export debenture amendment which has been incorporated in the bill

"There is growing recognition throughout the country of the justice of the debenture proposal, since the major acreage of American farms cannot be brought under the protective system for the reason that the crops produced on these lands fall into the surplus class and must be sold in the world market."

Before taking up the agriculture schedule, which is the seventh of the fifteen rate sections in the measure, the senate completed action on the metals and woods schedule and skipped over the sugar and tobacco schedules because no individual amendments were pending to these categories.

MANIAC IS SHOOTING MOTORISTS IN NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Police today were looking for a maniac armed with a high powered rifle as the man who late yesterday picked Joseph Catalanotto, 21-year-old driver, out of his passing truck at Greenwood cemetery.

This theory of the Catalanotto slaying was given weight after Sidney Thorne, a railroad detective, had reported a similar attack on him four hours after the Catalanotto killing and a mile distant.

Thorne declared that a rifle bullet missed his head by just a few inches. It passed through a rear side window on his automobile, shattering the glass.

No one in either vicinity at the time of the shooting heard the report of a rifle or a pistol, leading to the belief that some fiend was taking careful aim at passing motorists with a rifle bearing a silencer.

This was only one of conflicting theories the police were pursuing.

Catalanotto was shot in the head, his truck ran into an automobile and the two machines wrecked a news stand.

HEARING ON DIVERSION OF WARE AND SWIFT WATERS

BOSTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Connecticut and Massachusetts today came to legal grips here, over the metropolitan water project by which Massachusetts plans to divert the flood waters of the Ware and Swift rivers in order to supplement its reservoir resources. Hearings which were opened today before Charles W. Bunn, of Minneapolis, Minn., as master, were expected to continue for several weeks.

The hearings are a result of proceedings brought before the U. S. supreme court by Connecticut which contends that the action of Massachusetts will affect the navigability of the Connecticut river, of which the Ware and the Swift rivers are tributaries. The work, which will involve the expenditure of millions of dollars, already has been started by the Massachusetts authorities.

Benedict M. Holden, assistant counsel for Connecticut, in opening the arguments contended that the proposed taking of water by Massachusetts would be followed by additional takings in the future.

RESTAURANT RAIDED TO PROVIDE TEST CASE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell said today that he had directed the raid last night on the Bedford Nest restaurant in Brooklyn, removing the fixtures as well as liquor, under a provision of the internal revenue laws because he wished to institute a test case in the federal courts.

The raid, Campbell added, "was my own inspiration."

The moderating weather apparently explained Captain Graham's decision to remain on board, orders to abandon ship having been issued previously as a gale and high seas threatened.

GOV. TRUMBULL LIMPING AFTER GLIDER ACCIDENT

HARTFORD, Feb. 18—(AP)—Limping slightly, but showing no other visible signs of the glider accident in which he was injured in New Jersey, Monday, Gov. John H. Trumbull returned to his office in the state capitol today. The governor's most serious injury was to his left knee, where some ligaments are strained, and his knee was bandaged as he went about his work. The bruises he received were of a minor nature, and it is expected that the knee will respond to treatment within a few days. The governor received many telegrams during the day congratulating him upon his escape from serious injury.

The governor regards the accident as "all in the game," and laughed as he referred to the matter today. The car towing the glider started before he was ready, the governor explained, and he had his feet of off the rudder controls and was adjusting a part of the glider with one hand when it started.

The governor said that he was in the air before he fully realized it, and was unable to place his feet on the rudder bar and the glider pitched suddenly to the ground. Far from deterring him from other flights, Gov. Trumbull declared today that he considered gliding more thrilling than flying an airplane, and indicated that he hopes to make other glider flights in the future.

Garvar is alleged to have offered Howard Mayer, Flatbush shop owner, $500 if he would withdraw a shoplifting charge he had lodged against Mrs. St. Clair. Garvar obtained the woman's dismissal in a magistrate's court on the charge, but she later was re-arrested and convicted.

LIQUOR LAW ARREST NEAR SENATE OFFICE BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.— (AP) — While the anti-prohibitionists were preparing to present more arguments before the house judiciary committee when it resumes hearings tomorrow on measures to repeal the 18th amendment, "the man in the green hat" was arrested again today on a liquor charge just outside the senate office building.

Six pints of alleged gin were seized as George L. Cassidy, who gained "the man in the green hat" cognomen when arrested several years ago on a liquor charge in the house office building, was taken into custody. He and Thomas Gately of Baltimore were arrested by a policeman and a dry agent. Later they were released under bonds of $2,000 each. Cassidy, who already was at liberty under $2,000 bond on a pending liquor case, said he had been "framed" today.

FRANCE MAY BE WITHOUT GOVERNMENT SEVERAL DAYS

PARIS, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The solution of the cabinet crisis caused by the overthrow of the Tardieu government had not made a single step forward at the close of the second day, which was devoted to President Doumergue's consultations with the most prominent statesmen of the republic,

Indications are that France will be without a government several days or even a week, and the London naval conference is at a standstill, due to the fact that France will not be officially represented again until her home affairs are straightened out.

President Doumergue conferred today with former President Poincare and former Premier Briand.

The president, said tonight he had not called Briand to form a new cabinet although Briand was certain to form a part of the new government.

Political circles believe that the president had not called Poincare with a view of asking him to lead a government, but merely was seeking his advice.

Former Premier Tardieu was reported improved tonight, although coughing severely from the irritations of grip.

Alcohol Explosion In Standard Oil Co. Plant

Four Men Were Killed and 60 Injured At Bayway, N. J. Refining Plant.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Four men were killed, and sixty [illegible]jured, more than a score critica[illegible] the explosion of gas that [illegible] from a maze of coiled pipe[illegible] day at the Bayway refinin[illegible] of the Standard Oil compa[illegible] of the injured were burne[illegible] the face and hands, and do[illegible] feared some would lose their eyesight.

A brief statement by J. Raymond Carrigen, general manager of the plant, said the blast was caused by the rupture of "a gas line." A number of the injured men reported seeing a "blue vapor" escaping from the alcohol plant, in which the explosion took place, before the sheet of flame that enveloped them, came.

Most of the injured men were bricklayers, pipe fitters and carpenters, working on a building under construction a scant two feet from the alcohol plant. None could tell what happened. One man said he turned at the sound of the explosion, to see "everybody afire" and "running or falling from the scaffolds." In addition to burns, several of the injured suffered broken bones.

Of the dead, only one man was identified. Two of the men were trapped in the alcohol plant, and the body of one was taken out later in the position in which it was found,—on hands and knees

Every available ambulance from the city's three hospitals rushed to the plant, about a mile beyond the outskirts, when word of the accident spread. Thirty-three of the injured were brought to Elizabeth General hospital, 28 to the St. Elizabeth's hospital, and two to Alexian Brothers hospital.

Every room and corridor in the Elizabeth General and St. Elizabeth's became an emergency ward. Doctors and nurses were recruited by the use of every telephone within each. Within an hour the doors of each institution were stormed by the relatives of the dead and injured.

The explosion came about an hour before quitting time for the men working in the new building. One of the men believed the gas would have been carried away by the wind if it had not reached a forge full of glowing coals used for heating rivets.

DEATH OF CORONER ELI MIX IN NEW HAVEN, AGED 80

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 18.—(AP)— A life spent in unraveling the mysteries of crime came to an end today, with the death of Coroner Eli Mix, who held that office probably longer than any similar official in the country. He was 80 years old.

Coroner Mix died at his Westville home after a two years' illness during which he had not been to administer his office. Coroner Mix had devoted more than 50 years of his life to public service. He was appointed coroner of New Haven county in 1885 and his last term was to have expired in June. He is survived by two sons and a daughter.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

New Airplane Speed Record For 62 Miles

Averaged 185.452 Miles An Hour — Previous Record [illegible]74.662 Miles.

[illegible]KSONVILLE BEACH, Fla., [illegible] 18.—(AP)—Flying the white, steam[illegible]ned monoplane, "Miss Silvertown," Lee Schoenhair, veteran pilot of Akron, Ohio, today shattered the world's airplane speed record for distances of 100 and 500 kilometers with an added weight of 500 kilograms, equal to 1,102 pounds.

In establishing a new record for 100 kilometers, equivalent to approximately 62 miles, Schoenhair, a diminutive youth, who learned to fly during the World war, negotiated the course at an average speed of 185.452 miles an hour. This exceeded by 10.79 miles an hour the former record of 174.662 established by Ferrand Lasne at Etampe, France, on October 7, 1925.

Schoenhair's average speed over the 500 kilometers course, with the same added weight, was 171.228 miles an hour which surpassed by 12.572 miles an hour the former record of 158.656 set by Captain H. S. Broad at Stag Island, Reading, England on April 27, 1928.

Shortly after Shoenhair took off a door on the plane blew open. High tide at the beach prevented him landing here and he was forced to fly the entire route with the door open. He estimated that the resistance of the air rushing into the plane reduced his speed approximately ten miles an hour.

Throughout the trials Schoenhair skimed along the edge of the ocean only a few feet above the water, taking advantage of sand dune protection from strong cross winds that made banking at the pylons dangerous.

FINANCIAL PLANS FOR FOX FILM CORPORATION

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)— Two alternative plans designed to rescue the Fox Film corporation from its financial difficulties, both advanced by factions opposing the continuance of William Fox as the directing head of the concern, came to light today.

Stockholders will meet March 5 to act upon the plan proposed by a group of bankers and favored by Mr. Fox to issue $55,000,000 worth of securities. The meeting was called at the suggestion of Federal Judge Coleman, before whom the receivership hearings have been held. The notice to the stockholders revealed that Halsey, Stuart and Co., former bankers of the corporation, who oppose the plan favored by Mr. Fox have also submitted a plan of refinancing.

According to the notice to stockholders, the Halsey Stuart plan contemplates the exchange of both class A stock and class B stock of the corporation for new common stock, all of one class The plan, the notice stated, would eliminate the present voting power of class B stock which Mr. Fox personally holds 51 per cent, and also would require deposit of all new common stock under a voting trust. The notice stated that Mr. Fox would not consent to the plan.

The other alternative plan came from Winfield Sheehan, and Saul Rogers, vice presidents and directors of the Fox corporation. They propose to raise $40,000,000 through the sale of debenture issues and the remaining necessary funds through sale of $25,000,000 of new common stock

The plan of the two Fox officers, it was reported in Wall street, would be submitted to the stockholders.

SLOW ACTION IN TARIFF IS PROVING PROVOCATIVE

Following Breakfast At the White House Senator Watson Informed the Senate That the President "Wants a Tariff Bill Passed"—Whole Country Waits While Orators of the Senate Indulge In Their Favorite Pastime—Rep. Tilson's Criticism Has Aroused the Ire of Coalition Senators — Rep. Garner Charged President Hoover With Lack of Leadership.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.— (AP) — President Hoover called upon republican congressional leaders today to enact the tariff bill and his conference blew up a storm of oratory and statement-making on capitol hill which cleared the air.

The house chieftains later gloomily discussed the outlook for legislation while the senate members of the presidential breakfast party were back in the tariff-bound senate urging speed and promising the tariff bill by March 10. The oratory centered there where the democratic-republican coalition has control.

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, wanted to know what kind of bill Mr. Hoover wanted—the high-tariff measure passed by the house or the revised bill eliminating all but agricultural increases being written in the senate.

Replying, Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, said the president "wants a tariff bill passed." He declared no rates had been discussed, and maintained emphatically that the high-tariff measure passed by the house "no longer exists."

The white house breakfasters were satisfied after the parley that Mr. Hoover was standing by the senate republican leadership, which was adversely criticised yesterday by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the house republican floor leader. The house leaders' threat to recess pending final action by the senate on the tariff was withdrawn.

The restless party spokesmen in the house renewed their round of blunt statement-making after the white house parley. The republicans there passed the blame for delay in the senate on the tariff to the coalition. Representative Garner of Texas, democratic leader, replied in a fiery statement, asserting that "lack of leadership in the white house has resulted in a chaotic condition in the republican ranks in the senate and house."

After it was all over, the senate went busily ahead with rewriting the tariff measure. Senator Watson delivered one of his few tariff speeches before taking his seat, telling the senate that the "sole object" of tariff legislation "is to maintain the American wage scale." He expressed the fear that in the long quarrel over the bill, this point had been forgotten.

Senator Borah of Idaho, one of the leaders of the republican independent-democratic coalition, replied to the white house demand for speed with a statement, saying:

"I have no doubt that there is a feeling of impatience in the country, but with a bill that has 21,000 items in it and about 20,000 that ought not to be there, it takes time. Time is not nearly so important as to have a good bill when it is passed."

The white house conference was the first meeting around the table of congressional leaders in many days. It followed quickly the condemnatory remarks passed on the senate yesterday by Tilson, and it was reported that Tilson's remarks came in for discussion. Those at the white house were: Speaker Longworth, Senator Watson, Senator McNary of Oregon, assistant republican leader; Representatives Tilson, Snell of New York, chairman of the rules committee; the authors of the tariff measure—Senator Smoot of Utah, and Representative Hawley of Oregon; and Walter Newton, executive secretary to the president.

In the subsequent senate debate, Senator Watson said, "The president called us down to the white house this morning to get us to make any suggestions to him, if we could, that would enable him to be helpful in finally passing this bill."

"He thinks," continued Watson, "the country is in such a condition that this legislation should be disposed of, first, in the interest of the business of the country, and second, in order that other matters in which the administration and the people are interested may as speedily as possible be brought before this body for solution.

"We all came away imbued with the spirit of helping to pass this bill as speedily as we may."

Senator Harrison noted the condemnation given the senate leadership by Tilson and inquired if the white house conference had resulted in "spanking or blessing the republican reactionary leaders of the senate."

He asserted that the republican tariff bill passed by the house had been "condemned from one end of the country to the other," and added that Tilson "should be the last one to criticise the republican leadership here for failure to defend this measure."

Senator Watson recalled Tilson's criticism of the senate leadership for neglecting to defend Charles Evans Hughes in the fight over his confirmation in the senate last week, and replied that he did not consider Mr. Hughes needed any defense except in votes for his confirmation, which were given.

The statement of Representative Garner was one of the most outspoken in recent years against a president. He said:

"There has been no leadership of the republican party since President Hoover entered the white house. There is not a leading public question on which the president is willing to make a suggestion or much less offer a solution. All of his statements are ambiguous. They can be taken in two ways. You hear the people talk of the president as either lacking in capacity or courage. Either he lacks one or the other, or both, or he would not let such chaos develop in party leadership. The country has lost confidence in the president and that is what is causing the chaotic economic conditions."

ONLY TWO MURDERS IN CHICAGO IN PAST 24 HOURS

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A young mother was murdered, a Chinese was slain, two women were attacked and a youthful pool hall frequenter was probably fatally shot during the past 24 hours in Chicago.

Discovery of the body of Mrs. Agnes Lavander, 35, after an all-night search, turned much of the police drive against gunmen and hoodlums into a concentrated search for the slayer.

Mrs. Lavander was shot through the head and her body was left in a ravine near a lumber yard adjoining the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific railroad tracks. Her purse and other personal belongings were found a quarter of a mile distant in a forest preserve. A $10 bill had been extracted from the purse.

Early tonight, two suspects were in custody. Both were men found in the vicinity who could give no satisfactory explanation of their presence.

The two criminal attacks reported to police occurred last night. Joseph Spizzio, 21, was shot, probably fatally, in a pool room. The police refused to accept a story that he was shot accidentally during a playful scuffle and began a search for another youth.

THREE OF FAMILY LOST LIVES IN FIRE AT HOME

MANIWAKI, Que., Feb. 18.—(AP)—All alone in the world at the age of 12, little Glory Galarneau lay in the hospital tonight, a few snowy streets away from the blackened shell of what until today was her home and her family's means of livelihood.

Glory's mother, Mrs. Narcisse Galarneau, her little brothers, Raoul, aged 4, and Donald, 2, and her uncle, John Marenger, all were burned to death in a fire that destroyed the Galarneau hotel early today. Her father died a couple of months ago, just before Christmas.

Glory escaped from the fire by jumping, in her night dress, out of a third story window into a snow bank. She is suffering from bruises and shock.

At least one other person, Nelson Bertrand, of Gracefield, Que., a guest, lost his life in the fire.

ACTRESSES INVOLVED IN $100,000 ALIENATION SUIT

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Despite assertions of her counsel that Marjorie Rambeau, actress was stranded in Los Angeles, Calif., without carfare to bring her to New York, Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck today ordered to trial a $100,000 suit brought against Miss Rambeau by Mabel Manton, actress, charging alienation of the affections of William K. Manton, her husband.

After Miss Manton and her witnesses testified, Justice Schmuck ordered the jury to return a sealed verdict, to be opened tomorrow morning.

Miss Rambeau's attorneys sought adjournment of the case on the grounds of her lack of funds to come here and the illness of her mother, who she is attending in Los Angeles. The adjournment, however, was denied.

Miss Manton said her husband maintained a room for himself at the Hotel Remington in 1924, although both were out of work at the time. On one occasion when she visited his room without his knowledge, she continued, she found there a key to Miss Rambeau's suite at another hotel. With this key, she said, she entered Miss Rambeau's suite in June, 1926, and found her husband with the actress.

DANIELSON DENTIST GIVEN 8 TO 15 YEARS IN PRISON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 18.—Upon entering a plea of nolo contendere during a short calendar session of the Windham county superior court here today, Dr. James C. Maslen, Danielson dentist, was sentenced to 8 to 15 years in state's prison for carnal abuse and indecent assault of a female child.

Dr. Maslen, who is [illegible] years of age, was charged with eight counts, three of carnal abuse and five of indecent assault. The sordid case had to do with the dentist's degenerate intimacies with [illegible] little girls ranging in age from [illegible] years. The second of the eight counts was the most serious of the eight in alleging carnal abuse of a 12-year-old girl on several occasions. It was on this second count that Judge John Rufus Booth of New Haven imposed the sentence of 8 to 15 years. The crime carried with it a maximum penalty of 30 years. On the remaining seven counts Judge Booth imposed a prison sentence of one year, these sentences to run concurrently with the major penalty.

Dr. Maslen, who had previously pleaded not guilty, was represented by County Defender Harry Back of Danielson and Attorney William A. King of this city. Attorney Back introduced a report of two alienists, Doctor Burdsall of Norwich and Dr. F. E. Wilcox of this city, that the dentist was a victim of psychopathy. The report indicated, however, that the man knew right from wrong and on this basis Judge Booth declared that the accused was legally sane. Both defense attorneys stressed the fact that the plea of nolo contendere served to safeguard the reputations of the victims of the man's alleged depredations and of their families by eliminating the necessity of testimony on the witness stand by the complainants. Attorney King said that he had known Dr. Maslen for a number of years and had always considered the man as somewhat mentally deficient.

The short calendar session of court was convened at 10 o'clock. Temporary alimony of $5 per week for the support of the plaintiff was granted in the case of Mary A. K. Kowalski versus Joseph Kowalski, both of this city. The temporary alimony for her own support is in addition to $7 weekly previously agreed upon by both parties for the support of three minor children. The arrangement is pending disposition of the divorce action that the woman has instituted against her husband. She was also granted a $50 allowance to prosecute.

A settlement was announced in the case of Alfred Graveline versus Aldrich Brothers, Inc., an appeal from a finding and award of the compensation commissioner. The court then took up the first of the uncontested divorce actions scheduled for the day. It was that of William Blair MacIntosh of this city versus Florence E. MacIntosh. Judge Booth reserved his decision on the ground of jurisdiction, ruling that insufficient evidence had been introduced to the effect that the plaintiff is maintaining a home in this city with his father, William B. MacIntosh, of 411 Pleasant street. The elder MacIntosh was a witness in the case. John C. Frasier, a resident in the MacIntosh house, also testified for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff stated that his wife left him several years ago. He said that after their marriage in 1921 she started to patronize the night clubs in New York city and that she finally left him.

The second divorce action, that of Vida H. Osterhoudt of Killingly versus Raymond R. Osterhoudt, formerly of this city and at present employed in Bristol, was granted on the grounds of wilful desertion. The couple have four children, two girls and two boys. The plaintiff's request for the custody of the two girls was granted by Judge Booth, who ordered Osterhoudt to pay $10 weekly toward their support in compliance with a previous agreement. The boys were placed under mutual custody and allowed to remain with the father. This concluded the short calendar and Judge Booth announced that another session would be held at Putnam next Tuesday.

The appointment of A. Hale Bennett, former judge of probate from Canterbury, and Miss L. Monica McKean of this city as superior court commissioners was confirmed on motion of Attorneys Harry E. Back of Danielson and William A. King of this city. No action was taken on a similar motion in behalf of Miss Honor T. McKenna, also of this city.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS CHANGE PLEAS AND ARE FINED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 18.—The criminal term of the Windham county superior court was reopened here late this forenoon to hear a change of pleas in the case of three of the 14 alleged liquor law violators rounded up in Killingly, Thompson and Plainfield Monday night of last week.

Eugene Riggier of Ballouville pleaded guilty to two counts and was fined $300 on each, a total of $600 plus the costs and given a 60-day jail sentence suspended for one year. Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam, representing the accused, said that the cotton mills in Ballouville were running on short time and that the man was led to selling liquor for the support of his family.

Walter Lis, 19, of Danielson, pleaded guilty to one count and was fined $100 and costs with a 15-day sentence to the county jail at Brooklyn. He was represented as a rum-runner. Mrs. Delia Sullivan, also of Danielson, pleaded guilty to two counts. She was fined $200 and costs and given a 30-day jail sentence suspended for one year. Public Defender Back stated that the woman had no other means of livelihood and that her destitute condition led her to sell liquor.

The court ordered an indefinite suspension of the probationary term of Kenneth Light, charged with theft of a motor vehicle on two counts. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, in recommending the suspension, stated that Light is at present in parts unknown. At the time of his arraignment he was sentenced to the state reformatory and placed on probation for one year.

Court adjourned at 12:45 o'clock with an order of the court that it convene in Putnam at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

RAILROAD OFFICIAL SPEAKS AT ROTARY MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 18.—Leslie H. Tyler of New Haven, special representative of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, spoke on Public Relations at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel with a luncheon this noon. Mr. Tyler was introduced by Harry A. Blanchette, chairman of the public relations committee of the club and local agent for the railroad. A guest at the meeting was Peter Walker of the National Surety company of New York. President Louis H. Arnold appointed William A. Dawson, chairman, Herbert W. Huber and Ralph H. Gibson, a committee to devise ways and means of raising funds for the club's boys' and girls' work. Mr. Tyler told of the efforts of the railroad to provide comfort and safety and establish schedules that would be satisfactory to the majority. The company had just purchased 100 new deluxe day coaches that introduce many modern innovations in train comfort and cost $33,000 each. He said that upon purchasing a ticket to New York the traveler is using a running train investment, including engine and all coaches, of about $490,000. This figure does not include tracks, roadbed, equipment, stations, services, etc. He said that the railroads of the country paid $420,000,000 in taxes in 1929. This means that they had to operate for 35 days to pay these taxes. Mr. Tyler introduced pertinent figures showing the service that a railroad must perform in order to make certain equipment purchases. A ton of freight must be hauled 33 miles to pay for an ordinary hand lantern; 182 miles for a coal shovel; 555 miles for a keg of spikes; 82 miles for a cross tie; 265 miles to pay the wages of a track laborer for one day, and 583 miles for the wages of a machinist. A passenger must be carried 1,790,412 miles to pay for a dining car and 3,521,000 miles to defray the cost of one electric locomotive. The speaker then told of the efforts of railroads to establish the best possible relations with the public. He was accorded a rising vote of thanks for his instructive talk.

COLCHESTER

FIRE DEPT. DOES GREAT WORK AT DAUPHINEE HOME

Members of Colchester Fire Co. are being praised for the fine work done Monday afternoon, in saving the J. Newton Dauphinee residence on Linwood avenue. The fire had started in the cellar and had worked its way up to the floor joists and into the partitions on the west corner of the house, when the firemen arrived. They ripped off clapboards and with the use of chemicals the flames were held back until a line of hose could be laid to a nearby well. The work was made more difficult as the ladders became coated with ice and the interior of the house was dense with smoke. It was with considerable difficulty that neighbors made entrance to the house, before the firemen arrived, and took Mr. and Mrs. Dauphinee from the smoke-filled building.

Had the firemen arrived five minutes later, the house would have been a blazing mass of ruins. As it was the prompt and efficient work of the Fire company resulted in only a few hundred dollars damage being done. Felix Wilenski, Peter Bass and Peter Deagon, neighbors of the Dauphinee family, did heroic work, having crawled on hands and knees into the smoke-filled house to bring to safety the aged couple, who were nearly overcome from smoke.

The members of the Junior C. E. society held a valentine party Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. H. Tompkins. Games were played, refreshments were served and souvenirs were presented each of the young people by the hostess.

YANTIC

Mr. and Mrs. E. I. O'Connors, of Cleveland, Ohio, are spending the winter at Miami. Mr. O'Connors was at one time a resident here, being connected with the Yantic mills, and Mrs. O'Connors was a Norwich Town resident, Miss Mary Ryan.

The snowstorm and near-gale Saturday afternoon and night, with a fair sky Sunday, but zero temperature and a high wind blowing, kept nearly every one indoors, although Road Supervisor Green kept the roads open with frequent trips of the snow plows or road scrapers. The drifts in some places were between two and three feet high.

W. W. Bentley has been spending a couple of days harvesting ice with a gang of men on his pond but has not filled the ice house yet.

The recent slippery condition of the roads made going treacherous but Road Supervisor Green had all his men out early and late when necessary, sanding every incline and curve. No accidents were reported in the village except when Mr. Schwartz's truck swung into the stone enclosure of the Boarding house.

John Geno, of the East Side, who purchased the station on the Yantic flats, has moved his family from there to the McNally house at Bean Hill, recently vacated by the Bradley family.

HUDSON'S Great 8

Questions the Wisdom of ever paying more for any car

Its rich appointment and appearance; its outstanding performance, remarkable economy and its pride of ownership, in every particular of motor car satisfaction, questions the wisdom of ever paying more for any car.

It is a question that motordom is everywhere asking. It is revealed in hosts of new owners turning to Hudson from every size and price field. It is confirmed in the most spontaneous welcome ever extended an eight-cylinder car.

This is the car which all Hudson's past achievements are set aside to produce. That fact alone speaks for a remarkable development. When you see and ride in it you will understand that an entirely new standard of motor value has been established.

It genuinely questions the wisdom of paying more for any car.

DANIELSON

P-A SALES REPORT SHOWS AN INCREASE OVER 1929

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 18.—Good news for Danielson is contained in the statement of J. W. Powdrell, president of Powdrell & Alexander, operating six mills and employing upwards of 1,600 people in this town, that sales for January this year were far ahead of January business in 1929, which year was far and away the best in the history of the company with a sales volume of approximately $7,000,000.

President Powdrell's statement was made in connection with the announcement today of the earnings of the corporation, manufacturers of curtains, for the past year. Mr. Powdrell said that sales fell off appreciably during the last two months of 1929 on account of general business depression, but 1930 has started off far ahead of January of last year. He also makes mention that during this period of depression during the closing weeks of 1929, the company was at an extraordinary expense in moving its Boston plant to Danielson and reorganizing the same, the entire cost, $100,000, being charged to current expense. Mr. Powdrell says the company's executives are looking forward to the greatest year in the company's history.

Last year the company made a net profit of $483,883, after charges for depreciation and federal taxes. In the previous year the net earnings were $247,804. This year's earnings, after $67,238 for preferred dividends, is equal to $8.30 a share on 52,017 shares of the common stock, this being the average number outstanding during 1929.

During the past year 517 shares of preferred stock were redeemed through the sinking fund and 4,341 shares were converted into common, leaving outstanding $514,200, of the original issue of $1,000,000 sold in 1928. Dec. 31, last, current assets were given as $2,745,704, and current liabilities as $1,093,246.

A. A. Bonneville Named Director

Announcement was made today of the election of Avelleno A. Bonneville as director of the Danielson Trust company by the stockholders of the institution. Mr. Bonneville is one of Danielson's most successful business men, proprietor of two retail drug stores here, and active and energetic in all his undertakings. Before becoming a resident of Danielson well over a decade ago, Mr. Bonneville was a resident of Putnam.

This afternoon's tally of subscriptions for shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association showed a total of 1,458. While the subscription rate has been slow the past fortnight, there is the prospect that it will be materially increased before the building season opens. The association has received six applications from those who would like to have homes built under the association plan. Applications also have been received from outside concerns for use of these funds in constructing homes here, but these have been rejected.

Tonight at the Westfield Congregational church and under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches and before an audience of lovers of the beautiful and artistic things of life a splendid concert was presented by the Flagg Treble Clef Choir and String Ensemble.

This musical organization, under the direction of Henry Flagg, has the objective of reaching a point of perfection unsurpassed by any other similar organization in a town the size of Danielson, and it is well on the way to that distinction. Mr. Flagg, the director, receives no remuneration for his efforts other than the satisfaction derived from having accomplished something of constructive artistic merit.

This evening's program was as follows: Panis Angelicus (Caesar Franck) and Around the Gypsy Fire, Hungarian Dance No. 5 (Brahms), Treble Clef Choir, String Ensemble, organ and piano; Andante Sostenuto (Luigini), violin, viola, 'cello, harp and organ; soprano solos, Trees (Rasbach) and Noddin' (Galloway), Edith Abbott; harp solo, Dream Garden (Rogers) and La Coquette (Rogers), Gladys Wilbur; A Gentian (W. Berwald), Beneath Thy Lattice, Japanese serenade (Harry P. Hopkins), and Little Orphan Annie (Clayton Thomas), choir, ensemble, organ and piano; violin solo, Kol Nidrei (Max Bruch), Bernard Millstein; Solitudine (Sodero), violin, 'cello and harp; cantata, The Shepherd Lady (Edith Lang), Treble Clef choir, Iva Bernier, soloist; Priests' March from Athalia (Mendelssohn), string ensemble, organ and piano.

There was no surprise in official circles today over the fact that Dr. J. C. Maslen, practicing dentistry here for a number of years, accepted the option of pleading nolo contendere to going to trial in the superior court before Judge Booth in Willimantic today on statutory charges growing out of his actions with little girls who visited his office during the course of last year. On the eight counts charged against him, Dr. Maslen could have been sentenced, if given the maximum, to many more years than is included in the average life time.

Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill, who arranged for the original issue of warrants in the Dr. Maslen case and had him brought before the town court, said this afternoon that a woman probation officer of the Killingly town court, after hearing hints of what Dr. Maslen was alleged to be doing, started an investigation that brought to light ample evidence to warrant the arrest of Dr. Maslen. After the original arrest, Dr. Maslen again was brought before the local court on similar and additional charges and his bail increased. Attorney Bill said this afternoon that there was no doubt in his mind of the ability of the state to convict Dr. Maslen had he elected to go to trial.

The convicted man was brought back to the county jail in Brooklyn tonight, and he will be taken to the state prison at Wethersfield, probably during the present week, to begin the term of not less than 8 nor more than 15 years imposed upon him on two counts and an additional year to run concurrently.

FUNERAL

Mrs. William J. Brennan

This morning the funeral of Mrs. William J. Brennan was held from the home on the West Side, with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including delegations from the Scapular society and from the Catholic Welfare council. Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., was celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem, with Rev. Francis Baldwin, M. S., and Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S., as deacon and sub-deacon. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. Fr. Demers. The bearers—all nephews—were John O'Brien, Jeremiah O'Brien, Albert Grennon, Alfred Moulin, Romeo Bernier. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

There is promise of general activity and much work for men engaged in the building trades and allied enterprises as soon as spring opens in Danielson. Because of weather conditions many artisans have had little work since the first of the year. However, with the building campaign that Danielson has projected things will be materially different here, it is hoped, within a month. Once underway, the season promises real activity until late next fall.

PUTNAM

TELETYPE SERVICE FOR WESTERN UNION OFFICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 18.—Within a few days the city will witness the passing of the sounder and key method of receiving and transmitting messages at the local office of the Western Union Telegraph company, which has serviced Putnam for many years, but which has become an obsolete system in view of the newly perfected device known as the Simplex station. The Simplex machine receives and transmits messages on tape, operating in much the same manner as the ordinary typewriter. It is a product of the twentieth century and is being used in all of the larger cities, supplanting the telegraph and eliminating the necessity of an operator trained in the art of mentally transcribing the clicking notes of the sounder into words. However an operator will be required when the new method is installed, but the person will be one skilled in the use of a typewriter.

The modern simplex machine is expected to be in operation in this city in about a fortnight. Its coming will be hailed as another indication of the city's progress in the field of instant communication with the outside world.

The mid-season rally of the Putnam lodge of Elks, giving them the lead in the Elks-Masons indoor sport tournament a few days ago, was followed by another victory Monday evening for the "Brother Bills" enabling them to increase their lead to eight points. The standing to date is Elks 82, Masons 74. The contest last night ended with the Elks on the long end of an 8-7 score. The Elks dropped seven games of auction bridge to their opponents but succeeded in clinching both cribbage contests to take the weekly tilt by a one point margin. At bridge the summary (Elks first) is as follows: Cotter and Murray defeated Holden and Miron; Benoit and Auger defeated deCoudres and Marcy; Champlin and W. Averill defeated Merriam and Minor; Duvert and P. Gagne defeated Chase and P. Johnson; Brousseau and Miller defeated Moss and Wolozin; Milot and Gagne defeated Mellor and Myers; Warren and Larose lost to Dow and R. Diamond; Bourgeois and McIntyre lost to Morse and Geissler; E. Bourgois and Wheatley lost to Dean and Wheaton; Campbell and Gallant lost to Sherman and Stanton; Wheelock and Girard lost to Metcalf and Duffy; Chadwick and Mansfield lost to Potter and Medbury; Barth and Cavanaugh lost to Schoonover and Shaw. At cribbage Berthiaume and Tetreault defeated Lepire and Wheeler and Rafferty and Wheaton defeated Loomis and Twigg.

Washington's birthday on Saturday will be observed in this city by a closing of the banks and a few of the business houses, the most important of which is the announcement made today that the commercial offices of the Connecticut Light and Power company will suspend business. Schools will close Friday for a week's recess, but exercises in commemoration of the birthday of the father of the nation will take place on Friday.

The time honored custom of New England checker enthusiasts gathered at Boston on February 22 at a championship tournament will be repeated again this year. The meet is expected to attract a group of players from this city who will engage in matches for the championship of Class C, confined to amateur participants.

The week end cold snap, broken today with a rising temperature, was troublesome for members of the fire department as records indicate. On Sunday, when the mercury curled up into a little ball in the bottom of the tube, the hook and ladder and hose companies at the central station responded to two alarms for chimney fires. The first was at the home of Napoleon LaBonton on Mill street. No fire loss was reported. The second still alarm was received at 6:15 for a chimney fire in the Victory theatre building on Main street, extinguished without property loss. A third alarm was received at 9:42 p. m. for another chimney blaze in the house on Wilkinson street owned by Mrs. P. Keane. This fire was extinguished without damage to property.

This afternoon at the home of Mrs. Omer I. Milot on Fremont street, members of the Womens' Union of the Second Congregational church gathered for a monthly meeting. The Alpha Delta class of the church furnished entertainment. Hostesses were Mrs. Howard C. Bradford, Mrs. C. D. Arnold, Mrs. Joseph C. Carpenter.

Financial statistics included in a report of the committee in charge of the annual Valentine charity bazaar of the woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital, indicated that proceeds derived from the affair were approximately $800.

Attorney Irving H. Miron of this city, Miss Marjorie C. Bradford, assistant clerk of courts and State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford were in Willimantic today attending the civil and criminal session of superior court.

Interest in trials of liquor law violators held today in Willimantic was manifested locally today. A few of the victims of state police raids of last week were arraigned before Judge J. Rufus Booth in superior court in Willimantic this morning. The calibre of justice meted out by Judge Booth enabled others hereabouts to prepare for stiff fines and possible jail sentences, if found guilty of charges, when arraigned in Putnam a week from today. A detailed account of court transactions will be found this morning in the Willimantic columns.

Mayor Charles A. Richard continues to improve after a two weeks illness of pneumonia. The city's chief executive has recovered sufficiently enough to sit up in his bed at intervals and to receive a few friends. The news of his partial recovery is gratifying to his many friends and associates, but it will be many days before the mayor will be in fit condition to resume his mayoral duties and his business cares.

WINTER FIRES

When extremely cold weather comes, especially when it comes in the form of a sudden departure from normal conditions, there is a speeding up of the heating apparatus in an effort to keep warm and in many instances it results in fires, some of which are decidedly serious.

Pushing the heater or the stove is the common effort but time and again it has been demonstrated that much caution should be observed. There is always the danger of setting the chimney afire, particularly if no attention has been given, before cold weather, to cleaning out the chimney. Again, the overheated stove or furnace is a direct menace to any woodwork or kindling wood that may be in close contact there. The additional heat that is sought may be the means of locating the defect in the chimney which has failed to get attention and there is always the danger that hot ashes placed in wooden receptacles will kindle a blaze that will mean a desolate home or a gutted office building.

There must be heat, but there must also be caution. Some of the most serious fires of the year occur during the cold weather, when it is not only hard for those driven out but it is hard for those who are called to fight them.

In endeavoring to counteract the cold of winter those who have charge of the heating systems of home, office building, shop or institution, must be mindful of the undesirable conditions which are easily created. This month there has been a list of bad fires entailing a heavy loss in dollars and cents and in the lives of those involved. Various causes have been given, but most of them, it would seem, could have been prevented if there had been the proper amount of forethought and a bit of consideration given to the probable consequences of overheating.

It is easy enough to draw a lesson from what has happened elsewhere and what has occurred at another home, but such a lesson does no good unless it 's applied by individuals to their own efforts and unless they are able to obtain from that a warning which will be carried in mind when similar conditions arise. These lessons need to be brought home in such a manner as to actually remove hazardous conditions and to put prevention into actual use.

FEDERAL ROADS

Federal road building is getting the endorsement of congress. It is not a new movement that has been started with this session, for federal roads have been constructed over a period of years, but the endorsement is strengthened by the fact that where the sum of $75,000,000 was appropriated before it will be $125,000,000 this time if what is now indicated becomes law.

This means that the government will put this sum of money into the construction of good roads throughout the country, allotting a certain amount to each state. It improves the highway conditions throughout the country and makes possible certain construction that might not otherwise be undertaken. The outcome is going to be more and better roads for the motorists, whether they are bent upon pleasure or engaged in the transportation of freight.

This federal road work is delegated to the respective states under federal supervision, so that it must of necessity link in with the improved highway systems of the respective commonwealths.

Objection is raised in certain circles to the government getting into any such business on the ground that it means taking funds from the thickly settled portions of the east for the construction of roads in the sparsely settled states of the west, or, in other words, the east must build its own roads and participate in the construction of highways in the less populous states.

There is something about such an arrangement which resembles the policy carried out in many states where the small towns, or the residents of the small towns, are obliged to make their contributions to the funds for public use but fail to receive much benefit from the employment of those funds in their particular localities. The residents on the country roads occupy this position. They are doing their part in providing the funds for highway construction but they are to be found in large numbers who have as yet received no road improvements in their vicinity. They are still obliged to use the country roads for themselves but are helping to build the modern roads for those who are fortunate enough to live elsewhere.

THE FRENCH CABINET

When the Tardieu government was formed it was freely predicted that its life would be short. This was not because it had been anticipated that there would arise the question on which the government was refused a vote of confidence, but because there was such a coalition that it was not believed it could be held together.

Now that it has fallen there will come the task of forming another, and it is indicative of the character of French politics when it is suggested that Tardieu may be the one chosen to form a new cabinet.

The French government broke on a domestic question but it cannot fail to have its effects upon the London conference. The upset doesn't mean that the chamber of deputies has denied its sanction to the part which the premier has played in connection with the arms limitation session. It isn't taking exceptions to the armament policy set forth at London. So far as known it is in complete accord with what the premier did and said at the conference, but it is apparent that little progress can be made at London now until the French situation is straightened out and official representatives of that government are again at London, ready to talk and act.

France holds an important influence over the gathering at London. It has declared its position regarding naval armament in a manner which makes the others sit up and take notice. Its insistence upon certain types of warships has its bearing upon the naval requirements of other countries. When it presents a solid front for one or two types, it means that others must look well to their quotas or else find an offset in another class.

In view of the fact, however, that it is not upon the naval question or even foreign policy that the French cabinet has fallen, it seems probable that the next cabinet will give its support to what has been said and done at London by Tardieu, and if he should be picked to head the next cabinet it is certain that he would have no reason to change his policy. Nevertheless, the conference faces the uncertainty that always goes with a cabinet change.

MEETING DOPE PROBLEM

Before it began its work it must have been known by the committee considering the curbing of opium for the league of nations that it faced a difficult job. If it didn't, it has certainly found it out since it began.

For several years this committee has labored for the commendable purpose of shutting off the great quantity of habit-forming drugs that is being shipped from countries where opium is produced. Just as long as that traffic is tolerated and encouraged it can be expected that there will be difficulties in restricting its sale. This has been found out in this country. In spite of our narcotic laws dope comes into the country in large quantities in the hands of smugglers. Constant efforts are made to interrupt and prevent it and, while certain steps are successful, nothing is known about others. The result is that illegal sales are constantly going on.

The effort of the league of nations committee has been to have the countries engaged in producing opium agree to restrict it to such an amount as is needed for medical and scientific uses. There is a reluctance to comply. There is an unwillingness to give up that profit from the business. It is acknowledged that it means misery for others but that hasn't been as yet considered a sufficient reason for interfering with production.

Hope, however, comes from the committee's latest session, inasmuch as most of the countries producing opium have agreed to establish a limit. They have apparently been able to send home the argument for regulation in such a way as to report progress and to indicate that a definite agreement can be reached at the convention which it has been proposed to call in the fall.

There is need for this restriction, not only in this country, but in all others, where opium in its various forms is causing great demoralization and crime.

MEXICO'S TROUBLES

Outside of Mexico and given an opportunity to express his views, Jose Vasconcelos, who waged a losing fight at the ballot box for the presidency of Mexico, has declared that the attempt upon the life of President Rubio was only what he expected. It was, in fact, what he claims to have predicted. He professed to have known for a year that there was going to be trouble.

Such an expression unquestionably indicates the sort of a situation that was fostered in Mexico by those who had opposed Rubio politically. It represents the sentiment that has too long prevailed in that and other countries where government by bullets is considered necessary.

Mexico has experienced enough of the conditions which go with revolutions to be anxious to get away and stay away from them, but those in a position to shed much influence in that direction are not inclined to use it as they should. Vasconcelos never displayed the attitude of a good loser. His position was quite to the contrary and with his followers he made such demonstrations as would be calculated to arouse others to such acts as were committed, such acts as he says he expected to happen.

Mexico has long needed better education and it still needs it. It has been fortunate in having certain of its recent presidents. They have shed an influence for good and with other leaders have done much to better conditions. But conditions in Mexico have not been of recent development, and it is going to take long and persistent efforts to get them out of a deep rut and replace violence and ignorance with peaceful adjustment and intelligence.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Every reminder of winter brings us just that much nearer to spring.

The man on the corner says: Looks as if the groundhog was trying to crowd six weeks into a few days.

Those who expected the tariff to be out of the way by the middle of February must be bitterly disappointed, but Christmas is coming.

February has furnished just enough of a storm to bring out the recollections of those who can remember back as far as that blizzard of '88.

Up in Massachusetts it is being advocated that the gas tax be increased for the benefit of old age pensions. Pretty soon they will expect the motorist to bear the whole burden of public expense.

MASQUERADE

Twilight had shifted into night. The gray square of window turning to blue, deep, deep blue, flared suddenly to softened gold as street lights blinked on along the snow-cowled avenue. Across the room I watched the rhythmic ruby of Avery's cigarette come and go beside the sleeping fire, a dull red pile of coals, comfortable, purring gently like a pleasant cat.

Sylvia, fresh from out of doors, its pungent freshness still clinging to her hair, pushed aside the tea things and broke swiftly into the little stillness.

"Such a silly play. Based on the idea that people never marry the ones they really love—most."

Avery laughed lazily. "That's what you get for haunting matinees, sweetheart. You women always think you are going to see some real life on that precious stage of yours. Real life isn't done that way."

"I am not sure the chap that wrote the play isn't right." The moment the words were out I knew they would never have been spoken but for the mantle of darkness. The kind of thing one just doesn't get said in the glare of parlor lights.

Sylvia's hands clattered momentarily, sharply, among the cups and spoons.

"Don't be sentimental, Billy. Or ironic. Or whatever your remark was meant to be. Just because you are a bachelor don't pretend you think all marriages are endurance contests to keep skeletons safely locked away in closets. Now Avery, for instance, I don't know a single thing about any of the girls he must have loved before me. But can you imagine a nice, plump husband like Avery sighing over the faded photograph of the first girl he ever kissed? Or me—why I can't even recall who did give me my first. Avery's right. Real life isn't like that."

Even as she spoke my vision, meteor brief, flashed a memory. Nathalie Blaice, lithe, black and ivory person that she was, red-hooded, red-cloaked, poised on silver-winged skates—away like a flash, her skates ringing across the iron-strong ice—we pelting after her with Avery—as always—in the lead.

We always wondered why they didn't marry. From high-school days they seemed two people most meant for one another. But perhaps four years in eastern schools did change Nathalie more than we suspected. At any rate, we sensed quarrel that last summer before the old gang broke up. And on its heels Dick Mathews came to superintend the building of the new school. In those few weeks Nathalie was whisked away into new realms of romance. If Avery cared he gave no sign. He was noisiest among the boisterous merrymakers who took the newlyweds to the train that September day, showering them with rice and old shoes.

Sylvia, always restless, too eager, too hospitable, rose, yawned, snapped on lights. "Come, see my new dining-room rug, old thing," she commanded me, and politely nonresistant, I followed. In the long, dim hall her hand clutched my sleeve convulsively.

"Oh Bill," she hissed between tight lips. "That horrible play. It is true. Hardly any one marries the right person. I've tried to think it is just memory doing tricks to us. But if memory really has possession of our hearts it is love, isn't it?"

I murmured something soothing, meaningless. She rushed on.

"I couldn't have Avery guess—I am his entire world you know. But the man I should have married lies over there in France. I've tried to walk blindly—eyes shut. But the play today made me know. Any one I married would be but a makeshift—after Hugh." She coughed a sob, straightened suddenly and lifted her fingers from my sleeve. "But, of course, Avery will never know. He is such a darling. So single-minded about me. And I do love him."

A little dazed I turned back to the quiet library. Avery still sat in the low fireside chair—something white and crumpled in his hanging hand. Wordless I sank into my place beside the table. Out of the stillness he spoke.

"Bill, did you—a moment ago—think of Nathalie?"

I all but jumped. "Yes."

"Wondered why I didn't marry her?"

"Oh, no," I lied gently. And then, knowing it was no time or place for lying, "Well, yes, I did. Always have."

"Well—" slowly, lingeringly, "I didn't marry Nathalie because I thought she didn't love me. And she married Dick Mathews." His hand lifted and shadowed his face.

"This afternoon I unearthed some old things—letters and what not. And I came upon this." He held it out. A yellowed wedding announcement. "—the marriage of their daughter Nathalie to Richard James Mathews—"

"Look inside Bill. It was that I found—ten years too late."

Across the folded sheet in swift jagged pencil strokes these words: "Darling Avery. I am marrying Dick. But I shall never never love any one but you. NATHALIE."

A step in the hall. Avery's hand shot out and a patch of white against red coals burst into brief flame and curled to blackness.

"Sylvia mustn't know. I am her whole world. It would crush her to think there had been any one else. And I do love her."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON Feb. 18—If Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, had been born a few generations earlier, he might have served his active naval career with no yielding to informalities that have come with his advancing years.

High command in former days would have meant for him more sea duty, and not the grilling cares of desk service in Washington.

He was born with the lure of the sea in his blood. He is the beau ideal of a sailor in look and bearing, even in his sixty-third year. You could almost almost note the quarter-deck roll in his stride as he walked the streets.

His ruddy cheeks long ago were burned to a permanent tan, and the wrinkles that come of staring across the sea were deeply etched about his steady blue eyes before he put youth behind him.

In Politics

It fell to this old sea dog's lot, however, to captain the naval ship through strange and difficult political waters.

Twice in a decade the sea service has known times of great doubt and perplexities for sailor folk as international conferences dealt with efforts to stabilize building programs, if possible on steadily decreasing fleets of battle tonnage.

It is up to the chief of operations in the American navy to keep morale in the service at high pitch, to see that ships and men are as ready for battle every day as it is possible to be within the limits of provision made for the peacetime fleet by congress. With more than 10 years of constant effort by higher authority to work out binding commitments for reduction of fleets, that has been no easy task.

Last Of Sea Dogs

Admiral Hughes has no more taste for the intricacies of politics than might be expected of a sea-going sailor of his type. There is little doubt that the harassing political aspects of his position served to wear on him physically and men tally far more than a score of years at sea in responsible command would have done.

Chiefs who preceded Hughes in that office during the decade of naval limitations efforts were more politically-minded men. Coontz, back in 1921-22, had been a newspaper man in early life. He did not look the part of a sailor, but was the first American admiral to run a fleet through battle maneuvers from a steel built dugout in the depths of the flagship with never a sight of speeding squadrons themselves.

Even sailorly Eberle, now dead, was not such a Viking type as Hughes, who is almost the last of the sea dogs of more romantic days.

For Normal Girlhood

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her off and on. Then a friend told us how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her years ago, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls."—Mrs. J. Bertholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon.

YOUR INCOME TAX

The vast majority of taxpayers are salaried persons and entitled, therefore, to a 25 per cent credit on their earned net income. Correctly to compute this credit the taxpayer first must compute the amount of tax which would be payable without the earned-income credit and from this amount 25 per cent is to be deducted, the balance being the amount of tax due.

Earned income is defined as "wages, salaries, professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered." However, all net income up to $5,000, whether actually earned or not is considered earned income for the purpose of this credit.

A taxpayer may have received in 1929 a salary of $3,500 and from a real estate transaction a net profit of $1,500. Nevertheless the entire $5,000 is considered as earned income.

Following is an example of how a taxpayer, unmarried and with no dependents, should compute his tax on a net income of $5,000:

Net income	$5,000.00
Less personal exemption	1,500.00
Balance taxable at one-half of 1 per cent	3,500.00
One-half of 1 per cent	17.50
Less 25 per cent of $17.50, earned-income credit	4.38
Balance of tax payable ..	13.12

Other examples of how to compute the earned-income credit will follow.

YOUR HEALTH

A Good Word For The Family Doctor

By Herbert L. Willett, Jr., Associate Director, Gorgas Memorial Institute, Washington, D. C.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

In a recent interview with a delegation representing the organized medical profession of Greater New York, Major Walker displayed an insight into the condition of modern practice which is highly unusual among laymen in this era of specialization. The current tendency to relegate the general practitioner to the background was deplored by the mayor in no uncertain terms, and he voiced the conviction that "the cornerstone of health is still the family doctor."

The arguments put forth by the mayor in support of his opinion cannot be gainsaid. The family physician has a familiarity with his patients' background that no amount of history taking can duplicate; he is familiar with family tendencies; he is aware of the individual characteristics which manifest themselves with the passing years. This intimate knowledge of his patients' lives and background sets him apart from any other medical agency and makes him the natural center of therapeutic activity. The surgeon and specialist are unquestionably essential to modern healing but they cannot be substituted for the general practitioner.

The lay public is partly responsible for the unenviable situation in which the family doctor finds himself today, and reeducation is necessary to bring it to a realization of the latter's importance in the medical scheme. Yet any reader will acknowledge, if he stops to think of it, that when he calls a doctor, perhaps in the middle of the night, he hates the idea of a stranger, and longs for the face of a trusted, wise friend in whom he has confidence, who knows him, and knows what to do.

In order to have him available we must support him. In order to have him acquainted with us, we must let him see us periodically when we are apparently healthy. Both objectives are attained by the Annual Health Audit, which is the foundation of better personal health and the first prescription of the Gorgas Memorial Institute.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Lost Is Found

You'll find if you are there to see,
The fiercest folk may tender be.
—Sammy Jay.

Sammy Jay knew just where that lost baby Owl was. You see, Sammy had seen that baby pushed from the nest by the other baby. He had seen the unfortunate little Owl fall from branch to branch of the tree and finally land on the ground. Then instinctively that baby had crawled under a little hemlock tree, the branches of which grew very close to the ground. You might have passed right close to that little tree and not see that baby Owl. So Sammy knew where it was and once or twice he was almost tempted to tell Mrs. Hooty. To be quite truthful, he didn't dare make his presence known. So he kept his tongue still and watched Mrs. Hooty and Hooty worry and hunt.

"There's one thing I don't understand," thought Sammy, "and that is why that baby doesn't cry and let his father and mother know where he is. It seems queer to me that he keeps so still. I wonder if perhaps he was badly hurt."

Now the little Owl wasn't hurt, but it had had the breath knocked out of it and it didn't feel any too good. It had lost its appetite. All the little fellow wanted to do just then was to keep quiet and sleep, so he paid no attention to what was going on up above. That is why neither Hooty nor Mrs. Hooty discovered him. Sammy hung around for some time, but apparently Hooty and Mrs. Hooty had given up looking for the lost baby and were giving all their attention to the one in the nest. Finally, being hungry himself, Sammy flew away to get something to eat.

It was just after Sammy left and you may be sure that he took care to leave in such a way that he wouldn't be seen by the Owls—that Mrs. Hooty returned with more food for that baby in the nest. As usual, the greedy little rascal began to make a great fuss as soon as he saw his mother bringing him something to eat. Mrs. Hooty alighted close by the nest. She was just reaching to give the greedy baby what she had brought when she heard a sound that caused her to turn her head and sit perfectly still. You know she has very wonderful ears. They can hear little sounds that you and I would not hear at all.

The baby in the nest continued to demand its food. Mrs. Hooty paid no attention to those demands. Instead, she spread her wings and silently sailed down to the ground. She called in a low tone. There was an answer. A second later Mrs. Hooty peered under a little hemlock tree and there was the lost baby! Such a fuss as Mrs. Hooty made! She pushed that baby out where she could look him over. No hen ever fussed over her chicken any more than Mrs. Hooty fussed over that baby. She tore to pieces the food she had brought and fed the little Owl, paying no attention to the indignant cries of the baby up in the nest.

Just about the time that the baby had swallowed the last of the food she had brought, Hooty himself arrived at the nest. Before he had a chance to feed the baby there, Mrs. Hooty called to him. Down sailed Hooty and you can imagine his surprise when he discovered that lost baby. Mrs. Hooty took the food he had brought and began to feed the baby. Meanwhile, the one up in the nest was making a great fuss and feeling very much abused.

Buddy has two older brothers, and, of course, picks up many of their choice expressions. The other day the three-year-old remarked: "Mamma, you're a big fool."

"Indeed, I'm not," replied his mother, and promptly spanked him.

"Then daddy's a big fool," insisted the youngster.

"No, he's not," returned his mother and spanked him again. Then through his tears Buddy had his final say-so: "Well, somebody's a big fool."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Bigelow Company, New Haven

In 1833, Cyprian Wilcox started a foundry and machine shop in New Haven, on what was then known as the Farmington canal. The business increased, and manufacturing facilities were enlarged from time to time to take care of increased patronage.

In 1860, Hobart B. Bigelow, who was later governor of Connecticut, obtained control and The Bigelow company was established.

In 1888, land in the eastern part of the city was purchased and buildings erected to take care of the growing business and in 1888, the company was incorporated under the laws of Connecticut.

Engines, sugar mill machinery, and boilers became the principal products; and the business developed into specializing particularly in the design and manufacturing of steam boilers and heavy plate steel work. Today the company has a well diversified line of steam boilers applicable to small industrial plants up to types and designs adaptable to the large central station.

It has always been the aim of the company to install the most up to date machinery for the manufacturing of its product and it has pioneered in the development of the art in many instances.

Many of the most prominent manufacturing plants and public service companies have installed Bigelow boilers.

The present officers are: George S. Barnum, president and treasurer; Starr H. Barnum, vice president and secretary.

WOULD HAVE FRIGATE HARTFORD IN CONNECTICUT

Dudley C. Perkins of Gales Ferry, representative of the town of Ledyard in the legislature, has not yet abandoned hope of success of his favorite project in the last assembly—the securing of the old frigate Hartford for a berth in her declining years in Connecticut. Should the effort to bring her to this state finally succeed, the Hartford would probably be placed at the Submarine base at Groton, where she could be under navy care and supervision and available to inspection by persons interested in her great exploits in the country's history.

The old frigate, once the flagship of Admiral Farragut in Civil war days, is now 72 years old, but she was extensively rebuilt 31 years ago and is in seaworthy condition, though beginning to show evidences of decay in her upper works. Just now she is down at Charleston, where she has been discarded for all government service, and with no attempt made to keep her in condition she will soon be nothing but a rotting hulk or—approaching that condition—be towed out to sea and sunk to get her out of the way.

The situation has got as far as the navy department agreeing that Connecticut people may have the Hartford "as is," but is not willing to lay out any money to condition her. It is said her condition is good enough to stand the trip north in tow when winter's storms are over, and with her safely berthed at the Submarine base and under sympathetic custody of Commander Wilson Brown there, she could soon be restored and last for many years.

With Secretary of the Navy Adams now abroad on disarmament conference business the time is not propitious for further steps in the matter, but on his return Mr. Perkins hopes to convince him that it would be feasible to have the Hartford towed north by one of the navy tugs that are always cruising about for practice trips and might as well spend their time in so useful a purpose as this.

RECALLS SERVICE RENDERED TO NATION BY LINCOLN AND WASHINGTON

An address upon Washington and Lincoln, given by Matthew J. Sheridan, whose father, James P. Sheridan, is grand knight of White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, was the feature of the council's meeting Tuesday evening at the K. of C. home, when a patriotic program followed the business meeting.

At the business meeting, at which Grand Knight Sheridan presided, plans were discussed for the formation of a debating club and a committee was named. Announcement was made of a turkey supper to be held at the home.

On Washington And Lincoln.

Lecturer George H. Dolan introduced the speaker, whose interesting address was in part as follows:

As the days of a nation's existence increase in number, as it continues to prosper financially, socially and politically, the memorial days of its departed heroes should increase in significance. The illustrious figures who once inspired a nation to glorious deeds, whose souls were once animated by a burning love for country, and who lived only to witness the fruition of their patriotic endeavors now sleep in peace. Only their memory is perpetuated. But if their anniversaries are given but passing notice by the press and indirectly by the people of today, the principles advocated by them, for which they were ready to sacrifice their life's blood, will soon pass into oblivion.

It is significant that during the shortest month of the year are celebrated the anniversaries of two men who loom up on the national horizon as saviour of the nation. Washington has long since passed into eternity. Only his form remains in sculpture to remind us of the soul which once actuated his body. Lincoln's death is of recent memory. It is the province of the poet, painter, preacher and sculptor to keep alive in the minds of Americans the remembrances, not only of the material body, but more especially of their character, so that we shall not forget the strong moral fibre which exerted such a tremendous influence upon the molding of our nation's career.

Other great nations have immortalized their Caesar, their Alexander their Napoleon, their Bismarck, but must offer apologies for their defects. Society is moved to affection for a hero, not merely because of his accomplishments, however noteworthy, but principally because of his motives. A man is said to be a good character if he acts as he ought. In the case of a national hero people sometimes will follow him to death, be he wrong or right, but we are doubly fortunate in celebrating this month the natal anniversaries of two men who not only accomplished much, but who acted from a pure love of country.

It was for such a reason that Washington and Lincoln were able to pilot the nation through the treacherous waters which threatened to engulf it in the dark, stormy days of 1780 and 1860. Despite the cold, biting snow, despite a harassed mental state caused by worry about their wives and children and with starvation looming up as a grim destroyer, the soldiers at Valley Forge endured it all because they saw in Washington, not a mere general, but a strong, moral force. When they were yearning for the slightest morsel of food they were refreshed by the merit of their commander. They saw in him one who had forsaken luxury and pleasure for privation and misery for no other reason than devotion to country. It was a revelation to Baron Steuben upon his arrival here to help in the battle for freedom to observe the great faith in Washington's heart. But that light in Washington's eye that never failed to glow upon mention of the word freedom found reflection in the hearts of men. It was an army with a soul!

The weakening of a resolution no matter how sincerely formed was evidenced in 1860. Washington had fought for principles now the basis of our constitution. Freedom was the watchword during the revolution—freedom—that magic word which transformed quiet, peaceful farmers into militant defenders of their rights. So insistent were they upon observance of those rights that in their constitution—the beginning of the first true democracy since the creation of man—they stated clearly that that all the world might read, "man is endowed with certain inalienable rights," the right to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness.

Yet hardly had the shadow of Washington blended into the dark repository of time, hardly had the tears of the nation dried, when it was overshadowed by a menace which threatened to obscure and cast into discord all semblance of liberty for which the nation had been established. Slavery was the giant cleaver which was poised ready to cut away the foundation of the nation. That it did not succeed was due in large measure to Lincoln. It was he who saw that there could be no compromise between the disputing factions. Liberty was promised to men regardless of color. How Lincoln persevered through storm and stress you are all aware. Through the smoke of civil strife he, alone, shone as a beacon light. But when the smoke of battle had cleared, all appreciated his true, moral worth. It was not for personal gain that he refused to grant any concessions to the advocates of slavery. On the contrary, his mind pierced the surface bickering as a torch and found its way to the core of the difficulties. It was personal liberty that was being assailed. Fortunate we are that his armor was that of righteousness!

It is marvelous that in its two greatest crises the nation found available men such as Washington and Lincoln. Though much maligned in their hour of life, they both offer striking examples of the fallacy of the maxim, "the evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones." The principles for which they fought, which they succeeded in maintaining only after overcoming almost insuperable obstacles, have survived them. It is the recollection of the trials undergone by these two men which makes us cherish both the issues involved and the strong moral fibre of the men themselves.

In his farewell address Washington bequeathed the nation an undying evidence of his solicitude for his people. The "Father of His Country," he has been termed. And certainly the man, Washington, was well deserving of such an appellation. The kindness, anxiety and bounty of a father is never more manifest than when he is about to be torn away from those he loves.

With nothing to gain for himself, with retirement from guiding the destiny of the nation near at hand, Washington delivered to the people a message, rich in advice for the future—a message that only one imbued with love could compose. He foresaw clearly that in the course of time, potent agencies might arise both internal and external, which could easily undermine the fabric of the nation.

Resistance to authority, obedience to law and the spirit of faction he considered as inimical to the preservation of the nation. Religious principle he considered necessary for the prevalence of national morality. The diffusion of knowledge he considered essential towards enlightened public opinion. And freedom from entangling alliances with foreign powers he considered as a security for national peace and prosperity.

It may seem ages since the time of Washington, but the applicability of his words of advice is readily observed today. With crime rampant in some sections of the country, with laws openly violated, with certain men taking politics as a cloak to conceal their efforts to fan the flame of sectionalism, with foreign nations offering flattering inducements to us to combine with them, we can readily observe that though Washington is dead, his spirit lives on. Those words of his are turned into our soul. Let us then recall the principles of Washington and Lincoln. Let us allow our minds to wander back to the Potomac and to old Illinois. Then we cannot fail to have our blood warmed by the thought of their sacrifices. And let us repel that marble-hearted fiend, ingratitude, and hereby resolve that their efforts have not been in vain; that our souls shall cling to the principle of liberty for which they fought, so that the Stars and Stripes may forever wave in the breeze as an emblem of true democracy.

MEETING VOTES SUPPORT TO SYNAGOGUE DRIVE

Lengthy discussion upon ways and means of conducting the financial campaign of the Norwich community synagogue was taken up at the first in a series of parlor meetings held Tuesday evening at the home of Jacob R. Slosberg, Broadway, with a gathering of 25 constituting distinguished men of the local Jewish population. All present pledged their whole-hearted support to the drive, which is to be inaugurated at a victory dinner to be held Sunday, March 9. The meeting, which turned out to be a very enthusiastic one, had as its presiding officer, Abner Schwartz, the president. The secretary is Louis Goldblatt.

At a meeting of about 25 members Sunday evening at the home of Mr. Schwartz on Perkins avenue, it was then definitely decided to hold the victory dinner on March 9, instead of Sunday, Feb. 23, the tentative date set for it. The dinner marks the opening of the campaign for $30,000 to pay for the community house, purchased recently by the synagogue for its place of worship.

Following the meeting Tuesday evening luncheon was served by the hostess and community singing was enjoyed.

COUNTERFEIT $10 BILLS DETECTED IN CITY

That counterfeit money is being circulated in Norwich is evident from the fact that three $10 federal reserve notes were received Tuesday morning in deposits at a local bank. The distinguishing marks are a portrait of Hamilton very poor; numbering too dark a shade of green; upper right hand corner of number too near word America; seal smudgy. The printing on the back is unusually good but the shade of green is too dark. The number of one of the bills is B20203626A but the others have different numbers. Persons are warned to look out for this counterfeit bill which is sufficiently good to deceive the average person.

The bills were detected when they came in deposits at the Thames Bank and Trust company. They were traced to have come from different parts of the city so that it is believed the man who passed them traveled from one section to another when he put them out.

The description of the suspected man given to the police is as follows:

Age about 34; weight about 160 to 165 pounds; dark brown hair; clean shaven; gray suit, brown overcoat and gray hat.

JONES ORIGINATES CORN TO ESCAPE EARLY FROSTS

A new crossed corn that will elude the final enemy of a good crop, the fatal and costly early frosts, is announced by the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station. It is Canada-Leaming, the latest product of Dr. Donald F. Jones, whose work was the first and is today the distinguished example in inbreeding and crossing the corn plant to obtain all those qualities that make a bigger commercial yield.

Canada-Leaming was bred especially for Connecticut, the other New England states and New York, where dairying is one of the largest agricultural industries and corn for silage is a necessity. A shortage involves millions of dollars. The region is one of a short growing season and corn which has withstood insect, disease and storm for three months may yet be ruined by September frosts. Dr. Jones' new variety matures in 100 to 110 days and often it may be cut and shocked before then.

Combined with the early ripening, Canada-Leaming has also the faculties of pushing up a tall, broad stalk, eight to nine feet high, and of producing a heavy grain yield. Its mother was a Leaming dent and its father was a Canada Yellow flint. By inbreeding, the lines were purified, the undesirable qualities were weeded out and the approved factors were set. By crossing, Dr. Jones obtained the extraordinary vigor and uniformity which characterize Canada-Leaming. The dent contributed productivity and the flint contributed earliness.

The hard, bright amber kernels of the cross hold a pedigree which insures they will grow the same, year after year, subject, like any other corn to the caprices of the season. Evolving the cross was a process of years, and after its character was fairly well determined, it was put on trial for three years more. Farmers grew it in Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire and New York and reported it to mature early and bear heavily, as it did in tests on the experiment station farm. In 1927, Canada-Leaming produced 60.5 bushels to the acre, five more than its nearest competitor, and in 1928, it led all other varieties which ripened near the same time.

BUILDING LOAN TO ISSUE CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT

At the monthly meeting of the board of management of the Norwich Building and Loan association held Tuesday evening in the Thayer building, it was voted that, upon request, certificates of deposit be issued to shareholders maturing shares, such certificates to be for all or part of the value of the matured shares and to bear interest at ther ate of 6 per cent, per annum, payable semi-annually at the same time that interest is credited on shares, in January and July.

The issuing of certificates of deposit will be a great accommodation to shareholders who are maturing shares but do not wish to begin another period of 12 years or so to mature more shares, as it will give them an opportunity to leave their money with the association for an indefinite time at a good interest return.

Report was made that a lively interest has been shown in subscribing for shares in the new series, opened in January, and the series will remain open for the balance of the month of February for anyone who may wish to secure shares.

Requests for mortgage loans continue to be made and the association is meeting these requests as rapidly as funds become available, the total disbursements for the month of January being over $27,500.

To that date 23 persons had been killed this year, as compared with 33 to the same date last year. The decrease was carried out in the number of automobile accidents reported during the week, 300 accidents being reported this year, of which 168 were in cities, as compared with 366 accidents in the corresponding week last year, of which 257 were in city limits. During the week six fatal accidents claimed six lives this year, as compared with seven accidents and as many deaths last year.

P. O. INSPECTORS IN PROBE OF CLERKS' CONVENTION

On the eve of the annual convention of the Connecticut Federation of Post Office Clerks, which is to be held this year in New London on Washington's birthday, it is known in Hartford that an investigation of the way last year's convention in Hartford was handled has been in progress.

Evidence of alleged violation of postal laws and regulations has been obtained and forwarded to the postmaster general at Washington.

And while inspectors were spending a fortnight probing these alleged violations in Hartford, affidavits sworn to by Harry A. Norton, president of Local No. 147 of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks, and by Edmund W. Hackett, secretary, both employees of the Hartford post office, charge juggling of funds collected for last year's convention, held in Hartford, by other postal employes who had charge of such collections and expenditures.

For Whiskey and Beer

With charges of "wholesale squandering of funds" being made in their affidavits, Norton and Hackett submitted to the postal inspectors and to Marshall A. Mott, general manager of the Hartford Better Business bureau, an itemized list of expenses of last year's convention and banquet, in which several hundreds of dollars was charged to whiskey, beer and transportation of the beer.

A photostatic copy of the list of expenses reveals that $252 was spent from the merchants' donations for whiskey, $200 for beer, $30 for "trucking beer" to the scene of the convention, and under another item entitled "refreshments," including extra meals, whiskey, beer, trucking of beer and luncheons at Saengerbund is listed the sum of $676.23.

Regarding this disclosure, Robert L. Sengle, deputy prohibition administrator, said that possible action by his office might take place. He awaits a report which he expects the postal inspectors to make to him in this matter, Mr. Sengle said. Upon receipt of it, the prohibition head said, "we will present whatever evidence we procure to the district attorney, for such action as he thinks the facts merit."

Norton insists that the convention committee "voted not to have any liquor at the convention," but adds that when he entered Saengerbund hall, the meeting place, at 10:20 a. m. he went to the basement where he found liquor being served and saw a gallon jug. He also took a drink of whiskey and a drink of beer, Norton said.

Who Bought Liquor?

"I have been unable to find out who actually purchased the whiskey and beer and where it was bought," declares Norton in his signed affidavit, adding "I have reason to believe that the whiskey charged to the organization was sold to the guests at the banquet and I have been informed that they charged $12 a quart for the whiskey."

Hackett, in his affidavit, says that he was informed that the 40 cases of beer cost $4.25 per case and wonders how the figure of $200 for the beer is obtained, as shown in the expense list.

Along with the items of expense for liquor at the convention, the sum of $1 was disbursed for "aspirin," the photostatic copy of expenditures reveals.

Two postal inspectors went to Hartford after the issuance of a warning in the Postal Bulletin of December 27, last against any solicitation of funds for state conventions, without the postmaster first appointing a committee of three, which should submit to Washington authorities an estimate of needed funds to cover the function. The committee for such duties should consist of the postmaster, a member of the clerks' organization and a representative of the local chamber of commerce or better business bureau.

Solicitations In Hartford

Inasmuch as Postmaster Harry K. Taylor of Hartford was not called upon to name such a committee, solicitations since that date are alleged to be in defiance of the warning and in violation of the postal laws. The results of a questionnaire issued to Hartford merchants by the Hartford better business bureau, at the request of the postal inspectors, show that such solicitations have been made.

The affidavit of Norton declares that Edward P. Lawton of the Hartford post office, elected president of the state organization in 1928, "immediately created the office of chairman of finance and appointed Francis J. Shay, a clerk at the New Haven office, to that office." Declaring the office of treasurer vacant due to the incumbent's resignation, "Mr. Lawton appointed his close friend and associate, Lewis Lopinsky, to the office," according to Norton's statement.

Shay, as "chairman of finance," received 50 per cent of all funds he collected as donations to the convention expenses, according to Norton. Furthermore says Norton in his affidavit, Shay "has made no report of collections to the executive board of either the Connecticut Federation of Post Office Clerks or to the Hartford local."

Hackett, in his affidavit, alleges that Shay this year has made no effort to get in touch with the officers of the local branch regarding his transactions, "but has contented himself with defying the Hartford local and said he was not worried, as we had no standing with our postmaster, which, unfortunately, is true."

"Free" Guests At Banquet

Norton declares that there were 25 "free" guests at the 1929 convention banquet, although Lopinsky, as chairman of the banquet committee stated before an investigating committee that there were 91 free tickets. He adds in his affidavit:

"The conduct of Lawton and Lopinsky in connection with the convention necessitated long distance telephone calls, telegrams and correspondence, calling of state board and local meetings, loss of time in pay to members of auditing and investigating committees and thereby causing unnecessary extra and heavy expenses to both state and local organizations. This in addition to Lawton's expense account of $2,474.84, together with Shay's bill of $693.91, making a total of $3,168.75, shows gross and wilful misuse of funds," the affidavit continues.

"Had I known the facts I would have tried, as president of Local 147, to use every possible means to stop the convention," says Norton in closing his statement.

Hackett asserts that solicitation in Hartford were made by Shay and by Meyer Stoesel, a supervisor in the New Haven post office. The funds were deposited in the Hartford Connecticut Trust company, "no one else having access to a statement of deposits or withdrawals," the affidavit declares, saying further:

"The local branch of the state organization was informed that about $6,300 had been donated. However, other statements gave $6,700 and $7,400 as the figure. . . . Mr. Shay deducted about $3,100 his share of making the collections, and also other sums including $100 for his personal work as proofreader and certain other items which were lumped to about $550."

The program book which was published, filled with advertisements of merchants who made donations, was not distributed to members of the convention, but only to advertisers, it is alleged.

Said Money Stolen

Hackett further alleges that George Francis Blesso a clerk at the Hartford post office, assigned to handle the tickets at the banquet, failed to make any return, saying he had left the money in his locker in the basement of the post office and that it had been stolen.

The secretary of the Hartford branch also points out that two prizes for bowling cost $58.65, adding that in his opinion these items were worth only $23. He further criticizes the ability to sing of a feminine entertainer hired at a reported cost of $30, adding "without fear of libel I am stating definitely that she did not or could not sing as this term is generally used, nor am I so simple as to believe that she received $30."

STORRS EXPERTS MAKE PROPHECY FOR AGRICULTURE

LOSING WEIGHT? MAYBE IT'S WORMS

Mysterious loss of weight may mean that your little one is harboring worms which are robbing her of nourishment. Worms are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: grinding of teeth, picking the nose, restlessness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite, nausea, or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

PLAINFIELD PROS CLASH WITH L. I. PROS IN RETURN GAME AT PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

This evening at the Plainfield Community house the Plainfield Pros will clash in a return engagement with the Long Island Pros. Those who witnessed the last game between these two teams at the Community house will remember it was one of the best games of the season and had it not been for the accident to Lopchick in the first half the game might have resulted in a Long Island victory. Lopchick, who plays with the Long Island quintet, is the brother of Joe Lopchick, formerly with the Original Celtics and now with the Cleveland team of the American Basketball league.

Others who have brought a remarkable season of success to the Long Island Pros are Baldy Yerkes, known throughout basketball circles as the bald-headed wonder; Cerosky, a flashy forward with an uncanny eye for the basket; McDermott and Greene, one of the best guarding combinations in the Metropolitan district.

These boys are expected to reverse the 37 to 34 decision of the last game, as Lopchick is fully recovered. The game tonight should without a doubt be well worth seeing and plenty of fast basketball is promised. Manager Salisbury of the Plainfield club will use the same line-up that has been going so well during the past few weeks. The line-ups will be:

Long Island	Plainfield
Cerosky, lf	Kasper, lf
Yerkes, rf	Brusso, rf
Lopchick, c	Conway, c
McDermott, lg	Williams, lg
Greene, rg	Bernot, rg

SLATTERY TO GET LITTLE REST SINCE WINNING TITLE

By EDWARD J. NEIL

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—There is to be no rest for Jimmy Slattery, newly crowned light heavyweight champion, of the cauliflower precincts guarded by the New York state athletic commission.

The Buffalo Irishman, conqueror of Lou Scozza in a title skirmish eight days ago, must fight Maxey Rosenbloom, the Harlem harlequin, 15 rounds in defense of his new won honors April 7 at the Queensbury club in Buffalo. At the same club some weeks ago, Slattery nosed out Maxey.

Rosenbloom, the latest freak of the ring, culminated his years of battling in quest of title recognition by decisively whipping Ace Hudkins in the Garden last Friday night. Believing that training is done best in actual battle for pay rather than a gymnasium for exercise, Rosenbloom has agreed to box on March 10 at the Garden the winner of next Friday's match between Pete Latzo and Larry Johnson here. Rosey's meeting with Slattery will be his first shot at a title.

In addition to landing the Slattery-Rosenbloom battle, Charley Murray, Buffalo promoter, spent a busy and profitable day with the commission. The Garden granted the Buffalo promoter the right to stage a bout between Panama Al Brown, recognized here as the bantamweight champion, and Tommy Paul, of Chicago, at 122 pounds, sometime in the future.

The Garden won one decision over its up-state rival when the commission refused Murray's request to engage Kid Chocolate, the sensational Cuban, before the latter fulfills his engagement here with Al Ridgeway. The Garden also agreed to stage the final bout of the elimination tournament to determine a new flyweight champion as the semi-final bout on the Ridgeway-Chocolate card, several times postponed and now not definitely scheduled. The flyweight finalists are Black Bill, of Cuba and Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia.

SIXTEEN PLAYERS NAMED TO REPORT TO CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 18—(AP)—Sixteen minor league baseball players were named today by Secretary Clarence Lloyd of the St. Louis Cardinals to report for spring training with the Cards at Bradenton, Fla., next month. This brings the entire squad up to 51 players.

The youngsters will not be on the Cardinal roster, Lloyd explained, but inasmuch as they have been signed by farm teams they will be available in case Manager Gabby Street, should want any of them.

The group includes William Lee, Paul Derringer, Mace Brown and James Carleton, pitchers of the Rochester club of the International league; Burton Bruckman, juvenile catcher from Rochester; and Fred Myers, Rochester, infielder. Carleton pitched the only no-hit game in the International circuit last season.

GAGNON DEFEATS PLIMPTON IN EXHIBITION MATCH

"Lewiston Joe" Gagnon, trick shot pocket billiardist now demonstrating at the Hickey Billiard parlors, again won a 100-point exhibition match from Harold Plimpton at the parlors last night. Gagnon won, 100 to 62. Gagnon had a high run of 41 and Plimpton's high run was 19. Plimpton played a much better game than in his first match.

Following the exhibition match, Gagnon gave a very clever exhibition of trick shots and explained the technique of the shots as he made them. There was a crowd of over 300 present at the exhibition. Tonight Gagnon is expected to meet Al Benson, local champion, in another exhibition match.

MANY SURPRISES EXPECTED IN KENTUCKY DERBY

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—Several surprises are in store for members of the hot stove league of the American turf, when the names of 150, or thereabouts, thoroughbreds are released Saturday as the official entry list for the 56th Kentucky Derby to be run May 17 over Churchill Downs.

Missing from the imposing array of three-year-olds will be the names of Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone and Boojum, leading juveniles of 1929. Despite the fact that the flashy pair has come through the winter training period perfectly sound, Whitney, through his trainer, Tom Healy, today said he had decided to withhold his aces for the more profitable stakes to be run later in the season.

The master of Brookdale farm has never favored conditioning the best of his large stable for the early season stakes, preferring to bring them along slowly in time for the Belmont stakes at Belmont Park in June. Whichone, which won in excess of $135,000 last year, and Boojum, however, have been nominated for the Preakness at Pimlico, but since both have been withheld from the Derby's nominations, it is doubtful if Whitney and Healy will choose to start either of the stars in the early season Maryland feature.

The Eton blue and brown topped silks, however, will not be without a standard bearer in the historic run over Churchill Downs. Whitney has named five for the $50,000 stake: Crazy Coot, Niato, Hat Broom, Chimney Sweep and Gigalo, a non-starter as a two-year-old.

With Whichone definitely out, the winter book odds are expected to shorten on the Belair stud's Gallant Fox as well as William Zeigler's Spinach, and Goneaway, W. R. Coe's Caruso, George Widener's Hi-Jack, Gifford F. Cochrane's Flying Heels, W. J. Salmon's Snowflake and Johnson N. Camden's Dedicate. Whichone had been made winter book favorite at 4 to 1, while Boojum was second choice with Gallant Fox at odds of 10 to 1. The majority of the bookmakers have been quoting 20 to 1 on the other leading candidates.

The grape-vine telegraph has it that the official entry list, when released Saturday, will be smaller than last year, when 159 were nominated for the race won by Clyde Van Dusen. Since 1923 the entries have fluctuated around 150, but reached a new high mark in 1928, when 196 thoroughbreds were named. The year 1922 saw the smallest number of nominations in recent years, only 92 being listed, while only nine chose to face the barrier against the great Morvich. The year Reigh Count splashed his way to victory, the entries were not only the largest in history but the greatest number of starters, 22, faced the flag. Zev's year (1923) 21 were at the post while there were 20 under colors in 1925 when Flyin' Ebony, grouped in the mutuel field with eight others, showed the way home.

JONES OPENS 1930 CAMPAIGN FOR GOLFING HONORS THURSDAY

ATLANTA, Feb. 18—(AP)—Bobby Jones, national open champion, left here tonight by train for Savannah, Ga., where Thursday he will sound the first gun in his extensive 1930 campaign in the three day 72-hole open tournament.

The open king will be playing in his first tournament since the national amateur championship in California last September, when he was eliminated by Johnny Goodman, a little known golfer from Omaha. His tentative plans include the Walker cup matches as captain of the American team, the British open and amateur tournaments and the national open and amateur events. The British amateur title is the only major crown of golfdom that Atlanta's iron duke has never worn.

The Atlanta lawyer-golfer will reach Savannah early tomorrow morning and probably will take a practice swing around the par 74 country club course over which the $3,000 event will be played.

Gene Sarazen, winner of the $10,000 first prize in the Agua Caliente open; Johnny Farrell, who copped the Pensacola open last week; Bill Mehlhorn, Bobby Cruickshank, Al Espinosa, Herman Barron, Horton Smith, Harry Cooper and Ed Dudley head the list of pros who will participate with Jones in the Savannah event.

HARTFORD CARD HAS ALL-CONNECTICUT FLAVOR

HARTFORD, Feb. 18—All but two of the boys, who will be seen in action on the undercard to the Bat Battalino-Ignacio Fernandez bout at the Hartford state armory next Tuesday night, are Connecticut battlers.

Eddie Lord of Waterbury and formerly of Meriden battles Mickey Flahive of Hartford in the semi-final which is down for eight rounds. Lord holds a win over Georgie Day and has beaten several other good boys, among them Tony Leto. Flahive defeated Day but lost to Bobby Mays, a temporary setback which was wiped out by Mickey's decisive wins in his last two starts—against "Red" Saunders at Philadelphia and Freddy DeBeve at Norfolk, Va.

There will be three six rounders as follows:

Eddie Reed, Hartford, vs. Lou Piquette, Bridgeport, 122 pounds; Marty Fox, New York, vs. Danny Reagan, Meriden, 175 pounds; Ralph Lenny, Union City, N. J., against an opponent yet to be named.

The show will open with a four-rounder between Johnny Kop of Norwich and Rocky Rayo, of Hartford.

The card is made up of six bouts for a total of forty rounds.

NORWICH GIRLS TO PLAY ROCKVILLE FIVE SATURDAY

Arrangements were completed Tuesday whereby the Norwich Girls' basketball team will meet the strong Rockville high girls in the preliminary to the Y Seniors-Ansonia Y game Saturday evening (Washington's birthday) at the Y gym.

This team is expected to provide the locals with one of their stiffest tests of the year. The game was arranged through Roy J. Guyer, physical director at Connecticut Aggies. A former star on Mr. Guyer's Aggie varsity sextet is coaching the Rockville outfit.

The main game is a state league encounter in which the Seniors are faced with another chance to climb in the league standing. After their one-sided victory over Winsted here last Saturday, the followers of the local five are confident that defeat will not again befall Norwich during the season.

BUTCHERS WIN FIRST— MATCH IN POOL TOURNEY

The pocket billiard tournament arranged for by Mr. Vaughn of the Brunswick-Balke Co., got under way Tuesday evening at the Recreation Billiards.

Enthusiasm is running high and already 16 three-men teams have signed for the tournament.

Scores of games Tuesday night were as follows:

Butchers (100)—C. Busch, capt.; B. Godek, W. Buchka.

Recreation Trio (85)—W. Anton, capt.; J. Murphy, D. Angelos.

TERRIS WINS UNINTERESTING BOUT FROM CHARLES

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—Sid Terris, New York lightweight, outpointed Gaston Charles of France in an uninteresting ten round bout at the Broadway arena tonight. Terris weighed 133; Charles 131.

Terris went down for a count of nine in the fifth round and claimed a foul but the referee disallowed it. The one time "Ghetto Ghost" then got up and danced out of danger. He outboxed the Frenchman all the way.

Those "Do You Remember" columns in newspapers seem to be quite the fad nowadays.

And as we must keep up with the times I think I'll write a few "Do You Remembers" of my own.

The column always starts Do You Remember—

When you did not need rubber boots to cross the main streets four days after a snow storm?

When motorists tried to obey the regulations regarding parking of cars?

When drivers of automobiles tried to splash pedestrians on the sidewalks?

When you could buy a quart for a dollar and have a quart of wine thrown in for good measure?

When there was a lack of perfect harmony in the common council?

When the officers wore gray helmets as the book of instructions said they must?

When cowboy thrillers were the rage and not picturized musical comedies?

When mail arrived on the trains on time and not by overland motor trucks?

When Jim Burke's hack was the last word in de luxe transportation?

When there were no green lights in front of the police station?

When a person arrested for traffic violations paid up and didn't put up a holler?

When the wife believed you, when you said you was going to a lodge meeting?

When the Greeneville Hooks held their annual Washington's birthday celebration?

When I did not have to write this column?

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years).

Before a crowd of about 1,000 Saturday afternoon, August 5, 1905, the Jewett City ball aggregation, says The Bulletin of Monday, the seventh, wiped the grounds with nine husky players representing Taftville and easily won by the score of 17 to 3. The Bulletin files further reveal that a large delegation from each place, with their cheering made the game appear more like a college contest.

The scene of action was the league grounds at Sachem park and one noticeable difference in the makeup of the teams was that the Jewett City boys were amateurs, while on the Taftville nine were Curry, Reeves and Legare of former Eastern league fame and Nichols of Willimantic.

Willis at third base and Watts at first and the two Robertsons for Jewett City and Legare, the Taftville centerfielder each made three hits although Williams, at second for the winners contributed two two-baggers. Commenting on the officiating, the paper says "William Moore of Norwich held the indicator and his work was satisfactory both to players and spectators, in fact, much better than many men in the Connecticut league."

BERG STOPS CALLAHAN IN THE TENTH ROUND

LONDON, Feb. 18—(AP)—Jackie Kid Berg, Great Britain's sensational lightweight, scored a technical knockout tonight over Mushy Callahan, of Chicago, in the tenth round of a 15 round engagement billed as a "junior welterweight" title contest. Callahan's seconds threw in the towel to save the American further punishment.

Berg set a fast pace through the entire ten rounds, shooting lefts into Callahan's head with machine-like regularity. A heavy left hook to the chin left the American groggy in the seventh and Berg never allowed his man a moment's rest from then on.

Berg won the right to challenge Sammy Mandell for the lightweight championship by defeating Tony Canzoneri in his final appearance in New York.

PENN TAKES FIRST PLACE IN COLLEGE LEAGUE

PRINCETON, Feb. 18—(AP)—Pennsylvania swept into first place in Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league standing here tonight taking a slow game from the third place Princeton five 22-17.

The Quakers started with a rush and after leading at 14-4 left the floor at the half with a 17-8 advantage. The Tigers outscored the champions 9-5 in the second period, but could not make up this deficit. Magner, Penn guard, led the scoring with six points.

Pilkington and Mack Sign

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 18—(AP)—Jackie Pilkington, of New York, formerly of Meriden, and Pete Mack, of New Jersey, have been signed by Matchmaker Denny McMahon, of the Arena A. C. to top an all-star boxing program at the Arena, here on February 27. They will meet in an eight round bout at 134 pounds. Georgie Day and Jack "Red" Knight, both of New Haven will meet in a second eight rounder.

ARMY-NAVY TEAM SWAMPS SHYMAS IN OPENING GAME OF SERIES

Holding the Shymas to a single basket in the second half, the revived Army-Navy basketball team romped away with the first game of the village basketball series at Parish hall, Taftville, Tuesday evening. The score was 33 to 10.

All through the first half, it was a nip and tuck affair, at the conclusion of which the Army and Navy five was leading, 11 to 8. With the whistle after intermission, the Veterans' team proceeded to toss in baskets from all angles, while the only points made by the Shymas came when Lefty Dugas threw in a field goal from mid-floor in the last minute of play.

Les Pingree, erstwhile Y Seniors star, was the top scorer with six field goals and two fouls for 14 points.

The next game of the series will probably be played Tuesday, March 4. Saturday the Shymas will meet the Hamilton A. A. at Southbridge, Mass., and next Tuesday entertain Danielson at Parish hall.

SMITH SIGNED TO BOX TONY CANZONERI

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18—(AP)—Announcement was made tonight by Al Lippe, manager of Steve Smith, Bridgeport, Conn., featherweight, that he had signed a contract for Smith to meet Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion of the world, in the feature 10-round bout at the armory in Newark, N. J., on February 27. Smith, who defeated Lew Massey, of Philadelphia, last Thursday in New Haven and conquered Jackie Britton at Wilkesbarre, Pa., last night will concede about eight pounds to Canzoneri.

Lippe also announced that Al Friedman, another of his fighters, had been signed to meet Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City heavyweight, in the windup at the Boston Garden on March 7.

SHARKEY AND SCOTT HAVE LIVELY TRAINING SESSIONS

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18—(AP)—The five-ring circus of training preparations for the second battle of the palms, featuring Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott, was in full blast today. The gladiators put on a lively workout.

Because of the overnight flurry about a slight injury to Scott's right hand or rather the aggravation of an old bit of damage, the lanky Britisher's workout was scrutinized closely. Phil pummelled five sparring partners in a five-round workout. He said afterward there was only a little soreness in the little finger.

Sharkey, to all outward appearances, close to the best, if not actually the best form of his career, boxed four rounds with Johnny Grosso and Pierre Charles at Miami Beach, besides six additional rounds of calisthenics. The Boston sailor was content to let Scott put on the main show of the day.

Training activities would be concentrated, beginning tomorrow, in Miami and Miami Beach, although Tommy Loughran will stay at Palm Beach. The chief changes involve the transfer of the semi-finalists, Victorio Campolo and Johnny Risko.

TOPPING AND SMART WIN THEIR FIRST ROUND MATCHES

BELLEAIR, Fla., Feb. 18—(AP)—Henry J. Toppings, Greenwich, Conn., and Ellsworth Augustas, Cleveland, comedalist in the annual Washington's birthday golf tournament, won their first round matches here today. Topping defeated W. B. McCullough, Philadelphia, six and five, while Augustas was eliminating F. G. Libby, Hartford, Conn., one up.

In the other first round, matches John Barbey, Reading, Pa., defeated J. R. Monroe, South Orange, N. J., four and three; Austin Feuchtwanger, Greenwich, Conn., beat Kimball Salisbury, Chicago, one up; George Smart, Hartford, Conn., eliminated R. C. Mitchell, New York, two up; H. J. Robertson, Jr., Greenwich, Conn., won from D. N. Tallman, Wilmar, Minn., one up; J. G. Bishop Summit, N. J., beat Roger D. Lapham, San Francisco, two and one; and Dr. Fred Steele, Summit, N. J., eliminated Robert A. Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, one up.

TWO PLAYERS ADVANCE IN POLO RATING

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—Two new names were added to the list of stars ranked at eight goals or more today when the Indoor Polo association announced its revised handicaps in preparation for its national championships. The title play in open intercollegiate and school divisions and in classes A, B, C, and D, was set for March 23 through April 12 at the Squadron A and 101st cavalry armories here. Earle W. Hopkins, of the Riding club and Lieut. McDonald Jones, of the Optimists, were the players moved up from seven to eight goals because of their brilliant play this winter.

SENATORS BREEZE THROUGH TO WIN OVER PIRATES

OTTAWA, Feb. 18—(AP)—The Ottawa Senators showed some brilliant combination play tonight to breeze through to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The victory started the Senators into the last month of the National Hockey league season firmly entrenched in third place in the Canadian division.

Ottawa easily ran up a three goal lead in the first half of the game but had to put up a determined defense to hold off the Pirates at the finish. Jarvis and Fraser counted for Pittsburgh at the end of the second period and in the third after Ottawa's Lamb-Kilrea-Clancy combination had made three tallies.

CANADIENS HAVE NO TROUBLE BLANKING DETROIT TEAM

DETROIT, Feb. 18—(AP)—Montreal's flashy Canadiens had no trouble in blanking the Detroit Cougars 2 to 0 here tonight in a mild National Hockey league game.

Les Canadiens scored one goal early in the first period and another in the second, falling back upon a leisurely defense for the remainder of the match. Howie Morenz and Nick Wasnie, Canadien wingmen scored the goals. Carson Cooper, Cougar wingman, put up a hard fight to score during the game, but he found little support from his teammates.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Brunet, world champion pair skaters, gave an exhibition between periods of the game.

GRAYSON-BELL'S VICTORY PUTS McGILL IN LEAD

MURRAY BAY, Que., Feb. 18—(AP)—Bryce Grayson-Bell, of McGill university, Canadian cross-country champion, won the seven-mile skiing race, opening event of the International Intercollegiate winter sports meet here today.

Grayson-Bell finished more than half a minute ahead of H. N. Saunders, captain of the Dartmouth team. Two University of New Hampshire men trailed in third and fourth places, respectively, J. D. Perley and C. P. Woodward. There were 12 starters.

Grayson-Bell's victory gave McGill five points, with Dartmouth and New Hampshire tied for second with three each.

NORWICH GIRLS PROVE TOO STRONG FOR BACON FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Feb. 18—Bacon Academy Girls' basketball quintet was defeated by the Norwich Y girls' team in new Park hall in an exciting game here tonight, 23 to 16. The Bacon girls held the lead at the end of the first half but in the last quarter the Norwich girls rallied considerably. Miss Kalazek featured for Norwich with nine points, while the Misses Surwill and Ewafoe starred for Bacon academy with six points each. This was a return game, the Norwich team having defeated the Bacon girls in a game at Norwich on Jan. 25, 34 to 18. Although the Bacon girls were defeated by the Norwich outfit in both games they made an unusually fine showing in tonight's game, considering the short while they have been in practice.

LEAFS RALLY TO BEAT RANGERS BY BIG MARGIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs made a great rally in the third period tonight to turn a 1-1 deadlock with the New York Rangers into a 6 to 1 victory. It was the third successive time in the National Hockey league season the Leafs have taken the measure of the New Yorkers.

After a great struggle through two periods, the Leafs slammed in three quick goals to put the game on ice, then tossed in a final counter in the last minute of play when the Rangers were trying desperately to count.

The Rangers expended most of their steam in the fast but scoreless second period and were easy victims of Toronto's speed in the third. Hal Cotton put the Leafs ahead in a minute and five seconds of play. Nighbor, Conacher and Bailey did the rest.

POETRY [illegible]

You Never Can Tell

You never can tell when you [illegible] word,
Like an arrow shot from a bow
By an archer blind, be it cruel or kind,
Just where it may chance to [illegible]
It may pierce the breast of your dearest friend,
Tipped with its poison or balm;
To a stranger's heart in life's great mart
It may carry its pain or its calm.

You never can tell when you do an act
Just what the result may be;
But with every deed you are sowing a seed,
Though the harvest you may not see.
Each kindly act is an acorn dropped
In God's productive soil;
You may not know, but the tree shall grow,
With shelter for those who toil.

You never can tell what your thoughts will do
In bringing your hate to love;
For thoughts are things, and their airy wings
Are swifter than carrier dove.
They follow the law of the universe;
Each thing must create its kind;
And they speed o'er the track to bring you back
Whatever went out of your mind.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox. (1855-1919).

Drawbacks

How many things in life diminish pleasure,
So that we do not have it in full measure:

The fat girl, tickled at the thought, "I'm growing thinner!"
Is saddened, since she can't enjoy her dinner.

The growing boy, blessed with a loving mother,
Is often spanked for some misdeed or other.

You may think you have won by artful scheming,
And then wake up to find you have been dreaming.

Some things taste very good, there is no question,
But eating them may bring on indigestion.

A lovely Summer night! What can be sweeter?
But one is often spoiled by a mosquito:

And then the ladies! They're delightful, bless 'em!
But every husband knows it costs a lot to dress 'em.

—Somerville Journal.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Edison's first electric lamp contained a baked cotton thread.

The Russian alphabet is to be Latinised so that it will conform to other alphabets in Europe.

Red raspberries are the hardiest of the brambles, blackberries being most susceptible to adverse climate.

Bob white quail is one of the most beneficial birds to agricultural interests, through the efficient assistance it renders in the destruction of obnoxious weeds and insects.

Frank A. Neely, a prosperous farmer near Newberry, Tenn., is authority for the statement that a creek on his property frequently changes the direction of flow as many as three times a day. Just why nobody seems to know.

England claims to have the youngest whistler in the world in Cyril Dickson. The boy is only one year old and can not walk or talk, but when he awakens in the morning he starts whistling, high and shrill notes, and continues to whistle at frequent intervals throughout the day.

William Girwin, driving along in a truck in Troy, N. Y., was at peace with the world. Then a cat had to spoil it all. It jumped from the cab of the truck on to Girwin's neck. He lost control of the car and it knocked down an electric light pole, thus throwing the neighborhood into darkness for some time. The truck was damaged badly.

A new zoological expedition of the Field Museum of National History soon will be on its way to Africa in pursuit of the "honey bird," the giant sable antelope and many other rare specimens. The honey bird leads men to bee hives and eats the grubs and larvae after the men have removed the honey. The expedition is financed by Arthur S. Vernay of New York, who will lead it jointly with Herbert Lang, New York. The search will take the expedition to the Kalahari desert where only Masawara nomads live, nomads described by Vernay as "living skeletons who eat locusts and snakes."

What happens to a country when it becomes over populated is a question which scientists and statesmen would like to have answered. The tiny island of Mauritius in the Indian ocean is expected to provide the answer, according to Dr. D. Drysdale Anderson, of the colony's health department. In a report to the periodical Human Biology, Dr. Anderson shows that the country has reached the point of population saturation and even transgressed this point. There is no hope of the population's shrinking nor does the means of subsistence for the people show any probability of increasing soon. Dr. Anderson points out that the next few years in the life of Mauritius will therefore be of great interest to the scientific world in general, while to Mauritius in particular they will be of vital import.

You can keep your skin lovely just as 511 Hollywood Actresses do

98% of the lovely complexions you see on the screen are cared for with Lux Toilet Soap

NO SINGLE BEAUTY touches hearts as a petal-smooth skin does. People are subtly drawn to the girl who has it . . . cluster about her admiringly.

Nobody knows this better than do the girls who have won the hearts of millions . . . on the screen. For Hollywood directors found out long ago that unless a girl has the smoothest of skin for the all important close-up, she can never hold her public.

As Raoul Walsh, famous Fox director, puts it: "Smooth, beautiful skin is the most potent charm a girl can have . . . and an absolute essential for stardom on the screen."

And you can keep your skin just as lovely as the screen stars do! Of the 521 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 511 use Lux Toilet Soap.

First, five or six of them began to use it . . . found out how perfectly smooth and soft it keeps the skin . . . and it wasn't long before 9 out of 10 famous stars were using this delightfully fragrant white soap.

Not only in their own luxurious bathrooms do they use it, but on location. For at the actresses' request all the great film studios have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms.

The loveliest Broadway stage stars, too, are enthusiastic about the way Lux Toilet Soap cares for their skin . . . and oh, so grateful to it since so many of them have successfully passed the screen test for talking pictures

It has swept across the world from Hollywood to Europe

And the European stars are now using it! In France . . . in England . . . in Germany.

Are you one of the millions of women already devoted to this dainty soap? You'll be delighted with the way it cares for your skin. Order several cakes . . . today.

BULLISH ACTIVITY IN MARKET WAS HALTED BY WAVE OF PROFIT-TAKING

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—A better tone in the commodity markets, further gains in steel mill operations, and somewhat more plentiful call money, encouraged increasingly violent bullish activity in today's stock market, but a wave of profit-taking in the last half hour of trading wiped out about half of the day's extreme gains. There was marked expansion in the volume of trading, the day's sales aggregating 4,795,300 shares, approximately 500,000 above yesterday's turnover.

Although the market has continued a gradual but irregular advance for several days—moving alternately two steps forward and one backward—and more than a score of leading shares have reached new high levels for the recovery, speculative sentiment remains rather uncertain regarding the near term outlook, and several commission houses continue to advocate profit-taking. Pool operations are said to be increasing, but while the public participation in the market appears to be growing, the growth is altogether too slow to please professional operators for the advance.

The steady gain in steel mill production is one of the most encouraging sidelights on the industrial situation. U. S. steel is now operating at about 85 per cent of capacity, and the industry generally at 81, a gain of 2 per cent over last week. The acute unsettlement in the grain and cotton markets, however has caused some misgivings, and some of the more cautious observers feel that the extent of the business recovery will not be definitely measurable for several weeks. An unsettling development late in the day was reduction of Calumet and Arizona's quarterly dividend from the $2.50 paid for three quarters to $1.50. The stock broke about 5 points to a new low for the year, and red metal shares generally sagged.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent and held at the loan-post at that level all day, but funds were offered in the outside market at 4. The recent firmness appears to have been primarily attributable to mid-month requirements.

American Telephone, the floating supply of which has been constantly diminished of late by investment buying, was seized upon by bulls as a leader and bid up to a new peak for the movement at 238 3-4. It closed at 236, up 3 3-4, net. U. S. Steel was bid up more than 2 points to 189 1-2, fractionally above its previous high for the movement, but it closed at 187 1-2.

Radio shares were taken in hand on the theory that surplus stocks of sets have been largely disposed of and the sales outlook has been improved. Radio Corp. was bid up 2 points to 46 3-8, the best level so far this year. Westinghouse Manufacturing was again a favorite, rising about 6 points to a new 1930 high, and closing but 2 points from the top. Gulf States Steel rose more than 3 points to the best level this year in response to reports that both American Rolling Mill and Republic Steel are seeking to acquire it.

Eastman Kodak, which rose 11 points yesterday, slipped back 2 points in reaction. Shares losing a point or two included American Machine and Foundry, Electric Auto Lite, Chrysler, Consolidated Gas, Montgomery Ward, New York Central, and Sears Roebuck.

Leading commodity markets broke further in the early trading, but soon rallied. Wheat futures closed nearly 1 cent higher, in sympathy with a sharp rally at Winnipeg, and reports of crop damage in Kansas. Corn rallied in sympathy. Cotton closed steady.

Foreign exchanges generally continued to sag, with sterling, francs and marks reaching new lows for the movement. Sterling cables touched $4.85 15-16. With the steady decline in the franc, a return movement of gold from Paris becomes a possibility. The decline appears to be largely the result of the low Bank of France discount rate, which is 3 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 18—(AP)—Friends of higher prices regained their grip today after wheat, corn, oats and rye had all suffered knockdowns to the lowest level yet this season. Word that 1,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been purchased today for shipment to Europe, the largest amount taken from North America in a long while, had much to do with bringing about the price rallies. Brisk buying of Chicago wheat future deliveries was also done, many traders taking hold because of confidence in ability of the federal farm board's stabilization measures to offset results of a temporary apparent world surplus of wheat.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat today were unsettled, half to 7-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 5-8 to 1c up; oats ranging from 1-8c decline to 1-2c gain, and provisons showing 5c to 17c setback.

Headlong rushes to sell wheat and other grain were witnessed here when trading began. The general collapse of cereals to the lowest prices both of the day and the entire season quickly ensued, the main influence for the moment being knowledge that wheat quotations in Argentina and Great Britain had fallen overnight much more than was looked for. Inferences were drawn that Argentina and Canada in particular were in a struggle for whatever export business was available, and that European countries were seeking to obtain further advantages from fast widening competition.

Buying of Chicago future deliveries of wheat, however, speedily broadened on the downward swings of the market, and subsequent price fluctuations though numerous and sharp took on more and more an upward course. This was especially the case after one of the principal houses in the Chicago grain trade issued a statement pointing out that United States farm aid plans had been designed to meet just such a contingency as a world surplus of wheat, and that although the present situation is apparently a crucial test surprisingly little liquidation in United States markets had developed. Notwithstanding, prices elsewhere had been collapsing. Late announcement that the world's visible supply of wheat showed 2,656,000 bushels decrease for the week was of further aid as a rallying influence as the day drew to an end.

Corn, oats and rye were dominated almost altogether by the course of wheat.

Provisions ruled easier, sympathizing with setbacks in hog values.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—The total of outstanding bankers acceptances in the country as of Jan. 31 was announced by the American Acceptance council today at $1,692,793,391, a decrease of $39,642,497 from Dec. 31, but a gain of $413,522,728 over the total as of Jan. 31, 1929. The acceptance business normally reaches its peak at the end of the year, as credits are liquidated and seasonal crop requirements satisfied.

Today's gold movement report of the New York Federal Reserve bank shows imports of $2,000,000 from Bolivia. There were no exports and no net change in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign account. It also was announced that $3,700,000 in gold had been received at San Francisco from Japan.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—Stock prices made further recovery in today's curb market, although a late selling movement cut down or wiped out many of the early gains, and left closing prices irregular. Buying orders were distributed over a fairly broad list, with the aviation issues giving one of the best demonstrations of group strength presumably because of organized support that usually appears in this group at this season of the year in anticipation of good spring business.

Utilities, the demand for which has been revived by rumors of new consolidations and alignments in the industry, encountered heavy realizing after an early outburst of strength. Electric Bond & Share closed only fractionally higher at 100 1-2, after having sold more than a point above that figure. American Gas & Electric showed a net loss of 1 3-4 at 138 1-4 after having touched 141 3-8. Northern States Power A and United Light & Power convertible preferred advanced about 2 points each and Central States convertible preferred jumped 27 points on a few sales.

Irving Air Chute responded to the publication of a favorable 1929 earnings report by moving up to a new high at 18 1-2. Aero Supply B, Aviation Securities, Fokker, and Western Air Express showed net gains of 2 to nearly 3 points.

American Chain and Driver-Harris, both of which reported earnings in excess of $9 a share for 1929, closed with net gains of 4 3-8 and 1 3-4, respectively, after reaching new high ground for the year. Aluminum Co. of America broke 20 points in odd lot transactions on selling inspired by the agitation for a cut in aluminum duties, but recovered all but 5 points of its loss. General Baking common, Republic Steel (new), Todd Shipyard, Superheated and United Chemical all recorded substantial gains.

Interest in the investment trust, holding and trading corporation group centered largely in the National Investors issues, all of which attained new peak prices for the year. Marine & Midland and Goldman Sachs also showed conspicuous strength while the Blue Ridge and Shenandoah issues sold at new highs for the year, although the gains were held to fractions.

Oils were sluggish on reports of a further increase in crude production, although with the exception of Humble, Standard Oil of Kentucky and Standard Oil of Ohio preferred, which lost about a point each, the net recessions were held to fractions.

JEWETT CITY

GEORGE BALSOUR DIES IN A HOTEL AT MOOSUP

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 18—George Balsour, aged about 65, died Monday night in a hotel in Moosup, where he had been staying for a few days. He has made his home in Jewett City, off and on for 15 years, being better known locally as "Broker Broker." His home here recently has been in Fanning court. He was a Syrian and has a wife and family living in Brooklyn, N. Y., from whom he has been separated for several years. A pack peddler, he was about the streets here last week, with his box and bag which he always carried slung over his back by means of a big strap. It was learned here Tuesday that he became ill during the night; a doctor who was called could give him no relief and he died before morning. Friends here said that he has a small account in the Jewett City Savings bank.

Finn's tonight, greatest of all talking and singing pictures, Broadway.—Adv.

The K. of C. players, who have been arranging to present the "Four Flusher," have decided to put on "Kempy" instead, and rehearsals are already under way. Rev. Nicholas Caron will coach the players. The all-home-town cast, will include the following:

Miss Veleda Boule, Miss Verna Raill, Miss Elizabeth Dudkowski, Miss Helen Bakanowski and Harbert Thompson, Charles Saunders, John McCarthy, William (Terry) McGovern.

Most of these players have appeared in local drama and minstrel sketches before, interpreting various characters with marked ability.

As the result of temperature that rose to 46 during the middle of the day, the state road was transformed into a spattering drivers' paradise.

Methodist church notes include the information that the Junior Epworth league will not meet this week. Thursday the Ladies' Aid society is to meet with Mrs. A. G. Burdick, and Friday evening the Men's class meets with Alex McCluggage in Sylvandale. The speaker will be Rev. Edward A. Gantt, of the African M. E. church, in Norwich.

Following the storm and cold snap, a large number of woodpeckers has been seen in the trees near borough homes. One man reports seeing the downy, the hairy and the little black and white chap.

Along in January, a local young woman came to the Hiscox home to see and admire the display of 75 beautiful calendars. Her old home is in Scotland, and when she saw the handsome issues from Canada and the Maritime Provinces, she declared that what was needed was one from across the water. Tuesday, in response to a letter which she sent to her sister, the calendar came, right from the Bonnie Heather. It is a golfers' calendar, with a daily sheet pad. All in colors, a golf scene is shown, with a Scotchman, in kilts and Tam. Standing near is the caddie. It is all in burlesque, with driving ability evidently much lacking in the player. In explanation there appears the following text.

Golfer: "I think I stand too near the ball before I strike." Caddie: "Aye—and after."

The snow plow attachment, which can be fitted to the new street department truck operated by the borough, proved its efficiency following the recent storm. The borough force put in two days and one night, with the result that the streets, instead of being clogged with snow and slush, are in fine shape, which is much appreciated by all who use them.

Coincident with the establishment of city letter carrier service Jan. 1st, this year, is the fact that 5 years ago the local R. F. D. was put into operation, with George Ayer the first driver.

Andrew Arsenault, of Lenox avenue, has been stricken with paralysis.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—An extreme gain of more than 7 points in American Telephone convertible 4 1-2s on an enormous turnover enlivened today's slightly firmer bond market. Prices in the general list were still scrambled, but investment issues of high rating showed better resistance than in recent sessions.

The trading in the telephone company bond was the largest since last summer, reaching a total of more than $14,000,000 principal amount. The debenture soared to 150 3-4 and closed at 154 1-4, following the stock into new high ground for the year. The net advance was 4 1-4 points.

International Telephone's 4 1-2 per cent convertible displayed considerable activity, climbing to 123 and finishing at 122 1-2 for a gain of 1 3-4. American International 5 1-2s and Texas Corporation 5s, among the other share feature bonds, found a moderately busy market. The attention paid to issues of this type, especially the telephones, was reminiscent of the trading six months ago when convertibles constituted large percentages of the daily volume.

United States government securities moved irregularly but most of the selling in this group appeared to have evaporated and several issues made net gains. French Republic obligations were quiet on the news of the political crisis. The 7 1-2s lost half a point but the 7s remained unchanged. On the whole, the foreign group moved higher, with gains of 1 to 3 points in Bulgaria 7s, Berlin City Electric 6 1-2s, Argentine 6s (October) Australia 5s, Finland 5 1-2s and Bremen 7s. German Republic 7s were active, but advanced only a shade. Tokio Electric Light 6s were taken in large blocks for a rise of 3-4.

The high grade domestic rails were mixed, but the day's variations proved to be mostly inconsequential. Delaware & Hudson 4s, Missouri Kansas Texas First 4s, Virginian 5s, West Shore 4s, Pennsylvania General 4 1-2s and two of the Baltimore & Ohio divisions bonds made fair improvement, but the more active issues moved quietly.

Utilities averaged higher under the leadership of American Telephone 5s of 1965, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s (May), International Telephone 5s and Northern American Edison 5 1-2s. Industrials were dull but steady.

The first of several pending municipal loans was awarded today. Toronto sold to a syndicate a $8,590,000 loan bearing 4 1-2 and 5 per cent coupons, maturing 1930 to 1959, on a bid of 98.692. The bonds were being offered tomorrow on a 5 per cent basis for all maturities.

Other new offerings for Wednesday include the Shawinigan Water & Power company $15,000,000 additional issue of first and collateral trust 5s at 98 and a $2,000,000 issue of Valspar corporation 10-year 6 per cent convertible debentures at 38, 1-2

WELL-TO-DO IDLERS AS SEEN BY CONNECTICUT TOURIST

From 1309 Fifth avenue, San Diego, Calif., Feb. 8, the Ross tourists are heard from, as follows:

Across Broadway, in front of the U. S. Grant Hotel, is a small park, or plaza. This park has fountains, monuments, palm trees and benches that will seat about 100. Every day this park is filled with men, and a few women, sitting or standing in the sun—these people are all well dressed and no doubt they are all well-to-do—that is, they are what is known in Great Britain as the upper middle class. They do not seem to know each other and are seldom seen talking together.

Sometimes two men sitting beside each other will begin to talk. I overheard a conversation, or rather part of a conversation, yesterday, between two young Englishmen, one from Australia and the other from just north of the Arctic circle, in British Columbia.

The man from British Columbia had walked about 1,000 miles to get back into civilization. He started with three dogs, each dog carrying a pack, food, ammunition and a small amount of clothing. One of his dogs deserted him or perhaps he was killed by a pack of wolves one night. These wolves had been following him for about a week and this dog, which was partly wolf, became very uneasy. This dog's pack was a pair of leggins and shoes and as the shoes he had on his feet (moccasins) were nearly worn out, he did not miss the dog so much as if he were loaded heavier.

This man started about the last day in August. The only hardship he encountered was fighting mosquitoes.

Near me were two men talking Wall street stocks. One had lost all, or nearly all, of his money that he had invested in Radio and Fox Film, yet he had a few mortgages on farms near his own ranch in the middle west that enabled him to spend the winter in San Diego. His wife's health had broken.

This will give you an idea of the middle class we meet everywhere we go in California. In the U. S. Grant hotel will be found another class of people.

These men are also between 35 and 60, mostly overdressed, canes and spats, rings (large diamonds in some cases) and gloves. These men would feel insulted if they were called middle class—yet they did not rank as well with my idea of Men as the men on the plaza. What little conversation I had with them consisted in their telling me how much property they had back home, and how much they were going to make in the near future. One man offered to let me in on the ground floor in a silver mine near Leadville, Colo. Nearly all of the men in the U. S. Grant know about the races across the border in Agua Caliente. In fact, Mrs. U. S. Grant, Jr., according to a local paper, won several hundred dollars on one of the races.

One of the monuments on the plaza has been erected by ex-Confederate soldiers of the Civil war to Jefferson Davis. President Calvin Coolidge was here at the unveiling, in 1926.

Another monument marks the end of the trail across the southern states from St. Augustine, Fla. Why it should end right at this point I do not know.

In Balboa park is another gathering place for men and women. This is in the lee of a high mesa and is devoted to playing cards, checkers, chess and horseshoes. Here is displayed a great deal of skill in all these games. Some of these games of cards I do not understand, about six aces in a pack.

These cards, checkers, chess and horseshoes are provided by the city; all free (sunshine), seats and courts for horseshoe pitching.

These horseshoes are all made alike, about four-inch opening at the heel and weighing two and one-half pounds. The stakes are 40 feet apart. The players stand on a cement foundation, the stakes are iron and about a foot above the ground. I never saw so much skill displayed and when I tell you that one or two men will make from 50 to 75 per cent ringers in 100 pitches you will think I have fallen into the habit of western exaggeration.

One old man of 85 pitches with two and one-half turns of the shoe before reaching the stake. This man throws the shoe horizontally. Two or three other men pitch the shoes perpendicularly, that is, they take hold of the toe of the shoe and pitch in such a way that the shoes keep turning heel and toe, and turn about four and one-half times before reaching the stake, when the heels slip one on each side of the stake. It is very common to see four shoes on the stake at one time.

There are a few expert woman checker players. I have only seen one game played—with a Canadian lumberman. She beat him, as I was talking with him at the time. The next game he told me about the lumber rafts coming down the coast. He had six men and the woman had six men. When suddenly she had only one man and could not move that one. I learned afterwards that this man was the champion checker player of all Canada.

About a mile away from this horseshoe court is a croquet ground and near these grounds are roque courts. Mallets and balls are provided for these games without charge.

Today, the eighth of February, are hundreds of men at these places out of doors in the warm (and sometimes hot) sunshine.

According to the records at our home, the coldest weather is from the 1st to the 10th of February. The coldest day may be in December or March but the average coldest time, taking a decade to compare, is the fore part of this month.

Cold weather reminds me that in the zoo in Balboa park are three alligators lying on the bank of a small stream and as far as I could judge they did not breathe. They will not move until the last of April. These reptiles are from 10 feet to 14 feet long, not very handsome, yet they looked happy. Other reptiles were snakes, rattlers, moccasins, Gila monsters (lizards). If you would like to know how a rattler sounds take a page of a dry newspaper (I don't mean The Bulletin—it is never dry!) or any piece of dry paper, crush it and rub it in your hands. This will give you an idea of the sound of the rattler.

In the reptile class are 50 or 60 kinds of turtles, from those weighing only an ounce or two to those weighing hundreds of pounds. The zoo is one of the best in the world, I am told, and the winter being so mild the animals are easily cared for and look comfortable, especially the monkeys. There are hundreds of these and of all kinds and sizes. I saw one little fellow only a week old; every woman wanted to get that little fellow in her arms.

It is said the chimpanzee is the most intelligent, yet there was a pair of ourang-outangs that to me were very interesting. They were called "Jiggs and Maggie." They were quite indifferent to each other. Jiggs was trying to take a kink out of a large chain and when he could not do it he would look at Maggie and give the chain a terrible pull and jerk and say something to Maggie which I did not understand, yet I knew what he meant. Maggie was not bad looking, but she was terribly flat footed. I liked Maggie. She seemed more innocent than Jiggs. Jiggs' forearm is very large and, hanging from the bars of his cage, he could pull himself up with one hand. Maggie had the habit of closing one eye very slowly, which perhaps made her appear more intelligent.

Birds, birds—I do not know how many species! I think there are 30 or 40 kinds of parrots.

Large and small birds—the condor was the largest. I saw one sitting on a high bench (40 feet high). He had in his claws about 10 pounds of meat. He lost his balance and came to the ground. He did not know how to fly. He tore the meat to pieces as if he were angry.

The cages these birds are in are very large—150 feet long, 60 to 80 feet high, and about 60 feet wide. For the water fowl there were small ponds inside their cages. The smallest bird was of a light green color. I was told that the humming bird does not do well in captivity.

I have not said anything about lions or tigers or wolves—sea elephants weighing three tons—seals, zebras, elephants, etc., etc.

GALES FERRY

Queen Esther circle held its February meeting at the home of the Misses Lillian and Velma Atkins Thursday evening. In the absence of the president, Miss Helen L. Colver, the vice-president, Miss Em Beth Bennett, presided. It was voted to give $2.50 toward helping pay for a printing press for the Silver Lake mission in Providence, and $3 toward the current expenses of the local church, with thanks for the use of the vestry room for an entertainment given recently by the circle. Miss Velma Atkins was appointed to arrange with out-of-town entertainers for a play to be given at an early date. Miss Lillian Atkins reviewed the second chapter of the study book, Blind Spots. Dainty valentine refreshments were served, Miss Velma Atkins and Miss Bennett being the committee in charge. The place of meeting for the next session was left to the president to arrange for. Miss Ethel F. Main and Miss Lillian Atkins were appointed refreshment committee and Miss Margaret E. Colver committee for the social program.

The coldest weather for the winter was recorded here Sunday night, the mercury reaching 13 degrees below zero at an early hour Monday morning, at Woodlawn farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, and 13 below at Rose Lawn farm, the home of Mrs. Latham E. Smith and family.

Mrs. Edward H. Latimer entertained a relative, Mrs. Charles E. Jennings of New London, Friday.

Mrs. Monett A. Lawson and daughter, Eloise, of the Long Cove district, spent Friday with Mrs. Lawson's mother, Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins.

At the Community M. E. church Sunday morning Rev. Jerome Greer selected texts from St. Matthew 8:23 and 4:4 for his sermon theme. The Ninety and Nine was sung by Miss Grace A. Chapman at the offertory. There were 11 in attendance at this service, most of these coming by automobile from the limits of the parish, the cold and deep snow drifts causing most of the village residents to remain at home.

The attendance contest record at the church school session stood seven to four in favor of the Women's class.

The Epworth league evening service was omitted, owing to weather conditions.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was announced for Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, at the vestry.

The address by Nurse Lisbeth MacDonald of Storrs on Preventive Measures for Contagious Diseases, announced for Tuesday at the home of Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, one of the officers of the local Farm Bureau group, has been postponed one week.

Mrs. William D. Allen and daughters, Mrs. H. Irving Collins and Miss Gertrude Allen, of Long Cove, were attendants at a birthday party for Miss Doris Bryson of New London, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Noyes A. Smith and children of New London spent Sunday with Mr. Smith's mother, Mrs. Latham E. Smith.

Mrs. Mildred Maher of Norwich, school nurse, visited the village school Friday.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Once more the Broadway comes to the fore with a two-for-one show value in the great double-feature opening today. Gary Cooper, lanky star of "The Virginian," has the best role of his varied career in "Seven Days' Leave," called the most human story ever written. It is based on Sir James M. Barrie's famous book "An Old Lady Shows Her Medals," a story of wartime in England. A childless old scrubwoman in the suburbs of London, a thrill with the mother instinct, craves for a son to meet the jibes of her neighbors who are constantly flaunting the achievements of their boys in her face. Jealous almost to despair, she scans the casualty lists daily, finally finding among the "blighties" a name strangely like her own. Mysterious letters, contrived by the old woman herself, begin to arrive and the poor old head is held a little higher. Through a queer twist of fate the "son" suddenly arrives at her humble cottage and the old lady's happiness is complete, particularly when the strange young man actually "proposes" to her!—to be his "mother." Then indeed, the talkative neighbors are properly put in their place and the proud old woman is escorted here and there by her handsome "kiltie" son. The climax is too good to reveal here but there is excitement and comedy in plenty besides the pathos, and audiences everywhere have revelled in Barrie's whimsical plot. The companion picture, in direct contrast, offers the famous Gleasons, Lucille and Jimmy, the highest salaried comedians on the stage, in a film version of their tremendous stage success, "The Shannons of Broadway," a howling farce of two small time hams, who, left high and dry in a little New England village, decide to buy a local hotel and are suddenly precipitated into a whirlpool of village politics, scandal and romance. Mary Philbin, Robert T. Haines, John Breeden, Tom Santschi, Charles Grapewin and Tom Kennedy, together with several members of the original stage cast, contribute heavily to the fast moving comedy, with here and there a touch of drama, and plenty of music for seasoning. This program, completed by the Fox movietone news, is one of the best of the Broadway's Greater Entertainment month schedule, and will be followed on Saturday by the R. K. O. knockout "Rio Rita," with Bebe Daniels, John Boles and nearly 1000 other performers.

"Seven Days Leave"

Palace Theatre.

Another great stage star has been brought to the screen in the person of Ted Lewis, the "High Hat Tragedian of Jazz," who appears in "Is Everybody Happy," at the Palace theatre today, tomorrow and Friday as part of a big double feature bill. The other half of the program is a horror mystery in New York, starring Jack Mulhall and Alice Day.

Ann Pennington of the shapely figure and exquisite voice is starred with Ted Lewis in this musical treat. One of the early sequences of the picture shows Ann in the dance that made her famous—a genuine Hawaiian hula. This helps to put everybody in the mood for what comes afterwards. There is a good plot in "Is Everybody Happy." It has some touching moments and an occasional bit of keen, poignant drama. The story is something like Lewis's own story, concerning as it does, the struggle of a young musician who finally climbs to success when he heads his own company in an act that is tremendously effective.

In the picture, Ted is an immigrant boy whose father was once the leader of a great symphony in Austria. The son, after striving for months to get a job as violinist in one of the fine classical orchestras, finally learns to play the saxophone and becomes a member of a jazz band. His father is heart-broken. There are many days of sorrow and tears for the boy and his mother, until finally the father realizes that this is a new age in which the boy is living and that he cannot continue to cling to his old world ideas.

"In the Next Room" is a story that starts out with New York terrified as the result of a series of knife murders. A man named Valentine is the first mysterious character who meets our eyes. Then we see his niece and the young reporter who loves her. The niece is horribly afraid of something in the house where she lives with her uncle. She secretly tells the reporter of strange noises she has heard, the noise of a one-legged man stumping up and down stairs and dragging himself across the basement floor. It is not long before we are in the thick of the mystery, watching fascinated as it unfolds in its full weird horror to our gaze. This picture is pure sensation, and is an admirable companion piece for the jazz and fun of "Is Everybody Happy?"

At Y. M. C. A. Tonight.

Dr. Emma K. Dunham Installs Colonic Irrigation Equipment.

All sufferers from sluggish liver, inactive bowels, intestinal obstructions, obstinate cases of neuritis, rheumatism and consequent ills, will welcome the news that Dr. Emma K. Dunham has had installed in her home office, the last word in colonic irrigation equipment. Here, in a luxurious home environment, you can find relief from all the above ills and many more.

Colon therapy has proved to be one of the greatest aids in restoring health. It is known that 80 per cent of the adult population are troubled with colon infection. Laxatives, cathartics and purgatives are in use generally, and they irritate and inflame the mucuous membranes of the intestines, giving only temporary relief. Physicians agree that high colonic irrigations are now rational, effective and safe, and it is this type of treatments that Dr. Dunham gives. It is the most efficient method of adding years to the span of life.

First Annual Masonic Dance.

The Masonic entertainment committee, recently appointed to represent the various Masonic bodies in providing entertainments at the new Masonic temple, has completed plans for the first annual Masonic dance for Masons and their friends, to be held at the new Masonic temple on Thursday evening, Feb. 27, with dancing from 8.30 to midnight, music to be by Thumm's popular orchestra.

This is to be the first of many more entertainments planned for the coming months and it also affords Masons and their friends the opportunity to enjoy the beautiful dance floor in the banquet and entertainment hall.

Owing to the short time before the dance, cards may be secured by applying to the following members of the entertainment committee: Wilbur S. Williams, Masonic Temple incorporators; E. Allen Bidwell, Consistory; Lyle H. Fillmore, Rose Croix; Otto C. Mush, Princes of Jerusalem; W. Manley Eastwood, Jr., Lodge of Perfection; Clifford C. Oat, Columbian Commandery; William A. Buckley, Franklin Council; Harold C. Dahl, Franklin Chapter; Joseph T. Hynd, St. James lodge; Raymond B. Sherman, Somerset lodge; Alexander Finlayson, Sachem chapter, Eastern Star.

Modern Medicine turns away from "DOSING"

Back in the old "horse and buggy" days, it was the custom to give large doses of internal medicines for almost every human ailment. Then a North Carolina pharmacist originated Vicks VapoRub, the better method of treating colds externally.

Mothers appreciate Vicks, because it checks children's colds without the risk of upsetting delicate little stomachs.

Adults, too, have found Vicks just as good for their own colds. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

WESTERLY

CONSERVATOR NAMED FOR WILLIAM H. BARNES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Feb. 18—It was 4:30 p. m. Tuesday when the probate court was adjourned by Judge Edward M. Burke. Much of the time had been given over to the hearing of two petitions in the continued case of the estate of William H. Barnes. After a lengthy hearing with both factions in the contest represented by Providence attorneys and on the agreement of counsel the matter was cared for as follows:

Estate of William H. Barnes. The petition of two brothers, Albert and Orsemus and a sister, Mrs. Emily M. Tillinghast, for the appointment of a guardian was dismissed. On the later petition of the above petitioners for the naming of a conservator, the attorney for the contestants, John A. Enos of Providence, was named conservator and required to file a bond of $1,500 with surety as agent-conservator. William G. Tourjee, 59 School street, Westerly was made appraiser. This development of the lengthy hearing in a crowded court room with many relatives present was not brought about until after testimony had been given by Dr. J. Gordon Anderson, Mrs. Edris T. Datson, a niece, who previously appeared on the list of petitioners as representing her mother Mrs. Tillinghast, and at the present time an invalid at her Post road home; Albert Barnes, a brother, who stated his belief that his brother was incapable of caring for his farm off the Post road with 60 hens, cow, calf, dog and cat. The last to give testimony was William H. Barnes himself, who surprised his attorney, Mr. Enos with the statement that he had made arrangements with his nephew, Howard Barnes, that in consideration of his removal with his family to his home and making repairs and renovations, he would on his death deed Howard Barnes the property. Howard Barnes made the confirming statement to the court with the further information that a niece, his sister Lida, could not remain there much longer as housekeeper, which arrangement was satisfactory to both sides in the contest.

MRS. LUCY BRIGGS PEABODY LEAVES ESTATE OF $150,000

Other probate business was disposed of as follows:

Estate Lucy E. Peabody. Petition received for the appointment of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co. as executor of the will of the testatrix which was read in court and whose provisions have been previously published in The Bulletin. The codicil executed March 10, 1926, was also read and proved in which the tenth clause of a $40,000 trust fund was re-written that a brother of the testatrix, Ira Briggs of Voluntown should become the beneficiary to the extent of a $1,000 annuity. The estate was stated as amounting to about $150,000 and bond was made $200,000 without surety when the R. I. Hospital Trust Co. was confirmed as executor. Ernest A. Peel of Providence was named appraiser.

Estate John E. Gavitt. On petition of Ethan P. Gavitt and F. Lee Gavitt, the Industrial Trust Co. was confirmed as administrator on the estate of the deceased who died intestate, a resident of Westerly, Jan. 18, 1930. Walter C. Hiscox was named appraiser.

Estate William Brown. First account of Gladys Brown, showing no balance was continued to next session when no vouchers were presented in court.

Estate Harry A. Littlefield. On consent of attorneys who were engaged in superior court, the first account of the widow, Mrs. Mabel Littlefield, was carried over two weeks.

M. J. DRISCOLL DIES— NATIVE OF GREENEVILLE

Following an illness of seven months, Michael J. Driscoll, 58, of 17 Stillman avenue, Pawcatuck, died Monday in Norwich. He was born in Greeneville, but had been a resident of Westerly about 40 years. He was a wool sorter. His wife died several years ago. He leaves a sister, Miss Dora Driscoll of Westerly, and three brothers, Patrick of Westerly, John of Littleton, N. H., and Michael of Somerville, N. J.

Arrangements are being perfected for the 36th annual banquet of Westerly Cycle club, George Elmer Leonard, president. Since the disbanding of the "T. B." club the Cycle club is the oldest Westerly social organization, being found in the hey day of the bicycle. This event will be held March 13, at American Legion hall. Benjamin Peabody, chairman of the entertainment committee, predicts that the affair will be the most pretentious in recent years. The club has an active membership of more than 200. The program includes a turkey supper, a concert and an elaborate cabaret performance.

The thirty-fifth annual meeting has been held by the Cyclone Steam Fire Engine Co., known as "Steamer Co. No. 2." When the intention of the Westerly fire district board of engineers was made known in their annual report for 1894, signed by Robert A. Mason, chief, delay in its organization was reported that Steamer Company No. 1, was not to be divided until after the invitation of the Norwich fire department had been accepted to parade in Norwich on Oct. 6th as Westerly firemen were anxious to parade as one company. Earl F. Wills was elected foreman at the meeting held Monday night in the assembly room of Westerly fire district headquarters. Election was followed by a supper at which members of the board of fire engineers were guests of honor. Following the supper the firemen adjourned to Veterans hall, where an entertainment was provided. Other officers elected are: First assistant, George Havens; second assistant, Cassius Armstrong; secretary, William Pendleton; treasurer, E. C. Lawton; steward, Fred O. Barker; delegate to State Firemen's league, John M. Patton. The Cyclone Engine company is the youngest of the Westerly fire companies. It has a membership of 40.

As told on the front page of The Bulletin Tuesday, one secret indictment was returned by the grand jury in Washington county superior court at West Kingston late Monday afternoon among the twenty-four indictments reported to Associate Justice G. Louis Frost of East Providence. An indictment charging James DeRicco of Westerly with first degree murder in the shooting of Atwood Gardner in Westerly Jan. 14, was the first presented before the court. A plea of not guilty was entered for the defendant and the trial was set for Feb. 25.

Fred W. Smith of Hartford, Conn., and Rudolph Nunes of Worcester, Mass., and Richmond, were indicted on four separate charges of breaking, entering and larceny, from Oliver Bordeau in Richmond, Dec. 2. Each was sentenced to serve two years. The pair was also indicted on charges of breaking, entering and larceny of a calf from the barn of Roy Wright, Dec. 2, to which both pleaded guilty. Both Smith and Nunes pleaded guilty of entering hen enclosures of George P. Clark in Shannock and Ellie Simmons in Usquepaug and larceny of fowl. These three complaints were continued for sentence. These were state police cases. Nunes told Judge Frederick Frost that the hens and calf were sold, the latter being disposed of in Providence. Smith has two children and Nunes has three.

After pleading nolo Henry Irving Tanner and Carroll Brown, who were charged with breaking, entering and larceny of goods valued at $100 from the unoccupied dwelling of Mrs. Grace Farnsworth on the Westerly-Ashaway road, Nov. 30 last, were sentenced to serve three years each. Tanner and Brown were also indicted on complaints brought by the state police, charging them with breaking, entering and larceny of goods valued at $100 from the home of John F. Browning on Chase Hill in the town of Hopkinton, Dec. 6. These cases were continued for sentence.

Indictments were returned against Paul De Gannett for breaking, entering and larceny from a building of Oliver Bordeau at Carolina and an unoccupied dwelling of Stephen Wells on Shannock Hill. He pleaded guilty to both complaints. De Gannett was placed upon probation upon recommendation of Attorney Fisher and Mr. Prosser, who appeared in behalf of the young man and spoke highly of him as a worker on his farm.

A plea of guilty was entered by Joseph Burgess to the complaint of entering a hen enclosure of Nathan Holaway at Charlestown on the seventh of November. Frank Burgess pleaded not guilty in this case. Frank pleaded guilty to entering a hen enclosure of Everett Gottrell in Westerly on Dec. 27 and larceny of fowl valued at $100. Each was sentenced to one year in Providence county jail.

William Arnott, William Barber and Joseph Vigue, indicted on breaking, entering and larceny charges, pleaded nolo. Arnott and Vigue were charged with breaking into the place of Rowland Robinson at Great Salt Pond. Attorney Fisher expressed himself as in favor of recommending a deferred sentence for Vigue. When the cases were continued to Wednesday, Vigue was released in [illegible] bail, with Sergt. Ernest Stenhouse, of the department of state police, as surety. Barber and Arnott are charged with entering the Pawcatuck Valley schoolhouse in Charlestown and the store of Joseph Lanphear in Kenyon. Arnott's father was in the courtroom and said that his son had been away from home for two years, since he was 16, and he had seen him only about once a month. Attorney Clarence E. Roche appeared in behalf of Barber and Arnott and was appointed by the court to represent Vigue, when the cases came up again Wednesday. They were postponed so that the parents of the youths might be in court.

NEW YORK—BOSTON BUS IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

One of the big buses of the New England Transportation company operating between New York and Boston, was damaged by fire in New London this morning. The bus which left New York an hour later arrived on the outskirts of the city on schedule, the driver having made up the delayed time on the trip to this city. When the bus was on Bank street, near Faye street, the flames broke out beneath the hood and in a few seconds the fire communicated to the interior of the bus. All the passengers alighted. The flames spreading, an alarm was sent in from Box 18, corner of Bank and Faye streets. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four pieces of apparatus responded and a few minutes after the firemen arrived. The blaze was extinguished with chemicals. The bus was badly damaged, especially in the forward part, but the luggage of the passengers escaped damage.

FIRST DEGREE MURDER CHARGE AGAINST WILLIAMS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 18. — Four Negroes are locked up at the county jail on Franklin street, two of them charged with murder in the first degree and the others charged with felonious assault and all because some of the gang are lying to save their necks from the noose in Wethersfield prison. Up to the present, one of the Negroes has accused himself of the murder of Jacob Wabeman, Lithuanian, of 35 Shapley street, but he now declares that he lied when he confessed to administering the beating to Wanenan and now says that another is guilty of the crime. The Negro, who has accused himself and now seeks to place the responsibility for the death of the Lithuanian upon another is Linwood F. "Peanuts," Farrell, 17, and the man he accuses is Charles Williams, Norfolk, Va., barge hand. Williams emphatically declares that Farrell is lying and that the slayer of Wabecan is Williams, 'Rattlesnake Pete," Franklin, for Williams asserts that Farrell and the bargehand witnessed Farrell make the attack upon Wabecan which resulted in his death from a fractured skull. The fourth man under arrest is Ernest Johnson, but he has not accused any of the others of slaying Waberan, stating that he did not see any of the gang after Waheman and the Negroes left the Main street restaurant on the morning of Jan. 12.

In the police court this morning, Williams was charged with murder in the first degree and the charges against Franklin and Johnson were amended to felonious assault. Williams was held without bail for trial at the May term of the superior court. Franklin and Johnson were held for trial at the same term. Franklin's bail was fixed at $3000 and Johnson's at $2500. Neither man could provide a surety so the entire gang went to jail.

Franklin declares that the statement of Williams is a deliberate falsehood, while Williams today said that the state can "crack my neck," but I won't change my story."

Williams, when he was discharged from custody, informed the police that Franklin and Johnson intimidated Farrell while in jail, for they all occupied adjoining cells and could carry on a conversation. William says that he heard Franklin and Johnson arrange with Farrell to confess attacking Wahenan because the youth was assured of receiving a sentence no more severe than confinement in a reformatory, while a conviction for either Franklin or Johnson meant the gallows, life imprisonment, or a long term of confinement.

During Sunday and after Wahenan had regained consciousness it is known that he went to North Bank street and informed Polish residents that he had been attacked and beaten the night before by Franklin, who is known as "skupski," a Polish term applied to Franklin because of his gambling habits and his handling of the dice, particularly at crap shooting. This statement was made before any arrests was made and two days before Waheman died.

William Mills of 1 Cliff street; Mrs. William Cummings and infant son, 18 Warner street, Groton; Charles Cupello, 24 Darrow street, and Mrs. Richard Roberts, Eastern Point, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The firemen were not needed for another occupant of the house removed all danger by throwing the burning rags into the yard.

The city's highway department again today was responsible for a large number of unemployed men being given work. About 200 laborers, comprising shovelers were assigned to the task of removing snow from various streets. All snow on Bank and State streets has been removed and Main street and other highways are now being given attention. As fast as the snow is loaded into trucks it is carted to the municipal pier and dumped into the Thames river. With continued mild weather prevailing and the services of the shovelers the greater bulk of the snow will have disappeared within a few days.

WHALE AND SHARK FIGHT FORETOLD THE BIG STORM

The fishing boat, Polly, Capt. John Carlson and Mate George Downey went out to the fishing ground around the shores of Block Island after flat fish, but found them slack as are jobs in this North America. The fish could not be found with a fieldglass. After getting only two barrels of fish after 16 hours on the salt water, and fish worth a good price at Fulton market, New York, the fishermen were some mad at them little fishes in the sea. Well, Mate Doolittle came out with a joke that will last for the year. He said, "If the fish was $10 a pound, we would not catch any. They would play hide and seek with us! Look today, the hardest winter in the world, trying to make a living and the fish cannot be found! Not enough to get a few dollars for our coal bill! But we are not alone in this fishing game, Captain Carlson!" the mate called out. So the captain said, "We will toss a new dime in the air to see if we set the net again for a couple more hours. It might bring us luck!" The dime rolled head up. So both fishermen cast over the $100 net for the lonesome fish, shy of being caught. In one hour of hard work they hauled the net and found three barrels of fish. "Gee!" Mate Downey said, "That was no Scotch dime to us this haul!" Once more the net went in the February ice water to do its stuff. About 75 feet from the boat Captain Carlson noticed a fight in the water—it was a whale about 85 feet long and enough of rubber in him to make 500 raincoats and rubber boots, against a man-eating shark. Some battle! Closer they came to the good ship Polly. The crew could see the fish jump all around trying to get out of the way of the two prize fighters of the sea. The whale's tail hit the boat and almost tipped it over. Both fishermen put on lifebelts, ready for a dive in the deep, but the boat came back. The two fighters got lost, as they were headed far out to sea.

The net was hauled for the last time that day and had four barrels of fish, making nine barrels in all for a day's fishing. "The fight sent them fish into the net, so the luck broke just right for us;" said Captain Carlson. He put on his nose glasses and looked in the fishermen's book, while Mate Downey took the wheel and turned the nose of the boat toward Noank. Captain Carlson found out why a whale and shark fight and what they are doing up around Block Island shores. It means a young blizzard off the water and lots of wind and about 14 inches of snow, meaning the worst snow storm in three years around here.

"When we saw that four rounds of boxing on a Friday and not $20 for a ringside seat, like at New York or Miami Beach, Florida, that meant the next day the storm would come," Mate Downey said. "That groundhog has a little truth in him left yet and the six more weeks of winter will come, all right! Icemen can fill their houses and when Mr. Groundhog went into the Community gas station and put down 15 cents for some Western Stories he knew his stuff. It was so he could read them for six long weeks and live on them bushels of cabbage he borrowed one day last summer from a farmer's garden, so to have plenty of eats. Now he is laughing at the world. If I could only lay my hands on him for five minutes I would give that groundhog a Gus Sonnenberg flying tackle where his feet would be high in the air, for bringing this snow storm along, when the ground was bare and those who had outside work could do it. But not now!" Captain Carlson told his sidekick that he has been in every port in this wide world on the water and saw waves as high as houses that many times he would pray the storm might be over. "I lost my mate in the worst storm the North sea ever coughed up; he was washed overboard and I never saw him again. He was in a schooner loaded with lumber, bound for England. It took us three days to ride out of that storm. Many boats went down to Davey Jones' locker. It was about 22 years ago, where a sail sent you across the Atlantic ocean, instead of an engine. My beard got as long as if I was ready to join the House of David in Michigan, where all the men have beards. A pack of cards came in handy for the fishermen, who make a boat their home and cross the salt water, to make a few American dollars. Mate, I have traveled the ocean for 47 years and never in my life saw a whale and shark fight like that. To think of them way up here in the winter time—something no one ever heard of before! It is a sure sign of real winter weather. If Noank weather guesser, Carl Ashcroft, was here he would tell the same story, about the whale and the shark. He has not rode on so many waves as I have, but sure does know his stuff on the weather.

"One sign that always puzzles me, mate, was this one—One day, near Spain, a sea gull followed our ship for several miles, looking for something to eat. The gull was so hungry he was crying and Captain McWheeny, a gray-haired man, claims if a sea gull is crying that means a bad wind storm, with rough water for four days. We got the wind and rough water that almost blew the sails out of the ship. It seems funny, a little thing like that means something to kick up the wind and wreck many boats, before the danger is over!"

The boat Polly landed at the shipyard dock, tied up for the night and around 20 fishermen were there to greet them to see what luck they had for their long day on the water. They put up a cheer to think they had nine barrels of fish after the fishes had gone on a strike all winter.

But Captain Carlson said, "You won't have a good day for fishing on Saturday. You will have to break out the snow shovels instead of oiling up the lawn mower, for the worst blizzard in three years will come!" The fishermen gave him the salt-water laugh over it. "When you see a whale and a man-eating shark fighting a battle on the seven seas, look out for a mean snow storm! Time will tell you all!" Both fishermen went up the dock to their homes after a hard day, to rest and toast their feet in front of the fires, read the paper and tell their wives about the fight between the whale and shark.

Sure enough, the story of the whale and the shark was a sign all right, for we had the beautiful snow for Sunday!.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of good water.

POULTRY BOYS OF COUNTY SET NEW JUNIOR CONTEST RECORD

When County Club Agent R. W. Whaples sent 77 junior egg laying reports into the state contest for the month of January, New London county poultry boys established a new record for the state.

New London county has 77 enrolled in the contest, the reports have to be in the county office before the 5th of each month and in the state office before the 15th. Sixty-three reports came in before the 5th and all of them were in by the 12th.

New London county should have 100 boys in the contest before April 1, 1930.

For January the following boys ranked first, second and third in their respective classes:

Class A—John Benker, Occum; John Rogers, Montville; Peter Niewiorski, Preston.

Class B—William Wheeler, Mystic; John Zukowsky, Hanover; Donald Waterman, Norwich Town.

Class C—Michael Hracyk, Montville; Clayton Lewis, Preston; John Beetham, Montville.

Michael Hracyk was the high for all classes with a fine average of 21.72 eggs per bird.

Any boy or girl in the county who wishes to enroll may do so by getting in touch with the county club agent, 19 Shannon building, this city.

GOVERNMENT PROVIDING TRIP FOR GOLD STAR MOTHERS

All the 166 Connecticut mothers and widows of World war soldiers who wish to make the pilgrimage to the European cemeteries this year will be able to do so. This assurance is given by the war department. The department has outlined plans which will take 5,373 of the country's mothers and widows who have sons or husbands who died during the World war period and are now buried in European cemeteries, to visit the proper cemetery this summer. This total covers all who have said they want to make the trip at government expense, as authorized by congress in 1930.

The war department intends that pilgrims from a particular county who have sons or husbands buried in a particular cemetery shall make the trip together.

Beyond this, the department will try to suit the individual convenience of each pilgrim so far as is practicable. If a soldier buried over there has both a mother and widow living, who now reside in different states, effort will be made to allow them to go together, if they wish. A Gold Star mother has just received permission to go on the first trip because she wants to be back in this country to see one of her sons graduate from college. The eligibles can change their minds, those who said they did not want to go can decide to go, for example, or those who stated they wished to go after this year can be accommodated this year if they act quickly enough. The war department seeks to handle this great pilgrimage with efficiency, plus courtesy.

Eighteen Sailings

A tentative schedule of trips this summer to take care of all who wish to go in 1930 has been drawn up by the war department. Eighteen sailings have been arranged, the first to leave New York May 7 and the last Aug. 30. An average of about 300 pilgrims will be carried on each sailing. Ships of the United States lines, the Washington, Roosevelt, Harding, Republic and America, will be used, and cabin accommodations provided.

A sample trip, the one sailing May 7, can be given. Leaving New York the ship arrives at Cherbourg May 16 and Paris will be reached the same day by train from Cherbourg. Good hotels will be used in Paris and the pilgrims will rest in that city till May 19, leaving by motor coach, 25 to a bus, for a cemetery. They will be put up at the best hotels available near the cemetery. The next day, May 20, will be spent at the cemetery, and the pilgrims will remain there till May 25.

Returning, they will reach Paris May 26 and again have a rest period there, leaving the city May 29 for Cherbourg. The ship will sail the same day. They are due back in New York June 6. Thus it will be seen that each pilgrimage will consume just about a month. Officials repeat that medical attention and nurses will always be available, and that all necessary expenses of the trip will be paid. As to hotels, it is said that in New York, ones like the Commodore, Pennsylvania and Astor will be used, and hotels as good in Paris.

What the "Drawing" Meant

A while ago the war department announced a "drawing" to determine the order of invitations, and in this drawing Connecticut got 48th place. This merely means that no Connecticut pilgrims will be invited to go on the first two or three sailings. It does not mean that all the Connecticut women will have to wait till toward the end of the summer. It is the plan to issue invitations at least a month ahead of a sailing.

One sailing will be given up entirely to a 27th division pilgrimage, and not only mothers and widows but many of the surviving members of the division will make the trip, the latter paying their own expenses. In this idea of a division pilgrimage the 27th division may have stolen a march and got in on the ground floor, so to speak. Inquiry brought the word that it is not known whether other divisions would also be granted a distinctive sailing. The 27th division got in early with its request.

SURVEYING FOR HIGHWAY BRIDGE AT MIDDLETOWN

Engineers of the state highway department working out of the Middletown office under the direction of Division Engineer Daniel H. B. Starr have been taking soundings in the Connecticut river opposite Washington street, Middletown, in connection with the survey to be presented the commission raised by the last general assembly. The commission was raised for the purpose of determining the necessity of erecting a new bridge across the river to take the place of the present structure.

The commission is composed of Charles T. Davis, chairman; T. M. Russell, Andrew N. Shepard of Portland, Chelso Arrigoni of Durham, and Elwyn T. Clark of Higganum.

Chairman Davis states that the commission has held only one meeting since organization. The members spent one day looking over the proposed site. The state highway commission agreed to prepare three surveys for the commission and the recent work is a part of the survey. The commission will make a report of its activities to the next session of legislature.

As far back as May, 1924, an inspection of the Middletown-Portland highway bridge disclosed that repairs were necessary to make it safe. The bridge was opened April 15, 1896, and the traffic has increased annually. A bridge with a lift instead of a draw is wanted.

Lake Street Chimney Fire.

At 1.50 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the fire department was called out for a chimney fire at No. 11 Lake street. The fire was extinguished with but small damage. The building is owned by Ralph Demico and is occupied by Rosario Lorello and family.

EXPECT GROTON SUIT WILL REACH JURY TODAY

The jury trial of the civil case of George W. and Hattie L. Ingram against Gladys Flint, administratrix of the estate of Edward Houche, all of Groton, was still being heard before Judge Christopher L. Avery at the superior court session in New London Tuesday.

Presentation of evidence has not yet been concluded but it is expected the case may reach the jury by noon (today) Wednesday.

The case arose over a claim by Mr. and Mrs. Ingram that through the failure of Mr. Houche to leave a will they had been deprived of a fair return for their services in caring for Mr. Houche during the last two years of his life.

INCOME TAX RETURNS COMING IN SLOWLY

The Norwich internal revenue office, where George M. Charbonneau is deputy collector, is having the same experience as other offices in the state in finding that the citizens are slow to make their income tax reports

In view of the orders from Washington this year that extensions of time are only to be granted upon the presentation of valid excuses, officials expect the last few days allowed for filing to bring record-breaking crowds to the offices.

Returns upon incomes, individual and corporations, must be made by March 15. At present Colonel Robert O. Eaton's staff at Hartford and the staff of the branch offices are prepared to handle taxpayers with the utmost attention but few are taking advantage of this fact, it seems, preferring to wait until the last minute and become entangled in long lines of taxpayers.

While the internal revenue department office in Hartford will be closed all day on Washington's birthday, as will all government offices, the office will remain open on the evenings of March 13, 14 and 15 until 9 p. m. to accommodate late filers. There are approximately 11,000 income tax payers in Connecticut.

Porter L. Linder, internal revenue agent in charge, with offices in New Haven, will loan to Colonel Eaton the services of a group of his field agents to assist in the expected rush. Agent Harold Barnes, who has been assigned to the Hartford office for many years, will be back at that post again this year, beginning February 24. Other agents will be located at branch offices throughout the state.

The refusal to grant extensions promiscuously will save the government considerable money, it is predicted. The work of making their returns to Washington can thus be cleaned up earlier by the local staff including extra clerks who are engaged especially for this purpose. Accountants who made a practice of contracting with patrons to file their income tax returns will also be refused extensions except in rare instances, Colonel Eaton said.

For those who do not pay their tax on time, 25 per cent of the tax is added and a further penalty of one per cent interest per month is imposed. Four-payment filers who fail to include the full one-quarter of their initial payment will lose the privilege of paying the tax in installments.

Mail payments, addressed to the Hartford office of the collector, can be made at any time.

REV. G. H. STROUSE WILL BEGIN SERMON SERIES

Rev. George Henry Strouse, pastor of the Bozrah Congregational and Fitchville Baptist churches, will begin on the first Sunday in March a series of sermons on the general theme: Questions and Aswers for a Sadducean Age. They will be as follows:

March 2d, Was Jesus Christ Born of a Virgin?

March 9th, Was Jesus Christ God's Supreme Revelation?

March 16th, Did Jesus Christ Present Convincing Credentials?

March 23rd, As a Teacher is Jesus Christ Infallible?

March 30th, Does the Heroic Sparkle in Jesus Christ?

April 6th, Why Did Jesus Christ Weep on Palm Sunday?

April 13th, Was the Death of Jesus Christ Substitutionary?

April 20th, Was the Tomb Really Empty on That First Lord's Day?

Mr. Strouse believes many people think and speak in beautiful terms about the Jesus of history but when Jesus Christ is presented as God's Anointed to take away sin, then speculation and skepticism become rampant.

MADE $250 GIFT TO WERMAN AID SOCIETY

A gift of $250 towards the fund of the Mutual Aid society of the employes of A. Werman and Sons, shoe manufacturers, with plant on Thames street, featured the first benefit dance held Tuesday evening by the society at T. A. B. hall. A. Werman, head of the shoe plant, made a special trip to Norwich from New York in order to present the $250 check, which was a personal gift to the society.

The dance had an attendance of nearly 300 and proved a decided success in every respect. Michael Difronzo, chairman of the membership committee of the society, briefly addressed the large gathering, and announced that Mr. Werman was there in person, to present the $250 check. Mr. Werman then presented the check to the society.

Tuesday night's dance was the first of a series of monthly benefit promenades to be held by the society this winter and during the coming spring months. The net proceeds of these affairs will be added to the general fund. The Werman shoe plant employs approximately 275 hands, practically all of whom have joined the mutual aid society.

CLAIM FIND OF NATURAL OYSTER BEDS NEAR SAYBROOK

Several hundred bushels of oysters were being unloaded from motor boats at New Haven city wharf on Saturday. The boats were some of those fishing from along the off-shore coast of Clinton, Madison and Duck island, and east as far as Saybrook.

It is claimed that a bed of natural oysters has been found inside of Duck island, covering natural beds which have not hitherto been discovered.

The details of the discovery have not as yet been made public, meanwhile the shore shell-fishermen are sailing to discover the new natural beds.

GIFT TO JAMES MORTON AT FAREWELL DINNER

A farewell dinner, with covers laid for 50, was given Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel to James Morton by the overseers of the Norwich mill of the American Woolen company in recognition of the promotion of Mr. Morton to be assistant agent of Assabett mills, the largest woolen mill in the world and one of the American Woolen chain, located at Maynard, Mass.

Some of the original overseers and men connected with Norwich mills since they were built and with the Yantic mill where Mr. Morton first came were at the dinner, also Thomas Hope, from the American Woolen mill at Moosup, who is to succeed Mr. Morton as agent at Norwich mills.

Samuel M. Kaplan was toastmaster. The overseers presented Mr. Morton a beautiful desk set, which was most appropriate because Mr. Morton besides being an outstanding woolen manufacturer, one of the most famous in the United States, has a literary bent and is a writer and speaker of renown. His departure will take from the city a public spirited citizen who has been attached to a number of different organizations.

Mr. Hope, who is to succeed him as agent here, is a woolen manufacturer of much experience and the overseers of the mill here are very much pleased that he has been selected to succeed Mr. Morton, while at the same time the latter is pleased over Mr Hope's coming to Norwich because he and Mr. Hope have been cronies and the former Norwich agent is happy that the overseers will be led in the industry in Norwich by such a competent man.

There were guests at the dinner from New York and Boston and the speakers included Charles A. Saxton of the Saxton Woolen company, Silas Dean of the Saxony corporation, Herman Steizner, and Archie Perry, who made the presentation speech.

The tables which were set in the main dining room of the hotel, were beautifully decorated under the direction of Manager Melvin H. Worth.

Mr. Hope is to come here about the first of March. He has been at the American Woolen company mill at Moosup for seven years and was at the company mill at Westerly for eleven years.

Vice President Ross appointed A. D. Zabriskie a member of the refreshment committee for the next meeting and Elton Odgers a member of the entertainment committee. A rising vote of thanks was given the refreshment and entertainment committees who served Tuesday night. The entertainment provided by the committee, Rev. George Warren Potter and Woodruff T. Sullivan was greatly enjoyed as evidenced by the hearty applause. Frederick J. Maples sang in pleasing voice, "Confession" and "In Victus." He was accompanied on the piano by Miss Louise Fuller. Harry Pavey, boy magician, gave a half hour of magic and mystery. The climax to his entertainment came when he placed one of his assistants in a box on one side of the stage and he was apparently found a moment later in an empty box on the opposite side. The magician was assisted by Woodruff Sullivan, Jr. and Walter Chapman. Claude T. Robinson was stage manager.

The refreshment committee, William Burdick, William Waters and Edward Howe provided an excellent supper of oyster stew, crackers, cheese, doughnuts and coffee. The stew was made by A. D. Zabriskie. Fifteen names were added to the membership and by a vote of the club were counted charter members. Rutherford H. How a Family Doctor made Millions of Friends

FIFTEEN years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became one of the best-known members of his profession. A single prescription made him famous. And for forty years it has continued to make friends.

As fast as people could tell others about the marvelous way this prescription corrects constipation and relieves other troubles caused by sluggish bowels, demand for it spread until Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it filled in quantities; bottled and distributed through drug stores.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people would never think of using anything else when they're headachy, bilious, feverish, or weak; when breath is bad, tongue is coated or they are suffering from nausea, from gas, or lack of appetite, etc.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as you buy it from your drug store is made in accordance with the original formula from only herbs and other pure ingredients. It is pleasant tasting; its action is thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children. Above all, it represents a doctor's choice of what is safe for the bowels.

SAYS "PROTESTANT CHURCH LOBBY" PROMOTED DRY LAW

Direct Charge Made by Henry B. Joy, Detroit Automobile Manufacturer, Before the House Judiciary Committee—Asserted that George W. Wickersham, Chairman of the Law Enforcement Commission, Had Been an Active Worker in the "Protestant Church Lobby" Before He Resigned to Head the Commission—Other "Wet" Statements Heard by the Committee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.— (AP) — Prohibition was denounced and conditions under it were depicted as deplorable by opponents of the 18th amendment who renewed their arguments for its repeal today before the house judiciary committee.

Resuming sessions after a week of recess, the committee heard five witnesses argue against the dry amendment and for regulation of the liquor traffic by states. Many wets remain to be heard and Chairman Graham of the committee indicated they would have an opportunity to present their views before a time is set for the prohibitionists to appear.

Henry B. Joy, a Detroit automobile manufacturer, made the direct charge that the "Protestant church lobby" had forced not only prohibition upon the nation but also a war in an era of peace. He said the Anti-Saloon league and the Federal Council of Churches in America had interlocking relations, and that the latter was a powerful organization which reached into every village and to almost every home through ministers.

Declaring that George W. Wickersham, chairman of the law enforcement commission, had been one of the ardent workers in the "Protestant church lobby" before he resigned to head the commission, Joy said President Hoover must have known that the chairman had a long alliance with the organization.

The Detroiter appeared as one of the principal members of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. He was preceded by William H. Stayton, chairman of the board of directors of that association, who urged the repeal of the 18th amendment and restoration to states of the right of local option. He would leave the power of governing exportations, importations and interstate transportation through taxation, with the federal government.

Grayson M. P. Murphy, a New York financier, testified that he did not know a leading banker, manufacturer or industrialist who did not break the dry law. Questioned, he said he was not acquainted with Henry Ford.

Owen Johnson of Boston, a writer, representing the authors' and artists' committee of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, declared that 80 per cent of the leading writers of the country were militantly against prohibition "on account of the reign of lawlessness and corruption it has produced.

Channing Pollock, a dramatist, blamed the dry law for the filth which he said had characterised many New York theatrical productions during the past five years. He charged that "bootleg money" in the theatres was responsible.

While this hearing was in progress, Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, charged in the senate that Secretary Mellon "has never really tried to enforce" the dry laws and that no president, since their enactment, had been "really interested" in their enforcement except for political purposes.

McKellar made known that he had been requested by more than a score of Tennessee lawyers to vote for a plan to repeal the 18th amendment, but declared he could not comply because he was opposed to any weakening of the dry laws. The Tennesseean read to the senate a message addressed to Thomas H. Malone of Nashville, Tenn., who had joined in the request.

Senator Brock, also a Tennessee democrat, made public a telegram he sent to W. E. Norvell, another signer of the repeal request, in which he said he, too, was opposed to modification of the dry law.

At the outset of the hearing before the house judiciary committee, Representative Sparks, republican, Kansas, sought permission for Attorney General Smith of Kansas to cross-examine Walter Liggett, a Washington magazine writer, who last week contended before the committee that liquor was easily obtainable in Kansas, but permission was refused. Chairman Graham said he had decided such procedure would delay completion of the hearings. He also pointed out that Liggett was in a southern state and that the committee did not have the power to subpoena him.

Graham remarked that he had received a large number of communications from Kansas since Liggett had testified, which he said showed conditions there were worse than Liggett had described.

Johnson said he believed that the issue should be clear cut and openly presented before the country in a referendum," and, he added: "I believe binding decision, it should be on these additional prohibitions:

"First, that the buyer should be equally guilty with the seller.

"Second, that possession of liquor and the use of liquor should be made illegal.

"Third, the right of search of every home at least once a month.

"Finally, an addition to the federal income tax of a special tax calculated to produce the one or two billions dollars a year which will be needed for the intensive building program to expand our jails and court houses ten fold and to provide a vast abequate army of federal revenue agents."

He said this was the program of such "firm advocates of prohibition" as Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, as stated by him in numerous addresses and particularly in a magazine article.

During the testimony of Mr. Joy, objection was raised by Representative Moore republican, Ohio, to the statements made assailing Wickersham and the law enforcement commission. Graham sustained Moore and Joy omitted Wickersham's name, but said he "would shudder at the thought of the consequences in case the recommendation" of Mr. Wickersham submitted to congress should be enacted into law.

Joy said he realized "that the high Protestant church prelates composing the allied church lobby," would do anything within their power to prevent a "sane and wise solution" of the temperance problem as presented by himself and his colleagues.

"That blood shall continue to flow," he continued, "seems to be no obstacle to their wish to make every one drink only water. Water may be as much a cause of war as any other."

The Detroit manufacturer said the financial backers and churchmen of the "Protestant lobby" have a heavy responsibility for the deaths, suffering and crime which they have brought about and are continuing to cause."

NEW BRITAIN MAYOR AND COUNCIL DISAGREE

NEW BRITAIN, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Differences between Mayor Angelo Paonessa and the common council arising over the election of a comptroller to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hanford Curtis, tonight were revealed as a potential obstacle to the passage of the city's budget and authorization by the council of a $726,000 bond issue.

The council at its last meeting, elected William H. Day as successor to Mr. Curtis. The election was vetoed by the mayor. Tonight Alderman William H. Judd attempted to introduce a resolution over-riding the veto, but the mayor prevented him. When the mayor also refused the alderman an opportunity to protest against this action, the council peremptorily adjourned.

The council tonight was to have acted on the city's 1930 budget. The adjournment precluded any action.

RESENTMENT TO SOVIET RELIGIOUS PERSECUTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.— (AP) — Efforts to bring American governmental pressure upon the soviet campaign on closing churches and suppressing religious activities developed today both at the state department and in congress.

State department officials had before them about 15 appeals for intervention of some sort in the Russian situation, while in the house, Representative Fish, republican, New York, introduced a resolution to declare recognition of soviet Russia "incompatible with the traditions of the people of the United States until religious persecution in that country shall have ceased."

Those pleading guilty were Harry Goldstine, of Springfield; Dr. Robert Lantine, St. Louis, Jacob Crane, formerly of Springfield, a printer and Albert Barrow, a medical student. Judge John J. Sullivan withheld passing sentence until March 1, pending hearings for probation.

The state contended the men formed a clique which peddled spurious medical licenses.

Coolidges Witness Filming of Movies

Saw More Than 200 Actors and Actresses Perform Before Grinding Cameras at Hollywood.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge and his wife, in southern California as tourists, today fulfilled their expressed desire to see at first hand how motion pictures are made.

"I've been in the movies—the newsreels—a long time," the ex-president commented, but this morning he and Mrs. Coolidge for the first time spent half an hour watching the colorful spectacle of the movie cameras filming a scene of a screen operetta.

As guest of Will H. Hays, film dictator, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge had ringside seats beside the grinding cameras watching more than two hundred actors and actresses play their parts for the sight and sound recording equipment. Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, who entertained the noted visitors at luncheon, were in the party at the Warner Brothers studio. After the luncheon the Coolidges watched similar filming spectacles on the vast stages of the M-G-M and United Artists Studios.

Initiation of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge into the Los Angeles Breakfast club this morning lacked the traditional jocoseness attending similar introductions of noted personages. Mr. Coolidge did not indulge in the usual custom of riding the club's wooden horse "Ham," but Mrs. Coolidge joined merrily into the singing of jovial songs.

For her song "The Sweetest Flower That Grows," Mrs. Coolidge bestowed a fervent kiss upon Madame Shumann-Heink, operatic star, who entertained the guests as part of the club program. While Mr. Coolidge declined to speak over the microphone at the club, his wife stepped to the broadcasting equipment, lustily shouting the club's by-word: "Hello Ham."

CLAIMS DIVERSION OF WATER NOT HARMFUL TO CONNECTICUT

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Connecticut would not suffer through diversion of water of the Ware and Swift rivers from the Connecticut river, Frank E. Winsor, chief engineer of the metropolitan water supply commission, declared today at a hearing before a master of the dispute between Massachusetts and Connecticut. A hydrograph, 53 feet long, showing the flow of the Connecticut river and its tributaries from the year 1913 to 1929, was displayed at the hearing. Winsor spent considerable time explaining the hydrograph to Special Master Charles W. Bunn, of Minneapolis, who was appointed by the United States supreme court to sit in the case.

According to Winsor, Massachusetts would be required to release a large quantity of water from the proposed reservoir in dry seasons to maintain the flow demanded by the war department in the Connecticut. It was also developed at the hearing that the Connecticut is an international stream, having its source in Canada.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The London naval conference, its hands tied by the cabinet crisis which caused the absence of the chief French delegates, today adjourned until next Wednesday.

Since France is the key power in the present disarmament negotiations and no progress is possible until a new premier is named and her delegation returns, Col. Henry L. Stimson, of the United States, early this morning began the move for a conference holiday.

FLORENCE, Ariz., Feb. 19—(AP)—Mrs. Eva Dugan, 52 year old housekeeper, sentenced to die for the murder in 1927 of A. J. Mathis, was found sane by a jury of 12 men in superior court here today.

Mrs. Dugan was under sentence to be hanged next Friday and the insanity hearing was a last minute resort to save her from being the first woman to die on the gallows in Arizona. The state board of pardons and paroles, after reviewing her conviction, had refused to intervene.

Her execution is set for sunrise Friday. Under Arizona law, Governor John C. Phillips cannot grant Mrs Dugan either a reprieve or a commutation to life imprisonment.

France Functioning Without a Cabinet

President Doumergue Today Will Consult the Statesman Who Will Run the New Ministry.

PARIS, Feb. 19—(AP)—Despite the anaemic executive powers bestowed upon the president of France by the anti-Bonapartists constitution of 1871, Gaston Doumergue, present first magistrate of the republic, tonight was wielding a power as autocratic as any ever enjoyed by the czars of Russia.

He was solely responsible for deciding whether France shall be ruled by a cabinet made up of representatives of left, center or right parties. He kept his counsel and announced that at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow he would call to the palace the statesman to whom he will entrust the responsibility of forming a government to succeed the Andre Tardieu administration which fell before a parliamentary onslaught on Monday.

There were four possibilities mentioned for the premiership tonight. The list of probable choices for presidential favor consisted of Camille Chautemps, leader of the radical socialists, and successor to Edouard Herriot as head of the left groups; Aristide Briand, recognized leader of the moderate center, and Andre Tardieu and Raymond Poincare, who usually are described as symbolizing the right in the chamber of deputies.

President Doumergue spent the entire day consulting the leaders of political parties from both the chamber and the senate. Tonight he was host at an annual dinner given to the permanent officials of the national legislature.

The president's dilemma tonight was whether to move toward the left center or toward the moderate right in selecting a new premier. If he follows custom, he would summon M. Chautemps who is chief of the largest group in the majority that overthrew the Tardieu cabinet.

But students of political affairs predicted that if M. Chautemps was the man invited to call upon the president at 9:30 tomorrow morning, it would only result in a 48 hours of uncertainty. It was explained that the radical socialist chief could succeed in forming a cabinet only if he had the approval of M. Briand whose support would be required in order to get a parliamentary majority behind such a government.

It was further predicted that the present foreign minister would not play ball with the radical socialists. In that event, M. Briand himself might again be summoned to the premiership, but it was understood that he is already committed to a continuation of the Tardieu regime.

All of this would result in leaving either Poincare, "the savior of the franc," or M. Tardieu, the retiring premier, as the sole hopes or formation of a new cabinet without recourse to a general election.

TO BEGIN INVESTIGATION OF MANY "HUNG" JURIES

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle announced late today that he would begin an immediate grand jury investigation into conditions that have enabled many juries to fail to reach verdicts because of "a single hung juror in each case." His decision was prompted by the hung jury today in the government's trial of eight defendants in connection with the sale of stock in the Utah Lead company of Delaware.

The announcement followed questioning by George J. Mintzer and Irving Spieler, assistant United States attorneys, of the twelve members of the Utah Lead jury, who stood eleven to one for conviction. The defendants were charged with mail fraud.

Mr. Tuttle said the dissenting juror, John Crus, who came here from Porto Rico five years ago, had asked Mr. Mintzer for a Spanish interpreter during the interview.

"There have been," Mr. Tuttle said, "in my experience and the experience of my immediate predecessor (Emory R. Buckner) so many cases that failed because one juror held out for the defense that I have decided to make a thorough investigation in order to determine, among other things, how it is that man who can scarcely speak the English language can get on the jury list at all."

INVESTIGATING EXPLOSION AT BAYWAY REFINERY

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 19—(AP)—Chaos and confusion gave way today to the orderly process of investigation into the cause of the explosion at the Bayway refinery of the Standard Oil company, that sent sheets of flame shooting among more than 60 workmen, taking the lives of eleven and injuring 50.

Many of the injured will be maimed and blinded for life. Physicians at St. Elizabeth and Elizabeth General hospitals, where most of the victims lay, were unwilling to venture an estimate tonight as to how many would succumb within the course of the next two days. Those on the critical list numbered 18.

FILIPINO STUDENTS STRIKE AGAINST AMERICAN TEACHER

MANILA, Feb. 19—(AP)—Students of the Manila North high school went on strike today and demanded the dismissal of Miss Mabel Brummitt, an American teacher, whom the pupils asserted had insulted the Filipino race.

Recent attacks upon Filipinos in California and communistic agitation in the Philippines also influenced the students.

Only 50 students of the 2,770 enrolled at the school attended classes today, as a result of a resolution adopted at a mass meeting yesterday demanding the dismissal. Miss Brummitt, formerly of Valparaiso, Ind., has been in the island five years.

The teacher, the resolution recited, had insulted her pupils and the Filipino, and "time and again has branded Filipinos as savages, imbeciles, idiots and contemptible cads."

FINDS "INDISCRETIONS" IN FEDERAL NARCOTIC BUREAU

Federal Grand Jury in New York Finds Indications of Corruption in the New York Office—"Indiscretion" Charges Were Aimed at Rolland Nutt, Son of Col. L. G. Nutt, Deputy Commissioner of Prohibition in Charge of Narcotics in Washington.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—The ghost of Arnold Rothstein, slain Broadway gambler, stalked back into political circles today, when a federal grand jury handed up a presentment charging "indiscretions" and suspected corruption in the New York office of the federal narcotic bureau.

The "indiscretion" charges were directed at Rolland Nutt, son of Col. L. G. Nutt, deputy commissioner of prohibition in charge of narcotics at Washington, and L. P. Mattingly, Col. Nutt's son-in-law, in connection with legal work they did for Rothstein, who was alleged to have financed narcotic rings in this district.

Although neither of them ever represented anyone in a narcotic case, the jury found they had participated in tax matters for concerns dealing in narcotic drugs.

The jury in the presentment said that "even though the aforesaid acts may be thought indiscreet, we find no evidence that the enforcement of the narcotic laws was affected thereby."

Col. Nutt, the presentment said, testified that he did not know that his son or his son-in-law had ever acted as counsel for Rothstein until it was brought out at the inquiry.

Delving into the activities of the New York narcotic bureau, the grand jury reported that records of the bureau, "padded" with 354 cases in which arrests were made by police, and not federal agents, had found their way into congress with requests for appropriations.

The grand jury termed the "padding" as "grossly improper," and charged that it "misrepresented the true facts and created a false record as to the accomplishments of the New York office and its agent and one of the narcotic service itself."

It recommended that this information be given the secretary of the treasury "in order that the secretary may take such summary action in the premises as he deems proper."

The padding started last April, the grand jury reported, under an order telephoned from the Washington narcotic office by William E. Blanchard, assistant deputy commissioner.

"The said assistant deputy commissioner," the presentment stated, "testified that in telephoning the order, he did not approve of it, but was acting on orders from the deputy commissioner, Col. L. G. Nutt. The latter denies that he gave any other order than merely to send in a list of the cases made by the police department of New York city."

However, the report continued, the practice continued until the end of the fiscal year "with the knowledge of the Washington narcotic office and without protest."

FLIER OBTAINED LIQUOR FROM ICE OF DETROIT RIVER

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, Feb. 19.—(AP)—A warrant for the arrest of A. R. Pfaff, Zanesville, on liquor charges, was issued in common pleas court today after Clinton R. Heiligenstein, 22, Detroit aviator, pleaded guilty to transporting liquor in a plane and was fined $300 and costs and his plane confiscated.

The warrant for Pfaff was issued after Heiligenstein had informed the court that he delivered a load of Canadian liquor to Pfaff Monday night, when his plane was damaged in landing ten miles west of here.

The aviator said that he obtained the liquor from the ice on Detroit river where it had been delivered from Canada by another plane. He said he also had made deliveries by plane to Cleveland, Toledo and a number of other northern Ohio cities.

WOULD HAVE BODY OF MRS. GILLESPIE EXHUMED

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Marion Brandon, woman attorney who is suing George I. Gillespie for $574,165, charging breach of promise and fraud, testified in supreme court today that the body of Mrs. Gillespie, who died in 1924, should be exhumed and examined.

Under cross-examination by Gillespie's attorney, Mrs. Brandon admitted having written a letter stating that Mrs. Gillespie's death should be investigated.

"I certainly did write that letter." she said, "and I tell the whole world now that her death ought to be investigated.

"There are only three people who know how she died, and they are Gillespie, myself, and a third person. Her body should be exhumed and examined."

DR. LUKE FOUND GUILTY OF INVOLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER

OCILLA, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP)—A jury here today held that the "pecan killing" of Roy Moore last July was involuntary manslaughter and Dr. J. C. Luke, aged physician and long a leading citizen of Irwin county, was sentenced to from one to three years in prison.

Dr. Luke admitted killing Moore with a knife, but said it was an accident growing out of Moore's resistance to "arrest" for stealing pecans from the physician's orchard. Moore was stabbed twice in the back.

In a dying statement, Moore said the physician had choked him, then stabbed him when he tried to back off.

ACCUSED BROKER FREED IN TOMBS COURT, NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—G. Ph. Laumain De Lormes, of the brokerage firm bearing his name, who was accused of defrauding his customers of at least $150,000, was discharged in Tombs court today.

Magistrate Simpson, before whom he was arraigned, said he found a lack of felonious intent on the part of De Lormes. The broker was accused of having failed to deliver securities of the Atlantic and Pacific International corporation and City Service stocks.

TO PLANT GOLDEN ROD FOR RUBBER PRODUCTION

WAYS STATION, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Another step in Henry Ford's efforts to aid Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, in his search for a domestic plant to furnish a commercial supply of rubber, is believed under way at Cherry Hill, one of the Detroit manufacturer's Bryan county plantations.

Workers recruited from this village say preparations are being made for planting a large quantity of golden rod.

Mr. Edison some time ago announced his quest for a domestic plant to produce rubber had disclosed that golden rod probably was the answer.

FARM PRODUCTS TARIFFS INCREASED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—The senate today went through the agricultural tariffs from cheese to chicory and boosted rates on more than a dozen farm products. Eastern democrats continued to protest that the consumer's interest was not being served, but as on yesterday they got nowhere.

Senators of three factions—republican regulars, republican independents and democrats—joined in the amendment offering and all succeeded with ease. Not a single increase was defeated and only one amendment swept away existing protection. The latter affected some minor products not produced in this country.

The day's work served only to raise still higher an agricultural schedule that already had been increased to the highest level in history.

Among the commodities on which rates were raised were cheese and cheese substitutes, pineapples, dates in packages, dried beans, green peas, frozen halibut, sauerkraut, and raw chicory.

In addition, canned oysters, alligator pears, and mangos, were transferred from the free to the dutiable list.

GENERAL ELECTION THROUGHOUT JAPAN

TOKYO, Feb. 20—(Thursday)—(AP)—Balloting opened throughout Japan early today in the general election which will decide the fate of the present Minseito government, headed by Premier Yuko Hamaguchi.

The prime minister dissolved the imperial parliament Jan. 21 and appealed to the electorate for a mandate to continue in office, for approval of its program of drastic national economy and of its recent restoration of the gold standard.

In the last parliament the opposition party, the Seiyukai, had 237 seats of the total of 466, with the Minseito party holding only 173. In today's polling the government party is confident of its ability to reverse these figures.

Other contestants are half a dozen labor or proletarian groups, divided among themselves and unlikely to increase their bloc much above the seven seats held in the last house of representatives; a few small parties likely to return from one to four members, and a large sprinkling of independent candidates, of whom twenty to thirty usually are elected.

SPRING WEATHER HITS NORTHWESTERN STATES

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The sap began to flow today from Point Loma to Plymouth Rock, as spring crashed the gate a month ahead of her engagement.

The mercury that cringed several steps below zero in the northwestern states a week ago, climbed from obscurity to the eminence of the upper 60's and 70's today. The snows of yesterweek were rivers today.

The advent of a premature spring came at once to virtually the entire country. California vaunted valley temperatures as high as 86, and it was 80 at Los Angeles. Billings, Mont., wilted at 63.

The sun shone down with almost equal fervor throughout the middle states.

The weather forecaster said the mild weather would continue for at least two days.

POLICE GET MAN WANTED HERE FOR FRAUD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 19.—A lively police chase that lasted for several weeks ended today when County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler and Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady returned here this afternoon from Pittsfield, Mass., with Harold Cleveland Cooke, 44, known as the man of "nine lives." Harold Cleveland Cooke, whose criminal record, dating back to 1923, carries with it nine aliases, is wanted here for three counts of obtaining goods under false pretenses. He will be arraigned in police court Thursday morning. Cooke was arrested Tuesday in Great Barrington, Mass., after he had fallen into a neat trap set for him by County Detective Wheeler and Chief Grady. The arrest was made by Police Inspector Daniel J. McColgan, Chief William J. Oschman of Great Barrington and Officer John D. McNaughton of Pittsfield. Detective Wheeler with Chief Grady and Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Bilsh left for Pittsfield Tuesday night. They took Cooke into custody and on the return trip went to Bristol, this state, where they recovered a Hudson coach that Cooke had secured in New York state on a down payment of $25. A search of rooms in Bristol also brought about the recovery of articles secured here by Cooke under false pretenses. On separate dates the latter part of December Cooke obtained goods from Ralph U. Wolmer, jeweler, the J. B. Fullerton & company and the Union Shoe store.

Cooke's long record shows that he is known in various places under the following names: Raymond C. Day, the name by which he was known in Willimantic; R. A. Brown, George H Brown, George Jones, R. C. Chapman R. Claflin, C. S. LaBree, H. C. Cook and George Davey. While in this city for four months Cooke went into the lunch business in a diner on Union street. He later transferred the business to a store in the Wood block on that street, and suddenly vanished. His racket as described by the police was to go into a city, give an assumed name, and open a business of some description. He secured all manner of equipment on small down payments or entirely on credit and after having made a little cash from the business would disappear, frequently taking some of the articles with him.

The man, who is a native of Lebanon, N. H., had as an associate while in business here, a young woman said to be a member of a highly respectable family in Pittsfield, Mass. He is said to have been living as man and wife with the woman here and charges for this crime may develop later.

The police record shows that Cooke, under the name of Raymond C. Claflin, was sentenced to 18 months in the county penitentiary in Jersey City, N. J., on a charge of bigamy in February, 1913. On May 17, 1918, in Schenectady, N. Y., he was arraigned for petty larceny following his arrest in Worcester, Mass., and sentenced to 60 days in jail. It is understood that he is at present wanted in several other cities for various fraudulences and misrepresentations.

SECOND DEATH IN PERKINS' CORNER ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 19.—The automobile accident on Oct. 12, near Perkins' Corner, which caused the death of Mrs. Jennie E. Miller of Woodsville, N. H., claimed its second victim in the death of the woman's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Doris Miller, 33, wife of Henry L. Miller of 23 Harvard street, Springfield, Mass., at St. Joseph's hospital, Tuesday evening. Charged with manslaughter in the death of the elder Mrs. Miller, Walter M. Neff, 19, of this city is now serving a six months sentence in the Tolland county jail. Coroner Arthur G. On the evening of Oct. 12, Mr. Miller, his wife Doris, their two children, Brewster, 10, and Wesson, 4, and his mother, Mrs. Jennie E. Until the past few days it was believed that the younger Mrs. Miller was making gradual recovery. Another person who figured in this collision, R. L. Britton, of this city, a passenger in Neff's car, died here a few weeks ago from natural causes.

I., employe of the Ambrose Tool company of that place, owners of the car. A large truck parked alongside the cars lining the curb left but little room in the street and the two machines crashed. NATURALIST E. F. BIGELOW REACHES 70TH BIRTHDAY

The following extract from the "Yale Panel," a Stamford, Conn., publication, concerning Dr. Edward F. Bigelow of Sound Beach, Conn., a native of Colchester and at one time editor of the Colchester Advocate, is of interest to Colchester residents: "Jan. 14, 1930, was the birthday of Dr. Edward F. Bigelow of Sound Beach. Seventy useful and eventful years were celebrated by him on that date. Dr. Bigelow is president of the Agassis association with executive offices at Arcadia, at Sound Beach. His name, his fame, his ability and his diversified activity come to mind wherever the Agassis association is known throughout the world. He is a man who has a supreme faculty of expressing what he means in language whose phrasing ranges from the homespun to the erudite, according as exigencies demand. He is a most effective lecturer and what is best of all, he is most highly respected by everyone with whom he has come in contact.

"An utterance of Dr. Bigelow's covering his 70th birthday is to the effect that the day was spent much the same as other days of the month, by putting in it the 1930 resolution that the Agassiz association and its Arcadia shall in efficiency and usefulness further develop into what some editors have termed a real Nature university.

"Some years ago, Dr. Bigelow was president of the Connecticut Editorial association for two years. His name is fittingly exploited in 'Who's Who in America,' also in 'American Men of Science.'

"He is a man whose entire life is an inspiration to others and a call for cooperation in the further promotion of the enterprises in which he is engaged."

HOME ECONOMICS CLASS

SOPHOMORE PRACTICE HOUSE FOR BACON ACADEMY

The Sophomore Home Economics class of Bacon academy, Colchester, is one of the first, if not the first in the state to have a practice house in connection with its course. The school is fortunate in having a remodeled building in which is located a home economics laboratory consisting of five rooms. The laboratory was planned by the Home Economics instruction and the furnishings were planned and executed by the Sophomore class.

The living room with alcove is light and sunshiny, having six large windows and cream-colored walls. It is simply furnished in oak and wicker with blue predominating in curtains and cushions. It also serves as the sewing room.

A dining room opens out of this room, furnished also in oak with the same kind of hangings. This room has colonial type built-in cupboards, bright, pretty dishes and table linens.

The kitchen is strictly up-to-date in all its appointments, having electric refrigerator, three unit kitchens, built-in-cupboards, ironing boards, lockers and a large pantry. The unit kitchens carry out color schemes in yellow and green in curtains, dishes, utensils and linens. There is also an attractive bedroom with connecting bath.

A group of four academy girls with the Domestic science instructor, Miss P. M. Tiffany, who are shown in the accompanying picture, lived at the Domestic science quarters for a week recently. The girls planned menus, prepared meals and entertained guests in as nearly ideal home conditions as possible. This plan is to be followed out with other groups as the school year progresses.

Incidentally, the academy students and the townspeople are grateful to Attorney Edward M. Day, of Hartford, former Colchester resident, who so generously furnished the funds for the remodeling, redecoration and equipment for the Domestic science quarters on the first floor of the new Day Hall building, formerly the Congregational chapel. The entire building was given by Mr. Day to the academy, the top floor being fitted up as a school auditorium.

Saturday's night snowfall was the heaviest of the winter and although the sun shone Sunday the high wind made it the most disagreeable day of the season. Monday morning the thermometer registered from 10 to 15 below zero, according to locality.

There were 30 at the Congregational church Sunday morning. Rev. E. F. Smiley preached a fine sermon on the Need of God. Fourteen were at the C. E. meeting, led by Carl Josephson. At St. Paul's in the afternoon there were nine present. Rev. F. C. Williams gave a helpful talk on Prayer.

Next Sunday will be observed as Go-To-Church Sunday at the Congregational church. A special program is being planned. Rev. E. F. Smiley will speak on Washington and Lincoln and there will be special music. The missionary committee of the C. E. society is in charge of the C. E. service.

DANIELSON

PROVIDENCE MAN CAUGHT AFTER DEFRAUDING DEALER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 19—Joseph Kessler, of 459 Eaton street, Providence, was before Justice Bernier of the West Side, and in the town of Brooklyn, today to answer to a charge of fraud. Kessler "gyped" John Laine, who is in the poultry business in Brooklyn, out of $170 recently on a live chicken deal, and did it on an age-old racket. Kessler paid Laine today the full amount he should have paid him when the transaction that started state officers on Kessler's trial took place, and in view of the fact the charge of fraud against him was nolled.

The racket that Kessler pulled off on Laine worked out in about this manner: An arrangement having been agreed upon for Kessler to buy a certain rather large number of live chickens from Laine, the chickens were placed in bags to be weighed and then loaded into a 1929 Dodge truck, in which sat a companion of Kessler's, the motor of the machine running and the Kessler pal in the driver's seat. Not all of the bags of chickens were weighed, some of them being thrown into the truck without that formality, as has been done numbers of times in the past. Laine nothing, for Kessler left a sum hereabouts. Protest as to this availed of money $170 short of what he should have paid on the table at Laine's home, went out, hopped in the machine and drove off.

The fact that there were Massachusetts number plates on the car and the checking up as to this sent State Officer H. Theodore Strand of the local barracks on a wild goose chase to Brockton before it was established that the address given was a fictitious one.

However, a watch has been kept for Kessler, and when he showed up in Brooklyn again today he was arrested, after a chase that led down into Canterbury, by State Officers Strand and Martin.

Kessler may be easily identified by the fact that he has but one hand, the other being severed at the wrist.

SELLS GOODS AT LESS THAN COST; POLICE SUSPICIOUS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 19—This afternoon state officers of the Danielson barracks had a queer customer on their hands, one John Zovslak, 13, of Moosup. This youth has been going about selling groceries and cigarettes to householders at less than the commodities can be purchased in wholesale lots. His field has included Danielson, Goodyear, Putnam and North Grosvenordale.

He was a classy vendor, too, and notwithstanding that a check up of sales slips obtained by state officers and having to do with his business activities show that he lost $1.00 to $4.00 or $5.00 on about every sale he made, he has been hiring taxi drivers to take him about to call on customers and deliver orders. It appears that he has discovered some hereto unknown economic theory by which money can be made by selling goods for less than the cost at wholesale or else has a source of obtaining them that he has not revealed. State officers are going to find out about this before he is at large again. It was indicated they had their own ideas about the whole matter this afternoon, but were not talking about it.

Zovslak has been selling standard and popular brands of cigarettes for 85 cents a carton. Dealers in them insist it can't done at a profit. One could, and numbers did, buy 25 lbs. of sugar from him, and got deliveries, for a dollar. That quotation would make even a chain store manager weep. Other things, especially groceries, were sold on the same low-price basis. A considerable amount of stuff Zovslak has been handling are standard A. and P. brands. And that is interesting to the state officers checking up on the case. Where did he get the goods, and how? Zovslak had not deigned to explain up to late this afternoon. He admits that he has been doing a good business the past four or five months, and that his customers were pleased with his prices and service—naturally.

Sergeant G. L. Gardner picked him up in Moosup this morning and brought him here. This afternoon officer and prisoner were going about to stores here to check up on some of Zovslak's statements.

Take it on his own word, Henry D. Crosby, Academy street, is "having the best experience of a life time" in Florida. Mr. Crosby went south some time since to join Mrs. Crosby and her father, Vine R. Franklin, venerable veteran of the G. A. R. "I've got the real Florida fever" writes Mr. Crosby, who in years gone by, as a traveling salesman, ranged far and wide over these United States, yet never until a short time ago had been in the 'Gator state.

Mr. Crosby has been doing things and seeing things, as is typical of such an energetic man. He writes: "I expect to come here every winter. Have my next winter trip all planned. I will be located on the Gulf of Mexico, either at Palmetto or Sarasota. I have seen many wonders and unusual things since I came down here. Had the good fortune, also, to see Coolidge, Ford and Edison when on our trip to the southern part of the state. Big time at Fort Myers and St. Petersburg."

Members of Killingly grange were splendidly entertained Monday evening when a program was presented under the direction of Miss Theda Ray, member of the faculty of Killingly high school and the home economics class which she instructs. The program was presented during the lecturer's hour and included three plays, poems, recitations and solos, as well as group singing.

Following the closing of the grange the Haymakers' orchestra played for dancing. The grangers expressed particular gratification to Miss Ray for the excellence of the program and to Walter Bruce, also of the high school faculty, lecturer of the grange, for their services in making possible such an unusually entertaining evening.

Killingly grange is a virile organization, with its membership actively interested in making the meetings scheduled for this year of exceptional interest and value.

Yankee Division veterans from this section who served in Rhode Island units of the famous 26th division were invited to be present tonight, in Providence, at a showing of several reels of motion pictures taken last fall by two Providence members of an artillery outfit of the division while they were in France to retrace the routes the division followed during the World war.

Because of the fact that Washington's birthday comes on Saturday—a school holiday—this year, appropriate exercises in observance of the day will be held in schools hereabouts on Friday of this week.

The 1930 Hand Book of Quinebaug Pomona grange is filled with interesting matter relative to the plans of the organization for the year. All regular meetings are listed, and much of a statistical nature pertaining to the organization. The annual field day is to be held this year at Highland farm, Mansfield Hollow, on Aug. 21. Dr. F. W. Page of Danielson, a member of Brooklyn grange, is a member of the committee of arrangements. Elmer Green of Plainfield grange is chairman of the committee. No meeting of the Pomona grange is scheduled to be held in this town, which has two subordinate granges during 1930.

Those who watch the under current of things hear that a relatively secret canvass is underway in Danielson for candidates to run against present incumbents of town and borough offices. Those officials who would be ousted, and they need not be named here at this time, appear to be in for something more than the ordinary degree of opposition for some reason that is not too clear to the public at large. However, it is already indicated that they will have more than the average degree of support at the proper time, and that is something else again, and also of considerable interest. It is held that a real contest of votes will do the community good and clear the atmosphere.

These are days when many a man, and woman, is fussing around with the preparatory work of getting out an income tax, an obligation that must be discharged by March 15.

Advanced spring showing of cotton broadcloth and printed percale dress-goods in attractive designs at 25 and 29 cents per yard at the retail salesroom of Powdrell and Alexander, opposite the Main street plant.—Adv.

Robert Sands, a local contractor and builder, has joined the considerable number of people that are sojourning in Florida for a few weeks.

Fred Worch of the Jacobs Mfg. company organization has returned here after having spent nine weeks in a Woonsocket hospital, recovering from fractured bones and other injuries sustained when he was hurt in an automobile accident, with other minor members of his family at holiday time.

This being a day hinting of spring, but apparently with spring weeks away, there were boys in Danielson who found a place in the southern section of the borough where they could shoot marbles, and were seemingly very happy about the opportunity.

Dozens of the employes of Powdrell and Alexander are included in the cast of the third annual musical show of the big corporation, and are rehearsing diligently for their appearance before the footlights next week.

It is anticipated that J. Leo Bodo an assistant cashier of the Windham County National bank, will return to his home here Saturday after having spent what has gone of the month at a hospital in Hartford. He is reported as very materially improved in health.

Nathan D. Blumenthal was in Hartford today attending a convention of hardware dealers from many sections of Connecticut.

PUTNAM

CITY BUDGET SHOW AN INCREASE OF $1600 OVER 1929

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 19.—A sum of $57,-380 was budgeted Tuesday evening at a meeting of the common council, to meet the expenses to be incurred in the operation of the municipality during the coming fiscal year beginning March 1. The total amount of the city budget compiled exceeded the appropriations for 1929 to the extent of $1600. The unusually low tax rate of six and one half mills levied last year will remain unchanged. The additional half mill will be applied to the reduction of the sewer debt. Following a meeting of the finance committee it was recommended and later voted that the following amounts be appropriated at the special city meeting, for the operation of city departments: Fire department $9,300, (increase of $800); police department, $12,500, (decrease of $500); city court, $2,500 (same); highway department, $12,500, (increase $500); sewer upkeep, $450, (same); general expense, $4,500, (increase $500); street lights, $9,500, (increase $300), city clerk, $400, (same) city treasurer, $400, (same); municipal interest, $4,500, (same); lights in municipal building, $480.

The cost of operating the city over a period of twelve months is exceedingly low when compared to the current expenses of other towns and cities surrounding Putnam. The same applies to the low rate of tax, being enjoyed by the tax payers of Putnam, made possible only through the economical manner in which the city affairs are being conducted. The annual city meeting will be held on Monday, March 3, at 9 a. m., at which time the above stated amounts will be voted upon.

The parking situation again found its way into the council chambers when Alderman Robert T. Chadwick, chairman of the rules and ordinance committee, reported that the enactment of a two-hour system of parking on the business streets had met the favor of the public and in a motion to the council recommended its adoption. The system is to be regulated by a time limit. The plan met opposition from Alderman Francis X. Vadnais, a member of the democratic bloc in control of governing vote, on the grounds that a limited parking system would not be an adequate solution of the existing situation. However, after a lengthy debate the council voted that the two-hour time limit plan be drawn up in form and presented to the council for acceptance or rejection.

The hose wagon of the Eagle Hose company at the Smith street station in the north end is to be equipped with pneumatic tires at a cost not to exceed $430. The bill to purchase the new "shoes" for the truck was introduced by Alderman John M. Dean, a member of the fire committee who stated that the need of tires was imperative in order to safeguard the lives of the firemen. The hose truck is unfit for further service, Chief Thurston asserted, following the introduction of the bill. It was his recommendation that a new piece of apparatus be purchased to replace the worn vehicle, which should finish its municipal career in the service of the highway department. A unanimous vote was accorded the motion to equip the truck with tires.

The small fund remaining from the 1929 budget of the police department is to be expended in the purchase of new traffic signs and other much needed equipment for the department.

The matter of providing an electrical white way for the business section of the city at the expense of the city was passed without consideration. Alderman Robert T. Chadwick, commenting on the recommendation of the chamber of commerce that such an institution should be placed in the center of the city at the expense of the government said: "That should be financed by the merchants who will derive the benefits."

The special meeting of the common council held Tuesday evening was presided over by Alderman At Large Warren S. Ames, acting in the absence of Mayor Charles A. Richard who is confined to his home, recovering from a recent illness. Acting Mayor Ames at the close of last night's meeting appointed Aldermen Migneault, Vadnais and Berthiaume as a committee to visit the mayor and convey to him the council's sincere regrets and wishes for a speedy recovery.

In superior court in this city today before Judge John Rufus Booth decision in the case of the Rhode Island Motor Sales company vs. Robert Diamond of this city was reserved. The suit was for recovery of a car and was brought by the Rhode Island concern to recover a car sold to Diamond by an agent who was unauthorized to make negotiations under terms offered Diamond. The case required several hours to introduce testimony. The civil session was adjourned at two o'clock by Judge Booth until Friday, Feb. 21, to re-convene at Willimantic. On the list on that date will be the hearing of a petition from Receiver Lewis A. Waterman of the National Rhea company, asking that the bankrupt property be disposed of at an auction sale to be conducted without restriction as to price.

A temporary suspension of operations was necessitated at noon today at the National Rhea company on Canal street, pending the arrival of raw material. The stock which was shipped several days ago was delayed, but is expected to reach here either late tonight or during the early hours of Thursday, in order that work at the plant may be resumed at once, Superintendent Leonard H. Mellor said this morning.

Since manufacturing was resumed a week ago under the management of Receiver Lewis A. Waterman of Providence, the Rhea company has been gradually working up to its former status. Nearly fifty workers are engaged and the employment list is being constantly augmented as the stock in process nears the goal of the finished product.

Present indications are that the Cargill Trust company will be housed in its new home on Main street early in the spring. During the past few months, builders have been actively engaged in the finishing of the interior portions. The work of plasterers is nearing completion and within a few weeks interior decorators will have begun the work of applying the finishing touches. The new building will be one of the finest types of banking houses in the state, when finished.

Rotarian John F. Reardon, agent of the Grosvenordale Mills company, North Grosvenordale, spoke of the activities of State Trade Schools, past, present and future, at the weekly luncheon and meeting of the Rotary club held today at the Putnam Inn. Mr. Reardon told of requirements to equip a public institution of this kind. He dwelt upon the value of such a house of learning being centered in a community and of its importance in relation to the training of the American youth in the ways of earning livelihood. The trade school was characterized as a valuable asset to the poor boy who is unable to secure a grammar and high school education. In his talk, the textile man gave an outline of what trade schools should cover, prepared and recommended by Dr. Albert B. Meredith shortly before he retired as state commissioner of education. Mr Reardon's instructive discourse was well received by the club members who accorded him a rising vote of thanks.

Next Wednesday, members of the Putnam Rotary club will listen in on the silver jubilee of Rotary International, the celebration taking place in the national capital at Washington, D. C. The programme of exercises marking the anniversary will be brought to the assembly room of the local club at the Putnam inn, through a radio receiver to be installed by Rotarian Warren W. Averrill. President Newson, of Rotary International, will preside at the observance and will be assisted by many dignitaries of state residing in Washington, who will be guests of the organization. The broadcast will have a broad scope. By means of specially adapted short wave transmitting apparatus the programme will be received abroad.

It appeared today that fashion's most recent decree— painted finger nails, had found its way into Connecticut when several young ladies, members of the student body at the fashionable Howe—Marot school for girls in Thompson appeared about the city with their fingernails prettily decorated with daubs of paint of hues that harmonized with the color of their gowns. The college girls attracted much attention as they displayed the latest and most unique fad. Painting of the fingernails is a custom recently initiated at Smith and Wellesley colleges and from all appearances seems to be enjoying a large following among the residents of the dormitories at the Thompson college.

Only matters of routine business were transacted at the February meeting of the town school committee held last evening at the offices of Torrey and Geissler on Main street. Attorney Eric H. Johnson, chairman of the committee, presided at the session.

Howard Carpenter, letter carrier at the local post office, has been named as a delegate to represent this office at the convention of city mail carriers to be held in Hartford Thursday. Henry L. Converse, member of the city mail carrying staff is an alternate.

Attorney Philip D. Pond of New Haven was in this city today, attending sessions of superior court here.

"The Greatest Man of the 19th Century" will be the subject of an address to be delivered at the Congregational church tomorrow evening by Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown, dean of Yale university. Dr. Brown's speech will dwell on the life of Lincoln.

Miss Katherine Byrne, of Seward street, was in Hartford today.

Friends of Thomas F. Ryan, of School street, overseer at the Putnam Woolen company, will be glad to learn of his return to his home in this city yesterday from St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester where he had been a patient for nearly six weeks. Mr. Ryan's condition is much improved.

Henry Dubuc and Lorne Gregg, Danielson Rotarians and Rotarian Russell P. Sanford of Worcester, Mass., were guests of the Putnam Rotary club at its weekly luncheon and meeting held today at the Putnam Inn.

L. A. Knight and George Parker, auditors attached to the New Haven headquarters of the Southern New England Telephone company, were in this city and Danielson today where they made annual audits of the commercial affairs of the exchanges.

Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett and her daughters, Mrs. E. L. Beebe, of Whittemore street and Mrs. Iver S. Nelson were in Worcester today.

JEWETT CITY

NOT AN APPEAL FROM ASSESSORS' VALUATIONS

Today (Thursday) Griswold board of relief is to hold its last session for 1930. A record has been established which certainly speaks well for some body. With a tax list of two and one-quarter millions of dollars, to date not a person has appeared before the relief board to take any exception from the acts of the assessors.

The late Dr. J. Byron Sweet, who served on the assessors' board for over thirty years, was doubtless the premier in that very precise and important part of the duties of a town official. It is said of the doctor, that he knew more about the actual values of the farm property of Griswold, than any other man. The acreage of a man's holdings away off the main road, meant but little to Dr. Sweet, when it came to assessing its value for taxation. He adjudged it for its worth from the standpoint of its productive value, rather than according to its area. The senior assessor at present, Irving O. Burdick, also has a long term of service to his credit. Judging from the "no work" term of the board of relief, it would appear that the doctor's mantle had descended upon Mr. Burdick.

Invited to Norwich

The women of the Baptist church have been invited to attend a Washington Tea, to be given this (Thursday) afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the parlors of the Central Baptist church in Norwich. The guests will meet Mrs. A. D. Markley, a teacher in the Mather school, Beaufort, S. C. During the afternoon Mrs. Markley will tell something about the work in which she is engaged.

To Preach On Birthday

Rev. Albert H. Clement, will be 86 years old Sunday next. In honor of his birthday Rev. E. E. Scates, pastor of the Baptist church, has invited his friends to occupy his pulpit. Mr. Clement is a native of the New Hampshire hills, with many years of service as a Christian minister. A clergyman of the old school, he has never written a sermon, and he has no old trunk to dig one from.

Jewett City, dating from away back in Hugh Duffy's time, always held the medal in this section for producing ball players. The list of top-notchers that have been made right on the local diamonds, is well known in the professional world. One man said today, when he dodged a fusilade of snowballs, as the kids were coming home from school, that he could pick out the beginners of a future local team. Across main street, some of them threw toa bull's eye every time.

Miss M. A. Burdick was greatly pleased when she received a shower of valentines and gifts on Valentine day. She has been confined to her home for a week, having a sprained wrist.

The Woman's auxiliary to the Legion Post, enjoyed a Valentine social Monday evening, also celebrated Mrs. N. J. Babcock's birthday with birthday cards. Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt made a delicious birthday cake on which was one candle, for Mrs. Babcock is not of the disposition to even grow old. Candy hearts, mints and salted peanuts were served by the president, Mrs. E. M. Gray. Each one received a valentine favor and it proved altogether an enjoyable evening.

The several grades in the school of mission study, whic bhas been held at the Baptist church will close their course with this week's sessions. Mrs. B. R. Gardner, with Ruth Cathcart as assistant has been in charge of the children's department, and her class has had 23 enthusiastic students. The subject has been the Philippines, with the study carried on by means of a book, The Philippine Playmate. Mrs. Gardner entertained with a little party at which the children enjoyed the lunch which was in the line of their study, and included rice cakes, rice balls and rice cookies. These sessions will mark the beginning of a local chapter of the Children's World Crusaders.

New Fashion Tendencies Favor Classic Grecian Lines

WOMEN who are favorably endowed by nature will be interested to learn that the new Parisian styles favor the classic Grecian lines, especially for formal or evening wear. The "beanstalk flapper" types are somewhat superseded by the Junoesque and statuesque fashions, emphasizing normal waistlines and draperies in one-sided Grecian decollete treatments. In other words, the larger woman is due for a larger measure of popularity.

HAVE YOU BEEN SPATTERED?

Perhaps you were one of those who had a bucket, more or less, of sposh or dirty water thrown over you in the last day or two, or happened to witness someone else get such treatment. If it happened to you there can be a sort of fellow feeling for the other person in a similar predicament, and yet it is impossible to witness someone else being made the victim without displaying a bit of sympathy.

It cannot be said that all motorists who are responsible for throwing such material onto walks, against buildings and over people do it intentionally. It isn't necessary, however, to witness many such instances without coming to the conclusion that much of it is due to the manner in which cars are speeded through puddles and through the remaining bits of snow in the gutters, and that a large proportion of such cases could be prevented by a bit of anticipation and reduced speed.

The person going along the sidewalk gets a surprise party when such a wet blanket is received. The exclamations are much alike. What is thought of the driver of the car is not always audibly expressed, but in that it is believed there would be a rousing chorus of denunciation if all were to be recorded.

No discrimination is made between old and new clothes, but there are not many ready to declare that it doesn't matter. Even if the damage is removable there is always that injury to pride which doesn't come out as easily.

But what is the remedy? Is it going to be necessary to erect barriers along the curbstones for the protection of the pedestrians or must the people that walk stay at home for fear of being deluged with slush? Is it going to be necessary for someone to appeal to the courts in the form of a damage suit in order to get redress for damage done? Must all the snow be cleaned away and all the water mopped up before the person on the sidewalk can expect to go walking for business or pleasure?

It would, of course, be wholly out of the question to think of suggesting that motorists should guard against this spattering by driving slower and more carefully, but some motorist might propose it rather vehemently if a new or newly washed car should happen to get plastered.

TARIFF DELAY DISTURBING

Full justification exists for the appeal which the president has made for the speeding up of the tariff legislation. There is no secret about the fact that the combination of insurgents and democrats in the senate has been responsible for delaying action on that legislation. They hold the reins in their hands and they have proceeded to cause endless delay in dealing with the various schedules and exercising every opportunity for prolonging the day when such a measure as the senate approves is completed.

Repeatedly it has been shown that those among the two groups making up the coalition could have kept to the tariff and gotten that out of the way. Almost anything has been sufficient to cause it to be set aside for the time being and hours and days spent in dealing with other things, many of them inconsequential and resorted to simply for the purpose of delay. It has been a demonstration on the part of the coalition that it was going to do as it pleased so long as the administration could be annoyed, the country notwithstanding, and responsibility for it must rest upon the shoulders of those who have participated.

That the appeal should be made at this time that business would like to see the uncertainty cleared up and would be helped by getting the tariff out of the way is wholly consistent. The demand for tariff revision did not create uncertainty in business. The revision is needed if it can be properly done, but inasmuch as business has suffered a set-back because of other conditions it is evident that it is not going to get any encouragement to push ahead as long as such foolishness is being displayed in the United States senate, where helps may be looked for but where handicaps are equally possible. Till something definite is known about the tariff a hand-to-mouth policy is bound to prevail in many lines of industry.

There is a real opportunity for congress to give its assistance to business, if through no other means than doing something constructive with the tariff. Certainly the senate doesn't inspire business to have faith in its ultimate decision. Faith isn't inspired by the antics which have been displayed by the coalition which now controls. Business knows it, others know it.

HELPING PORTO RICO

Since Theodore Roosevelt has gone to Porto Rico as governor general he has been spending much time looking into the conditions which prevail there and endeavoring to get a grasp of the situation in such a manner as to offer some needed help in bettering the outlook. He hasn't been there long but long enough to learn that there is a bad financial situation, a disposition to run into debt and a decided lack of efficiency in the government.

He has been able already to point out certain administrative reforms which ought to be undertaken without delay and he has urged the cheap water power available in great quantities for the development of more industries. He has been able to put forth his suggestions in the language of the island and therefore it is not improbable that he has got his views home to a greater number.

Porto Rico's problem isn't all of recent development. There are age-old conditions there which have been encouraged and which need to be abandoned. Porto Rico is an island which has experienced big strides in the production of sugar, cigars, coffee and fruits. Production in these lines has doubled and trebled and quadrupled. Sugar is produced to a volume ten times as great as at the close of the last century, cigars are exported to a value 20 times that of 1901 and almost as big a business has been built up in the exportation of fruits, until, all told, Porto Rico does an export business of more than $100,000,000. And it has by no means approached its limit.

Under such conditions it is very unfortunate that its government conditions are not such as to meet the situation there squarely. Waste, a desperate financial condition, and an inadequate income coupled with the fact that there is not only too much politics but too much bad politics, presents a situation which is in need of reform.

If Porto Rico is aware of this situation it is apparent that it has not made the necessary moves to overcome it. It cannot be all attributed to the hurricane. There must be glaring need for real inspiration in the handling of the situation and from the serious manner in which Governor Roosevelt has tackled the problem it is entirely possible that he can furnish that inspiration.

WHERE GUNMEN REIGN

Whenever a person runs amuck or murder is committed where firearms are used there is raised the question of curbing the carrying of firearms. It is bound to happen because it is believed that through the stopping of gun toting and through making it impossible for persons to get firearms the taking of much human life would be prevented.

In connection with gun toting it is inevitable that the conditions in the city of Chicago should cause it to be pointed out as an instance where there should be a suppression of the practice of carrying firearms. Certainly if there ever was a city which needed to deal more effectively with its gunmen it is Chicago. They not only carry revolvers but they produce machine guns and operate them in the streets and it is natural that it should have held before it the desirability of having legislation such as other cities and other states have provided for dealing with such a situation.

That might be regarded as sufficient to stir Chicago and Illinois to action if it were not so that they seem to have, all the law that is necessary. The trouble is that no use is being made of it.

Chicago has presented a picture of late of falling down seriously in many directions. It has gotten into a deplorable financial muddle because of an inefficient city government and with the failure to enforce a law which is at hand concerning gun toting it would appear that it was inviting the very conditions which it has been experiencing. If nothing is done when something can be done to suppress the gunmen, Chicago must stand indicted for its predicament. Its helplessness appears to be quite as much due to its failure to help itself as to the control displayed by the criminal classes. This is directly due to its authorities and indirectly due to the people themselves.

ALEXANDER P. MOORE

When Alexander P. Moore started his career as an office boy he little dreamed where his success would lead him. He may have hoped that some day he would be mingling with national leaders, kings and foreign celebrities, but it is probable that that was no more than a hazy hope. Yet that is what happened. He began where many others have who became prominent in the newspaper business, and worked his way to the top. He displayed in his makeup a charm and an ability that indicated that he was due to be a leader and when the time came that important posts were to be filled in the diplomatic corps of this country he was chosen.

There is nothing to indicate that he had trained himself particularly with such an appointment in view, and yet he probably would have been no more successful in his work had he undergone years of special schooling with that goal ahead.

As ambassador to Spain he was eminently successful and it was with much regret in that country and by King Alfonso that he concluded his service there. As ambassador to Peru and in his work in connection with the dispute over Tacna and Arica between Peru and Chile he rendered masterly service. His influence was extremely valuable and effective and because of his aptitude for such work and his natural as well as acquired talent in diplomacy he was picked as ambassador to Poland. Much was expected of him in that role with the various problems existing in that country but death stepped in to deprive both this country and Poland of his services at that post. It also removes an outstanding American, whose record has been conspicuous and whose passing will be sincerely mourned.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Have you received your contribution from the slush distributors?

If you have any of these Washington letters that have never been published, or stories that have never been told, this is the week for them.

The Detroit Free Press refers to "the senate yappers" who protested the appointment of Chief Justice Hughes, but it must have noticed that one of Michigan's senators was also found voting against the former justice. One who supports a yapper is just as bad as the yapper.

A SNUB FOR A SNOB

"Game—and set," called Laurel as her partner's drive went sizzling down the side line. Gilbert could certainly play tennis. And he was there with the looks, too. Which didn't hurt him with Laurel, any more than it would with Peg, Meg or Mabel.

What was it Mr. Wilson had said of Gilbert when he backed out of going to China for the company? "Lacks iron." That was it, "Lacks iron." Oh, well, a girl wanted a husband, not a mineral deposit. Of course, Gilbert hadn't asked her yet, but they—well, they played tennis together every evening in the park. And when Gilbert got the breaks he could certainly Tilden them.

"Meet you the usual time," said Laurel, looking up from her desk the following afternoon.

"Sorry," said Gilbert. "I can't. I'm going to play at the Baycove club."

"The Baycove," exclaimed Laurel. "That's stepping some."

"A fellow who saw me playing," explained Gilbert, "is getting me in. The society birds like to have some good young players to represent the club in the tournaments. And these public courts get you nowhere."

"We've had some pretty good fun on them," said Laurel.

"But it doesn't get you ahead," repeated Gilbert. "Got to be a snob these days. I read a pretty good article about that. Mix with the rich, not the poor, it said. Just as easy to marry the boss' daughter as his secretary—I mean, as any other girl."

"Too bad Mr. Wilson hasn't a daughter," smiled Laurel.

"No," said Gilbert, "but he has that niece who keeps house for him. And she," he added, "is a member of the Baycove."

"Oh," said Laurel.

After Gilbert had left Laurel sat on at her desk. She had looked forward to winning, with Gilbert as a partner, the mixed doubles in the park tournament. Now that practice was off for this evening she didn't know what to do with herself.

"Not off to play tennis?" Laurel started. It was Mr. Wilson on his way out. Not so very much older than Gilbert, thought Laurel. Had a different look about him, though. Not so smooth; more of a wrought-iron look.

"My partner wouldn't—er, couldn't get away," said Laurel.

"Do you think I could take his place this evening?" plumped Mr. Wilson with the air of one going in off the deep end.

"But—but" said the surprised Laurel, "we play in the park. It's not a very good court."

"Well," responded Mr. Wilson, "I'm not a very good player. So that makes it right, doesn't it?"

"I never thought we'd win that first set," said Laurel as they left the court. "Not when they took the first three games."

"You played up splendidly, partner."

"No, no," insisted Laurel. "It was you. You went after everything," she said, thinking of Gilbert, who believed in letting the hard ones go.

"We must play together again," said Mr. Wilson; "it's nice to have a partner one can rely on." And play together again they did, for Gilbert's abandonment of the public courts was final. "You don't meet the right people," he said. "Now at the Baycove—why I'm playing with the boss' niece in the mixed doubles. Er—you see," he added lamely, "I can't play with you in the park tournament."

"I understand," said Laurel. "And, anyway, I'm entered with a new partner."

Summer turned into August, and there came the formal, Davis cuplike tournament of the Baycove club and the happy-go-lucky, but just as keenly contested 'net tilt' of the public courts. In the final Laurel and Mr. Wilson, after losing the first set 3-6, carried game after game to deuce until their opponents collapsed through sheer exhaustion. From the evening paper Laurel learned that, at the Baycove Gilbert and Miss Wilson had, after taking a runaway lead in the first set, been rather badly beaten.

"Sorry to see you lost yesterday," sympathized Laurel next morning.

"Too much like work," said Gilbert. "I'm giving up tennis. Being a playing member gets a fellow nowhere. It's the directors that count. Have to be a snob to get ahead nowadays, and when I'm living in the boss' house—"

"In Mr. Wilson's house?"

"Yes, I'm marrying his niece," said Gilbert, blushing slightly. "And we'll naturally live in his house."

"Oh, but I wouldn't like that," exclaimed Laurel.

"You needn't worry," Gilbert generously assured her; "success won't make me high-hat you."

"It isn't that," said Laurel; "it's just that when Mr. Wilson and I are married we'll want our house to ourselves."—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—Folks unfamiliar with old Spanish customs despite songs about 'em, may have been a bit confused over press reports on current political happenings in Colombia.

They learned from Bogota that a Dr. Herrera Olaya Herrera, had been seemingly overwhelmingly elected to the presidency, upsetting, as a liberal, a conservative precedent for holding that office which had lasted half a century.

The victor was, Bogota dispatches reported, Colombian minister in Washington. From Washington, however, readers learned the minister's name was Dr. Enrique Olaya and it so stands in the official diplomatic list.

Big Man, Big Name

To dispel confusion, let the full name of this 200 pounds of amiable personality be stated now. It is Enrique Olaya Herrera, clearly; but if that old Spanish custom were followed strictly probably it should be written Olaya Herrera and represent family names of both father and mother. For some reason unknown to the Bystander Dr. Olaya simplified his name for Washington usage.

As a matter of fact, this business of perpetuating family names of both parties after marriage becomes somewhat confusing when you run an eye down the diplomatic list. The third secretary of the Mexican embassy, for instance, is, by list, Don Jorge Dassle-Segura. On the same list, however, his wife is Senora Dona Maria Guadalupe Villerreal de Dassle-Segura.

Getting back to Dr. Olaya. He has the distinction of never having run for political office before. He has been Colombian minister for eight years covering two conservative administrations at home. To find a comparative American political arrangement you would have to imagine President Hoover appointing Al Smith ambassador to London—and a republican senate confirming the nomination.

Aerial Hustings

This particular Colombian liberal paved the way for his overthrow of conservative control of the presidency in rather American fashion.

He has long been an aviation enthusiast—economically speaking. He has long believed the future of commercial aviation, but largely for the other fellow. As a very big and hefty man he has always had that instinctive suspicion of the durability of frail looking furniture. He had to be careful where he sat. He never went joy riding in the air until the presidential bee stung him. But his campaign was waged by airplane, which proves, at least, that he has the courage of his convictions.

Dr. Olaya is expected to return to Washington before he takes over the presidency. Under the Hoover Latin-American good-will program you can bet he'll get official honors as president-elect when he comes.

And he will not like them for he doesn't care for social gaieties.

YOUR HEALTH

The Value Of Milk

By J. S. Bainbridge, M. Sc., London.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Milk is more than a drink. It is the most important food we possess, especially for babies and growing children, and it is a scandal that in America three times as much per head is spent on milk and cheese as in the British Isles, and that even in America it is only half what it ought to be.

What does milk contain that makes it so important to health? In the first place, it contains a larger number than does any other one type of food of those food elements which are essential for building up a strong, sturdy body, and what is of equal importance, it contains these elements in a form which is easily absorbed and assimilated by the body.

In one particular only does it fail—its iron content is low. The amount of iron in two pints of milk is considerably below that required daily by the blood to keep it in a good healthy condition. It does contain a little, however, and that small quantity is of infinitely greater importance than its numerical value would indicate, because it is present in a form which can be easily and wholly utilized by the body. In any case, a newly-born baby—the only person relying solely on milk as his food supply—has a reserve store of iron in his tissues on which he can and does draw until he is old enough to take other foods containing a higher percentage of iron than does milk. Eggs and green leafy vegetables, such as spinach, are examples of such foods.

Milk contains protein, first class body-building proteins—just the kind for promoting healthy growth, with good, firm muscles; it is rich in mineral salts, especially in calcium and phosphorus, without which neither strong bones nor good healthy teeth can be formed, it is one of the best sources of the vitamins—those elusive but all-important constituents of food which act as controllers of the whole complicated processes of growth; and has a high calorific or fuel value.

Everybody, from the youngest to the oldest, needs at least a pint of milk per day, while young children and nursing and pregnant mothers should take larger quantities than this.

"If milk is stinted, the child may be stunted, and more than stunted; it may lack those powers of resistance based on sound nutrition which should be its defensive armour against disease." So stated a Ministry of Health pamphlet in 1921 and the statement is as true today as when it was written.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 16

Under the revenue act the maximum amount which may be claimed as earned income to which a credit of 25 per cent applies is $30,000. To claim this credit on the tax due on net income in excess of $5,000, the income must actually be earned by the taxpayer as "wages, salaries, professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services."

The tax on an earned income of $30,000 is computed, in the case of a married person without dependents, as follows:

Net income	$30,000
Less personal exemption	3,500
Balance taxable	26,500
One-half of 1 per cent on first 4,000	20
2 per cent on next $4,000	80
4 per cent on remaining $18,500	740
Surtax on net income of $30,000	880
Total normal and surtax	1,720
Less 25 per cent of $1,720, earned-income credit	430
Balance of tax payable	1,290

A taxpayer may have earned during the year a salary of $100,000 or more, but the 25 per cent credit applies only to $30,000 of such amount.

CHILD TRAINING

That Kindergarten!

Mrs Nestor Noel

For a few months I lived near a kindergarten. A woman in the house next to mine could see it when she went into the garden to hang up the clothes.

One day she remarked in the presence of her children, "I can't stand that kindergarten."

"Oh!" I exclaimed astonished, for I loved to hear and see the young children at their play. "Why?"

"They make so much noise!" she exclaimed.

I could not help laughing. They did not make half as much noise as the boys at the school to which she sent her sons.

"You have small children," I said. "I think you are fortunate to be so near this kindergarten. My little girl is too old to go; but, as she watches them, she often says, 'Mother, why didn't you send me to a kindergarten?' I could not do so, for when she was the proper age we were on the prairie, miles from everything."

"That must have been dreadful," said my neighbor.

"It was in many ways," I answered and then I went on to tell her some of the advantages of the kindergarten. I told her of the careful study the teachers made of each child. I told her about the way the children played, and explained how kindergarten education not only gave a good start but was a decided benefit all through their lives.

I pointed out two children, Marie and Evelyn, who went to this kindergarten every day. We both knew these girls; they were the best-mannered in the neighborhood.

The woman listened as I talked. It was easy to see she was interested. I returned to my kitchen. The seed was sown. There seemed no more to be done.

The next Monday, I saw this woman pass my house. She was leading her youngest children, a boy and a girl, by the hand. She went into the kindergarten with them!

"After all," I thought, "we never know when we sow our seed whether it will fall on stony places, among thorns or into good ground. This time the ground must have been of the very best, though I did not know it at the time!"

The two children ran past my house when school was over; they were smiling and chatting happily.

"Do you like kindergarten?" I asked them a few days later.

"We love it!" they exclaimed together. Then the girl who was the elder, added, "Thank you for telling Mother about it."

Little Talks on Thrift

Popular Thrift Chief Factor in Elimination Of Poverty

The statement often is made that this is a materialistic age. Americans particularly are criticised at times for their so-called materialism. Much of the world's progress, however, has been due to materialism. The construction of railroads and highways and the building of our great cities have, to a considerable extent, been the result of materialistic impulses.

It may be said, moreover, that the spirit of our materialism has been softened by humanitarian impulses. This fact is borne in upon us with particular emphasis at this time of year when there is so much activity in preparation for the holiday season and when such tremendous sums are being donated by charitably inclined persons to the needy and unfortunate. It is a fine commentary on our citizenship to find so much thought and attention given to matters of this kind.

It is not out of keeping with current thought, however, to call attention to the fact that a great amount of the poverty and distress of the world is due to sheer lack of thrift. An old philosopher once wrote that "the highest step and the summit of charity's golden ladder is to so aid a man that he may earn an honest livelihood and not be forced to the dreadful alternative of holding out his hand for charity."

Truly it may be said that we help others most when we help them to help themselves. In the earlier developments of thrift education there grew up, particularly in England, vast numbers of charity associations. Persons who were in need were given alms to alleviate their temporary condition. The knowledge developed out of these early activities that charity of this description often encourages idleness. As time advanced, society learned that the best way to combat poverty was to encourage industry. Due to the popular development of thrift habits, poverty is gradually being eliminated, although there always will be those who, temporarily at least, will need charity.

But we should remember that when we encourage thrift upon the part of any individual we are most likely removing him forever from the possibility of ever becoming a charitable object.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Turin.

"Turin, where Prince Umberto and Princess Marie-Jose, the most recent royal newlyweds, have taken residence, is one of the twin industrial cities of north Italy," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "The other twin is Milan which lies about 80 miles northeast of Turin.

"Turin is to the Italians what Detroit is to Americans," continues the bulletin. "For two decades fine automobiles have been rolling from its factory shipping entrances. Thousands of the city's half million people are employed in the automobile plants, many others work in the vast machine and railroad shops, leather-working and tanning factories, iron foundries, and silk and cotton weaving mills, while a host earn their spending money in the trade thrust upon the city because of its geographical location.

"It is the first large city touched by the railroad after it passes through the Mont Cenis tunnel, an eight-mile bore through the Alps between France and Italy. Turin was the most important commercial center in north Italy until the St. Gotthard tunnel was completed. Then it bowed to Milan.

"The uninitiated traveler might picture industrial Turin as a city of dingy buildings dominated by sooty smoke stacks. He might also picture Turin as an area of ancient monuments, for there was a town on its site when Hannibal roamed those parts more than 200 years before the Christian era.

"But Turin for the most part is clean and modern. Trains from France and the Italian 'boot' roll into a modern railroad station. The station exit faces a wide thoroughfare, the Corso Vittorio Emanuele. Across the way is a large park with beds of bright flowers, girdled by well-kept lawns and shaded walks.

"Beyond the park begins the Via Roma, the street leading to the royal palace. A stroll down this street and Turin unfolds, for all Turin streets intersect one another at right angles, forming solid blocks of buildings. A few blocks and the street opens into a large square. Squares are numerous in this city, each is adorned with at least one monument. Some have four. Where space permits, the monuments rise among flowering gardens and within earshot of splashing fountains, but frequently heavy traffic forces bronzed horsemen perched on stone bases to overlook a sun parched expanse of concrete, traversed by street car tracks.

"The royal palace is in the center of the city but the beautiful royal garden, bordering its north and east sides, affords relief from monotonous blocks of masonry. The building itself is a simple brick structure. It recalls the days when Turin was the capital of the kingdom of Sardinia, and when Turin also, for five years, 1860-65, was capital of Italy. It is a treasure chest of historic paintings, handsome statuary, frescoes, and rich tapestries. The throne room with its elaborate chandeliers, candelabra and velvet hangings is one of Turin's show places. In one portion of the building is the armory where more than 60 historic suits of armor are on display. The cathedral adjoining the palace has valuable paintings and an urn containing a piece of linen which tradition holds is a part of the shroud in which the body of Jesus was wrapped.

"Turin university enrolls more than 2,000 students. In the museum of antiquities is a display of Egyptian objects including documents, vases, jewelry and musical instruments, some of which originated as early as the seventeenth century B. C.

"The river Po flows past Turin, but it is of no value commercially. Cross the Po bridge and climb Monte Cappucini, and Turin spreads before you. Below, on the city side of the river stretches the Valentine park, the 'Riverside Drive' of Turin, with its public garden, lake, two castles and beautifully landscaped grounds. Church domes rise above the span of roofs but above them all towers the Mole Antonelliana, within eight feet as tall as the Washington monument."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Bridgeport Safety Emery Wheel Company, Bridgeport.

In 1893 the Bridgeport Safety Emery Wheel company was organized by E. R. Hyde, C. L. Hyde, and D. T. Homan. They had for many years been interested in the manufacture of grinding wheels and grinding and polishing machinery and in 1893 started their own business in a small way on Knowlton street, Bridgeport.

E. R. Hyde became one of the foremost designers of grinding machines in the country, and put on a practical basis the modern segmental grinding wheel for surface grinding.

Few people today realise the value of grinding in modern industry. By grinding, accuracy, unattainable by other methods of machining, is secured, saving untold amounts and speeding up industry. Without grinding, for instance, the automobile would probably cost 100 per cent more than it does today.

The company specializes in the manufacture of wheels for tool grinding, knife grinding, and face grinding. They make a wide range of grinding machines and were among the first in their field to make direct connected motor-driven grinders, also to use ball bearings. Their line now includes face grinders with hydraulic table drive, knife and shear blade grinders, floor grinders, tool grinders, swing frame grinders, as well as buffing and polishing machinery, and grinding wheels.

The company occupies two modern buildings in Stratford, and employes about 75 people.

The present officers are: E. R. Hyde, president; A. H. Kean, treasurer; H. H. Peck, secretary.

"To tell the truth I was getting lazy—didn't have much energy—and very little ambition.

"Just then I heard so many good things about Kruschen Salts that I started to take them and never missed a morning.

"Well, in a couple of weeks I commenced to feel like doing something and in six weeks I was as active as I ever was in my life—that tired, indolent feeling left me and has never come back.

"But that's not all! My energy is like a youth's—I get up in the morning thoroughly refreshed after a sound sleep and am ready and anxious to get to work.

"It's a great feeling, 'that Kruschen feeling,' seems as if I never get tired, I can walk for miles and enjoy every mile of it.

"That's how my fat left me—fat cannot exist long when a man's active, energetic, ambitious and full of joy of living. But I haven't stopped taking Kruschen Salts, not for one day. I would rather go without my breakfast than my Kruschen."

Kruschen is six salts—not just one—these salts act on stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys and soon keep pure, fresh blood coursing through the veins—a jar that will last 4 weeks costs but 85c at Lee and Osgood's and druggists the world over. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Don't Get Up Nights

Rev. D. Lee, Portsmouth, N. H., says, "Come or write to 101 Crescent Way and I will tell you how in a short time the bladder irritation was relieved by Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). My case was of long standing and painful. Was bothered 4 to 5 times each night." It acts on bladder as epsom salts do on bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at Lee and Osgood Co.

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe, and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists anywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

NORWICH EXCHANGE IS FLYING ACHIEVEMENT BANNER

The Norwich telephone exchange is ahead of its development quota for 1930 and in consequence is one of the 23 main exchanges in the state that are entitled to fly the gold-lettered blue silk banner that signalizes this achievement.

The presentation of these merit banners is a compliment to the sales ability of the telephone people in this exchange, who have done such splendid work in the unique sales effort launched by the company a few months ago and in which every employe has engaged with gratifying results to the business.

Naturally this splendid record of sales could not have been accomplished except for the fact that business conditions in this locality are such that telephones could be sold. The public, in the final analysis, put the local exchange over the top and brought about one of the largest net gains in telephones that this exchange has ever had during one year.

Telephone development is considered a fair barometer of business conditions and that being so, it will be interesting from a business viewpoint to know that while banners are awarded to 23 main exchanges, they signify that 37 subsidiary exchanges also went over the top in sales. In other words a total of 60 of the 71 telephone exchanges in the Southern New England territory had a development which is larger than the quota set at the beginning of the year. Thus is well established the fact that business throughout the state has been reasonably brisk during the year.

The telephone company will close the year with about 320,000 telephones in service, a net increase for the year of about 20,000, one of the largest gains in the history of the business and indicative of Connecticut's prosperity.

NEW LONDON LUMBER DEALER'S HEIRS TO BE IN COURT OVER ESTATE

Suit brought by four children of the late Levi Q. Raymond against his widow, who is their step-mother, all the litigants being residents of New London, is scheduled to go to trial in the superior court there this (Thursday) morning before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury. The suit is brought for $40,000 damages.

Mr. Raymond was a prominent lumber dealer in New London, senior partner in the Raymond & Alexander Lumber company, who died July 20, 1927. His four children, Edward, Charles L. and Thaddeus K. Raymond and Annie Raymond Beckman, are the plaintiffs in the suit against May Etta Walsh Raymond, the widow.

It is alleged in the complaint that the capital stock of the company consisted of 1,200 shares of which Raymond held 600 shares, but that four days before his death he transferred six shares to his wife, this being without consideration, so that there were 594 shares to go in as assets of his estate at the time of his death. According to an agreement which the plaintiffs claim was made, the widow was to combine her six shares with the 594 shares in the estate, but she sold the six shares to Frank Alexander, by which the estate was unable to accept an offer of $120,000 made by Jacob R. Slosberg of this city on Sept. 1, 1928, for 600 shares of the stock of the company. By this action it is claimed that the 594 shares of capital stock of the company which remained as assets of the estate were depreciated in value from $118,800 to $50,440.

It is further claimed that Levi Raymond was mentally incompetent in the last days of his life and that while he was in that condition he was induced by his wife to transfer to her certain bank deposits, a Studebaker automobile, household furnishings, two parcels of real estate, and a mortgage assignment.

In an answer made by the defendant in the suit it is alleged that the value of the property transferred was $20,000 and that Raymond's estate inventoried $69,325.99. The marriage of the couple took place April 28, 1917.

WAR PREVENTION TALK BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

"World peace is the greatest proposition in the world today," said Gaylord Douglas of Springfield, member of the National Council for the Prevention of War, at a meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Douglas, who was introduced by Charles A. Saxton, in charge of the February program, spoke on the topic of World Peace and Its Background. In his talk Mr. Douglas gave a brief review of the events leading up to the World war, the tremendous losses suffered by all combatants and the burden of paying for this war will extend over many generations. Mr. Douglas spoke at length on the various treaties and the steps being taken to prevent a recurrence of war. He said in part:

You men are interested in many lines of business but if any one of these lines went to the wall there'd be only a mild stir and it would be forgotten in a week. But if World Peace went to the wall everybody would hear about it and everybody would feel the effect. World peace is the greatest proposition in the world today. Before 1914 world peace was symbolized by the balance of power and the mailed fist.

Europe because of its geographic make-up and its many boundary lines is very much different from the United States. Every boundary line is a barrier over there and every country is suspicious of the other and all took every possible means for its protection. Three things entered into the makeup of these countries, conscription, coalition and secret diplomacy. It was this that led up to the war. It is bad politics to have war, and bad politics lead to war. No one wants war and the last war was almost stopped by big business interests. Secret diplomacy, secret treaties and suspicion all led up to the war. And now we never pay for that war. It will be generations before we will stamp out the aftermath of the war. During the war not all the casualties were on the battlefields. In Germany and England hundreds of thousands starved to death.

Even the ultra pacifists while they want to back MacDonald in the parity don't want to go below the 50 cruiser plan. They don't want to go through any sure period of starvation again. But of course one realizes that if everybody is armed there's bound to be some shooting and when one shoots there's only a short period before everyone is unlimbered and going to it. Europe realizes the terribleness of war perhaps more than we do.

The world had a terrific shock in those years of the war and does not want to have another. It isn't so much who won the war as who started it. In Europe Woodrow Wilson is revered as the man who founded the League of Nations and it is this league that has kept the nations together for the past ten years, something that was never done before. The assembly of the league meets for three weeks to discuss the problems of the world frankly. Conversation has taken the place of coalitions. The World Court is not for discussion but for decision. The general pact for the renunciation of war speaks for itself in the first two articles:

Article 1—The high contracting parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another.

Article 2—The high contracting parties agree that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means.

And now we have the conference for the limitation of and reduction of armament which is now in session in London. This is being watched with interest and one of the striking things of the conference was its opening when the king of England came to the conference, not as a king, but as a citizen of the world, and wished for its success. America has the finest body of men that it ever sent anywhere attending the conference and great things are expected.

Rotary has its place in the world peace and through the teaching of the sixth object is doing a good work in promoting international friendship. Education and public opinion can do a great deal for the promotion of world peace.

President Frank R. Murdy presided at the meeting and William G. Park and Christopher Gallup were the song leaders. The meeting was enlivened by a trio selection by three guests and two recitations by another guest. The meeting had but little business before it and closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

WATCH MAINTAINED AT NEW LONDON FOR LONE HOLD-UP MAN FROM MERIDEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 19.—The New London police tonight were requested to be on the lookout for a lone bandit who "stuck up" the office of the Meriden Journal earlier in the night. (Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 19.—The city is without any of its street lights throwing its rays in the darkness and many of such lights as failing to be serviceable were reported at police headquarters by patrolmen. One particularly dark area was on Hempstead street, at the corner of Mercer street, and at the entrance of Williams Memorial park. The light installed there has not been functioning for four or five nights. At the power house, Water street, it was stated that because of the nature of the trouble affecting the lighting system many of the lights would not be put in working order tonight.

Here are Len and Wally, husky young sons of Mrs. M. Parri, 343 Fortieth St., Brooklyn, N. Y. Their mother's experience shows what can be done to keep children robust. She says: "Since I found out how good California Fig Syrup is, I have kept some in the house. It always helps my boys. I give it for upsets or colds."

When your child's breath is bad; tongue is coated; or he is headachy, bilious, feverish, without appetite or energy, give him a little California Fig Syrup. See how its gentle cleansing helps a child. Appetite, digestion and assimilation improve. Stomach and bowels are toned and strengthened.

The genuine always bears the word California. So look for that when buying. Seven million bottles used a year proves its merit!

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

One Up And One Down

What seems disaster it is plain
May prove to be the victim's gain.
—Hooty the Owl.

Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty were having more difficulties this year than ever before in raising a family. You see, one of the babies was in the nest and one was on the ground. Mrs. Hooty had thought that this one had tumbled from the nest, as she had scolded him right well for his carelessness. But he hadn't tumbled from the nest. No, sir, he hadn't tumbled from the nest! He had been pushed out of the nest by his greedy and selfish sister. She didn't seem a bit sorry either. Probably she thought that now she would get all the food.

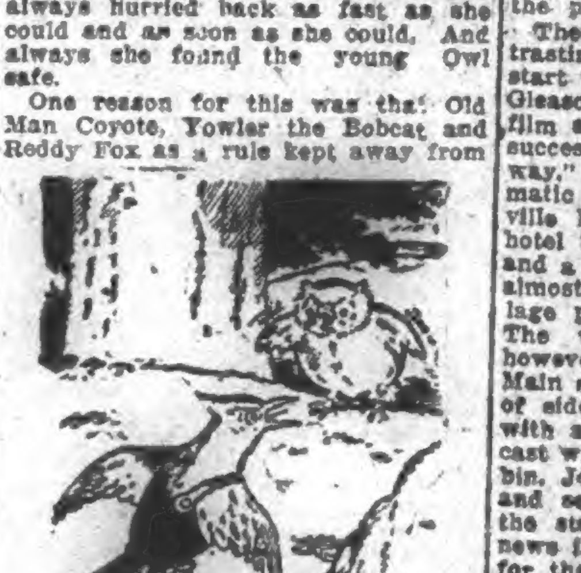
Mrs. Hooty, however, thought differently. She had no intention of allowing the little fellow on the ground to suffer if she could help it. So she fed him down there. In fact she paid very little attention to the greedy sister up in the nest. She left Hooty himself to look after that one. It seemed as if she hunted twice as hard for the little fellow on the ground. There was no danger of his going hungry.

Sammy Jay spent a lot of time watching, but taking great care that neither Hooty nor Mrs. Hooty should know what he was about. Once when neither of them were around Sammy flew down and alighted on the ground near the little Owl. But he didn't stay there long. Sammy told Mrs. Sammy about it afterward.

"You should have seen him," said he. "He is the most savage youngster I ever saw. He hissed and snapped his bill at me and threw himself on his back and struck at me with his claws. He is a little savage. Yes, sir, that is what he is—a regular little savage. He didn't seem to be any the worse for his tumble from the nest. I believe he is growing faster than the other one now. Probably Mrs. Hooty thinks all the more of him because he did tumble from the nest."

The little fellow on the ground was doing very nicely. He had a sheltered and very comfortable place underneath a little hemlock tree. In fact, he was warmer there than he had been up in the nest. He wasn't old enough to worry. He left that for his mother. Mrs. Hooty did worry some. She always worried a little while she was away hunting food. You see, there was always the chance that Reddy Fox might come along, or Yowler the Bobcat, or Old Man Coyote. She knew that any one of them would be very glad to try young Owl for dinner. So she always hurried back as fast as she could and as soon as she could. And always she found the young Owl safe.

One reason for this was that Old Man Coyote, Yowler the Bobcat and Reddy Fox as a rule kept away from that part of the Green Forest. They knew that there was not likely to be anything to catch over there. They knew that with Hooty and Mrs. Hooty hunting both night and day, there was little likelihood of finding anything to eat very near that nest. So they didn't waste time going over there, which was just as well for the little Owl on the ground.



He hissed and snapped his bill at me

So, with one up and one down, Hooty and Mrs. Hooty found their family cares greatly increased. It was just twice as hard to keep watch of the babies separated as it would have been with the babies together in the nest. Meanwhile, the one on the ground was growing faster than the one in the nest. There was no doubt about it. Perhaps this was because it got the choicest bits. Certainly, he had lost nothing by being pushed out of the nest by his greedy sister. And she on her part had gained nothing. In fact, she had really lost, which is quite as it should be.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

England in wartime!—a tidy little row of houses sheltering a group of intensely patriotic and very thirsty charwomen, all with sons at the front and all bragging at every chance—and among them a dear old lady, childless, but yearning with an intense mother love for a "great tall laddie in kilties wi' great hairy legs and all"—and a canny scheme on her part to have such a son, in dreams anyway, with which to confound her neighbors. Haunted by flaming posters on every hand, taunted by her friends, her scheme silences them for a while, but a nosey welfare worker suddenly brings to her door her "son"! The lad chides her severely for her deception, but her "tea and scones, and a bed wi' sheets and a regular bath" win him over and he grudgingly consents to be "adopted." Then indeed is the proud old head held high, and grasping the arm of her new found son, the old lady "goes places and does things" to her heart's content. Gary Cooper as the son and Beryl Mercer as the "mother" actually live their parts in "Seven Days' Leave," the film version of Sir James M. Barrie's whimsical yarn, "An Old Lady Shows Her Medals," and the atmosphere of the picture is perfection itself.

The companion picture, widely contrasting, is frankly hilarious from start to finish, presenting the famous Gleasons, Lucille and Jimmy, in their film adaption of their rollicking stage success, "The Shannons of Broadway," which tells the humorous dramatic tale of two small time vaudeville hams who buy a small village hotel to assure themselves of a "bed and a sandwich," and find themselves almost hopelessly entangled in the village politics, romances and scandals. The wise-cracking "show actors," however, use Broadway methods on Main street, and the result is a series of side-splitting haps and mishaps with a climax that is a wow. In the cast with the Gleasons are Mary Philbin, John Breeden, Slim Summerville and several of the original cast of the stage production. Fox Movietone news is also shown. The stage is set for the season's best bet in talking pictures, with the opening Saturday of Radio's tremendous production, "Rio Rita," Florenz Ziegfield's ace of pictures.

Palace Theatre

A gripping mystery and a rollicking musical romance are to be found on the program at the Palace theater now. Once again the Palace presents one of its outstanding double-feature bills, a bill, that for sheer entertainment value is astonishing. It includes not only that weird drama of the New York underworld, "In the Next Room," starring Jack Mulhall and Alice Day, but also a charming picture, "Is Everybody Happy?" starring Ted Lewis, the high hat tragedian of jazz, along with Ann Penington and a distinguished cast.

"Is Everybody Happy?" The name suggests a blithe lilting comedy, and such it is in parts, but it carried undertones of tragedy that are done so simple and yet so poignantly as to leave no doubt that this is a magnificent picture. As the son of the leader of an Austrian symphony orchestra, Ted Lewis comes to this country seeking employment. He is a splendid violinist, but he cannot get work in regular orchestras. His father and mother watch his efforts to win bread for the family. The father with a growing fear that the son will forsake the old standards of classical music, the other proud, hoping against hope that the boy will find some sort of work. Eventually his father's fears are realized. The lad does go in for jazz, but does it so well that finally the old man is convinced that times have changed and that there is indeed a new musical era upon us.

"In the Next Room" is guaranteed to send chills up and down your spine and keep your hair perpendicular while it lasts. It starts with New York terrified by a series of knife murders, and ends—well, never mind how it ends. Just come and see. Come and watch the daughter of the mysterious man whom the police are shadowing. Listen while she tells of hearing a one-legged man stumping up and down stairs and dragging himself across the basement floor. Join a young newspaper reporter in the first effort to unravel the frightful mystery and have an adventurous time doing it.

Winnie Lightner, the original "Gold Digger," in her daring new comedy.

Remember, too, that beginning on Saturday the Palace will present Winnie Lightner, the original "Gold Digger," in her daring new comedy feature, "She Couldn't Say No." It's going to be the best yet!

A structural steel company has decided to paint the steel that it puts into buildings a bright yellow instead of the usual red, thus advertising the company by the distinctive and conspicuous steel skeleton as the building is in process of construction.

WESTERLY

NEW JERSEY PASSENGER ACTS STRANGELY ON TRAIN

John Gegg, 30, en route with a relative from Boston to his home, 159 Lafayette street, Newark, N. J., was taken from the [illegible] p. m. west-bound New Yorker express Wednesday when it was making its Westerly station stop. By direction of the conductor, the train was held overtime and Medical Examiner and Railroad Surgeon Dr. Michael H. Scanlon of Westerly were called to examine the man, whose actions made it unsafe for him to continue on the train. Dr. Scanlon examined the man after Station Agent Earl S. Bayler of Westerly had been notified and it was decided to send the passenger to his destination by taxi after it was found that he had money enough to pay for the transportation and a guard to accompany him. While waiting at the station the man constantly gazed over his shoulder as if he feared someone was pursuing him and when assured that he was in safe hands he burst into tears.

MYSTIC

TOURISTS VISIT TUCSON AND DESCRIBE ATTRACTIONS

Friends in the village have received cards and letters from Miss Hazel Main, who with her parents and cousin, is traveling to California. They left St. Petersburg, Fla., by automobile, Feb. 6, and reached Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 12. There they visited Mr. and Mrs. Bergen I. Greene, former residents of Mystic, who have a very pretty home and are engaged in chicken raising; they now have 2,800 chickens. Mountains are all around the house and look as though they were only about one mile away, but in reality are 12 miles distant. Tucson is 1,200 miles above the sea level and its population is 43,500. There are eight city parks, government aviation field, equipped with hangars, a country club, municipal golf course and the University of Arizona. Tucson is the center of production of the cotton, cattle and copper industries; it has a large flour mill, steam laundries, ice plants, brick and clay yards, railroad repair shops and many other industries. Among the historic places is the Spanish mission, San Xavier. There are picture rocks, colonial caves, Casa Grande ruins, Yaqui and Papoze Indian villages, Fort Lowell, Roosevelt and Coolidge dams and mining camps. While Mr. Main and family were at Tucson, they visited the Mexican, Spanish and Indian villages. Most of the Mexican living quarters are made in the adobe type (mud, straw and water). Instead of auto trucks, the visitors saw mules drawing the carts with a few sticks of wood on them. The women wear very bright colored clothing and the men's heads are topped with ten-gallon hats. The American homes in this section are similar to those in Florida, mostly one-story structures, covered with stucco. Cacti of all kinds, shapes and with all kinds of blossoms, grow in profusion. Trees seem to be different from those in other parts of the country. Mr. Main and family left Tucson, Feb. 15, for Phoenix, where they will stay for a few days. While there they will visit the Grand Canyon and go over the Apache trail. They will then go on to Los Angeles, Cal. where they will visit Mr. Main's cousin, Luther O. Main, formerly of North Stonington.

Bus Driver's Risk

The bus, which figured in the three-car accident near Pollack's mill, beyond Trail's Corners, Groton, in which Melvin Gilleny of Mystic, driver of the bus, was injured so badly, was brought to Mystic Tuesday afternoon. It took nearly two hours to tow it over from Groton, as the front of the bus was on a sled, and the snow was off the ground in most places in the road. It is wonderful that Mr. Gilleny is alive, considering the condition of the bus. The front end, left side, where the driver sits, looked as though some massive thing had been inside and in trying to get out, had spread the front open. On these buses, there is absolutely no protection for the driver, as he sits directly in the front with nothing but glass to stop a blow. In the old buses, the engine was out in front, and the driver stood some chance. Mr. Gilleny regained consciousness to a certain extent, for a very short time, Tuesday, but his condition remains critical.

ROAMER RUDDY PACKER GIVEN A WELCOME HOME

Ruddy R. Packer came back from New York after working 18 months checking fish at Fulton market. He walked into Smiling John Branch's general store, wearing a straw hat, saw Foreman Elmer Branch and wanted to know if he could get his old job back, swinging the paint brush. Foreman Branch wiped off his glasses, to make sure it was his star painter, Ruddy Packer. "All right! your job is waiting for you! What is the big noise, wearing a straw hat with a foot of snow on the ground? Ruddy you will have to put radio horns on your ears!" The city fish checker had to laugh and told his boss he wanted to be the first one to wear a straw hat and start the season off good. "Don't let the kids see you, or all you will have is the rim of that $4 hat, for the snowballs will be flying through the air fast, as a shot after a cotton-tail rabbit!"

Ruddy was some pleased that he was to be back with his fellow-workmen, wearing the overalls of white. Ruddy was sitting in front of the fireplace, listening to the radio, at his home on East Side avenue, when members of the Branch Paint Co., about 20 in all, marched to his home, to give the young roamer, Ruddy, a real welcome home. A knock was sounded on the door by the right hand of Neil Robertson and Ruddy went to the door, thinking it might be the expressman with his Broadway trunk. Instead, he found it was his fellow-workmen. Robert Tooker said: "We came to throw a party!" Ruddy nearly fainted dead away from the surprise. Otto Bradshaw, who gave more first aid than any ex-soldier in his company during the war, used no water but rubbed a stone on his neck and brought him to. So they went into the parlor where a New Hampshire log was burning, the white smoke going up the chimney. Everybody took a seat and Pork Chop Oviatti said: "Tell us about your stay in the Father Time city, for we missed you so much during your long stay away from us!" So Ruddy got up from the chair, smoking a Cremo cigar, hands in his wall paper vest, and the story came out:

"I hunted that city for a job, but could not find any and was on my last pair of shoes, also a quarter in my pocket. My board was due. A dollar is sure your best friend after all! No board money, no place to sleep, only a big stone in Central park for a pillow. I went down to Fulton market and got a job checking fish and believe me there are some fish! One boat came in with 50,000 lbs. of cod and haddock and I began checking them and they were waist-high to me on the floor. One cod fish I thought was dead, I picked up and it was as alive as a water snake, and weighed 100 lbs. It got hold of my finger and cut it deep. I had to have two stitches taken in the finger. I could see fish at night in my room, flying around with wings on, when I was dreaming plenty of Noank fish came in by trucks. Some times it would make me home sick to see Noank on the fish tag." "Well," Otto Brandshaw said, "was that you singing over the radio once in awhile? a sweet tenor voice?"

"Yes, from a station, I forgot the name, I would be on the air; and five million people used to tune in and hear the fish checker's sweet voice. I made a big hit with them!"

Neil Robertson got the bird cage ready to let go at young Ruddy, the roamer, but Foreman Elmer Branch put up his right hand and said: "That fellow is telling the truth! I had him working for me for the last 12 years and have never caught him in a lie, so hold back the bird cage—that is a true story of his hard times in the big city!" Ruddy was given a big hand from the gang that almost made the piano walk.

The eats were soon ready, with Long Island stuffed duck, apple turnovers, and Branch Ave. orange jelly, with tea. After putting away plenty, everyone went back to the parlor. Games were played that proved fun for the evening. In one game all the fellows stood on one side of the room and the girls on the other side. As the lights were put out by Light-Tender William Crowell, each fellow had to kiss a girl. The lights went out and quickly Otto Bradshaw had his arms around Ruddy Packer, thinking it was Miss Bertha Lock. Gee! what a laugh over it. After several more games Smiling John Branch, with his twin bass horn, gave a solo, playing two tunes at once. Smiling John has some wind and kept at it for 15 minutes without a let-up. That horn is almost 70 years old; he used it in the old Noank band, and is so bright that you could shave in it. Sweet Tenor Ruddy was ready to sing a few songs, like over the air, while Long-Fingers Robert Tooker, who can make a piano talk, was at the piano. The radio singer gave "You Will Always Find a Soft Spot in Your Heart for Me!" and several late ones that were sweet as a blue bird in the springtime. Pork Chop Oviatti did the tap dance, keeping time with his box-car shoes, "Away Down In Virginia, Where Men Are Men and Horse Flies are Wild Cats."

Near morning, the happy gang started for home, after welcoming back a real roamer who is going back at his old job. He is a steeple jack, and will climb over 800 feet into the air and paint the gold ball, or horse, or any weathervane, throughout the country. Foreman John Branch says he is the only one that can put up his steeple jack ropes in the day-time and the people don't know how it is done. Good morning was said instead of good night as the bird in the clock in the hallway said Tweet, Tweet, four times.

"We will see you all in the morning on the job." They went home after giving a real time to Ruddy Packer, who has been away from the paint brush and gone for 18 months. The gang was more than pleased to see his smiling face again among the paint brushes and his fellow-workmen. It was the first real party that Ruddy Packer ever had.

Men who would keep that trim, proper form, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! : : : Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

A Frank Discussion of a Personal Subject No Longer Evaded • •

To be sure, it's still embarrassing, this question of fetid breath, pimply skin (which usually attends it), yellow-tinged eyes. But people now are common-sense about it. They look facts in the face and recognize that they are suffering from constipation. Even the healthiest system may be subject to it at times.

Harsh purgative waters and salts or griping physics irritate an already inflamed and upset digestive tract. But a purely vegetable laxative, like Beecham's Pills, has a gentle, corrective action. Relieves constipation as if by magic. Never cramps or overacts. Won't torture you with griping pains. Restores normal, regular action.

Beecham's Pills in the new 50¢ size (glass bottle) are sugar coated—the modern remedy. Even a tiny child can take them with benefit. Good for all the family. Get a package today and see for yourself. 50¢ at all druggists. Trial size 25¢.

BEECHAM'S PILLS Curb Constipation

THE MAIN ACTIVE STOCKS GENERALLY CLOSED 1 TO 7 POINTS LOWER YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Operators for the advance, who have been finding upward progress increasingly difficult of late, were again forced to yield late in today's session of the stock market, and the more active shares generally closed 1 to 7 points lower.

The market was inclined to falter in the early hours of the day, but trading dwindled sharply, and the bull faction launched a new movement, centering in the utilities, which carried several important shares to new high levels for the year before the late reaction set in. The days turnover totaled but 2,464,810 shares, a reduction of about 300,000 from yesterday.

Several factors combined to unsettle the market, with a sharp break in the Chicago wheat pit playing a leading role. Although the stock market has attempted to ignore declining commodity prices of late, they have caused increasing uneasiness in some speculative quarters, and with the exception of selected issues, stock prices have not been able to make notable extension of their gains of late January. The price index of 90 leading shares at the close of today's market was at 183.2, compared with 183.1 the first of the month.

The weekly steel trade reviews were somewhat less optimistic in tone than recent reports from the steel trade had led Wall street to expect. Iron Age, while pointing to a further increase in production, said demand was uneven, with declines in certain districts offset by increases in others. Raw steel production was said to be from 5 to 10 per cent ahead of finishing mill operations, indicating accumulation to meet expected spring demands. Freight car loadings as reported for the first week of February showed a decline of 17,313 cars from the previous week, and 59,400 from the like period of 1929. Credit conditions were unchanged, with call money still commanding 4 1-2 per cent at the loan post.

American Telephone rose nearly 4 points to another new high for the movement at 239 7-8, but lost its gain. American Water Works and North American Co. were sent up 4 and 3 points to news tops for 1930, but closed little more than a point higher. Westinghouse Electric was bid up another 5 points to still another top, then slipped back 3 1-2. Fox Film rallied about 3 points, on announcement of support of important banking interests for the refinancing plan approved by Mr. Fox. Otis Elevator jumped more than 9 points in a moderate turnover, and retained its gain.

U. S. Steel, American Tobacco, Air Reduction, Erie, Gillette, Hudson, International Harvester and Johns Manville lost about 2 points. Simmons sold off as much as 5 points, in response to the 1929 earnings report, showing little more than $4 a share, against estimates some months ago of around twice that. United Fruit declined about 4 points to a new 1930 low at 92, evidently reflecting remarks by President Cutter at the annual meeting regarding the somewhat unfavorable economic conditions in Latin American countries. Mr. Cutter, however, expressed confidence in the future. Sears Roebuck lost 3 points. Standard of N. J. sagged fractionally, selling around the low of the year. Coppers continued to lose ground slowly.

Wheat futures broke about 4 cents a bushel to new low levels for the season in Chicago, and rallied but fractionally from the day's low. The drop was influenced by renewed heaviness in the Winnipeg market, and reports of further large offerings of Argentine wheat. Corn lost about 2 cents a bushel, and cotton $1 a bale.

Foreign exchanges were steadier, with the exception of the French franc, which was quoted at 3.91 1-16 for cables, still another new low for the year. The Canadian dollar continued to rally, reaching 99 1-2 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 19—(AP)—Big breaks of 5c a bushel in wheat prices at Winnipeg, together with virtual collapse of export demand, severely jolted the Chicago wheat market today. Rushes to sell out and stop losses overwhelmed the wheat pit near the end of the day, forcing Chicago values down nearly 5c to a new bottom price record for the season and 4c under the federal farm board's basis for loaning money on wheat as collateral. Giving special impetus to the smash in prices were London dispatches current asserting that hand-to-mouth buying on the part of European importers would continue unaltered.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 3 1-4c to 4c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 5-8c to 1 7-8 at 2c down, oats 1-2 at 5-8c to 1 at 1 1-8c off, and provisions showing 15c to 20c drop.

By far the worst of today's selling flurry in the wheat market here came during the last few minutes of trading. Earlier, there had been persistent heavy selling, but not of a sort that suggested anything approaching a stampede. It was noticeable, however, that the first decided broadening out of selling pressure in Chicago developed after price rallies here had steadied the market at around $1.13 a bushel for May contracts. This is the price which the federal farm board has set as a loan basis for No. 2 hard winter wheat in Chicago, a grade that board of trade rules provide must be accepted here on ordinary contracts for all future deliveries.

Throwing overboard of future delivery wheat holdings here increased to a material extent as the day wore on. Then came a whirlwind finish accelerated by statements in circulation from trade sources that even if the United States wheat visible supply decreases as much as 3,000,000 bu. a week until May 1 the total remaining would still be more than double a ten-year average. Meanwhile, North American wheat export business today amounted to only 200,000 bu. and bearish advices from across the Atlantic kept pouring in with speculative buying here at a low ebb, and much talk heard that commission house business in grain is thinning rapidly owing to constantly recurring drastic downturns of prices.

Corn and oats tumbled down owing chiefly to wheat weakness. Rye gave way also, and like wheat, plunged beyond the season's previous low-price record.

Stop-loss selling spread from the grain trade into the provision pit, and was intensified by setbacks in the value of hogs.

Closing bids and offers: Wheat—Mar 106 1-2; -113 3-8; May 110 1-8 to 1-4, 117 5-8 to 7-8; July 111, 119 1-8; Sept. 113 3-8, 121 1-8. Corn—May 85 1-4 to 3-8, 88 1-2 to 5-8; July 87 1-4, 90 3-4; Sept. 87 1-2, 90 3-4.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Efforts to extend their recent recovery in stock prices on the New York Curb market today were only partially successful. A heavy wave of selling in the last hour of trading reduced many of the earlier gains, although at least a score of issues were marked up to new high levels for the year. Trading was only moderate in volume.

Public utilities closed irregular. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore sagged 4 points, and such recent favorites as Allied Power & Light, American Gas & Electric, and American Light & Traction lost 1 to 8 points. On the other hand, American & Foreign Power warrants, Central States Electric, Long Island Lighting and the Standard Power & Light issues closed with moderate gains.

Fourth National Investors ran up about 4 points to a new peak at 49 but lost more than half its gain. Most of the other investment trust, trading and holding corporation issues showed only small net changes.

Oils received better support despite the sharp increase in crude oil production. Humble, Standard Oil of Ohio and Vacuum showed net advances of 2 points or more. The demand for the aviation issues, which were strong yesterday, tapered off considerably although Fairchild touched a new high and New York, Rio and Buenos Aires gained about 2 points.

Arcturus Radio Tube responded to the publication of a 1929 report showing net earnings more than five times those of the preceding year, by touching a new high at 17 1-2, up 1 1-2. Technicolor common stock was admitted to trading, closing at 33, after having fluctuated between 31 1-4 and 35. National Steel, a recent consolidation of three small units in the industry, ran up more than 4 points to a new high at 63. New peak prices for the year also were established by Canadian Marconi, Crocker Wheeler, Johnson Motors, Marion Steel Shovel, Radio Products, Rainbow Luminous A and B, Silica Gel, and Superheater. On the other hand, Central Atlantic States, Celanese corporation, Paramount Cab, Walgreen Co. and a few others sank to new 1930 lows.

Deere & Co. (old stock) broke 20 points and Union Oil Associated 13 1-2 on a few sales. Singer Manufacturing ran up 29 points in odd lot transactions.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—The bond market was a routine affair today, making conventional gains and losses in a session that lacked the invigorating touch given to yesterday's trading by the activity of several convertibles. Investment rails and United States governments attracted cautious buying and moved a little higher.

Share privilege bonds were responsible for a considerable proportion of the day's business. American Telephone 4 1-2s which made a spectacular turnover on Tuesday, were far less active. However, during the forenoon they touched the new 1930 high of 160 and then sold off to 155, closing 5-8 higher for a net decline of 2 1-2. International Telephone 4 1-2s climbed to within 1-4 of their year's peak of 156, but finished unchanged. Texas Corporation 5s and the Alleghany 5s were likewise unable to move on the day.

Although the prime rails tended higher, the volume of trading in these pivotal issues failed to impress. Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s, the Big Four 5s, Great Northern 7s, Pere Marquette 5s, Southern Railway General 4s and Union Pacific Refunding 4s improved moderately and held most of their gains.

Foreign bonds developed signs of irregularity after early firmness and the close was mixed. Australian 5s again eased, while the French Republic obligations were only steady.

Developments in the utility group were unimportant, with the exception of a gain of about a point in Detroit Edison "C" 5s, carrying the issue to a new 1930 high. Domestic industrials were steady, with much of the buying going into the oils which closed higher. Foreign sugars softened.

Buying of the Liberties and Treasuries accompanied reports that the treasury would probably be able to do its March 15 financing on a basis of about 3 1-2 per cent. The maturities approximate half a billion dollars, of which $400,000,000 is in the 5 1-8 per cent certificates and the remainder in the December issue of bills. The new financing is expected to be partly in certificates of indebtedness and partly in another offering of the discount bills. A $50,000,000 block of these obligations was recently sold.

The Fourth Liberty loan was the most active government issue in today's market. It showed a net gain of 1-8.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Traffic on the Erie railroad so far this year has shown a decline of about 10 per cent from the corresponding period of 1929, C. E. Denney, president, said today. He expects, however, that the road will show a net for 1930, equal to that of last year.

T. A. Kenney and E. A. Yates, who have been vice presidents and directors, respectively, of the Commonwealth Power Corp., and the Southeastern Power & Light Co., have been elected directors and vice-presidents of the Commonwealth & Southern corporation, the new public utility holding organization formed through the merger of the aforementioned and other companies.

Arrangements have been made for the sale of a seat on the New York Stock exchange at $400,000, an increase of $1,000 over the previously recorded sale.

January operations of the Pere Marquette railway resulted in a net deficit of $177,068, compared with net operating income of $475,064 in January, 1929. The deficit was attributed to a general falling off in business and expenses incident to the scrapping of obsolete equipment.

Treasury Balance.

WASHINGTON: Feb. 19—(AP)—Treasury receipts for February 17 were $6,899,908.87; expenditures $9,320,-642.26; balance $23,669,542.52

BACTERIA IN EVERY DAY LIFE

By WILLIAM M. ESTEN

In a broadcast Wednesday evening from WCAC, Prof. William M. Esten, of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, spoke upon Bacteria in Everyday Life as follows:

Bacteria play very vital roles both in the maintenance and destruction of all forms of life on the earth. Man is dependent on them from the day of his birth until the hour of his death. They are his most useful servants and his most destructive enemies. It was these extremely small living organisms that first obtained a precarious foothold on the bleak primitive rock of early geological periods. Here they fed on the carbon dioxide and nitrogen of the air and on the minerals of the rocks. Acting in conjunction with natural physical and chemical agents, they eventually rendered the disintegrating rock a fit abode for higher plants. This paved the way for the higher animals, and when they appeared, bacteria settled on the skin and mucous membranes of their bodies. Some became parasites and a few became progressive pathogens or disease producers. The latter have become man's most destructive enemies and modern bacteriology deals with them to a considerable extent.

Bacteria are very minute spheres and cylinders of transparent living matter. So small are they that magnifications of 500 to 1000 are necessary in order to observe them with with any reasonable degree of distinctness. But their size is no measure of their activity and the work which they accomplish. When conditions are favorable, they are the greatest models of industry, and labor actively, day and night, year in and year out. Taking no periods of rest they accomplish, at any given temperature, definite amounts of work that are as mathematically exact as the multiplication table.

This work which bacteria perform in the production of chemical changes that are often referred to as "fermentations." These fermentations are brought about by enzymes which the bacteria secrete in the digestion of their food. When bacteria cause fermentations in the soil, we realize their friendly help, but when they cause fermentations in our living bodies, we are often made painfully aware of their activity. Yet in both of these fermentations the bacteria are performing the functions for which they were created, namely, the preparing of minerals and organic matter for plant foods.

Bacteria are present almost everywhere. They are apparently rather sociable creatures and congregate in the largest numbers where life is most abundant. The polar regions, high mountains, deserts, and ocean areas are sparsely populated with them, but an acre of fertile soil contains nearly a ton of bacteria, a census of which would reveal untold billions of friendly inhabitants. According to one investigator, an apparently clean human being, alone and unassociated, carries around on the surface of his body approximately five billion bacteria.

Many people consider bacteria as wholly bad but that is far from the truth. Of the thousands of known varieties, only about 40 are really harmful. The majority are not only harmless, but many are decidedly beneficial.

Among the bacteria which benefit us in everyday life are those which make our soil fertile and plant life possible. These organisms dissolve the rocks, take nitrogen from the air, break down dead plant and animal materials and change them into such forms as can be utilized by living plants and thus converted into foods that are used for human consumption.

In the home we utilize many things secured by bacterial activity. In the making of our linen, bacteria perform the task of fermenting the worthless and undesirable parts of the flax. The strong fibres that are left are woven into cloth. Jute and hemp manufacture requires a similar fermentation. Leather production involves bacterial action in several of the processes of its manufacture. The surplus flesh and hair on the hides is sometimes removed by immersion in fluids that are swarming with multitudes of microorganisms. Even in the actual tanning of the leather, bacteria produce lactic acid which facilitates the penetration of the tannin. Sponges, litmus, and various dyes such as those from logwood and indigo also undergo bacterial fermentation before they become finished products.

Many foods are prepared by these invisible forms of life. The cream for butter making is soured, cheese is started, and sauerkraut and pickles are preserved by a special class of microorganisms that are exceptionally efficient in producing lactic acid. Tea, coffee, and cocoa owe their flavors largely to bacteria. Some kinds of bread are raised by them and alcohol is changed to vinegar by their magic powers.

Although a few kinds of bacteria help prepare foods, many more kinds are ready and waiting for an opportunity to destroy them. The preservation of foods in such a way as to prevent bacterial activity and destruction, and yet not injure the nutritive values or vitamin content is often a difficult and expensive problem to solve. Since low temperatures retard living activity, we resort to refrigeration; since high temperatures destroy life, we sterilize by boiling, baking, or canning; and since moisture is necessary for life we concentrate, dry, and evaporate, and thus remove the life-giving fluids. Nature uses the last method and preserves food in seeds by reducing the water content to 12 per cent.

If bacteria confined their destructiveness to food products and spared the human body the lot of mankind would be a far happier one. These outlaw organisms that prey upon the human race are directly responsible for 42 per cent of all deaths. In the United States alone, 6,500,000 people are constantly ill disease germs being responsible in most instances. The resulting unhappiness, suffering, pain, premature death, loss in time, money, and energy seem all the more pitiful in view of the fact that many of these cases of illness might be prevented by the application of a little knowledge of the ways and means by which the spread of disease bacteria can be checked.

If these minute robbers of life and happiness are to be successfully combatted, something of their nature, relationship to the disease, their routes of travel, and points of entry into the body should be understood by everyone.

In the first place, no person can contract any bacterial disease unless some other person or animal previously had the disease. Secondly, these diseases are generally spread quite directly from one individual to another by live bacteria that actually leave the body of one person and are transferred to another. These two statements being generally true, it follows that any person who is suffering from a bacterial disease should avoid all possible contact with other people. This rule, if conscientiously followed, would go a long way toward the stamping out of a disease, but it would not be wholly effective because of the menace of the well carrier. A carrier is a person who harbors virulent disease organisms but is not susceptible to the disease. No one, not even the carrier himself, knows how widely he may be spreading a disease.

The great majority of harmful microorganisms enter the body by way of the mouth, and the hands are usually the instruments of transmission. Diphtheria, pneumonia, scarlet fever, typhoid, and tuberculosis commonly gain admission by this entrance. The hands should never touch the mouth unless they have just previously been thoroughly washed. As a further safeguard, it should be the aim of everyone to keep the hands away from all places where disease germs are most liable to be found. From the standpoint of health, the practice of shaking hands may be frowned upon. The Chinese custom of clasping their own hands and shaking them before each other is much more hygienic and precludes any disease transmission.

Since most diseases come from quite direct contact with other people, many kinds of disease germs are liable to be encountered in public places where large numbers of people congregate. Such places should be avoided, particularly during epidemics.

Many small trouble-making bacteria use the route of the unclean washbowl and unboiled dishcloth in going from one person to another. Some kinds prefer to travel in the medium of raw, unpasteurized, or uncooked foods, and such diseases as botulism, septic sore throat, and typhoid fever result. Other kinds make use of insects or animals to carry them around, and the suffering patients wonder just how and when they contracted malaria, cholera or plague.

The ideal of the bacteriologist is to bring about the annihilation of all disease organisms. This seems an impossible accomplishment. Yet there is promising progress in that direction. Yellow fever, the former scourge of the tropics, is now nearly extinct. Diphtheria, the terror of the mother of the 19th century, has yielded to the toxin-antitoxin treatment. Smallpox is practically stamped out in those countries where vaccination is compulsory. Even the death-rate from tuberculosis is slowly declining.

The scientist can formulate methods for effective disease control, but it is only through the widespread education and cooperation of all people everywhere that we can hope to win in the battle against pathogenic bacteria, the tiny assassins of mankind.

NORWICH PLAYERS WIN AT VALENTINE SOCIAL

A delightful valentine whist and social was held at the Community house Saturday, Feb 15, for the benefit of Loyal Primrose lodge. Fourteen tables of whist and one of dominoes were in play. The whist prizes went to Mrs. John Houston, of Victory lodge, Norwich; Mrs. Ralph Crooker, Mrs. John Pye, James Royle, Walter Collins, and Mr. Fenton. POETRY

When I Shall See

Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened.—Isaiah xxxv:5.

'Tis not the will of Him above
That I should see the sun's bright ray.
Instead of sight He gave me faith,
With which to serve Him day by day.
Yes, Christ is more than life to me.
His dwelling place is in my heart,
He gives me mercy rich and free,
That I to others may impart.

I know that some day I shall stand
Close by my Heavenly Father's side,
For in His Blessed Word He said
That sightless eyes shall open wide.
Sometimes I think this cannot mean
A weak and sinful child like me,
But Jesus knows my every thought,
And softly saith, "It is for thee."

When, clad in robes of spotless white,
I stand before that great white throne,
O then shall I receive my sight
And know that Heaven is my own!
O what a blessed day 'twill be
When I shall reach that happy place,
But most of all I long to see
The beauty of my Saviour's face!

Twilight in A Southern Town

The boxwood hedge grows blue with daylight's going
And down the silent street white lilacs lean
Upon the air. Magnolia trees are knowing
The rushing wings of sparrows swift and keen
To seek their quiet refuge through the New garden ways long mellowed in the sun
Stir with camellias in the drifting light,
And every moonflowers open, one by one.

There is a splendor here that stills the blood
As gold lights gild wistaria that falls
In deep cascades, a fragrant purple flood
Of beauty on old balconies and walls.
At every gateway now dark shadows hover
And evening lingers like an ardent lover.

—Daniel Whitehead Hicki, in the New York Sun.

The meat, mostly bone, was thrown on the scales

"Look here!" remonstrated the man, "you're giving me a big piece of bone!"

The new manager believed in what he called high-speed efficiency. He hated delay, and so he had the offices hung with rather startling though compelling signs bearing the words: "Do it now."

A few months later a friend called to see him, and noticed that all the signs had disappeared.

"Didn't the new system work?" he asked.

"Oh," answered the manager, somewhat abashed, "it did in a sense. The cashier ran off with $50,000, the bookkeeper eloped with my secretary, and the office boy ran away to be a movie star."—Exchange.

WESTMINISTER

A SAGACIOUS COLLIE GUARDS MASTER'S RABBITS

At the fifth annual exhibition of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association, held recently in Willimantic, Fred Newton was awarded nine blue ribbons and one special, on his entries of rabbits. Among others, Mr. Newton exhibited his blue ribbon winners in the Windham county fair of 1929, where again they won first award. Among Mr. Newton's entries were Chinchillas, French Silvers and New Zealands. A New Zealand doe, with her litter of young, won a special ribbon in addition to the blue. At his rabbitry, Mr. Newton is ably assisted by the big family collie. It is amusing to watch Prince, who has appointed himself special guardian of the rabbits. They are not in the least afraid of him. Occasionally some escape from their hutches. Prince will immediately begin to circle around them, keeping them close to their quarters until Mr Newton appears. If a bunny does not obey him promptly, Prince will push it along carefully with his nose and woe betide any dog which happens along and attempts to molest his charges!

The storm of Sunday with its intense cold proved the worst of the winter. Reports came in of temperatures from 8 to 15 below zero. One resident of Howard Valley claimed it was 18 below at his place. HOW ONE MAN ENDED "RHEUMATISM"

Stomach Troubles, and Built up His Strength At The Same Time

There is a way to get rid of rheumatism pains along with pains in the stomach, back and sides—and until you try it you can blame only yourself for your suffering.

It's through the use of the remarkable medicine Tanlac that for years has steadily but quietly been performing almost miraculous benefits for millions. Here's just one case out of thousands who have in their joy taken the trouble to write us. His name is Mr. E. F. Burbage. Mr. Burbage, a transfer man, suffered for 16 years from rheumatism and as he had to earn his living like you and I he had just about despaired when as a last resort he tried Tanlac. "I could hardly move about or raise my arms up. To go up or down stairs it would seem like my knees would break. The pain hurt awful and crippled me up. Besides rheumatism, my digestion was bad and I was rundown generally. It was a mighty big handicap in my business. Finally I began Tanlac and it was the boost for me. It began at once to overcome my muscular rheumatism and now have not an ache or pain and am a well and new man. I recommend Tanlac with unbounded confidence." Other remedies may promise but Tanlac performs—a real medicine that backs claims with a guarantee. Accept no substitute. At all druggists.

CONNECTICUT TO HAVE FOREST TRAILS SYSTEM

Connecticut is to have a system of forest trails. People who enjoy rough hiking along the hills will now have some place to go. At a meeting of the trails committee of the Connecticut Forest and Park association at the Craig Loch Inn, Meriden, plans were perfected for about a hundred miles of forest trail construction during the present year.

The work will be done by volunteers, after permission has been obtained from land owners. The New Haven section reported that the first 12 miles of trail, from Mt. Carmel (The Sleeping Giant) over Mt. Sanford, will be ready for use some time in April. This route, to be known as the Quinnipiac trail, will go as far as Southington mountain. From that point the Tunxis trail, now being scouted, will pass west of Bristol and cross the Nepaug, Peoples and Tunxis state forests to the Massachusetts line. The Mattatuck trail will run northwest across the Mattatuck forest and Black Rock state park and past Bantam lake to the Mohawk forest. Side trails will be developed, and a system of inter-connected trail routes is being planned to serve other centers of population. The trails of the Connecticut Forest and Park association will have a distinctive marking of painted blazes and arrows, so that they may be easily followed. Connecticut is especially fortunate in the proximity of wooded hills to the large manufacturing towns and cities. This wild land, if properly utilized, can be made a recreational asset for the people of the state and an attraction to summer visitors. The trails plan is part of the movement to develop the use of the forest resources of New England.

JOHNNY VACCA SIGNED TO BOX BEAUREGARD ON NEXT SHYMA CARD

Johnny Vacca of Boston, New England bantamweight champion and holder of two decisions over Fidel LaBarba, former world's champion flyweight, has been signed by Matchmaker Leo P. Flynn to box Al Beauregard in the main bout at the Shyma club show on March 7th. The signing of Vacca gives the Shyma club a bout that would do credit to any of the big cities in New England. In fact, Ed Hurley, Hartford promoter, has been angling for this same bout for a show in Hartford but was unable to land it.

Vacca is without doubt the best bantamweight in New England and although this bout will not be a title bout it is bound to be a real star attraction. The promoters have tried to make a title bout out of it but Vacca insists that he will be unable to make the weight for a title match in so short notice. The Boston lad has been fighting at 121 and 122 pounds in his most recent bouts.

Beauregard has met Vacca twice, once in Pittsfield, Mass., right after his two wins over LaBarba and again at Hartford last June. The first bout was a clear win for Vacca, but the second meeting resulted in Beauregard's winning but the decision going Vacca through a case of mistaken identity on the part of the referee who raised Vacca's hand instead of Beauregard's. The referee's card showed that Beauregard had won by a small margin.

The Taftville boy feels confident that he can beat Vacca when he comes to Taftville and is very sorry that it will not be for the New England title. Beauregard was recently recognized by Commissioner Donohue as the Connecticut bantamweight champion. Beauregard is now in Hartford, acting as sparring partner to Ignacio Fernandez who boxes Battalino at Hartford next week. This work with Fernandez will put Beauregard in nice shape for his battle with Vacca.

The matchmaker has signed Johnny Kop to box a six-round preliminary against a boy not yet selected. The remaining bouts on the card have not yet been signed.

N. B. A. WANTS TO KNOW IF DEMPSEY WILL FIGHT

CHICAGO, Feb. 19—(AP)—The National Boxing association, controlling the ring sport in more than 35 states, started to smoke a statement out of Jack Dempsey today concerning his intentions of returning to the ring.

Leonard Sachs, Dempsey's business manager in Chicago, has received reports that the boxing association wanted to know Dempsey's intentions regarding a return to his trade as a heavyweight fighter, so it could be guided in its attitude toward the winner of the Sharkey-Scott fight at Miami, Fla., February 27 and of the proposed battle between Max Schmeling and the winner of the Florida contest.

Demands have been made on the N. B. A. according to Sachs, to have the winner of the Sharkey-Scott fight recognized as the world's champion, but Sachs says that inasmuch as Dempsey knocked out Sharkey and has lost only to Gene Tunney, Dempsey still must be regarded as a leading contender for the title vacated by Tunney.

"I know that Jack has been made several flattering offers, but due to the fact that he is tied up for the present in many business ventures, any information concerning what he intends to do must necessarily come from him himself," Sachs said.

"Jack's business will detain him in Los Angeles until the last of February and he will return to Chicago on March 2."

SHARKEY-SCOTT BOUT NOT TO BE ON AIR

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 19—(AP)—After a day of brisk workouts among the combatants, Frank J. Bruen, general manager of the Madison Square Garden corporation, announced tonight that there will be no broadcast of the second annual fistic festival of the palms of the night of Thursday, February 27.

Bruen, after a conference with Bill Carey, Garden president, discarded original plans to put the boxing show on the air. Some technical arrangements already had been made but Bruen said the decision was final and would not be rescinded.

"This is a business project," Bruen said. "We cannot afford to have the radio interfere with it, much as we might like personally to do so for the benefit of those who could not under any circumstances come here to see the fights."

Last year's show in Miami Beach between Stribling and Sharkey was broadcast and the Garden management, before and since the death of Tex Rickard, has put most of the outdoor fights on the air. Rickard, however, always contended that it hurt business, once suggesting that radio fans should pay 25 cents apiece for the privilege of listening in. The present garden control holds a similar view of its effect, though it is understood considerable pressure will be brought to bear to effect a radio hookup.

Rain drops and flip flops featured today's workouts, which attracted greater attention than usual because of the exhibition of more participants in the immediate Miami and Miami Beach area. Between showers, Phil Scott went through nine brisk rounds but brought a roar from the onlookers when he was tumbled to the canvas in a sparring session with the veteran Canadian, Jack Renault.

The mishap to the Briton was due more to a shove than any steam in Renault's punches. Phil was backpedalling at the time and his upset was facilitated by the fact that he tripped partly over his own feet and a crease in the ring canvas. He got up to hammer Renault around the ring and complete a nine round workout in which he engaged six sparring mates, including Jack Denave and Babe Hunt.

Sharing the spotlight for the first time with Jack Sharkey at Miami Beach, Victorio Campolo, who opposes Johnny Risko in the semi-final, exhibited a terrific right hand punch against three work mates, two of whom lasted less than a round and a half. One of these, George Neron of New York, sent Victorio back on his heels with a smash to the chin in the first few seconds but that was the last punch he landed and he quit with a damaged right arm after a few seconds of the second round. Risko's exhibition at Miami was postponed until Friday and Johnny continued his daily work at Hollywood.

Practicing a shift from which he shot a right to the body, Sharkey went four fast rounds against Johnny Grosso and Pierre Charles, the Belgian. The Boston sailor will not work tomorrow but Scott, with his complete retinue of managers and sparring partners, will accompany a big party to Palm Beach for a joint workout with Tommy Loughran in an especially arranged society meeting at the exclusive Oasis club. Tea will be served with dancing afterward in the Patio.

And now we have the painted finger-nail fad.

We have been through the bobbed hair era, the short skirt period and sun-back bathing suit mania but now on the horizon looms the painted finger-nail fad.

No, it hasn't become epidemic as yet, that is, not in the provinces but it is sweeping like wild-fire through the women's college and fashionable finishing schools.

It is not a thing to get alarmed over, it's like all other fads, it will have its run and then die out. Still I think it won't go as big as the sun-back bathing suits because the moralists can find nothing about it to shock their super-refined tastes.

So if you see a young girl with blue finger-nails don't think she's been putting down a carpet or nailing up pictures with a hammer. (Girls don't do those things any more). Look and see if her dress isn't blue too.

That's the catch in the new fad. You're supposed to paint your finger-nails the same color as your dress. If you have a red dress, paint the nails red, if it's purple the nails should correspond or at least harmonize and so on.

I suppose the only natural colored nails you'll see this summer will be at the beach. Probably some paint concern that is feeling a business depression started the fad to boost the sales. You know the slogan "Save the surface and you save all."

But think of the casualties that are going to result from this fad. Here's a girl who just loves radishes and she's wearing a red dress. What happens? First thing she knows she's almost bitten her finger off thinking it's a radish. The same catastrophe would happen to the girl in green eating olives.

Now along with the compact the up-to-the-minute girl will have to carry her little pot of paint and brushes, and a bottle of turpentine. Just think how the sale of paint remover is going to increase.

But at the same time think what a boon this fad is going to be to some people. Now take the garage mechanic for instance. He's got a date with his sweetie for the movies that evening and he's got to dress up.

Remember how it took him a good hour to scrub and clean his finger-nails after a day's work and even then there were traces of grime. Now all he has to do is slap on a little black fender paint and put on a black suit and he looks like he'd just come from the manicurists.

It's going to save the man a lotta trouble but how about the poor manicurist, is she going to lose out?

We shall see what we shall see.

FAST FIELD TO RUN AT TORONTO TONIGHT

TORONTO, Feb. 19—(AP)—An imposing array of stars will meet in the second Canadian indoor track championships tomorrow. Most of the top notch performers come from the United States but a few of the home-bred speedsters are expected to give them stiff competition.

Topping the list of championship events comes the 100-yard dash with George Simpson, the "fastest human" making an attempt at his favorite distance to atone for Monday's defeat in New York. Against him will be Leigh Miller and Johnny Fitzpatrick of the Hamilton Olympic club, who ran one-two in the Millrose sprint to defeat Jack Elder of Notre Dame, and Chet Bowman, Newark, A. C. star.

Dr. Paul Martin, of Switzerland, Phil Edwards, New York Negro star, who represents the Hamilton Olympic club, and Jimmy Ball, of Winnipeg, who came so close to beating Ray Barbuti out of the Olympic 400-meter title, will head the fields in three events. Martin will run the 1,000-meter event, Edwards a 800 meters and Ball at 300 meters.

Monty Wells of the Boston A. A. a consistent winner through the winter, is a strong favorite to win the hurdle events.

AGGIES HAVE LITTLE TROUBLE DOWNING WESLEYAN

STORRS, Feb. 19—(AP)—The Connecticut Aggies basketball team, playing one of its major games of the season, tonight defeated Wesleyan, 33 to 22.

The Aggies experienced no difficulty in trouncing the visitors. They took an early lead and maintained it throughout. Wesleyan trailed 14 to 7 at the end of the first period.

Captain, Ryan, Darrow and Chubbuck each contributed eight points to the Aggies' score, while Stiebinger and Owen each accounted for five of the visitors' points.

Reds Beat Tigers

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 19—(AP)—The Rhode Island Reds rode rough shod over the second place Boston Tigers, in a Canadian-American league hockey game here tonight eventually emerging a winner, 4 to 2. Three goals in the second period after the Tigers had tied the count at 1-1 in the first put the game on edge for the Reds.

LONG ISLAND PROS TAKE FAST GAME FROM PLAINFIELD TO EVEN SERIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 19—The Long Island Pros evened the count with the Plainfield Pros here tonight by winning 33 to 30 in as fast a game as has been seen here in some time. The game was one of those games where first one team looked like a winner and then the other. So closely was the game contested that no more than three points separated the teams at any time.

The game was productive of much brilliant basketball, there being plenty of spectacular work by Baldy Yerkes of the L. I. team and Whitey Bernot of the locals. Long shots were frequent and kept the fans in a constant state of enthusiasm during the entire game. Bernot was high scorer with 14 points while Yerkes and Bowden were close behind with 13. In the last half the visitors showed a very brilliant passing game which won for them. With a lead of three points, the L. I. boys took possession of the ball and held it by pass work until the final whistle.

In the preliminary game the New Village team beat the Old Villagers 22 to 19 in a hotly contested game. The interest in this game ran even higher than in the main attraction, as it was a purely local affair and the rivalry was bitter. The summaries:

MIAMI TO BE ACTIVE SPORT CENTER FOR 2 WEEKS

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 19—(AP)—An avalanche of sports that will carry this winter resort area through just about the busiest nine days of its history, struck Miami tonight.

The program got under way with 10,000 or so persons watching the championship wrestling match between Dynamite Gus Sonneberg, recognized as heavyweight titleholder in some states, and Joe Stecher, Nebraska farmer challenger. It will go into temporary decline the night of February 27, after Boston Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott of England, have walloped their way through a heavyweight "elimination" boxing contest.

A dual card of ring and mat work, bolstered by customary programs of dog racing and other sports, acted last night as a curtain raiser for the nine day schedule. Jackie Mason and Jimmy Spivey, welterweights, offered Miami's first 15-round boxing bout in one end of town. In another section Richard Shikat, recognized in two states as heavyweight wrestling titleholder, won an easy grappling victory over Rudy Dusek of Arkansas, at Lou Magnolia's Jai Alai Fronton.

After tonight the sports and social colony will move to Palm Beach, where Phil Scott will box in a society show tomorrow afternoon at the exclusive Oasis club.

Horse and dog racing and Jai Alai will then carry the burden of entertainment until W. L. "Young" Stribling steps into the ring Monday night with the veteran Bartley Madden in a ten round go at Coral Gables Coliseum.

Yachtsmen will offer their bit toward the roundup as they participate in the Washington's birthday regatta at Palm Beach. Miscellaneous golf tourneys also are scheduled.

The heavy fireworks will occur at Madison Square Garden's second annual "Battle of Miami" February 27. Although Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott are billed at the top, at least one other bout of the program will command interest. That is the scheduled contest between Victorio Campolo, pride of the Argentine and Rubbery Johnny Risko.

The sentimental build-up that prefaced 1929's "Battle of the Palms" is lacking this year. The shock of Tex Rickard's death is missing from the picture as is the drama that surrounded Jack Dempsey's taking over the promotional reins that dropped with Rickard's death.

High Garden officials arrived this week, and today training camps were scattered all over Miami and Miami Beach.

The general build-up for the nine days' slate suffered a setback several days ago as a gambling "war" claimed the limelight. The war was settled in ample time to save sports promoters any serious loss of ticket sales to purchasers who might have bemoaned the absence of games of chance.

With the temporary calming of the situation the sale of tickets, food and accommodations to winter colony members was renewed.

GOLFERS TUNE UP FOR SAVANNAH, OPEN TODAY

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 19—(AP)—More than two score professional and amateur golfers, led by Bobby Jones, national open champion, took a practice swing around the Country club course here today in preparation for the 72-hole $3,000 open tournament, starting tomorrow.

The Atlanta lawyer-golfer, playing his first tournament round of the 1930 campaign, stroked his way over the difficult par 74 layout in 70. However, Bobby required two strokes more than did Horton Smith, of Detroit and Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., who were members of a five-some which also included Al Espinosa, veteran Chicago pro and Dr. C. F. Holton, Savannah amateur entry.

Dudley and Smith, paired together against Jones and Espinosa, posted scores of 68 each. Espinosa had a 72, while Dudley shot a 78.

A dozen or more leading exponents of golf for cash, headed by Gene Sarazen, winner of the $25,000 Agua Caliente open, and Johnny Farrell, former national open king, are expected tonight.

Smith said today he had ended his professional connection with the Joplin, Mo., club on January 1. He said he is unattached to any club at present, but that he had become connected with a golf equipment manufacturing company in Detroit, and that in future tournaments he would register from Detroit.

MORTIMER ELIMINATES STRONG ENGLISH RACQUETS CONTENDER

BOSTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—Stanley G. Mortimer, of Tuxedo, N. Y., eliminated Dr. H. William Leatham, one of the strongest English contenders, from the American racquets championship tournament, here today at the Tennis and Racquet club.

The scores were 13-18, 15-6, 15-7, 17-14.

Peter W. Kemp-Welch, young British star, defeated Constantine Huthins, of Boston, in straight games by scores of 15-5, 15-6, 15-9. Charles J. Coulter, Tuxedo, N. Y., vanquished W. Palmer Dixon, New York, in a five game match, 3-15, 18-14, 12-15, 17-15, 15-0.

The final match of the day advanced Huntington D. Sheldon, of New York, defending champion into the quarter finals. He defeated Stanley W. Pearson, Philadelphia, by scores of 15-8, 15-9, 15-9.

YALE SWIMMERS SWAMP COLUMBIA TANK SQUAD

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Yale's swimmers swamped Columbia 45 to 17 tonight for their fourth victory in Intercollegiate Swimming Association league competition.

The Elis took first place in four individual events and the relay and six seconds while Columbia swimmers came home ahead in but two events. The meet gave Yale an undisputed hold on first place and dropped Columbia to sixth. The strong Yale team spread out the point scoring, no man scoring in two events.

Columbia won the water polo game, 33 to 28. Ray Rudey, who also won the 440-yard swimming event, scored 29 points in the water polo game while Rapoport tallied 25 for Yale.

BATTERY B TO STAGE BOXING CARD NEXT MONTH

Next month will see the Battery B unit open the boxing game in Norwich again when they put on a fast card of bouts at the state armory. A tentative card is already being considered and the local soldiers will put on their show shortly after the March show of the Shyma club. The Battery boys have become intensely interested in boxing of late and have a number of their members working out nightly at the gym. Among the boxers now with the battery team are Johnny Kop, Freddie Besade, Johnny "Sheik" Leonard, Patsy Ferra, Johnny Dosh, Young Guoin and a number of others.

RUTH ONLY HOLDOUT IN YANKEE FOLD

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—With Babe Ruth classed as the only holdout, the Yankees today announced the signing of 34 players, who will be taken south for the spring training trip.

The name of Tony Lazzeri was missing from the list but the Yankee officials said the snappy little infielder had come to terms and that his contract was enroute to the 42nd street office.

In an effort to bring the Babe back into the fold, Col. Jacob Ruppert will leave for St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4, for a conference with the home run king. The signing of Babe may be expected within a day or two after the conference, in the opinion of the Yankee officials.

AL KOZIOL FIGHTS AT PROVIDENCE THIS EVENING

Al Koziol, local battler, will box at Providence tonight against Tony Lizia of Italy. Koziol is in fine shape and expects to take the Italian in short order. In his last fight Koziol lost to Young Lefty but is confident that he will be returned a winner in tonight's battle. Lizia is a boy who has fought only a few fights in America since coming from Italy a short time ago.

"IVY" OLSON RETURNS TO DODGERS AS COACH

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—"Ivy" Olson, famous Brooklyn shortstop from 1915 to 1924, is coming back to the scene of his former triumphs as a coach for the Dodgers.

Olson, said to be only major leaguer who ever wore cotton in his ears to deafen the hisses of the grandstand "jockeys," will replace Max Carey on the coaching lines. He will report at Clearwater with the first contingent of the Brooklyn batterymen.

People can no more help growing old than they can growing fat.

MR. AND MRS. GEO. F. KIBBE MARRIED 45 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Kibbe of Hebron celebrated the 45th anniversary of their marriage February 17. In 1885, February 17, Miss Ida Raymond and George F. Kibbe were united in marriage in the First Congregational church in Hebron by Rev. J. Lee Nott, pastor of the church. Mrs. Charles J. Douglas played the wedding march. Mrs. Kibbe's girlhood home was where Edward A. Raymond's place now is. At the time of her marriage she was living on the place she now owns and what is known as the Frank Raymond homestead. Two pleasant surprise parties were given Mr. and Mrs. Kibbe at their home on Church street in honor of their anniversary. The first party was February 14, given by friends from Springfield. Happy returns of the day and best wishes were expressed by Mr. and Mrs. Delbut Whitney, Mrs. Charlotte Rolf and Mrs. Arthur Fannauf. After spending the day they left beautiful flowers and returned to Springfield by automobile. The second surprise party was given Sunday, February 16 by the Raymond family. At 2 p. m., sixteen members of the family sat down to a bountiful dinner prepared and served by the surprise party members. The table was beautifully decorated with flowers. The party included Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood H. Raymond and family of New Britain, Mrs. Lulu Raymond Lord and son, Morgan Lord, of South Manchester, Mrs. Sadie Johnson and daughter, Betty, Hartford, Edward A. Raymond and daughter, Ruth, Amston, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Bosly, New Britain. Mr. Bosly is foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Kibbe, Fred Davis of New London. Sherwood H. Raymond acted as master of ceremonies. Mr. and Mrs. Kibbe were presented a Standard electric floor lamp and flowering plants.

Rev. Theodore D. Martin preached Sunday in the First Congregational churches of Hebron and Gilead in place of Rev. John W. Dester, who became ill Sunday morning with German measles.

MRS. C. F. RYAN RETURNS FROM FUNERAL OF RELATIVE

Mrs. Chester F Ryan has returned to her home after spending a few days with relatives at Westport and attending the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Whitlock, wife of George A. Whitlock, which was held Thursday afternoon. Rev. John W. Morgan, of the Westport Methodist Episcopal church, officiated. Mrs. Charles Smith, of Providence, has spent a few days with relatives on Prospect street.

The K. D. Sewing circle of the A. O. H. auxiliary, No. 18, met at the home of Miss Molly Carroll on Boswell avenue, for a valentine social. A large class was present. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy articles and lampshading, after which a social hour was enjoyed with piano and vocal selections being rendered. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Margaret Wallace and Mrs. Grace Mumford. The next meeting will be held Thursday, Feb. 27.

BALTIC CHILD SUFFERS FRACTURE OF SKULL

Rita Peloquin, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peloquin of Baltic, sustained a fractured skull in an unusual accident last week at Baltic and is a patient at the Backus hospital.

As she was sliding on a small hill, she was given a push by a companion which sent the sled down into High street just in time to be struck by an automobile said to have been driven by Joseph Sevigny of Plain Hill. The child got up, walked a short distance but then fell and when Dr. E. G. Marcotte was called it was found the little girl had a fractured skull and she was sent to the hospital.

TWO RESIGNATIONS FROM FACULTY AT STORRS

The resignations of two members of the faculty at the Connecticut Agricultural college — Clarence Irving Hendrickson, assistant agricultural economist and William H. Darrow, fruit specialist in the extension service—were accepted at a meeting of the board of trustees of the institution Wednesday at Hartford.

The retirement of Mr Darrow who has been connected with the extension service of the college for a number of years, is because of ill health, it is announced. He plans to leave his work April 20, to return to his farm in Vermont. Mr Hendrickson's resignation, previously announced, will be effective next November, when he will undertake agricultural survey work for the federal government.

The remainder of the meeting of the trustees was given over to discussion of the college budget for the next fiscal year, which will probably be given out in tentative form next month.

TWO GROTON PEOPLE WIN JUDGMENTS IN SUITS AGAINST ADMINISTRATRIX

The jury in the superior court at New London Wednesday afternoon gave judgment for the two plaintiffs, George W. and Hattie L. Ingram of Groton, in their suits against Gladys Flint of Groton, administratrix of the estate of Edward Houche. The jury gave Mrs. Ingram the sum of $1,486, which was the full amount she sued for, and gave Mr. Ingram a judgment for $932.

The Ingrams sued jointly for services claimed to have been given to Mr. Houche during the last two years of his life, when they claim they lived at his house and took care of him.

Trial of the case was long drawn out, coming over from Thursday last week, when it was started, to Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The two suits were tried together.

Witnesses called for the plaintiffs were: Hazel W. McGrath, Clifford J. Desmond, Fred Weyler, L. M. Ingram, Flora B. Ingram, Frank B. Ingram and Emanuel Pons.

For the defendant the witnesses called were Gladys L. Flint, Myrtle Lanphear, Charles L. Flint, Madella W. Mell, Nelson C. L. Brown, Frederick E. Waite, Fred Wright, Edwin Lanphear and Linda R. Denison.

The testimony was concluded for both sides by 12:30 p. m. Wednesday and was followed by the arguments by Attorneys, Robert P. Anderson and Philip Z. Hankey for the plaintiffs, and G. C. Morgan for the defendant.

After Judge C. L. Avery had delivered his charge to the jury, the twelve men were out for a considerable time before they came in with a verdict. The jury in the case was as follows: New London—William Geer, Charles H. Kenney, Henry R. Tisdale; Stonington—George P. Cella, Albert P. Kenyon; Montville—Dwight Kelsey, Burke G. Hewitt; Ledyard—Billings T. Avery, Carroll S. Hurlbut; Waterford—Herbin O. Eccleston, Frank Geer, Monroe L. Beckwith.

BRIDGES OF DEFUNCT S. N. E. R. R. MUST GO

In compliance with a request of the Massachusetts legislature that he investigate the necessity of removing bridges of the defunct Southern New England Railroad corporation, which was to have given the Central Vermont railway another outlet at Providence and of the Hampden Railroad corporation, western Massachusetts, in a number of towns in the central and western part of the state, Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Warner of Massachusetts, in a report filed with the general court, declared that bridges in 12 towns are in such an unsafe condition that they should be demolished.

The communities affected and the cost of removing the structures follow: Blackstone, $4,100; Uxbridge, $12,200; Douglas, $21,300; Webster, $7,600; Dudley, $31,400; Southbridge, $40,000; Sturbridge, $7,500; Brimfield, $23,900; Palmer, 12,100; Ludlow, $9,000; Belchertown, $4,900; Chicopee $3,000; the total being $182,000. In the case of Dudley and Brimfield, however, further costs would arise in the removing of structures located on the state highways.

With reference to the question as to who should pay the cost of the removal, the attorney general, after pointing out that the two railroads are defunct, expresses the belief that the legislature should decide as a matter of public policy whether the costs should be borne by the state or by the communities.

Practically all of the bridges of both of the railroads are or soon will amount to obstructions to travel on such ways, he finds. The towns in which said bridges are located would be liable to travelers for injuries received by them as a result of their defective condition. The bridges may now be removed without interfering with the authorized construction or operation of either of said railroads. Inasmuch as the towns would be liable to travelers for injuries received as a result of the defective condition of the bridges, the conclusion is irresistible that the towns are liable for the maintenance and keeping in repair or removal of said bridges or any part of them and are therefore legally bound to bear the expenses of repairing or removal.

Recommendations of the attorney general's department as to specific bridges along right of way are carried in detail. It is recommended that 59 structures be removed, and that most of the cuts be filled in. At least one structure already have been removed.

The estimates of cost of work total $182,000, but this does not include all bridges, nor all the work to be done on some of them, so this $182,000 may be taken as minimum cost. There is no way of determining what maximum cost may amount to.

AMERICAN WOOLEN MAKES REDUCTION ON STAPLES

According to a New York dispatch, the American Woolen company announces a reduction on men's wear staples, effective Wednesday. The announcement by Charles H. Silver, selling agent, says: "The continued decline in the wool market has been sufficient to justify a readjustment of prices on serges, unfinished worsteds, cheviots, Frenchbacks and serge pencil stripes, which were placed on the market for fall, 1930. The new prices on these fabrics in departments 1 and 2 will be effective at once."

Unofficially, it was learned that the company is "tired of holding the umbrella for the rest of the market."

Persons in close touch with the affairs of the company said that the company has been a leader in all endeavors to stabilize the market for wool goods, and that its recent effort to put the staples market on a profitable basis has resulted in its being constantly undersold by competitors.

Included among the mills in the staples division are William Whitman company (Arlington Mills), Cleveland Worsted Mills, J P. Stevens & Co., Verdun Manufacturing company, Amoskeag Mills, Princeton Worsted Mills and Stillwater Sales company.

Prevailing opinion is that price lists announced by other leaders in the staple market will be revised downward in the very near future.

HOUGHTON BULKELEY TO WED NORWICH GIRL

Houghton Bulkeley, 33, of No. 8 Woodside circle, Hartford, investment broker, and Miss Virginia Grover, 20, of Taftville, obtained a marriage license in New York city on Wednesday. They stated they would be married March 30, but did not say where. The bride-elect was born in Boston, Mass., daughter of Alfred C. and Ethel Peterson Grover. Mr. Bulkeley was born in Old Saybrook, Conn., at the summer home of his parents. He was previously married to Margaret Whitmore, now Mrs. Donald Gilbert Perkins of Greenwich, and was divorced from her in Geneva, Switzerland, May 4, 1928.

Mr. Bulkeley, former president of the Hartford board of aldermen and a major on the staff of Governor Trumbull, is the son of the late ex-Senator Morgan G. Bulkeley and Mrs. Bulkeley of Woodside circle. Miss Grover is the daughter of Mrs. Frank B. Ricketson of Taftville.

TWO NORWICH MEN ENLIST FOR NAVY

Peter Kryzwicki, 20 North street, and John Stanley Koziol, 283 Laurel Hill avenue, are two recent enlistments for the United States navy. Both were sent to the training station at Newport, R. I., for nine weeks' military training and if found qualified for a course of instructions at the electrical school at Hampton Roads, Va.

Kryzwicki was a member of the 192nd Field Artillery, Connecticut National Guard, and both men are graduates of Norwich Free Academy.

The monthly quota of 15 men assigned the state was filled the first day of the recruiting month, so that no further enlistments will be accepted until the 15th of March. The local station had 18 accepted applicants but due to the small quotas, all applicants are graded, physically, mentally and aptitude for a first class man o' wars man. Those that have the highest average are selected. Applicants who have passed all the requirements are placed on the waiting list and will be accepted at such time when the quotas are increased.

The reason for the present small quotas is due to the fact that re-enlistments are on the highest level in the history of the navy.

POSTAL CLERKS, NOT CARRIERS, IN DIFFICULTY

With reference to an Associated Press despatch carried Wednesday morning, Albert A. Guile of this city, president of Branch No. 29, National Association of Letter Carriers, the carriers' state organization, in a statement issued Wednesday night, denied that there has been any controversy between the carriers at the Hartford post office. The reported bitter feeling between the "two factions" of carriers, Mr. Guile said, is an error. It is the post office clerks, and not the carriers, who are engaged in the controversy.

MORE COUNTERFEIT BILLS APPEARING IN NORWICH

Several more $10 counterfeit bills have been discovered in Norwich. In all ten have been received at local banks within the past two days, and it is believed that a gang of counterfeiters is operating in this section. Secret service men from Providence are to start an immediate investigation.

That the people of Norwich and vicinity may be able to distinguish the counterfeits from the genuine bills, the Uncas-Merchants bank has on display in its show window two of the counterfeit bills while under it is a bona fide bill of $10 denomination. Already the display has attracted wide attention. A close scrutiny of the display will give the average person an idea of how to distinguish the counterfeit from the genuine if he runs across one by chance.

TARIFF BILL FARM RATES INCREASED BY THE SENATE

Now Certain That the Bill Will Carry the Highest Agricultural Schedule In History—In Completing Revision of the Bill Seven Additional Increases Were Voted—Schedule Is Higher Than That Approved By the House, But There Are Indications That No Differences Will Arise In Conference.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—(AP)—Although cries of "drunk with greed" and "running wild" baited in a measure the drive for higher duties, the senate completed revision of the tariff bill farm rates today and made certain that the bill to be sent to the white house will carry the highest agricultural schedule in history.

As a whole, the senate farm schedule represents quite an increase over that approved by the house. Since both parties are in accord with President Hoover on the need of farm relief through the tariff, there is every indication that no differences will arise in conference on this score.

Seven additional increases of farm rates were put through today. Four more were turned down after warnings came from both democrats and republican independents that to place in the bill higher levies which obviously were unjustified would only strengthen the president's stand against the debenture plan.

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, cautioned that increases in duties on products on a heavy export basis would make the debenture rates so high that the administration's opposition to the debenture would be augmented.

Under the debenture plan incorporated in the bill by the coalition farmers would be paid out of the treasury half the tariff on any product they exported. President Hoover raised ten objections to the debenture when the farm marketing act was in the making.

Senator Blaine, republican independent, Wisconsin, expressed a hope that the debenture would be retained, but warned against unjustifiable farm duties that would give the president "excuses to veto the bill."

"I feel it very keenly," he said, "that if we run wild in increases where no justification is warranted, we will create a condition that will give the president the very excuse that will justify him in disapproving the bill."

The increases approved were on almonds of all kinds, vegetable oil cake and oil cake meal, sweet clover, crimson clover, alsike clover and mustard seed and crude horse radish.

The almond rates approved were those carried in the bill and represented a compromise between higher levies, proposed by Senator Shortridge, republican, California, and present duties favored by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York. The bill rates are 5 1-2 cents a pound on unshelled compared with a present duty of 4 3-4 cents; 16 1-2 cents on shelled compared with 14 cents; 18 1-2 cents on preserved almonds and almond substitutes, compared with 35 per cent ad valorem, and 18 1-2 cents on almond paste compared with 14 cents.

Vegetable oil cake and oil cake meal of all kinds, now on the free list, were given a rate of three-tenths of a cent a pound; that on alsike cloverseed from four to eight cents; crimson clover seed from one to two cents; sweet clover seed from two to four cents, and crude horse radish from the free list to three cents a pound.

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, lost in attempts to boost the duties on lard from one to four cents a pound and an oleo oil and oleo stearin from one cent a pound to 3 7-10 and 4 1-2 cents, respectively. The lard rate was left at three cents, as proposed in the bill, when Brookhart's amendment was rejected, 53 to 28.

It was this proposed increase that drew fire from Harrison and Senator Norbeck, republican independent, South Dakota.

The Mississippian pointed out that there were no imports of lard and exports amounted to more than 700,000,000 pounds. Norbeck contended the increase would be only a gesture.

"Back to the industrialists then," Brookhart commended his coalition colleagues. It was Senator Frazier, republican independent, North Dakota, who, after losing an amendment to raise the duty on Timothy seed from two to three cents a pound, drew the most heated protest by proposing a duty on bread, now on the free list.

"I never thought," shouted Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, "that I would see a tariff seriously proposed on bread, the staff of life. It shows how mad and drunk we have become. Isn't there any limit to our greed?—To put a tax even on the crumbs for the poor."

Brookhart replied that bread consumers were in sympathy with the farmers and willing to "help them with this tax," but after Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, observed that no farmer had asked him for a bread tariff, the matter was dropped.

The bill as it now stands carries higher rates all along the line on all forms of agriculture—dairy, cattle, grain, fruits, vegetables, fish, nuts, poultry, horticulture and seeds of all varieties.

CAMBRIDGE FIREMAN SUFFOCATED BY SMOKE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 20.—(AP)—One fireman was suffocated and eight others and a gas worker made critically ill by illuminating gas during a small rubbish fire in the basement of a Cambridge chain grocery store tonight. The explosion of a meter released the gas.

The nine firemen and gas workers had entered the basement of the store through a cellar window. When nothing was heard from them three comrades, their faces wrapped in wet towels, jumped into the basement. The three rescuers tied ropes about the bodies of the trapped men, who were hauled to the street through a window.

The dead man was Ladderman William McGrath, a member of the Cambridge fire department for 22 years. He had entered the cellar first and was dead on arrival at the Cambridge Relief hospital.

EXPECT PLEDGE OF $50,000,000 BY CHICAGO TAXPAYERS

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Some 43,000 public employes tonight experienced that feeling which comes only on the eve of payday as Chicago began converting words into cash to relieve the city's financial embarrassment.

Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the Citizens' Rescue committee, said he expected to have $50,000,000 pledged by taxpayers by tomorrow. City and county officials added the cheerful word that checks would follow within 24 hours.

Some bankers of the citizens' committee were skeptical of the promise, pointing out that mechanics of organizing the pool and collecting the money would be more than a one-day task. It appeared certain, however, that every public employe would be paid up to Feb. 15 by Tuesday at the latest.

CAFETERIA WRECKED BY COMMUNISTS ON STRIKE

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP)—A demonstration today by between 100 and 150 members of the Amalgamated Food Workers' union (communists) resulted in an estimated $5,000 damage to a West 35th street cafeteria in broken dishes and glass table tops and unpaid checks which patrons left behind in their rush to get out.

The trouble started when an 18-year-old girl leaped to the top of a table and shouted to the 450 persons who crowded the place: "Everybody out! This place is on strike!" Somebody hurled a bottle at the plate glass window. The bottle splintered, but the window remained intact.

Twelve police reserves were required to clear the cafeteria. Four persons were arrested.

ICE JAM CAUSED FLOOD OF STREETS IN MOHAWK, N. Y.

MOHAWK, N. Y., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Several streets of this little Herkimer county village were under water today as the result of an ice jam which caused Folmer creek to overflow.

In a few cases the water had reached the first floors of houses. All traffic in one of the downtown streets was stopped by the water. Workmen were using dynamite freely in an attempt to break the ice jam before the rising waters forced residents to flee from their homes.

YOUNG MAN CONFESSED HE HAD KILLED NINE MEN

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Confessing he had killed eight men with poison and a ninth with a revolver, James Baker, 25, was being held here tonight for New York police who have sought him for more than a year in connection with the death of one of his alleged victims.

Baker was arrested last night on a farm near Farmington, a suburb. He had lived there for nearly a year. Yesterday informers tipped off Detroit police that they believed Baker was a fugitive.

At headquarters he talked freely, almost boastfully, of his exploits.

The list of Baker's victims as assembled from his confessions shows a trail of death extending from Bombay, India, to Hamburg, Germany, more than half way around the globe.

Specifically, Baker is wanted in connection with the poisoning in New York Dec. 28, 1928, of Henry S. Gaw, a night watchman at the Guggenheim laboratory where he also was employed.

Baker's confession was received almost incredulously by Detroit authorities. He calmly informed them that he poisoned his victims because he wanted to witness the effects of the various poisons and because the deaths of human beings gave him "a funny sort of mental satisfaction."

MALLORY LINER RESCUED SHIPWRECKED SAILOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The rescue of a shipwrecked alien sailor off Dimon Shoals, Cape May, was reported today in a wireless message from Captain E. D. Johnson, master of the steamship Henry R. Mallory, to the Mallory line's office here.

It was believed the man may have been one of the crew of the coal barge Carroll which broke away from the tug that was towing it from Norfolk, Va., to New York last week and foundered in a storm. Two members of the barge's four-man crew were found frozen to death Sunday in an open boat off the Delaware capes and brought to New York by a coast guard vessel. No trace of the other two or of the barge was found.

Captain Johnson's message did not state whether the sailor was in a boat or clinging to wreckage. The Henry R. Mallory, en route from Galveston, Texas, is scheduled to dock here tomorrow.

HOPES FOR NEW WORKING AGREEMENT FOR MINERS

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 20.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, speaking here tonight at the annual banquet of the Scranton Central Labor union, expressed the hope that within the next 90 days a new working agreement for a substantial period of time will be negotiated with the anthracite operators.

SIR ESME HOWARD SPEAKER AT DINNER OF PILGRIMS

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Sir Esme Howard, retiring British ambassador, speaking tonight at a dinner of the Pilgrims of the United States predicted "for reasons material and utilitarian rather than sentimental," that Anglo-American relations would continue steadily to improve.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Predictions were heard here that James Brown, who started work in the mines at 12 years of age, will again be appointed high commissioner of the General assembly of the Church of Scotland.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The high cost of hospitality for the delegations attending the five-power naval conference brought on a debate in the house of commons tonight, when the government asked for an additional $45,000 for expenses.

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Following closely on the heels of a laconic denial by the police that a revolution is threatening in Portugal, the ministers of the interior and of war issued reassuring statements today which greatly relieved public anxiety.

ZAGREB, Jugoslavia, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Announcement that a placer deposit of gold had been found on the banks of the river Drave caused a stampede to that vicinity. The gold is found at a depth of from 18 to 21 feet and discoverers of the deposit claim that it yields rich ore.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Further finds in the ancient tomb discovered recently near the Sphinx were made known yesterday. Archaeologists were quoted as believing that the chief prize was a large gold vase containing flowers fashioned from gold and which, it is believed, once adorned the dining room of the Highest Priest Rawer. It is said that this vase has no parallel in any existing collections of Egyptian antiquities.

WATER WORKS PLANT WAS DAMAGED BY A BOMB

BUCHANAN, Mich., Feb. 20.—(AP)—A bomb concealed in a cleverly designed package and sent by express damaged the interior of the Water Works plant here tonight and injured Arlin B. Clark, 54, superintendent of the plant, who opened the package.

The package was the exact size of a water meter and bore the label of a company in Chicago from which the plant buys meters, Clark said. When he opened it at 7 p. m. there was a flash and he jumped back before the full force of the blast was released. He was thrown ten feet and knocked unconscious. Physicians later said, however, that he was not seriously injured.

The interior of the plant was damaged to a considerable extent and two fire department chemical trucks, which were housed in the building, were wrecked. Police were unable to find a shred of the bomb package.

Clark said that he always personally opens packages in which meters are sent but that he knows of no reason why anyone should have wanted to kill him. The infernal machine he said, apparently had been expressed from Chicago.

FIRE ON S. S. PRESIDENT GARFIELD AT JERSEY CITY

JERSEY CITY, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Flames that for a time threatened to destroy the S. S. President Garfield at its Dollar line dock here this afternoon were reported under control tonight.

The fire was confined to two hatches where 200 barrels of fuel oil and a large quantity of rubber were stored.

The 16,000 ton liner was docked almost directly over the south side of the Holland tunnel and fear was expressed that the huge billows of smoke might seep into the tunnel ventilating system and stop sub-river traffic. Seven engine companies and two trucks were engaged in fighting the menace.

The President Garfield arrived from the Orient Friday with a cargo of rubber, oil and foodstuffs. It was discharging its cargo this afternoon when the fire broke out. It is scheduled to sail for Boston tomorrow morning.

Chautemps To Try Form French Cabinet

A General Feeling of U[illegible] tainty About His [illegible] Prevails In Franc[illegible]

PARIS, Feb. 20—(AP)—[illegible] Camille Chautemps was commissioned to form a new government today and to bring France out of the cabinet crisis caused by the downfall of the Tardieu ministry but a general feeling of uncertainty about his chances prevailed in France tonight.

Though the radical-socialist leader announced that he was continuing his efforts to form a ministry and would report to President Doumergue at 3:30 a. m. tomorrow, all except his immediate entourage believed he had undertaken a hopeless task.

The refusal of former Premier Tardieu to collaborate in it deprived Chautemps of the support of moderates, centrists and rightists, obliging him to fall back on the left groups exclusively.

One bit of hope was the acceptance of the foreign affairs portfolio by Aristide Briand. Briand's impassioned oratory counts in debate and often swings votes, but his supporters are often emotional and unstable.

Observers in general prophesied tonight that even if M. Chautemps could get together 16 ministers and 11 under secretaries of state to present to President Doumergue he would not be able to carry a vote of confidence in the chamber, and within a few days would fall.

In that case President Doumergue would probably call upon M. Briand, and afterward M. Poincare, both of whom are reported to have already expressed their convictions that M. Tardieu should be recalled to succeed himself.

M. Tardieu's statement explaining his refusal to take part in a Chautemps cabinet said that he was ready to "give his entire support to any government pursuing the defense of the French naval thesis unanimously approved by parliament last December and presented at London by the preceding government."

He insisted however that neither the political events of the past three months nor the parliamentary situation resulting from Monday's vote would permit him to accept a collaboration that might be interpreted as disowning the majority in the chamber of deputies that had faithfully supported him at The Hague reparations conference and at the London naval conference.

Meanwhile the bourse was quiet in face of the political uncertainty. The French three per cent bonds which are the recognized barometer of the financial state of mind in Paris, held their own, and were quoted today at only a fraction below yesterday's level.

NEW PLAN IN CHICAGO TO GET RID OF GANGSTERS

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Chicago plans to spend real money to get rid of its gangsters and intends to make them foot the bill during the elimination process.

This became known today when Col. Robert Isham Randolph, head of the secret "committee of six" association of commerce crime fighters, announced a proposal whereby a million or so of the dollars Chicago business has been giving as racketeer tribute will be used to secure "alibi proof" evidence against the big shots" and call a halt to their activities.

This plan, Col. Randolph said, will be laid before the executive committee of the association of commerce tomorrow, and if approved will be put into execution at once.

Business men have assured him, Col. Randolph declared, that they would willingly contribute toward rigid law enforcement, using the funds that ordinarily went to the gangster chieftains, for "protection." The moneys would be used to employ expert investigators.

YOUTH SENTENCED BY JUDGE ALLYN L. BROWN

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Chester Andrzjusky, 18, of this city, who, with two juvenile companions literally wrecked the interior of the Bassick junior high school, was sentenced to five and one half years in Cheshire reformatory by Judge Allyn L. Brown in criminal superior court today.

The youth entered a plea of guilty to charges of breaking and entering.

In passing sentence Judge Brown declared: "it would probably be cheaper for the city of Bridgeport to support this boy's family than turn him loose on society."

On February 9, Andrzjusky and his two younger accomplices broke into the school and armed with a brace and bit, played havoc with the desks and doors of the school. They drilled holes in woodwork at random and shattered 29 transoms in gaining entrance to rooms.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Emile Todd Helm

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Death has claimed the last surviving person who was intimately acquainted with Abraham Lincoln.

Mrs. Emile Todd Helm, 94, half-sister of the martyred president's wife, Mary Todd Lincoln, and long a close associate of the Civil war president, died at her home in Fayette county near here today.

Mrs. Helm had spent months of her early girlhood at the home of Lincoln in Springfield, Ill., and a friendship, formed then, continued during the life of the president. The fact that Mrs. Helm's husband, Brigadier General Ben Hardin Helm, served in the Confederate army against Lincoln's forces did not alter the president's feeling for Mrs. Helm. He had offered General Helm a commission in the Union army.

When General Helm was killed at the Battle of Chickamauga in 1862 Lincoln invited Mrs. Helm to the white house for an extended visit.

Hold-Up At Box-Office [illegible] Waterbury A. C.

Two [illegible] Escaped With [illegible] Ditched Auto When Chased By Police.

WATERBURY, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Holding up the cashier of the Waterbury Athletic club during a boxing exhibition in Buckingham hall, at 9:15 o'clock tonight, two youths at the point of a gun forced William Cahill to turn over the night's receipts of $1,790. After being chased by the police to the city's limits in the town plot section of the city, the youths ditched their car and made their escape by foot through the woods.

The car used by the holdup men was stolen from the Waterbury auto paint shop on Watertown avenue and the markers thrown away. Plates issued to Florence E. Lucier, of Norfolk, were taken from another machine in the paint shop and put on the car which was used in the holdup and get-away.

The holdup was staged soon after Policeman Alexander Fossbender, engaged to guard the cashier and his receipts, left the box office to watch the fights in the ring upstairs. After his departure a door to the box office opened and a voice ordered Cahill to push the bag of money out through the window opening to the man standing there to receive it. Cahill turned, saw the youth beside him with a leveled revolver, and complied by pushing the money through the aperture.

INMATE OF SCHOOL FOR BOYS JABBED WITH MANURE FORK

MERIDEN, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Rudolph Brown, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Brown, of 31 Deacon street, New Britain, an inmate of the Connecticut state school for boys, here, is at the Meriden hospital in a critical condition, as a result of being jabbed with a manure fork, while at work in the barn yard of the institution this afternoon.

Two prongs of the fork penetrated his abdomen on the upper left side several inches, and ruptured an artery in the abdomen. A surgeon who operated upon the lad said afterward that he considered his chances of recovery very slim.

At the time of the accident Brown, with a group of other boys, was at work, when Austin Mills, 16, of New London, also an inmate of the school, jabbed his fork into Brown's abdomen. Officials of the school said they considered the injury purely accidental.

There is some question about its being accidental, however, and by direction of Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan, the boy's ante mortem statement was taken. It is reported that Brown claimed in his statement that the incident was not accidental.

WATERBURY TAX COLLECTOR SERVING WITHOUT BOND

WATERBURY, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Tax Collector Jesse Devine served without bond for the past year and is still unbonded, it was learned at today's meeting of the board of finance. This situation was frequently rumored as existing last year, but whenever brought to the attention of city officials, was promptly denied.

Mayor T. Frank Hayes told the board that he learned of the situation recently and felt it wise to bring it to the attention of the board. A special meeting of the board of aldermen has been called for tomorrow night to act on the matter. Mayor Hayes declared that the lack of a bond indicates no dereliction or improper conduct on the part of the collector, but is solely due to the failure of the former controller to have the collector's books audited, without which report the bonding companies would not accept the risk. The books have since been audited by the city charter commission's experts and found to be correct and in proper shape.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The finding of the body of Carl Ben Eielson, noted Arctic flier, near the wreckage of his airplane ninety miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia, has ended one of the greatest searches in the history of aviation, and plans were made here today to welcome an international air funeral procession to Alaska.

EDUCATOR FINDS DRY LAW SOCIAL AND LEGAL FAILURE

Dr. S. H. Church, President of the Carnegie Institute, Asserted That Prohibition Is Causing An Increase of Intemperance, Corruption and Crime—A Scientist, a Publisher and An Editor Joined In Denouncing Prohibition As a Disgrace and Unworthy of the United States.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)— A chic society woman from Philadelphia and a weather-beaten farmer from the North Dakota plains, together with a former senator and a former representative, an educator, a scientist, a publisher, an editor, and a leader of an organization of young men aligned themselves today in denouncing prohibition as a disgrace, unworthy of the United States.

They were proponents of repeal of the dry amendment, before the house judiciary committee. Mrs. Graham Dougherty, of Philadelphia, declared "the women of the country are going to see to it that the 18th amendment is thrown out of the constitution." The young matron said she represented women of Pennsylvania who were "tired of the hypocrisy, bribery, corruption and crime brought about by the dry law."

In contrast with the eager young woman, Pierce Blewett, of Jamestown, North Dakota, related a measured story of destitution and despair brought to the farmers of his state through prohibition and conditions resulting from it.

"Prohibition," he said, "has ruined agriculture. It has driven former prosperous farmers into poverty."

The North Dakotan testified there was no demand for barley as in pre-prohibition days and that the money "that is sent out of the country to buy booze is money gone forever."

The witnesses who attacked prohibition today included George H. Williams, of St. Louis, the former senator; Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, Pennsylvania, the former representative; Dr. Samuel Harden Church, of Pittsburgh, president of the Carnegie Institute; Benedict Crowell, Cleveland publisher; William L. Chenery, editor of Collier's magazine; Frederic R. Coudert, of New York, and Ralph M. Shaw of Chicago, lawyers; Marione Eppley, a scientist of Providence, R. I., and Frederick Clark of New York and Cleveland, a leader of the "Crusaders" as "the organization of young men terms itself.

The wets were unable to present all of their witnesses today and Chairman Graham granted them next Wednesday in which to complete their argument after that proponents of the eighteenth amendment will be heard. Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, leader of the house wet bloc who is in charge of the wet witnesses, said that hundreds of prominent people had requested an opportunity to appear in support of repeal.

"We could present witnesses indefinitely," the Marylander said, "but I am afraid we will have to end our argument next Wednesday."

All the witnesses before the house judiciary committee testified that bootleg liquor was freely to be found in their cities and disregard for the liquor laws was general and outright.

Dr. Church said there is a "swelling wave of evidence on hand that in the opinion of many millions of the American people, prohibition, after ten years of trial, is unenforceable because it is opposed by the popular will."

The Pittsburgh educator asserted the dry law was a social and legal failure and had resulted in an increase of intemperance, corruption and crime. He charged that the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Virginia, the Anti-Saloon league, the Ku Klux Klan and the Lord's Day alliance were dictating to the legislators laws to enforce prohibition.

Coudert said that if there were a sincere effort made to enforce prohibition, between fifty and sixty million persons would have to be jailed for violation or Civil war would result.

"Should congress actually and in full good faith attempt to enforce completely and literally the 18th amendment," he said, "there would be either a complete political revolution or the nation would head toward civil war."

Former Senator Williams said nullification was a fact to be observed and not discussed in his section, St. Louis county, and that big alcohol manufacturers had been hiring men to go to jail for them when convicted for prohibition violations.

Cheney said that Collier's magazine had had a survey made of the liquor situation throughout the country and had found that liquor of a poor quality could be obtained any place where a person had the price. He said that a great crime wave and a powerful underworld had developed as a result of the dry laws and that the rural districts had shown more ingenuity than the cities in devising means of law evasion.

"The Crusaders" is an organization of young men recruited from over the country with the avowed purpose of bringing about repeal of prohibition. As an organizer of it, Clark said, the members were determined to "substitute real temperance for prohibition intemperance." He said that while "The Crusaders" was a young organization, it had more than 50,000 members and was constantly increasing.

Eppley, the scientist, said Rhode Island was opposed to the eighteenth amendment, as had been shown by a survey conducted by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. The survey, he added, indicated there were ten to one against prohibition but that the return of the old saloon was not favored.

CLAFLIN IS BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 20.—The man of many aliases, known here as Raymond C. Day, who was returned here from Pittsfield, Mass., Wednesday, by County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler, Police Chief Thomas F. Grady and Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Wilsh, was arraigned in police court this morning on three counts of obtaining merchandise under false pretenses. His arraignment in court was under the name of Ray C. Claflin, 44. The accused threw himself on the mercy of the court and asked an opportunity to make restitution to the three local merchants whom he had victimized. Judge Frank H. Foss found probable cause and bound the man over to the May criminal term of the Windham county superior court, naming the bond at $2,000. While operating a diner known as "Knocky's Lunch" on Union street and a cafeteria in the Central block on the same street, Claflin, alias Day, entered into a racket which police say he has successfully worked in several other cities. He secured various merchandise on credit or small down payments and when he disappeared from the city with a blonde woman, falsely represented her as his wife, he took most of this merchandise with him. Practically all of it has been recovered from rooms in Bristol by Detective Wheeler and Chief Grady. Besides his ventures into the merchandise racket, Claflin proved a good hand at borrowing money. In one instance he borrowed on two notes the sum of $50 from S. P. Burgess of this city, returning only $10 of this amount. Several additional counts of obtaining money or goods under false pretenses are likely to develop against the man before the case reaches superior court and the authorities are also considering a charge of adultery. In court today Claflin said that his 70-year-old mother was ill and he asked for clemency in her behalf. He promised that he would make restitution if given an opportunity and admitted having performed a contemptible trick. In default of a bond he was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn to await trial.

COLCHESTER

GRANGE ORGANIZED 42 YEARS AGO, FEB. 14, 1888

There was a large attendance Wednesday evening at the meeting of Colchester grange No. 78, P. of H., Past Master William B. Gerhardt presiding. Following the business session all retired to the dining hall where a fine supper of baked beans, salads, cake and coffee was served under the direction of the committee in charge of Mrs. Robert S. Brown, the recently installed lecturer. A number of the older members as well as several visiting grangers addressed the gathering in connection with the observance of the forty-second anniversary of the organization of Colchester grange, Feb. 14, 1888, the grange was organized at the old creamery building on Buckley hill. There were forty-four charter members of whom there remain only three active charter members. The late Carroll E. Staples well-known in grange circles throughout the state was instrumental in organizing the local grange. David S. Bigelow was the first master. Since its organization there have been eleven masters in office. The grange now numbers eighty-five members, a large number of new members having been taken in during the past few years.

Among those who addressed the gathering were the secretary, Miss Belle L. Strong, Mrs. Samuel N. Morgan, an active charter member, Myron R. Abell who joined only a few months after its organization, Mr. and Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Flynn and Mrs. Buddington of Norwich grange, William K. Raymond of East Haddam grange and William Thomas Curry of Lebanon grange. The lecturer, Mrs. Robert S. Brown read several interesting letters received from old members of the local grange who extended best wishes for the progress of the organization during the coming years and mentioned interesting features of grange work in the early years of its growth. Shortly after the society was formed here, the members, under the guidance of their master, Mr. Bigelow and their capable organizer, C. E. Staples, worked for the betterment of the community with such notable projects as the rural mail service, good roads and better schools and living conditions as their goal. Apron and food sales, grange fairs and entertainments have been held by the society in past years, through the cooperation of its members. It was largely through the grange influence that rural delivery mail service was started in Colchester in Sept. 1901.

Among the old members who wrote letters congratulating the grange on its anniversary were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carrier, of Portland, Conn., Mrs. Jennie S. Plumb, Colchester, Dr. Vroom, East Haddam and Mrs. C. F. Congdon of Mystic.

At the next meeting Wednesday evening, March 5, Brother Stark of Lyme grange is expected to address the gathering in connection with his trip to the recent session of the national grange at Seattle, Washington.
